SUPREME COURT OF NOVA SCOTIA IN BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY

IN THE MATTER OF the Companies Creditors Arrangement Act R.S.C., 1985 c. C- 36 as Amended (the “CCAA”)

AND IN THE MATTER OF an application by Spring Loaded Technology Incorporated “SLT” or the “Applicant” for creditor protection under s.11 of the CCAA and other relief.

APPLICANT’S MEMORANDUM OF FACT AND LAW

OVERVIEW

1. The Company is applying for an initial order (“Initial Order”) pursuant to the CCAA and submits this Memorandum in support of its Application.
2. Unless otherwise defined, all capitalized terms herein have the meanings ascribed to them in the Application and affidavit of dated Joe Ellsmere dated 22 January 2026 (the “Initial Affidavit”).

FACTS

Background to CCAA Filing

3. The Applicant is a business incorporated in 2012, under the Canada Business Corporations Act and in December 2012 was registered as an Extra-Provincial Corporation under the laws of the Province of Nova Scotia. The Company is headquartered in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia and is engaged in the development, manufacture, and commercialization of orthopedic knee bracing, an assistive medical device.
4. The Applicant has created employment in Atlantic Canada and has contributed to the economy of Canada.
5. The business is facing significant financial challenges, including over $6 million in unconverted interest-bearing debentures and approximately $4 million in unsecured federal long-term debt.

6. The company has explored various investment and exit opportunities with strategists, institutional investors, angels, and insiders, as more particularized in the Initial Affidavit, but these efforts have historically been unsuccessful.
7. The Applicants have also had discussions with their creditors on a path forward. After a most recent unsuccessful attempt at discussions with its secured creditors, detailed in the Board Memorandum dated 30 December 2025, to creditors and shareholders filed and attached as a confidential exhibit to the Initial affidavit, the Applicant believes this proceeding is the best path forward..
8. The Applicant lacks access to a lender and under its current financing arrangements, has been unable to secure a new lender, and does not have enough cash to meet its creditors' immediate demands. The Applicant urgently needs capital to maintain operations and meet payroll. Litigation could significantly harm employees, suppliers, consumers and the local economy.
9. The Applicant believes that a CCAA is the best procedural option to address its insolvency and maximize value for all stakeholders, including creditors, employees, suppliers, and customers. It is crucial to receive immediate creditor protection to ensure ongoing production.
10. The Applicant intends to continue operating as a going concern after either restructuring/refinancing or an expedited sales and investment solicitation process ("SISP"), with the SISP Order and related procedures to be presented for Court approval at the Comeback Hearing.
11. If granted, the CCAA protection sought in this Application will provide the Applicant with the necessary time to maintain the status quo and restructure its operations, aiming to remain a valuable contributor to Nova Scotia's economy.
12. In consultation with professional advisors, the Applicant determined that filing for CCAA protection is necessary and in the best interest of its stakeholders, including the secured creditors. Prior to filing, the Applicant had discussions with Wenova Ventures Ltd. ("Wenova") and ultimately received its support for the filing and an offer to provide a debtor-in-possession ("DIP") loan.

13. Further details regarding the Applicant's structure, stakeholder interests, economic contributions, and the circumstances leading up to this CCAA filing are outlined in the Initial Affidavit.

NATURE OF THE APPLICATION

14. The Applicant is seeking relief through an Order that:

- (a) abridges the time for service of the Application and the materials filed in support thereof, and dispensing with further service thereof;
- (b) declares that the Applicant is a debtor company to which the CCAA applies;
- (c) appoints Grant Thornton Limited ("GTL" or the "Proposed Monitor") as the monitor of the Applicant in these proceedings (the "CCAA Proceedings");
- (d) approves a debtor-in-possession ("DIP") loan up to an aggregate of $500,000.00, allowing a $100, 000.00 advance for the initial period of up to 10 days until the Comeback Hearing in accordance with the Wenova Ventures Ltd. ("Wenova" or the "DIP Lender") DIP Term Sheet (the "DIP Facility");
- (e) approves a charge securing the fees and disbursements of the professionals, including the Applicant's counsel, the Monitor, and the Monitor's counsel, incurred in respect of these proceedings both before and after the Initial Order, to an initial maximum of $150,000.00 (the "Administration Charge");
- (f) approves a Directors and Officers Charge ("D&O Charge") in the amount of $100,000.00;
- (g) approves pre-filing amounts owing to certain critical suppliers, in the aggregate not to exceed $100,000.00 and ordinary course post filing obligations;
- (h) stays, for an initial period of ten (10) days (the "Stay Period"), all actions, suits or proceedings and remedies taken or that might be taken against or in respect of the Applicant, the Proposed Monitor, or the Applicant's directors and officers, or affecting the Applicant's business or current and future assets, undertakings and properties of every nature and kind whatsoever, and wherever situate, except with the written consent of the Applicant and Proposed Monitor or otherwise permitted by law and with leave of this Court; and

- (i) approves a sealing order, sealing confidential exhibits filed in connection with the Application for an Initial Order.

ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION

- 15. The Court must determine whether the Applicant has met the burden imposed on those seeking an Initial Order under s. 11 of the CCAA, and that the requested relief is necessary and appropriate in the circumstances.

LAW AND ARGUMENT

The CCAA Applies to the Company

- 16. The Company is an incorporated entity which is currently insolvent, i.e. has been unable to meet its obligations as they generally become due, and has claims against it exceeding $5,000,000.00. The Company is therefore an entity qualifying for relief under CCAA, s. 3(1):

3 (1) This Act applies in respect of a debtor company or affiliated debtor companies if the total of claims against the debtor company or affiliated debtor companies, determined in accordance with section 20, is more than $5,000,000 or any other amount that is prescribed.

Relief Requested is Reasonably Necessary

- 17. Pursuant to s. 11.001 of the CCAA, the relief sought on an initial application is limited to what is reasonably necessary to continue operations in the ordinary course during the initial stay period.
- 18. The Company has ensured that the relief requested in the Initial Order is limited to what is strictly necessary to protect assets and maintain regular business operations pending the Comeback Hearing. This includes approval of an administration charge, a 10-day stay of proceedings, DIP facility and approval of the Proposed Monitor.

An Initial Order, including Stay of Proceedings, is Appropriate

- 19. Under the CCAA s. 11.02(1), a Court may grant an order staying all proceedings in respect of a debtor company for a period of not more than 10 days if the Court is satisfied that circumstances exist that make the order appropriate. Appropriateness is assessed by inquiring whether the stay of proceedings sought advances the policy objectives underlying the CCAA.¹

20. As for the relevant policy objectives to consider, several courts have endorsed the following general statement of principles to be applied in considering an application for initial CCAA relief and the accompanying stay of proceedings.²

- (a) The purpose of the CCAA is to allow an insolvent company a reasonable period of time to reorganize its affairs and prepare and file a plan for its continued operation subject to the requisite approval of the creditors and the court;
- (b) The CCAA is intended to serve not only the company's creditors but also a broad constituency which includes the shareholders and employees;
- (c) During the stay period the CCAA is intended to prevent maneuvers for positioning amongst the creditors of the company;
- (d) The function of the court during the stay period is to play a supervisory role to preserve the status quo and to move the process along to the point where a compromise or arrangement is approved or it is evident that the attempt is doomed to failure;
- (e) The status quo does not mean preservation of the relative pre-debt status of each creditor. Since the companies under CCAA orders continue to operate and having regard to the broad constituency of interests the CCAA is intended to serve, preservation of the status quo is not intended to create a rigid freeze of relative pre-stay positions; and
- (f) The court has a broad discretion to apply these principles to the facts of a particular case.

21. In 9354-9186 Québec Inc. v. Callidus Capital Corp. the Supreme Court of Canada stated that the CCAA generally prioritizes avoiding the social and economic losses resulting from liquidating an insolvent company, which is the intended outcome in this case, and proceeded to reiterate some of the relevant policy objectives to consider.³ These were summarized in Edward Collins Contracting Limited (Re)⁴ as follows:

- (a) providing for timely, efficient and impartial resolution of a debtor's insolvency;

⁴ Edward Collins Contracting Limited (Re), 2022 NLSC 149, para 20 [TAB 3]

- (b) preserving and maximizing the value of a debtor's assets;
 - (c) ensuring fair and equitable treatment of the claims against a debtor;
 - (d) protecting the public interest; and
 - (e) balancing the costs and benefits of restructuring or liquidating the company.
22. The threshold for an initial order under s. 11.02(1) is low. The Company must satisfy the Court that the policy considerations noted above are generally met and that there is a "germ of a plan" that suggests a reasonable possibility of restructuring under the CCAA.⁵ An applicant is not required to have a fully developed plan, nor are they required to have the support of all creditors.⁶
23. The Company submits that the evidence establishes appropriate circumstances to grant the Initial Order. The Initial Affidavit contains significant discussion around the Company's proposed plans – which far exceed a germ of a plan – and attaches exhibits which substantiate the Company's position that there is ample commercial interest to support an orderly sales and investment solicitation process ("SISP") run by the Proposed Monitor which can produce a value easily exceeding that which would be derived from liquidation.
24. The Stay Period will allow the Company to maintain its status quo operations while gaining the breathing room necessary to ensure that they remain in an operational state and devise an organized go-forward approach with the Proposed Monitor. This outcome will maximize value for all stakeholders and is supported by the major secured lender.
25. There is no suggestion that the Company's management team have acted in bad faith or otherwise in such a manner that they should not continue to operate the business while restructuring. To the contrary, the Company's sole director, Chris Cowper-Smith and CEO, Joe Ellsmere are key to the Company's success due to their depth of industry knowledge, experience, and relevant contacts. Their involvement is critical to ensure that the Applicant's successful restructuring.
26. The Company submits that all relevant considerations militate in favour of granting the Initial Order. This will provide the maximum chance of preserving the Company's operations as a going concern and/or an orderly liquidation to maximize value of its assets and thus satisfying the remedial policy aspirations underlying the federal insolvency statutes.

First Day DIP Financing

27. As set out in the Cash Flow Statement and Pre-Filing Report of the Proposed Monitor, the Applicant requires first-day debtor-in-possession ("DIP") financing to fund its operations and pursue restructuring efforts.
28. The Applicant has entered into an agreement and signed a term sheet (the "DIP Term Sheet " or "DIP Facility") with Wenova Ventures Ltd. (the "DIP Lender") for an advance of funds in the amount of $500,000.00.
29. In consultation with the Proposed Monitor the Applicant has determined that they require $100,000.00 in the first 10 days of the CCAA proceedings following the Initial Order. The Applicant expects to request an increase in the amount they can draw from the DIP Facility to and to seek a corresponding increase to the DIP Lender's charge at the Comeback Hearing as part of the ARIO.
30. As is standard, the DIP Facility is conditional upon, among other things, the issuance of the proposed Initial Order approving the DIP Term Sheet and granting a Court-ordered priority charge over the assets and property of the Applicant to secure all amounts advanced by the DIP Lender (the "DIP Lender's Charge"), subject only to the Administration Charge discussed below.
31. Interim financing is permitted by s. 11.2 of the CCAA on notice to affected secured creditors. Section 11.2(4) of the CCAA sets out the factors to be considered in assessing a request for interim financing:
 - (a) the period during which the company is expected to be subject to proceedings under this Act;
 - (b) how the company's business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings;
 - (c) whether the company's management has the confidence of its major creditors;
 - (d) whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the company;
 - (e) the nature and value of the company's property;

- (f) whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge;
and
 - (g) the monitor's report referred to in paragraph 23(1)(b)
32. This list is not exhaustive. No one factor set out in s. 11.2(4) governs or limits the CCAA court's ability consider this relief.⁷ The exercise involves balancing the interests of the debtors and their stakeholders towards insuring, if appropriate, that the financing will assist the debtor company to obtain the breathing room needed to hopefully achieve a restructuring acceptable to the creditors and the court.⁸
33. Pursuant to s. 11.2(5) of the CCAA, where an application for interim financing is made at the same time as the initial application, a court must also be satisfied that the "terms of the loan are limited to what is reasonably necessary for the continued operations of the debtor company in the ordinary course of business during that period". Despite the additional requirement, courts have consistently approved interim financing upon an initial application where appropriate.⁹
34. The Initial Affidavit describes why DIP financing at this stage is required for the Applicant to proceed with its efforts to prepare a viable restructuring plan and return to commercial success.
35. The Applicant submits that the DIP Facility and DIP Lender's Charge are both necessary and appropriate in the circumstances. With respect to the factors to consider under s.11.2(4) and (5) of the CCAA, the Applicant states that:
- (a) the Applicant will seek to raise additional capital in order to restructure or, as an alternative, will consider a sale of all or part of their assets;
 - (b) the Applicant's directors intend to carry on their existing efforts under the Proposed Monitor's supervision during the course of the CCAA proceeding;
 - (c) the Applicants' major secured creditor has not formally objected to this CCAA application;
 - (d) the Cash Flow Statement indicates that the Applicant cannot continue operations

⁷ Canwest Publishing Inc. 2010 ONSC 222, para 42 [TAB 5]

without the additional financing, which financing will significantly increase the prospect of a successful restructuring plan;

- (e) the proposed DIP Facility will not materially prejudice any existing secured creditor, as the amount of the financing is reasonable compared to the overall assets and liabilities of the Applicant;
 - (f) the Pre-Filing Report of the Proposed Monitor confirms its view that the DIP Facility is necessary to support operations under the CCAA.
36. The Applicant's request upon an Initial Order is limited to what is reasonably necessary to support its continued operations and fulfil the applicable CCAA obligations during the 10-day period following the Initial Order.
37. The Applicant cannot continue to operate its business while pursuing a restructuring plan without the DIP Facility. In 1057863 B.C. Ltd. (Re),¹⁰ interim financing was approved on the basis, in part, that it would provide a viable short-term path forward to allow the applicants to explore their restructuring options for the benefit of the entire stakeholder group.

Grant Thornton Limited Should be Appointed Monitor

38. Subsection 11.7(1) of the CCAA requires a court, when granting an initial order, to appoint a person to monitor the business and financial affairs of the applicant company.
39. The Applicants have engaged Grant Thornton Limited (the "Proposed Monitor") represented by Liam Murphy, a Bankruptcy Trustee to act in these CCAA proceedings. The Proposed Monitor is a "trustee" within the meaning of s. 2 of the BIA and is not subject to any of the restrictions on who may be appointed as Monitor set out in s. 11.7(2) of the CCAA.
40. The Proposed Monitor has consented to act as Monitor for the Company, subject to this Court's approval.
41. The Proposed Monitor is a well-recognized licensed insolvency trustee firm with substantial CCAA experience in Newfoundland and Labrador. The Proposed Monitor is also a leading business consulting firm that will provide valuable advice to the Applicants during the restructuring and can perform monitoring functions without delay and is well-suited to this mandate. The Company is wholly supportive of the Proposed Monitor acting in the Monitor role and all conflicts have been waived.

42. The Company believes that it is in its best interests that the Proposed Monitor be appointed as Monitor and assist the Company in the development and implementation of SISP, subject to Court approval.

A Partial Sealing Order is Required

43. The Initial Affidavit contains a confidential exhibit relating to the Board Memorandum to shareholders and creditors on a proposed asset sale transaction which the Company asks to be kept confidential due to its commercially sensitive nature.
44. The requested sealing order is limited in scope and balances the “open court” principle with the legitimate commercial requirements for confidentiality in the circumstances. The benefits of the requested sealing order outweigh the negative impact on the “open court” principle.
45. The Company submits that the limited nature and scope of the proposed sealing order is appropriate and satisfies the *Sierra Club of Canada v. Canada (Minister of Finance)*¹¹ requirements, as modified in Sherman Estate v. Donovan.¹²

Administration Charge

46. The Court may grant an administration charge pursuant to s. 11.52 of the CCAA. In deciding whether to grant an administration charge, courts may consider a number of factors, including: (a) the size and complexity of the businesses being restructured; (b) the proposed role of the beneficiaries of the charge; (c) whether there is an unwarranted duplication of roles; (d) whether the quantum of the proposed charge appears to be fair and reasonable; (e) the position of the secured creditors likely to be affected by the charge; and (f) the position of the Monitor.¹³
47. The support of the Proposed Monitor, its counsel and the Applicant’s counsel (collectively, the “Professionals”), is essential to the Applicant’s restructuring. As such, the

¹¹ Sierra Club of Canada v. Canada (Minister of Finance), 2002 SCC 41, para. 53 [TAB 8]

¹³ Walter Energy Canada Holdings, Inc (Re), 2016 BCSC 107 at para 42 [TAB 10]

Professionals have requested that their respective fees and disbursements be secured by a Court charge in an initial aggregate amount of $150,000.00.

48. The Administration Charge will be secured by a charge on all the Applicant's present and future assets, property and undertakings ranking ahead of all Applicant's other secured and unsecured creditors. The quantum of the proposed Administrative Charge is fair and reasonable in line with the nature and size of the Applicant's business. It does not unduly prejudice the Applicant's creditors in relation to the benefit the Professionals will bring to the CCAA proceeding.
49. The Proposed Monitor is supportive of the Administration Charge and believes it to be to the benefit of all stakeholders.

Directors and Officers Charge ("D&O Charge"):

50. Section 11.51 of the CCAA affords the Court the jurisdiction to grant a charge relating to directors' and officers' indemnification on a priority basis.
51. The Applicant is seeking a D&O Charge in the amount of $100,000.00, to take rank under the Administrative Charge and the DIP Facility. The business requires the continued participation of directors to bring the CCAA proceedings to fruition. They are essential to the viability of the restructuring efforts due to their integration within the businesses, as well as their depth of industry knowledge, experience, and relevant contacts.
52. The D&O insurance policy of the Applicant has a "financial impairment exclusion" in which the insurer is not liable to make any payment for loss in connection with any claim made arising out of financial impairment. Financial impairment is defined to include, among other things, a reorganization proceeding relating to the Company which has been brought in Canada under the CCAA.
53. The Applicant believes that the amount of the proposed D&O Charge, as part of the Initial Order, is fair and reasonable in the circumstances. The D&O Charge is intended to allow the Director and Officer to focus their efforts on these restructuring proceedings, for the benefit of all stakeholders.

Ability to Pay Various Key Expenses with Approval of the Monitor

54. During these CCAA proceedings, the Applicant proposes to pay amounts owing for essential goods or services supplied to the Applicant prior to the Initial Order, if, in the opinion of the Monitor, the payment is necessary and appropriate.

55. Courts can authorize an applicant to pay certain amounts, including pre-filing amounts, to suppliers where the applicant is not seeking a charge in respect of critical suppliers.¹⁴

Factors to consider are the following:

- a) whether the goods and services were integral to the business of the applicants;
- b) the applicants' dependency on the uninterrupted supply of the goods or services;
- c) the fact that no payments would be made without the consent of the Monitor;
- d) the Monitor's support and willingness to work with the applicants to ensure that payments to suppliers in respect of pre-filing liabilities are minimized;
- e) whether the applicants had sufficient inventory of the goods on hand to meet their needs; and
- f) the effect on the debtors' ongoing operations and ability to restructure if they were unable to make pre-filing payments to their critical suppliers.

56. The Applicant relies on the efficient and expedited supply of products and services from its suppliers and service providers, listed in the Initial Affidavit to ensure that its operations continue in an efficient manner. These suppliers are important as they are (a) suppliers of core brace component/raw materials required to meet in-process and imminent customer orders; (b) specialized contract manufacturers and finishers necessary to complete sub-assemblies on current work-in-progress, and (c) essential to maintain order processing, engineering files, and communications with our Canada, United States, and the United Kingdom clientele. Payments, if made, will be limited to the minimum amounts required to induce continued supply on customary trade terms during the initial stay period, subject to the Proposed Monitor's oversight. Major operational disruptions would impair cash flow and restructuring efforts.

57. The Applicant is also seeking approval to pay ordinary post filing obligations. These payments include lease for premises and equipment, payroll, supplier and vendor obligations. It is necessary that the Applicant is allowed to pay its suppliers and vendors, sales representatives and employees to stabilize the workforce, preserve customer relationships, and prevent disruption in production and distribution during the initial stay which is all integral to the business.

Authority to Maintain Cash Management System

58. The Applicant has a cash management system (the “Cash Management System”) including the following (i) three bank accounts; (ii) two visa cards; and (iii) Cheque, Quickbooks Payments, which are all linked to the bank account, Stripe or Shopify for credit card payments, more particularized in paragraphs 85-88 of the Initial Affidavit.
59. The Applicant seeks authority to keep the same Cash Management System with the oversight of the Proposed Monitor. This will minimize disruption, reduce administrative burden and cost, and permit timely satisfaction of ordinary course post-filing obligations, while providing transparency to the Court, the Monitor, and stakeholders.
60. The Court has granted such relief where the Cash Management System, is supportive of the Applicant’s maintenance, and the appropriate processes, controls, and reporting are in place to enable the Applicants, with the oversight of the Proposed Monitor, to continue to use the Cash Management System during this CCAA Proceeding.¹⁵

CONCLUSION

61. The Company requires immediate CCAA protection. Enforcement by creditors would entail liquidation of assets and destroy the value of goodwill. It is vital that production of the assistive medical devices continue while the Applicant restructures.
62. An Initial Order will allow the Company breathing room to stabilize and remain in control of its business while reviewing operational and financial restructuring options with the Proposed Monitor. The Company is seeking only what is reasonable and necessary in the circumstances.
63. At the s. 11.02 Comeback Hearing, the Company will update the Court on the status and timing of its proposed plan, will establish that they have been acting in good faith and with due diligence, as required by s. 11.02(3), will seek an extension of the stay and approval to draw from the DIP loan, will seek an expedited SISP, along with such other reasonable and necessary relief as determined in consultation with the Proposed Monitor.

Bankruptcy and insolvency — Discretionary authority of supervising judge in proceedings under Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act — Appellate review of decisions of supervising judge — Whether supervising judge has discretion to bar creditor from voting on plan of arrangement where creditor is acting for improper purpose — Whether supervising judge can approve third party litigation funding as interim financing — Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, ss. 11, 11.2.

The debtor companies filed a petition for the issuance of an initial order under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act ("CCAA") in November 2015. The petition succeeded, and the initial order was issued by a supervising judge, who became responsible for overseeing the proceedings. Since then, substantially all of the assets of the debtor companies have been liquidated, with the notable exception of retained claims for damages against the companies' only secured creditor. In September 2017, the secured creditor proposed a plan of arrangement, which later failed to receive sufficient creditor support. In February 2018, the secured creditor proposed another, virtually identical, plan of arrangement. It also sought the supervising judge's permission to vote on this new plan in the same class as the debtor companies' unsecured creditors, on the basis that its security was worth nil. Around the Faillite et insolvabilité — Pouvoir discrétionnaire du juge surveillant dans une instance introduite sous le régime de la Loi sur les arrangements avec les créanciers des compagnies — Contrôle en appel des décisions du juge surveillant — Le juge surveillant a-t-il le pouvoir discrétionnaire d'empêcher un créancier de voter sur un plan d'arrangement si ce créancier agit dans un but illégitime? — Le juge surveillant peut-il approuver le financement de litige par un tiers à titre de financement temporaire? — Loi sur les arrangements avec les créanciers des compagnies, L.R.C. 1985, c. C-36, art. 11, 11.2.

En novembre 2015, les compagnies débitrices déposent une requête en délivrance d'une ordonnance initiale sous le régime de la Loi sur les arrangements avec les créanciers des compagnies (« LACC »). La requête est accueillie, et l'ordonnance initiale est rendue par un juge surveillant, qui est chargé de surveiller le déroulement de l'instance. Depuis, la quasi-totalité des éléments d'actif de la compagnie débitrice ont été liquidés, à l'exception notable des réclamations réservées en dommages-intérêts contre le seul créancier garanti des compagnies. En septembre 2017, le créancier garanti propose un plan d'arrangement, qui n'obtient pas subséquemment l'appui nécessaire des créanciers. En février 2018, le créancier garanti propose un autre plan d'arrangement, presque identique au premier. Il demande aussi au juge surveillant la permission de voter sur ce nouveau plan dans la même catégorie que same time, the debtor companies sought interim financing in the form of a proposed third party litigation funding agreement, which would permit them to pursue litigation of the retained claims. They also sought the approval of a related super-priority litigation financing charge.

The supervising judge determined that the secured creditor should not be permitted to vote on the new plan because it was acting with an improper purpose. As a result, the new plan had no reasonable prospect of success and was not put to a creditors' vote. The supervising judge allowed the debtor companies' application, authorizing them to enter into a third party litigation funding agreement. On appeal by the secured creditor and certain of the unsecured creditors, the Court of Appeal set aside the supervising judge's order, holding that he had erred in reaching the foregoing conclusions.

Held: The appeal should be allowed and the supervising judge's order reinstated.

The supervising judge made no error in barring the secured creditor from voting or in authorizing the third party litigating funding agreement. A supervising judge has the discretion to bar a creditor from voting on a plan of arrangement where they determine that the creditor is acting for an improper purpose. A supervising judge can also approve third party litigation funding as interim financing, pursuant to s. 11.2 of the CCAA. The Court of Appeal was not justified in interfering with the supervising judge's discretionary decisions in this regard, having failed to treat them with the appropriate degree of deference.

The CCAA is one of three principal insolvency statutes in Canada. It pursues an array of overarching remedial objectives that reflect the wide ranging and potentially catastrophic impacts insolvency can have. These objectives include: providing for timely, efficient and impartial resolution of a debtor's insolvency; preserving and maximizing the value of a debtor's assets; ensuring fair and equitable treatment of the claims against a debtor; protecting the public interest; and, in the context of a commercial insolvency, balancing the costs and benefits of restructuring or liquidating the company. The architecture of the CCAA leaves the case-specific assessment and balancing of these objectives to the supervising judge.

les créanciers non garantis des compagnies débitrices, au motif que sa sûreté ne vaut rien. À peu près au même moment, les compagnies débitrices demandent un financement temporaire sous forme d'un accord de financement de litige par un tiers qui leur permettrait de poursuivre l'instruction des réclamations réservées. Elles sollicitent également l'approbation d'une charge super-prioritaire pour financer le litige.

Le juge surveillant décide que le créancier garanti ne peut voter sur le nouveau plan parce qu'il agit dans un but illégitime. En conséquence, le nouveau plan n'a aucune possibilité raisonnable d'être avalisé et il n'est pas soumis au vote des créanciers. Le juge surveillant accueille la demande des compagnies débitrices et les autorise à conclure un accord de financement de litige par un tiers. À l'issue d'un appel formé par le créancier garanti et certains des créanciers non garantis, la Cour d'appel annule l'ordonnance du juge surveillant, estimant qu'il est parvenu à tort aux conclusions qui précèdent.

Arrêt : Le pourvoi est accueilli et l'ordonnance du juge surveillant est rétablie.

Le juge surveillant n'a commis aucune erreur en empêchant le créancier garanti de voter ou en approuvant l'accord de financement de litige par un tiers. Un juge surveillant a le pouvoir discrétionnaire d'empêcher un créancier de voter sur un plan d'arrangement s'il décide que le créancier agit dans un but illégitime. Un juge surveillant peut aussi approuver le financement de litige par un tiers à titre de financement temporaire, en vertu de l'art. 11.2 de la LACC. La Cour d'appel n'était pas justifiée de modifier les décisions discrétionnaires du juge surveillant à cet égard et n'a pas fait preuve de la déférence à laquelle elle était tenue par rapport à ces décisions.

La LACC est l'une des trois principales lois canadiennes en matière d'insolvabilité. Elle poursuit un grand nombre d'objectifs réparateurs généraux qui témoignent de la vaste gamme des conséquences potentiellement catastrophiques qui peuvent découler de l'insolvabilité. Ces objectifs incluent les suivants : régler de façon rapide, efficace et impartiale l'insolvabilité d'un débiteur; préserver et maximiser la valeur des actifs d'un débiteur; assurer un traitement juste et équitable des réclamations déposées contre un débiteur; protéger l'intérêt public; et, dans le contexte d'une insolvabilité commerciale, établir un équilibre entre les coûts et les bénéfices découlant de la restructuration ou de la liquidation d'une compagnie. La structure de la LACC laisse au juge surveillant le soin de procéder à un examen et à une mise en balance au cas par cas de ces objectifs.

From beginning to end, each proceeding under the CCAA is overseen by a single supervising judge, who has broad discretion to make a variety of orders that respond to the circumstances of each case. The anchor of this discretionary authority is s. 11 of the CCAA, which empowers a judge to make any order that they consider appropriate in the circumstances. This discretionary authority is broad, but not boundless. It must be exercised in furtherance of the remedial objectives of the CCAA and with three baseline considerations in mind: (1) that the order sought is appropriate in the circumstances, and (2) that the applicant has been acting in good faith and (3) with due diligence. The due diligence consideration discourages parties from sitting on their rights and ensures that creditors do not strategically manoeuvre or position themselves to gain an advantage. A high degree of deference is owed to discretionary decisions made by judges supervising CCAA proceedings and, as such, appellate intervention will only be justified if the supervising judge erred in principle or exercised their discretion unreasonably.

A creditor can generally vote on a plan of arrangement or compromise that affects its rights, subject to any specific provisions of the CCAA that may restrict its voting rights, or a proper exercise of discretion by the supervising judge to constrain or bar the creditor's right to vote. Given that the CCAA regime contemplates creditor participation in decision-making as an integral facet of the workout regime, the discretion to bar a creditor from voting should only be exercised where the circumstances demand such an outcome. Where a creditor is seeking to exercise its voting rights in a manner that frustrates, undermines, or runs counter to the remedial objectives of the CCAA — that is, acting for an improper purpose — s. 11 of the CCAA supplies the supervising judge with the discretion to bar that creditor from voting. This discretion parallels the similar discretion that exists under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act and advances the basic fairness that permeates Canadian insolvency law and practice. Whether this discretion ought to be exercised in a particular case is a circumstance-specific inquiry that the supervising judge is best-positioned to undertake.

In the instant case, the supervising judge's decision to bar the secured creditor from voting on the new plan discloses no error justifying appellate intervention. When he made this decision, the supervising judge was intimately Chaque procédure fondée sur la LACC est supervisée du début à la fin par un seul juge surveillant, qui a le vaste pouvoir discrétionnaire de rendre toute une gamme d'ordonnances susceptibles de répondre aux circonstances de chaque cas. Le point d'ancrage de ce pouvoir discrétionnaire est l'art. 11 de la LACC, lequel confère au juge le pouvoir de rendre toute ordonnance qu'il estime indiquée. Quoique vaste, ce pouvoir discrétionnaire n'est pas sans limites. Son exercice doit tendre à la réalisation des objectifs réparateurs de la LACC et tenir compte de trois considérations de base : (1) que l'ordonnance demandée est indiquée, et (2) que le demandeur a agi de bonne foi et (3) avec la diligence voulue. La considération de diligence décourage les parties de rester sur leurs positions et fait en sorte que les créanciers n'usent pas stratégiquement de ruse ou ne se placent pas eux-mêmes dans une position pour obtenir un avantage. Les décisions discrétionnaires des juges chargés de la supervision des procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC commandent un degré élevé de déférence. En conséquence, les cours d'appel ne seront justifiées d'intervenir que si le juge surveillant a commis une erreur de principe ou exercé son pouvoir discrétionnaire de manière déraisonnable.

En général, un créancier peut voter sur un plan d'arrangement ou une transaction qui a une incidence sur ses droits, sous réserve des dispositions de la LACC qui peuvent limiter son droit de voter, ou de l'exercice justifié par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire de limiter ou de supprimer ce droit. Étant donné que le régime de la LACC, dont l'un des aspects essentiels tient à la participation du créancier au processus décisionnel, les créanciers ne devraient être empêchés de voter que si les circonstances l'exigent. Lorsqu'un créancier cherche à exercer ses droits de vote de manière à contrecarrer ou à miner les objectifs réparateurs de la LACC ou à aller à l'encontre de ceux-ci — c'est-à-dire à agir dans un but illégitime — l'art. 11 de la LACC confère au juge surveillant le pouvoir discrétionnaire d'empêcher le créancier de voter. Ce pouvoir discrétionnaire s'apparente au pouvoir discrétionnaire semblable qui existe en vertu de la Loi sur la faillite et l'insolvabilité et favorise l'équité fondamentale qui imprègne le droit et la pratique en matière d'insolvabilité au Canada. La question de savoir s'il y a lieu d'exercer le pouvoir discrétionnaire dans une situation donnée appelle une analyse fondée sur les circonstances propres à chaque situation que le juge surveillant est le mieux placé pour effectuer.

En l'espèce, la décision du juge surveillant d'empêcher le créancier garanti de voter sur le nouveau plan ne révèle aucune erreur justifiant l'intervention d'une cour d'appel. Lorsqu'il a rendu sa décision, le juge surveillant familiar with these proceedings, having presided over them for over 2 years, received 15 reports from the monitor, and issued approximately 25 orders. He considered the whole of the circumstances and concluded that the secured creditor's vote would serve an improper purpose. He was aware that the secured creditor had chosen not to value any of its claim as unsecured prior to the vote on the first plan and did not attempt to vote on that plan, which ultimately failed to receive the other creditors' approval. Between the failure of the first plan and the proposal of the (essentially identical) new plan, none of the factual circumstances relating to the debtor companies' financial or business affairs had materially changed. However, the secured creditor sought to value the entirety of its security at nil and, on that basis, sought leave to vote on the new plan as an unsecured creditor. If the secured creditor were permitted to vote in this way, the new plan would certainly have met the double majority threshold for approval under s. 6(1) of the CCAA. The inescapable inference was that the secured creditor was attempting to strategically value its security to acquire control over the outcome of the vote and thereby circumvent the creditor democracy the CCAA protects. The secured creditor's course of action was also plainly contrary to the expectation that parties act with due diligence in an insolvency proceeding, which includes acting with due diligence in valuing their claims and security. The secured creditor was therefore properly barred from voting on the new plan.

Whether third party litigation funding should be approved as interim financing is a case-specific inquiry that should have regard to the text of s. 11.2 of the CCAA and the remedial objectives of the CCAA more generally. Interim financing is a flexible tool that may take on a range of forms. This is apparent from the wording of s. 11.2(1), which is broad and does not mandate any standard form or terms. At its core, interim financing enables the preservation and realization of the value of a debtor's assets. In some circumstances, like the instant case, litigation funding furthers this basic purpose. Third party litigation funding agreements may therefore be approved as interim financing in CCAA proceedings when the supervising judge determines that doing so would be fair and appropriate, having regard to all the circumstances and the objectives of the Act. This requires consideration of the specific factors set out in s. 11.2(4) of the CCAA. These factors need not be mechanically applied or individually reviewed by the supervising judge, as not all of them will be significant in every case, nor are they exhaustive.

connaissait très bien les procédures en cause, car il les avait présidées pendant plus de 2 ans, avait reçu 15 rapports du contrôleur et avait délivré environ 25 ordonnances. Il a tenu compte de l'ensemble des circonstances et a conclu que le vote du créancier garanti viserait un but illégitime. Il savait qu'avant le vote sur le premier plan, le créancier garanti avait choisi de n'évaluer aucune partie de sa réclamation à titre de créancier non garanti et n'avait pas tenté de voter sur ce plan, qui n'a finalement pas reçu l'aval des autres créanciers. Entre l'insuccès du premier plan et la proposition du nouveau plan (identique pour l'essentiel au premier plan), les circonstances factuelles se rapportant aux affaires financières ou commerciales des compagnies débitrices n'avaient pas réellement changé. Pourtant, le créancier garanti a tenté d'évaluer la totalité de sa sûreté à zéro et, sur cette base, a demandé l'autorisation de voter sur le nouveau plan à titre de créancier non garanti. Si le créancier garanti avait été autorisé à voter de cette façon, le nouveau plan aurait certainement satisfait au critère d'approbation à double majorité prévu par le par. 6(1) de la LACC. La seule conclusion possible était que le créancier garanti tentait d'évaluer stratégiquement la valeur de sa sûreté afin de prendre le contrôle du vote et ainsi contourner la démocratie entre les créanciers que défend la LACC. La façon d'agir du créancier garanti était manifestement contraire à l'attente selon laquelle les parties agissent avec diligence dans une procédure d'insolvabilité, ce qui comprend le fait de faire preuve de diligence raisonnable dans l'évaluation de leurs réclamations et sûretés. Le créancier garanti a donc été empêché à bon droit de voter sur le nouveau plan.

La question de savoir s'il y a lieu d'approuver le financement d'un litige par un tiers à titre de financement temporaire commande une analyse fondée sur les faits de l'espèce qui doit tenir compte du libellé de l'art. 11.2 de la LACC et des objectifs réparateurs de la LACC de façon plus générale. Le financement temporaire est un outil souple qui peut revêtir différentes formes. Cela ressort du libellé du par. 11.2(1), qui est large et ne prescrit aucune forme ou condition type. Le financement temporaire permet essentiellement de préserver et de réaliser la valeur des éléments d'actif du débiteur. Dans certaines circonstances, comme en l'espèce, le financement de litige favorise la réalisation de cet objectif fondamental. Les accords de financement de litige par un tiers peuvent être approuvés à titre de financement temporaire dans le cadre des procédures fondées sur la LACC lorsque le juge surveillant estime qu'il serait juste et approprié de le faire, compte tenu de l'ensemble des circonstances et des objectifs de la Loi. Cela implique la prise en considération des facteurs précis énoncés au par. 11.2(4) de la LACC. Ces facteurs

Additionally, in order for a third party litigation funding agreement to be approved as interim financing, the agreement must not contain terms that effectively convert it into a plan of arrangement.

In the instant case, there is no basis upon which to interfere with the supervising judge's exercise of his discretion to approve the litigation funding agreement as interim financing. A review of the supervising judge's reasons as a whole, combined with a recognition of his manifest experience with the debtor companies' CCAA proceedings, leads to the conclusion that the factors listed in s. 11.2(4) concern matters that could not have escaped his attention and due consideration. It is apparent that he was focussed on the fairness at stake to all parties, the specific objectives of the CCAA, and the particular circumstances of this case when he approved the litigation funding agreement as interim financing. Further, the litigation funding agreement is not a plan of arrangement because it does not propose any compromise of the creditors' rights. The fact that the creditors may walk away with more or less money at the end of the day does not change the nature or existence of their rights to access the funds generated from the debtor companies' assets, nor can it be said to compromise those rights. Finally, the litigation financing charge does not convert the litigation funding agreement into a plan of arrangement. Holding otherwise would effectively extinguish the supervising judge's authority to approve these charges without a creditors' vote, which is expressly provided for in s. 11.2 of the CCAA.

ne doivent pas être appliqués machinalement ou examinés individuellement par le juge surveillant, car ils ne seront pas tous importants dans tous les cas, et ils ne sont pas non plus exhaustifs. En outre, pour qu'un accord de financement de litige par un tiers soit approuvé à titre de financement temporaire, il ne doit pas comporter des conditions qui le convertissent effectivement en plan d'arrangement.

En l'espèce, il n'y a aucune raison d'intervenir dans l'exercice par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire d'approuver l'accord de financement de litige à titre de financement temporaire. L'examen des motifs du juge surveillant dans leur ensemble, conjugué à la reconnaissance de son expérience évidente des procédures intentées par les compagnies débitrices sous le régime de la LACC, mène à la conclusion que les facteurs énumérés au par. 11.2(4) concernent des questions qui n'auraient pu échapper à son attention et à son examen adéquat. Il est manifeste que le juge surveillant a mis l'accent sur l'équité envers toutes les parties, les objectifs précis de la LACC et les circonstances particulières de la présente affaire lorsqu'il a approuvé l'accord de financement de litige à titre de financement temporaire. De plus, l'accord de financement de litige ne constitue pas un plan d'arrangement parce qu'il ne propose aucune transaction visant les droits des créanciers. Le fait que les créanciers puissent en fin de compte remporter plus ou moins d'argent ne modifie en rien la nature ou l'existence de leurs droits d'avoir accès aux fonds provenant des actifs des compagnies débitrices, pas plus qu'on ne saurait dire qu'il s'agit d'une transaction à l'égard de leurs droits. Enfin, la charge relative au financement de litige ne convertit pas l'accord de financement de litige en plan d'arrangement. Une conclusion contraire aurait pour effet d'annihiler le pouvoir du juge surveillant d'approuver ces charges sans un vote des créanciers, un résultat qui est expressément prévu par l'art. 11.2 de la LACC.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE AND MOLDAVER J.—

I. Overview

[1] These appeals arise in the context of an ongoing proceeding instituted under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 ("CCAA"), in which substantially all of the assets of the debtor companies have been liquidated. The proceeding was commenced well over four years ago. Since then, a single supervising judge has been responsible for its oversight. In this capacity, he has made numerous discretionary decisions.

[2] Two of the supervising judge's decisions are in issue before us. Each raises a question requiring this Court to clarify the nature and scope of judicial discretion in CCAA proceedings. The first is whether a supervising judge has the discretion to bar a creditor from voting on a plan of arrangement where they determine that the creditor is acting for an improper purpose. The second is whether a supervising judge can approve third party litigation funding as interim financing, pursuant to s. 11.2 of the CCAA.

[3] For the reasons that follow, we would answer both questions in the affirmative, as did the supervising judge. To the extent the Court of Appeal disagreed

LE JUGE EN CHEF ET LE JUGE MOLDAVER —

I. Aperçu

[1] Ces pourvois s'inscrivent dans le contexte d'une instance toujours en cours introduite sous le régime de la Loi sur les arrangements avec les créanciers de compagnies, L.R.C. 1985, c. C-36 (« LACC »), dans le cadre de laquelle la quasi-totalité des éléments d'actif des compagnies débitrices ont été liquidés. L'instance a été introduite il y a plus de quatre ans. Depuis, un seul juge surveillant a été chargé de sa supervision. À ce titre, il a rendu de nombreuses décisions discrétionnaires.

[3] Pour les motifs qui suivent, nous sommes d'avis de répondre à ces deux questions par l'affirmative, à l'instar du juge surveillant. Dans la mesure où la and went on to interfere with the supervising judge's discretionary decisions, we conclude that it was not justified in doing so. In our respectful view, the Court of Appeal failed to treat the supervising judge's decisions with the appropriate degree of deference. In the result, as we ordered at the conclusion of the hearing, these appeals are allowed and the supervising judge's order reinstated.

II. Facts

[4] In 1994, Mr. Gérald Duhamel founded Bluberi Gaming Technologies Inc., which is now one of the appellants, 9354-9186 Québec inc. The corporation manufactured, distributed, installed, and serviced electronic casino gaming machines. It also provided management systems for gambling operations. Its sole shareholder has at all material times been Bluberi Group Inc., which is now another of the appellants, 9354-9178 Québec inc. Through a family trust, Mr. Duhamel controls Bluberi Group Inc. and, as a result, Bluberi Gaming (collectively, "Bluberi").

[5] In 2012, Bluberi sought financing from the respondent, Callidus Capital Corporation ("Callidus"), which describes itself as an "asset-based or distressed lender" (R.F., at para. 26). Callidus extended a credit facility of approximately $24 million to Bluberi. This debt was secured in part by a share pledge agreement.

[6] Over the next three years, Bluberi lost significant amounts of money, and Callidus continued to extend credit. By 2015, Bluberi owed approximately $86 million to Callidus — close to half of which Bluberi asserts is comprised of interest and fees.

A. Bluberi's Institution of CCAA Proceedings and Initial Sale of Assets

[7] On November 11, 2015, Bluberi filed a petition for the issuance of an initial order under the CCAA. In its petition, Bluberi alleged that its liquidity issues

Cour d'appel s'est dite d'avis contraire et a modifié les décisions discrétionnaires du juge surveillant, nous concluons qu'elle n'était pas justifiée de le faire. Avec égards, la Cour d'appel n'a pas fait preuve de la déférence à laquelle elle était tenue par rapport aux décisions du juge surveillant. C'est pourquoi, comme nous l'avons ordonné à l'issue de l'audience, les pourvois sont accueillis et l'ordonnance du juge surveillant est rétablie.

II. Les faits

[4] En 1994, M. Gérald Duhamel fonde Bluberi Gaming Technologies Inc., qui est devenue l'une des appelantes, 9354-9186 Québec inc. L'entreprise fabriquait, distribuait, installait et entretenait des appareils de jeux électroniques pour casino. Elle offrait aussi des systèmes de gestion dans le domaine des jeux d'argent. Pendant toute la période pertinente, son unique actionnaire était Bluberi Group Inc., qui est devenue une autre des appelantes, 9354-9178 Québec inc. Par l'entremise d'une fiducie familiale, M. Duhamel contrôlait Bluberi Group inc. et, de ce fait, Bluberi Gaming (collectivement, « Bluberi »).

[5] En 2012, Bluberi demande du financement à l'intimée Callidus Capital Corporation (« Callidus »), qui se décrit comme un [TRADUCTION] « prêteur offrant du financement garanti par des actifs ou du financement à des entreprises en difficulté financière » (m.i., par. 26). Callidus lui consent une facilité de crédit d'environ 24 millions de dollars, que Bluberi garantit partiellement en signant une entente par laquelle elle met en gage ses actions.

[6] Au cours des trois années suivantes, Bluberi perd d'importantes sommes d'argent et Callidus continue de lui consentir du crédit. En 2015, Bluberi doit environ 86 millions de dollars à Callidus — Bluberi affirme que près de la moitié de cette somme est composée d'intérêts et de frais.

A. L'introduction des procédures sous le régime de la LACC par Bluberi et la vente initiale d'actifs

[7] Le 11 novembre 2015, Bluberi dépose une requête en délivrance d'une ordonnance initiale sous le régime de la LACC. Dans sa requête, Bluberi allègue were the result of Callidus taking de facto control of the corporation and dictating a number of purposefully detrimental business decisions. Bluberi alleged that Callidus engaged in this conduct in order to deplete the corporation's equity value with a view to owning Bluberi and, ultimately, selling it.

[8] Over Callidus's objection, Bluberi's petition succeeded. The supervising judge, Michaud J., issued an initial order under the CCAA. Among other things, the initial order confirmed that Bluberi was a "debtor company" within the meaning of s. 2(1) of the Act; stayed any proceedings against Bluberi or any director or officer of Bluberi; and appointed Ernst & Young Inc. as monitor ("Monitor").

[9] Working with the Monitor, Bluberi determined that a sale of its assets was necessary. On January 28, 2016, it proposed a sale solicitation process, which the supervising judge approved. That process led to Bluberi entering into an asset purchase agreement with Callidus. The agreement contemplated that Callidus would obtain all of Bluberi's assets in exchange for extinguishing almost the entirety of its secured claim against Bluberi, which had ballooned to approximately $135.7 million. Callidus would maintain an undischarged secured claim of $3 million against Bluberi. The agreement would also permit Bluberi to retain claims for damages against Callidus arising from its alleged involvement in Bluberi's financial difficulties ("Retained Claims").¹ Throughout these proceedings, Bluberi has asserted that the Retained Claims should amount to over $200 million in damages.

[10] The supervising judge approved the asset purchase agreement, and the sale of Bluberi's assets to Callidus closed in February 2017. As a result, Callidus effectively acquired Bluberi's business, and has continued to operate it as a going concern.

que ses problèmes de liquidité découlent du fait que Callidus exerce un contrôle de facto à l'égard de son entreprise et lui dicte un certain nombre de décisions d'affaires dans l'intention de lui nuire. Bluberi prétend que Callidus agit ainsi afin de réduire la valeur des actions dans le but de devenir propriétaire de Bluberi et ultimement de la vendre.

[8] Malgré l'objection de Callidus, la requête de Bluberi est accueillie. Le juge surveillant, le juge Michaud, rend une ordonnance initiale sous le régime de la LACC. Celle-ci confirme entre autres que Bluberi est une « compagnie débitrice » au sens du par. 2(1) de la Loi, suspend toute procédure introduite à l'encontre de Bluberi, de ses administrateurs ou dirigeants, et désigne Ernst & Young Inc. pour agir à titre de contrôleur (« contrôleur »).

[9] Travaillant en collaboration avec le contrôleur, Bluberi décide que la vente de ses actifs est nécessaire. Le 28 janvier 2016, elle propose un processus de mise en vente que le juge surveillant approuve. Ce processus débouche sur la conclusion d'une convention d'achat d'actifs entre Bluberi et Callidus. Cette convention prévoit que Callidus obtient l'ensemble des actifs de Bluberi en échange de l'extinction de la presque totalité de la créance garantie qu'elle détient à l'encontre de Bluberi, qui s'élevait à environ 135,7 millions de dollars. Callidus conserve une créance garantie non libérée de 3 millions de dollars contre Bluberi. La convention prévoit aussi que Bluberi se réserve le droit de réclamer des dommages-intérêts à Callidus en raison de l'implication alléguée de celle-ci dans ses difficultés financières (les « réclamations réservées »)¹. Tout au long de ces procédures, Bluberi affirme que la valeur des réclamations ainsi réservées représente plus de 200 millions de dollars en dommages-intérêts.

[10] Le juge surveillant approuve la convention d'achat d'actifs, et la vente des actifs de Bluberi à Callidus est conclue en février 2017. En conséquence, Callidus acquiert l'entreprise de Bluberi et en poursuit l'exploitation.

[11] Since the sale, the Retained Claims have been Bluberi's sole remaining asset and thus the sole security for Callidus's $3 million claim.

B. The Initial Competing Plans of Arrangement

[12] On September 11, 2017, Bluberi filed an application seeking the approval of a $2 million interim financing credit facility to fund the litigation of the Retained Claims and other related relief. The lender was a joint venture numbered company incorporated as 9364-9739 Québec inc. This interim financing application was set to be heard on September 19, 2017.

[13] However, one day before the hearing, Callidus proposed a plan of arrangement ("First Plan") and applied for an order convening a creditors' meeting to vote on that plan. The First Plan proposed that Callidus would fund a $2.5 million (later increased to $2.63 million) distribution to Bluberi's creditors, except itself, in exchange for a release from the Retained Claims. This would have fully satisfied the claims of Bluberi's former employees and those creditors with claims worth less than $3000; creditors with larger claims were to receive, on average, 31 percent of their respective claims.

[14] The supervising judge adjourned the hearing of both applications to October 5, 2017. In the meantime, Bluberi filed its own plan of arrangement. Among other things, the plan proposed that half of any proceeds resulting from the Retained Claims, after payment of expenses and Bluberi's creditors' claims, would be distributed to the unsecured creditors, as long as the net proceeds exceeded $20 million.

[15] On October 5, 2017, the supervising judge ordered that the parties' plans of arrangement could be put to a creditors' vote. He ordered that both parties share the fees and expenses related to the [11] Depuis la vente, les réclamations réservées sont le seul élément d'actif de Bluberi et représentent donc la seule garantie que possède Callidus pour sa créance de 3 millions de dollars.

B. Les premiers plans d'arrangement concurrents

[12] Le 11 septembre 2017, Bluberi dépose une demande par laquelle elle sollicite l'approbation d'un financement provisoire de 2 millions de dollars sous forme de facilité de crédit afin de financer le coût des procédures liées aux réclamations réservées ainsi que d'autres mesures de réparation accessoires. Le prêteur est une coentreprise constituée sous le numéro 9364-9739 Québec inc. Cette demande de financement provisoire devait être instruite le 19 septembre 2017.

[13] Toutefois, la veille de l'audience, Callidus propose un plan d'arrangement (« premier plan ») et demande une ordonnance pour convoquer les créanciers à une assemblée afin qu'ils votent sur ce plan. Le premier plan proposait que Callidus avance la somme de 2,5 millions de dollars (puis plus tard 2,63 millions de dollars) aux fins de distribution aux créanciers de Bluberi, sauf elle-même, en échange de quoi elle serait libérée des réclamations réservées. Cette somme aurait permis d'acquitter entièrement les créances des anciens employés de Bluberi et toutes celles de moins de 3 000 $; les créanciers dont la créance était plus élevée devaient recevoir chacun en moyenne 31 pour 100 du montant de leur réclamation.

[14] Le juge surveillant ajourne donc l'audition des deux demandes au 5 octobre 2017. Entre-temps, Bluberi dépose son propre plan d'arrangement dans lequel elle propose notamment que la moitié de toute somme provenant des réclamations réservées, après paiement des dépenses et acquittement des réclamations des créanciers de Bluberi, soit distribuée aux créanciers non garantis, pourvu que la somme nette ainsi obtenue soit supérieure à 20 millions de dollars.

[15] Le 5 octobre 2017, le juge surveillant ordonne que les plans d'arrangement des parties soient soumis au vote des créanciers. Il ordonne que les honoraires et dépenses découlant de la présentation des presentation of the plans of arrangement at a creditors' meeting, and that a party's failure to deposit those funds with the Monitor would bar the presentation of that party's plan of arrangement. Bluberi elected not to deposit the necessary funds, and, as a result, only Callidus's First Plan was put to the creditors.

C. Creditors' Vote on Callidus's First Plan

[16] On December 15, 2017, Callidus submitted its First Plan to a creditors' vote. The plan failed to receive sufficient support. Section 6(1) of the CCAA provides that, to be approved, a plan must receive a "double majority" vote in each class of creditors — that is, a majority in number of class members, which also represents two-thirds in value of the class members' claims. All of Bluberi's creditors, besides Callidus, formed a single voting class of unsecured creditors. Of the 100 voting unsecured creditors, 92 creditors (representing $3,450,882 of debt) voted in favour, and 8 voted against (representing $2,375,913 of debt). The First Plan failed because the creditors voting in favour only held 59.22 percent of the total value being voted, which did not meet the s. 6(1) threshold. Most notably, SMT Hautes Technologies ("SMT"), which held 36.7 percent of Bluberi's debt, voted against the plan.

[17] Callidus did not vote on the First Plan — despite the Monitor explicitly stating that Callidus could have "vote[d] . . . the portion of its claim, assessed by Callidus, to be an unsecured claim" (Joint R.R., vol. III, at p.188).

D. Bluberi's Interim Financing Application and Callidus's New Plan

[18] On February 6, 2018, Bluberi filed one of the applications underlying these appeals, seeking authorization of a proposed third party litigation funding agreement ("LFA") with a publicly traded plans d'arrangement à l'assemblée des créanciers soient partagés entre les parties et qu'il soit interdit à toute partie qui ne dépose pas les fonds nécessaires auprès du contrôleur de présenter son plan d'arrangement. Bluberi choisit de ne pas déposer les fonds nécessaires et, en conséquence, seul le premier plan de Callidus est présenté aux créanciers.

C. Le vote des créanciers sur le premier plan de Callidus

[16] Le 15 décembre 2017, Callidus soumet son premier plan au vote des créanciers. Le plan n'obtient pas l'appui nécessaire. Le paragraphe 6(1) de la LACC prévoit que, pour être approuvé, le plan doit obtenir la « double majorité » de chaque catégorie de créanciers — c'est-à-dire, la majorité en nombre d'une catégorie de créanciers, qui représente aussi les deux tiers en valeur des réclamations de cette catégorie de créanciers. Tous les créanciers de Bluberi, hormis Callidus, forment une seule catégorie de créanciers non garantis ayant droit de vote. Des 100 créanciers non garantis, 92 (qui ont ensemble une créance de 3 450 882 $) votent en faveur du plan, et 8 votent contre (qui ont ensemble une créance de 2 375 913 $). Le premier plan échoue parce que les réclamations des créanciers ayant voté en sa faveur ne détiennent que 59,22 p. 100 en valeur des réclamations de ceux ayant voté, ce qui ne respectait pas le seuil établi au par. 6(1). Plus particulièrement, SMT Hautes Technologies (« SMT »), qui détient 36,7 p. 100 de la dette de Bluberi, vote contre le plan.

[17] Callidus ne vote pas sur le premier plan — malgré les propos explicites du contrôleur, selon qui Callidus pouvait [TRADUCTION] « voter [. . .] selon le pourcentage de sa créance qui, de l'avis de Callidus, était non garantie » (dossier conjoint des intimés, vol. III, p. 188).

D. La demande de financement provisoire de Bluberi et le nouveau plan de Callidus

[18] Le 6 février 2018, Bluberi dépose une des demandes à l'origine des présents pourvois. Elle demande au tribunal l'autorisation de conclure un accord de financement du litige par un tiers (« AFL ») litigation funder, IMF Bentham Limited or its Canadian subsidiary, Bentham IMF Capital Limited (collectively, “Bentham”). Bluberi’s application also sought the placement of a $20 million super-priority charge in favour of Bentham on Bluberi’s assets (“Litigation Financing Charge”).

[19] The LFA contemplated that Bentham would fund Bluberi’s litigation of the Retained Claims in exchange for receiving a portion of any settlement or award after trial. However, were Bluberi’s litigation to fail, Bentham would lose all of its invested funds. The LFA also provided that Bentham could terminate the litigation of the Retained Claims if, acting reasonably, it were no longer satisfied of the merits or commercial viability of the litigation.

[20] Callidus and certain unsecured creditors who voted in favour of its plan (who are now respondents and style themselves the “Creditors’ Group”) contested Bluberi’s application on the ground that the LFA was a plan of arrangement and, as such, had to be submitted to a creditors’ vote.²

[21] On February 12, 2018, Callidus filed the other application underlying these appeals, seeking to put another plan of arrangement to a creditors’ vote (“New Plan”). The New Plan was essentially identical to the First Plan, except that Callidus increased the proposed distribution by $250,000 (from $2.63 million to $2.88 million). Further, Callidus filed an amended proof of claim, which purported to value the security attached to its $3 million claim at nil. Callidus was of the view that this valuation was proper because Bluberi had no assets other than the Retained Claims. On this basis, Callidus asserted that it stood in the position of an unsecured creditor, and sought the supervising judge’s permission to vote on the New Plan with the other unsecured creditors.

avec un bailleur de fonds de litiges coté en bourse, IMF Bentham Limited ou sa filiale canadienne, Corporation Bentham IMF Capital (collectivement, « Bentham »). Bluberi demande également l’autorisation de grever son actif d’une charge super-prioritaire de 20 millions de dollars en faveur de Bentham (« charge liée au financement du litige »).

[19] L’AFL prévoit que Bentham financera le litige relatif aux réclamations réservées de Bluberi et qu’en retour elle recevra un pourcentage de toute somme convenue par règlement ou accordée à l’issue d’un procès. Toutefois, dans l’éventualité où Bluberi serait déboutée, Bentham perdra la totalité des fonds investis. L’AFL prévoit aussi que Bentham peut mettre fin au recours si, agissant de façon raisonnable, elle n’est plus convaincue du bien-fondé du litige ou de sa viabilité commerciale.

[20] Callidus et certains créanciers non garantis qui ont voté en faveur de son plan (qui sont maintenant intimés au présent pourvoi et se font appeler le « groupe de créanciers ») contestent la demande de Bluberi au motif que l’AFL est un plan d’arrangement et qu’à ce titre, il doit être soumis au vote des créanciers².

[21] Le 12 février 2018, Callidus dépose l’autre demande qui est à l’origine des présents pourvois, laquelle vise à soumettre un autre plan d’arrangement au vote des créanciers (« nouveau plan »). Le nouveau plan est pour l’essentiel identique au premier plan, sauf que Callidus propose que la somme à distribuer soit augmentée de 250 000 $ (passant de 2,63 millions à 2,88 millions de dollars). Callidus a en outre déposé une preuve de réclamation modifiée qui ramène à zéro la valeur de la garantie liée à sa créance de 3 millions de dollars. Callidus considère que cette évaluation est juste parce que Bluberi n’a aucun autre élément d’actif que les revendications réservées. Sur cette base, elle fait valoir qu’elle se trouve dans la situation d’un créancier non garanti et

Given the size of its claim, if Callidus were permitted to vote on the New Plan, the plan would necessarily pass a creditors' vote. Bluberi opposed Callidus's application.

[22] The supervising judge heard Bluberi's interim financing application and Callidus's application regarding its New Plan together. Notably, the Monitor supported Bluberi's position.

III. Decisions Below

A. Quebec Superior Court, 2018 QCCS 1040 (Michaud J.)

[23] The supervising judge dismissed Callidus's application, declining to submit the New Plan to a creditors' vote. He granted Bluberi's application, authorizing Bluberi to enter into a litigation funding agreement with Bentham on the terms set forth in the LFA and imposing the Litigation Financing Charge on Bluberi's assets.

[24] With respect to Callidus's application, the supervising judge determined Callidus should not be permitted to vote on the New Plan because it was acting with an "improper purpose" (para. 48 (CanLII)). He acknowledged that creditors are generally entitled to vote in their own self-interest. However, given that the First Plan — which was almost identical to the New Plan — had been defeated by a creditors' vote, the supervising judge concluded that Callidus's attempt to vote on the New Plan was an attempt to override the result of the first vote. In particular, he wrote:

Taking into consideration the creditors' interest, the Court accepted, in the fall of 2017, that Callidus' Plan be submitted to their vote with the understanding that, as a secured creditor, Callidus would not cast a vote. However, under the present circumstances, it would serve an improper purpose if Callidus was allowed to vote on its own plan, especially when its vote would very likely result in demande au juge surveillant la permission de voter sur le nouveau plan avec les autres créanciers non garantis. Vu l'importance de sa réclamation, le plan serait nécessairement adopté par les créanciers si Callidus était autorisée à voter. Bluberi s'oppose à la demande de Callidus.

[22] Le juge surveillant instruit ensemble la demande de financement provisoire de Bluberi ainsi que la demande présentée par Callidus concernant son nouveau plan. Il est à souligner que le contrôleur appuie la position de Bluberi.

III. Historique judiciaire

A. Cour supérieure du Québec, 2018 QCCS 1040 (le juge Michaud)

[23] Le juge surveillant rejette la demande de Callidus et refuse de soumettre le nouveau plan au vote des créanciers. Il accueille la demande de Bluberi, l'autorisant ainsi à conclure un accord de financement du litige avec Bentham aux conditions énoncées dans l'AFL et ordonne que les actifs de Bluberi soient grevés de la charge liée au financement du litige.

[24] En ce qui a trait à la demande de Callidus, le juge surveillant décide que cette dernière ne peut voter sur le nouveau plan parce qu'elle agit dans un [TRADUCTION] « but illégitime » (par. 48 (CanLII)). Il reconnaît que les créanciers ont habituellement le droit de voter dans leur propre intérêt. Or, étant donné que le premier plan — qui était presque identique au nouveau plan — a été rejeté par les créanciers, le juge surveillant conclut qu'en demandant à voter sur le nouveau plan, Callidus tentait de contourner le résultat du premier vote. Il écrit notamment :

[TRADUCTION] Tenant compte de leur intérêt, la Cour a accepté à l'automne 2017 que le plan de Callidus soit soumis au vote des créanciers, étant entendu que, en tant que créancière garantie, celle-ci ne voterait pas. Toutefois, si, dans les circonstances actuelles, Callidus était autorisée à voter sur son propre plan, elle le ferait dans un but illégitime d'autant plus qu'il est probable que son vote the New Plan meeting the two thirds threshold for approval under the CCAA.

As pointed out by SMT, the main unsecured creditor, Callidus' attempt to vote aims only at cancelling SMT's vote which prevented Callidus' Plan from being approved at the creditors' meeting.

It is one thing to let the creditors vote on a plan submitted by a secured creditor; it is another to allow this secured creditor to vote on its own plan in order to exert control over the vote for the sole purpose of obtaining releases. [paras. 45-47]

[25] The supervising judge concluded that, in these circumstances, allowing Callidus to vote would be both “unfair and unreasonable” (para. 47). He also observed that Callidus's conduct throughout the CCAA proceedings “lacked transparency” (at para. 41) and that Callidus was “solely motivated by the [pending] litigation” (para. 44). In sum, he found that Callidus's conduct was contrary to the “requirements of appropriateness, good faith, and due diligence”, and ordered that Callidus would not be permitted to vote on the New Plan (para. 48, citing Century Services Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General), 2010 SCC 60, [2010] 3 S.C.R. 379, at para. 70).

[26] Because Callidus was not permitted to vote on the New Plan and SMT had unequivocally stated its intention to vote against it, the supervising judge concluded that the plan had no reasonable prospect of success. He therefore declined to submit it to a creditors' vote.

[27] With respect to Bluberi's application, the supervising judge considered three issues relevant to these appeals: (1) whether the LFA should be submitted to a creditors' vote; (2) if not, whether the LFA ought to be approved by the court; and (3) if so, whether the $20 million Litigation Financing Charge should be imposed on Bluberi's assets.

[28] The supervising judge determined that the LFA did not need to be submitted to a creditors' vote because it was not a plan of arrangement. He considered a plan of arrangement to involve “an arrangement permettrait d'atteindre le seuil de deux tiers nécessaire pour que le nouveau plan soit approuvé en vertu de la LACC.

Comme l'a souligné SMT, la principale créancière non garantie, Callidus souhaite voter afin d'annuler le vote de SMT, qui a empêché que son plan soit approuvé lors de l'assemblée des créanciers.

C'est une chose de laisser les créanciers voter sur un plan présenté par un créancier garanti, c'en est une autre de laisser ce créancier garanti voter sur son propre plan et exercer ainsi un contrôle sur le vote à seule fin d'être libéré de toute responsabilité. [par. 45-47]

[25] Le juge surveillant conclut que, dans les circonstances, permettre à Callidus de voter serait à la fois [TRADUCTION] « injuste et déraisonnable » (par. 47). Il note aussi que, tout au long de la procédure introduite en vertu de la LACC, Callidus a « manqué de transparence » (par. 41) et qu'elle « n'est motivée que par le litige [en cours] » (par. 44). En somme, il conclut que la conduite de Callidus est contraire à « l'opportunité, [à] la bonne foi et [à] la diligence » requises, et il ordonne que Callidus ne puisse pas voter sur le nouveau plan (par. 48, citant Century Services Inc. c. Canada (Procureur général), 2010 CSC 60, [2010] 3 R.C.S. 379, par. 70).

[26] Puisque Callidus n'a pas été autorisée à voter sur le nouveau plan et que SMT a manifesté sans équivoque son intention de voter contre celui-ci, le juge surveillant conclut que le plan n'a aucune possibilité raisonnable de recevoir l'aval des créanciers. Il refuse donc de le soumettre au vote des créanciers.

[27] Pour ce qui est de la demande de Bluberi, le juge surveillant examine trois questions qui sont pertinentes pour les présents pourvois : (1) si l'AFL devait être soumis au vote des créanciers; (2) dans la négative, si l'AFL devait être approuvé par le tribunal; et (3) le cas échéant, s'il devait ordonner que la charge liée au financement du litige de 20 millions de dollars grève les actifs de Bluberi.

[28] Le juge surveillant décide qu'il n'est pas nécessaire de soumettre l'AFL au vote des créanciers parce qu'il ne s'agit pas d'un plan d'arrangement. Il considère qu'un tel plan suppose [TRADUCTION] « un or compromise between a debtor and its creditors” (para. 71, citing Re Crystallex, 2012 ONCA 404, 293 O.A.C. 102, at para. 92 (“Crystallex”). In his view, the LFA lacked this essential feature. He also concluded that the LFA did not need to be accompanied by a plan, as Bluberi had stated its intention to file a plan in the future.

[29] After reviewing the terms of the LFA, the supervising judge found it met the criteria for approval of third party litigation funding set out in Bayens v. Kinross Gold Corporation, 2013 ONSC 4974, 117 O.R. (3d) 150, at para. 41, and Hayes v. The City of Saint John, 2016 NBQB 125, at para. 4 (CanLII). In particular, he considered Bentham’s percentage of return to be reasonable in light of its level of investment and risk. Further, the supervising judge rejected Callidus and the Creditors’ Group’s argument that the LFA gave too much discretion to Bentham. He found that the LFA did not allow Bentham to exert undue influence on the litigation of the Retained Claims, noting similarly broad clauses had been approved in the CCAA context (para. 82, citing Schenk v. Valeant Pharmaceuticals International Inc., 2015 ONSC 3215, 74 C.P.C. (7th) 332, at para. 23).

[30] Finally, the supervising judge imposed the Litigation Financing Charge on Bluberi’s assets. While significant, the supervising judge considered the amount to be reasonable given: the amount of damages that would be claimed from Callidus; Bentham’s financial commitment to the litigation; and the fact that Bentham was not charging any interim fees or interest (i.e., it would only profit in the event of successful litigation or settlement). Put simply, Bentham was taking substantial risks, and it was reasonable that it obtain certain guarantees in exchange.

[31] Callidus, again supported by the Creditors’ Group, appealed the supervising judge’s order, impleading Bentham in the process.

arrangement ou une transaction entre un débiteur et ses créanciers » (par. 71, citant Re Crystallex, 2012 ONCA 404, 293 O.A.C. 102, par. 92 (« Crystallex »)). À son avis, l’AFL est dépourvu de cette caractéristique essentielle. Il conclut aussi qu’il n’est pas nécessaire que l’AFL soit assorti d’un plan étant donné que Bluberi a exprimé l’intention d’en déposer un plus tard.

[29] Après en avoir examiné les modalités, le juge surveillant conclut que l’AFL respecte le critère d’approbation applicable en matière de financement d’un litige par un tiers qui est établi dans les décisions Bayens c. Kinross Gold Corporation, 2013 ONSC 4974, 117 O.R. (3d) 150, par. 41, et Hayes c. The City of Saint John, 2016 NBQB 125, par. 4 (CanLII). Plus particulièrement, il considère que le taux de retour de Bentham est raisonnable eu égard à son niveau d’investissement et de risque. Il rejette en outre l’argument avancé par Callidus et le groupe de créanciers, qui soutenaient que l’AFL donne trop de latitude à Bentham. Il conclut que l’AFL ne permet pas à Bentham d’exercer une influence indue sur le déroulement du litige lié aux réclamations réservées et souligne que des clauses générales semblables à celles qu’il contient ont déjà été approuvées dans le contexte de la LACC (par. 82, citant Schenk c. Valeant Pharmaceuticals International Inc., 2015 ONSC 3215, 74 C.P.C. (7th) 332, par. 23).

[30] Enfin, le juge surveillant ordonne que les actifs de Bluberi soient grevés de la charge liée au financement du litige. Il juge que, même s’il est élevé, le montant en question est raisonnable étant donné : le montant des dommages-intérêts qui sont réclamés à Callidus; l’engagement financier de Bentham dans le litige; et le fait que Bentham n’exige aucune provision pour frais ou intérêts (c.-à-d. qu’elle ne tirera profit de l’accord que si le procès ou le règlement est couronné de succès). En termes simples, Bentham prend des risques importants et il est raisonnable qu’elle obtienne certaines garanties en échange.

[31] Callidus, de nouveau appuyée par le groupe de créanciers, interjette appel de l’ordonnance du juge surveillant et met en cause Bentham.

B. Quebec Court of Appeal, 2019 QCCA 171 (Dutil and Schrager J.J.A. and Dumas J. (ad hoc))

[32] The Court of Appeal allowed the appeal, finding that “[t]he exercise of the judge’s discretion [was] not founded in law nor on a proper treatment of the facts so that irrespective of the standard of review applied, appellate intervention [was] justified” (para. 48 (CanLII)). In particular, the court identified two errors of relevance to these appeals.

[33] First, the court was of the view that the supervising judge erred in finding that Callidus had an improper purpose in seeking to vote on its New Plan. In its view, Callidus should have been permitted to vote. The court relied heavily on the notion that creditors have a right to vote in their own self-interest. It held that any judicial discretion to preclude voting due to improper purpose should be reserved for the “clearest of cases” (para. 62, referring to Re Blackburn, 2011 BCSC 1671, 27 B.C.L.R. (5th) 199, at para. 45). The court was of the view that Callidus’s transparent attempt to obtain a release from Bluberi’s claims against it did not amount to an improper purpose. The court also considered Callidus’s conduct prior to and during the CCAA proceedings to be incapable of justifying a finding of improper purpose.

[34] Second, the court concluded that the supervising judge erred in approving the LFA as interim financing because, in its view, the LFA was not connected to Bluberi’s commercial operations. The court concluded that the supervising judge had both “misconstrued in law the notion of interim financing and misapplied that notion to the factual circumstances of the case” (para. 78).

[35] In light of this perceived error, the court substituted its view that the LFA was a plan of arrangement and, as a result, should have been submitted

B. Cour d’appel du Québec, 2019 QCCA 171 (les juges Dutil et Schrager et le juge Dumas (ad hoc))

[32] La Cour d’appel accueille l’appel et conclut que [TRADUCTION] « [l]’exercice par le juge de son pouvoir discrétionnaire [n’était] pas fondé en droit, non plus qu’il ne reposait sur un traitement approprié des faits, de sorte que, peu importe la norme de contrôle appliquée, il [était] justifié d’intervenir en appel » (par. 48 (CanLII)). En particulier, la cour relève deux erreurs qui sont pertinentes pour les présents pourvois.

[33] D’une part, la cour conclut que le juge surveillant a commis une erreur en concluant que Callidus a agi dans un but illégitime en demandant l’autorisation de voter sur son nouveau plan. À son avis, Callidus aurait dû être autorisée à voter. La cour s’appuie grandement sur l’idée que les créanciers ont le droit de voter en fonction de leur propre intérêt. Elle juge que l’exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire qui consiste à empêcher un créancier de voter dans un but illégitime devrait être [TRADUCTION] « réservé aux cas les plus évidents » (par. 62, renvoyant à Re Blackburn, 2011 BCSC 1671, 27 B.C.L.R. (5th) 199, par. 45). Selon elle, en tentant de façon transparente d’être libérée des réclamations de Bluberi à son égard, Callidus ne pouvait être considérée comme ayant agi dans un but illégitime. La cour conclut également que la conduite de Callidus, avant et pendant la procédure introduite en vertu de la LACC, ne pouvait justifier la conclusion qu’il existe un but illégitime.

[34] D’autre part, la cour conclut que le juge surveillant a eu tort d’approuver l’AFL en tant qu’accord de financement provisoire parce qu’à son avis, il n’est pas lié aux opérations commerciales de Bluberi. Elle conclut que le juge surveillant a [TRADUCTION] « donné à la notion de financement provisoire une interprétation non fondée en droit et qu’il a mal appliqué cette notion aux circonstances factuelles de l’affaire » (par. 78).

[35] À la lumière de ce qu’elle percevait comme une erreur, la cour substitue son opinion selon laquelle l’AFL est un plan d’arrangement et que pour to a creditors' vote. It held that "[a]n arrangement or proposal can encompass both a compromise of creditors' claims as well as the process undertaken to satisfy them" (para. 85). The court considered the LFA to be a plan of arrangement because it affected the creditors' share in any eventual litigation proceeds, would cause them to wait for the outcome of any litigation, and could potentially leave them with nothing at all. Moreover, the court held that Bluberi's scheme "as a whole", being the prosecution of the Retained Claims and the LFA, should be submitted as a plan to the creditors for their approval (para. 89).

[36] Bluberi and Bentham (collectively, "appellants"), again supported by the Monitor, now appeal to this Court.

IV. Issues

[37] These appeals raise two issues:

- (1) Did the supervising judge err in barring Callidus from voting on its New Plan on the basis that it was acting for an improper purpose?
- (2) Did the supervising judge err in approving the LFA as interim financing, pursuant to s. 11.2 of the CCAA?

V. Analysis

A. Preliminary Considerations

[38] Addressing the above issues requires situating them within the contemporary Canadian insolvency landscape and, more specifically, the CCAA regime. Accordingly, before turning to those issues, we review (1) the evolving nature of CCAA proceedings; (2) the role of the supervising judge in those proceedings; and (3) the proper scope of appellate review of a supervising judge's exercise of discretion.

cette raison, il aurait dû être soumis au vote des créanciers. Elle conclut [TRADUCTION] « [qu']un arrangement ou une proposition peut englober une transaction visant les réclamations des créanciers ainsi que le processus suivi pour y donner suite » (par. 85). La cour juge que l'AFL est un plan d'arrangement parce qu'il a une incidence sur la participation des créanciers à l'indemnité susceptible d'être accordée à la suite d'un litige, qu'il oblige ceux-ci à attendre l'issue de tout litige, et qu'il est possible que les créanciers se retrouvent les mains vides. De plus, la cour conclut que le projet de Bluberi « dans son entièreté », soit la poursuite des réclamations réservées et l'AFL, doit être soumis à l'approbation des créanciers (par. 89).

[36] Bluberi et Bentham (collectivement, les « appelantes »), encore une fois appuyées par le contrôleur, se pourvoient maintenant devant notre Cour.

IV. Questions en litige

[37] Les pourvois soulèvent deux questions :

- (1) Le juge surveillant a-t-il commis une erreur en empêchant Callidus de voter sur son nouveau plan au motif qu'elle agissait dans un but illégitime?
- (2) Le juge surveillant a-t-il commis une erreur en approuvant l'AFL en tant que plan de financement provisoire, selon les termes de l'art. 11.2 de la LACC?

V. Analyse

A. Considérations préliminaires

[38] Pour répondre aux questions ci-dessus, nous devons les situer dans le contexte contemporain de l'insolvabilité au Canada, et plus précisément du régime de la LACC. Ainsi, avant de passer à ces questions, nous examinons (1) la nature évolutive des procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC; (2) le rôle que joue le juge surveillant dans ces procédures; et (3) la portée du contrôle, en appel, de l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire du juge surveillant.

(1) The Evolving Nature of CCAA Proceedings

[39] The CCAA is one of three principal insolvency statutes in Canada. The others are the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. B-3 (“BIA”), which covers insolvencies of both individuals and companies, and the Winding-up and Restructuring Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. W-11 (“WURA”), which covers insolvencies of financial institutions and certain other corporations, such as insurance companies (WURA, s. 6(1)). While both the CCAA and the BIA enable reorganizations of insolvent companies, access to the CCAA is restricted to debtor companies facing total claims in excess of $5 million (CCAA, s. 3(1)).

[40] Together, Canada’s insolvency statutes pursue an array of overarching remedial objectives that reflect the wide ranging and potentially “catastrophic” impacts insolvency can have (Sun Indalex Finance, LLC v. United Steelworkers, 2013 SCC 6, [2013] 1 S.C.R. 271, at para. 1). These objectives include: providing for timely, efficient and impartial resolution of a debtor’s insolvency; preserving and maximizing the value of a debtor’s assets; ensuring fair and equitable treatment of the claims against a debtor; protecting the public interest; and, in the context of a commercial insolvency, balancing the costs and benefits of restructuring or liquidating the company (J. P. Sarra, “The Oscillating Pendulum: Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law”, in J. P. Sarra and B. Romaine, eds., Annual Review of Insolvency Law 2016 (2017), 9, at pp. 9-10; J. P. Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act (2nd ed. 2013), at pp. 4-5 and 14; Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce, Debtors and Creditors Sharing the Burden: A Review of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act and the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act (2003), at pp. 9-10; R. J. Wood, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law (2nd ed. 2015), at pp. 4-5).

(1) La nature évolutive des procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC

[40] Ensemble, les lois canadiennes sur l’insolvabilité poursuivent un grand nombre d’objectifs réparateurs généraux qui témoignent de la vaste gamme des conséquences potentiellement « catastrophiques » qui peuvent découler de l’insolvabilité (Sun Indalex Finance, LLC c. Syndicat des Métallos, 2013 CSC 6, [2013] 1 R.C.S. 271, par. 1). Ces objectifs incluent les suivants : régler de façon rapide, efficace et impartiale l’insolvabilité d’un débiteur; préserver et maximiser la valeur des actifs d’un débiteur; assurer un traitement juste et équitable des réclamations déposées contre un débiteur; protéger l’intérêt public; et, dans le contexte d’une insolvabilité commerciale, établir un équilibre entre les coûts et les bénéfices découlant de la restructuration ou de la liquidation d’une compagnie (J. P. Sarra, « The Oscillating Pendulum : Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law », dans J. P. Sarra et B. Romaine, dir., Annual Review of Insolvency Law 2016 (2017), 9, p. 9-10; J. P. Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act (2^e éd. 2013), p. 4-5 et 14; Comité sénatorial permanent des banques et du commerce, Les débiteurs et les créanciers doivent se partager le fardeau : Examen de la Loi sur la faillite et l’insolvabilité et de la Loi sur les arrangements avec les créanciers des compagnies (2003), p. 13-14; R. J. Wood, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law (2^e éd. 2015), p. 4-5).

[41] Among these objectives, the CCAA generally prioritizes “avoiding the social and economic losses resulting from liquidation of an insolvent company” (Century Services, at para. 70). As a result, the typical CCAA case has historically involved an attempt to facilitate the reorganization and survival of the pre-filing debtor company in an operational state — that is, as a going concern. Where such a reorganization was not possible, the alternative course of action was seen as a liquidation through either a receivership or under the BIA regime. This is precisely the outcome that was sought in Century Services (see para. 14).

[42] That said, the CCAA is fundamentally insolvency legislation, and thus it also “has the simultaneous objectives of maximizing creditor recovery, preservation of going-concern value where possible, preservation of jobs and communities affected by the firm’s financial distress . . . and enhancement of the credit system generally” (Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, at p. 14; see also Ernst & Young Inc. v. Essar Global Fund Ltd., 2017 ONCA 1014, 139 O.R. (3d) 1 (“Essar”), at para. 103). In pursuit of those objectives, CCAA proceedings have evolved to permit outcomes that do not result in the emergence of the pre-filing debtor company in a restructured state, but rather involve some form of liquidation of the debtor’s assets under the auspices of the Act itself (Sarra, “The Oscillating Pendulum: Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law”, at pp. 19-21). Such scenarios are referred to as “liquidating CCAAs”, and they are now commonplace in the CCAA landscape (see Third Eye Capital Corporation v. Ressources Dianor Inc./Dianor Resources Inc., 2019 ONCA 508, 435 D.L.R. (4th) 416, at para. 70).

[42] Cela dit, la LACC est fondamentalement une loi sur l’insolvabilité, et à ce titre, elle a aussi [TRADUCTION] « comme objectifs simultanés de maximiser le recouvrement au profit des créanciers, de préserver la valeur d’exploitation dans la mesure du possible, de protéger les emplois et les collectivités touchées par les difficultés financières de l’entreprise [. . .] et d’améliorer le système de crédit de manière générale » (Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 14; voir aussi Ernst & Young Inc. c. Essar Global Fund Ltd., 2017 ONCA 1014, 139 O.R. (3d) 1 (« Essar »), par. 103). Afin d’atteindre ces objectifs, les procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC ont évolué de telle sorte qu’elles permettent des solutions qui évitent l’émergence, sous une forme restructurée, de la société débitrice qui existait avant le début des procédures, mais qui impliquent plutôt une certaine forme de liquidation des actifs du débiteur sous le régime même de la Loi (Sarra, « The Oscillating Pendulum : Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law », p. 19-21). Ces cas, qualifiés de [TRADUCTION] « procédures de liquidation sous le régime de la LACC », sont maintenant courants dans le contexte de la LACC (voir Third Eye Capital Corporation c. Ressources Dianor Inc./Dianor Resources Inc., 2019 ONCA 508, 435 D.L.R. (4th) 416, par. 70).

[43] Liquidating CCAAs take diverse forms and may involve, among other things: the sale of the debtor company as a going concern; an “en bloc” sale of assets that are capable of being operationalized by a buyer; a partial liquidation or downsizing of business operations; or a piecemeal sale of assets (B. Kaplan, “Liquidating CCAAs: Discretion Gone Awry?”, in J. P. Sarra, ed., Annual Review of Insolvency Law (2008), 79, at pp. 87-89). The ultimate commercial outcomes facilitated by liquidating CCAAs are similarly diverse. Some may result in the continued operation of the business of the debtor under a different going concern entity (e.g., the liquidations in Indalex and Re Canadian Red Cross Society (1998), 5 C.B.R. (4th) 299 (Ont. C.J. (Gen. Div.)), while others may result in a sale of assets and inventory with no such entity emerging (e.g., the proceedings in Re Target Canada Co., 2015 ONSC 303, 22 C.B.R. (6th) 323, at paras. 7 and 31). Others still, like the case at bar, may involve a going concern sale of most of the assets of the debtor, leaving residual assets to be dealt with by the debtor and its stakeholders.

[44] CCAA courts first began approving these forms of liquidation pursuant to the broad discretion conferred by the Act. The emergence of this practice was not without criticism, largely on the basis that it appeared to be inconsistent with the CCAA being a “restructuring statute” (see, e.g., Uti Energy Corp. v. Fracmaster Ltd., 1999 ABCA 178, 244 A.R. 93, at paras. 15-16, aff’d 1999 ABQB 379, 11 C.B.R. (4th) 204, at paras. 40-43; A. Nocilla, “The History of the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act and the Future of Re-Structuring Law in Canada” (2014), 56 Can. Bus. L.J. 73, at pp. 88-92).

[45] However, since s. 36 of the CCAA came into force in 2009, courts have been using it to effect liquidating CCAAs. Section 36 empowers courts to authorize the sale or disposition of a debtor

[43] Les procédures de liquidation sous le régime de la LACC revêtent différentes formes et peuvent, entre autres, inclure la vente de la société débitrice à titre d’entreprise en activité; la vente « en bloc » des éléments d’actif susceptibles d’être exploités par un acquéreur; une liquidation partielle de l’entreprise ou une réduction de ses activités; ou encore une vente de ses actifs élément par élément (B. Kaplan, « Liquidating CCAAs : Discretion Gone Awry? » dans J. P. Sarra, dir., Annual Review of Insolvency Law (2008), 79, p. 87-89). Les résultats commerciaux ultimement obtenus à l’issue des procédures de liquidation introduites sous le régime de la LACC sont eux aussi variés. Certaines procédures peuvent avoir pour résultat la continuité des activités de la débitrice sous la forme d’une autre entité viable (p. ex., les sociétés liquidées dans Indalex et Re Canadian Red Cross Society (1998), 5 C.B.R. (4th) 299 (C.J. Ont., Div. gén.)), alors que d’autres peuvent simplement aboutir à la vente des actifs et de l’inventaire sans donner naissance à une nouvelle entité (p. ex., la procédure en cause dans Re Target Canada Co., 2015 ONSC 303, 22 C.B.R. (6th) 323, par. 7 et 31). D’autres encore, comme dans le dossier qui nous occupe, peuvent donner lieu à la vente de la plupart des actifs de la débitrice en vue de la poursuite de son activité, laissant à la débitrice et aux parties intéressées le soin de s’occuper des actifs résiduels.

[45] Toutefois, depuis que l’art. 36 de la LACC est entré en vigueur en 2009, les tribunaux l’utilisent pour consentir à une liquidation sous le régime de la LACC. L’article 36 confère aux tribunaux le pouvoir company's assets outside the ordinary course of business.³ Significantly, when the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce recommended the adoption of s. 36, it observed that liquidation is not necessarily inconsistent with the remedial objectives of the CCAA, and that it may be a means to "raise capital [to facilitate a restructuring], eliminate further loss for creditors or focus on the solvent operations of the business" (p. 147). Other commentators have observed that liquidation can be a "vehicle to restructure a business" by allowing the business to survive, albeit under a different corporate form or ownership (Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, at p. 169; see also K. P. McElcheran, Commercial Insolvency in Canada (4th ed. 2019), at p. 311). Indeed, in Indalex, the company sold its assets under the CCAA in order to preserve the jobs of its employees, despite being unable to survive as their employer (see para. 51).

d'autoriser la vente ou la disposition des actifs d'une compagnie débitrice hors du cours ordinaire de ses affaires³. Fait important, lorsque le Comité sénatorial permanent des banques et du commerce a recommandé l'adoption de l'art. 36, il a fait observer que la liquidation n'est pas nécessairement incompatible avec les objectifs réparateurs de la LACC et qu'il pourrait s'agir d'un moyen « soit pour obtenir des capitaux [et faciliter la restructuration] ou éviter des pertes plus graves aux créanciers, soit pour se concentrer sur ses activités solvables » (p. 163). D'autres auteurs ont observé que la liquidation peut [TRADUCTION] « être un moyen de restructurer une entreprise » en lui permettant de survivre, quoique sous une forme corporative différente ou sous la gouverne de propriétaires différents (Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 169; voir aussi K. P. McElcheran, Commercial Insolvency in Canada (4^e éd. 2019), p. 311). D'ailleurs, dans l'arrêt Indalex, la compagnie a vendu ses actifs sous le régime de la LACC afin de protéger les emplois de son personnel, même si elle ne pouvait demeurer leur employeur (voir par. 51).

[46] Ultimately, the relative weight that the different objectives of the CCAA take on in a particular case may vary based on the factual circumstances, the stage of the proceedings, or the proposed solutions that are presented to the court for approval. Here, a parallel may be drawn with the BIA context. In Orphan Well Association v. Grant Thornton Ltd., 2019 SCC 5, [2019] 1 S.C.R. 150, at para. 67, this Court explained that, as a general matter, the BIA serves two purposes: (1) the bankrupt's financial rehabilitation and (2) the equitable distribution of the bankrupt's assets among creditors. However, in circumstances where a debtor corporation will never emerge from bankruptcy, only the latter purpose is relevant (see para. 67). Similarly, under the CCAA, when a reorganization of the pre-filing debtor company is not a possibility, a liquidation that preserves going-concern value and the ongoing business operations of the pre-filing company may become the predominant remedial focus. Moreover, where a reorganization or liquidation is complete and the court is dealing with residual assets, the objective of maximizing creditor recovery from those assets may take centre stage. As we will explain, the architecture of the CCAA leaves the case-specific assessment and balancing of these remedial objectives to the supervising judge.

[46] En définitive, le poids relatif attribué aux différents objectifs de la LACC dans une affaire donnée peut varier en fonction des circonstances factuelles, de l'étape des procédures ou des solutions qui sont présentées à la cour pour approbation. En l'espèce, il est possible d'établir un parallèle avec le contexte de la LFI. Dans l'arrêt Orphan Well Association c. Grant Thornton Ltd., 2019 CSC 5, [2019] 1 R.C.S. 150, par. 67, notre Cour a expliqué que, de façon générale, la LFI vise deux objectifs : (1) la réhabilitation financière du failli, et (2) le partage équitable des actifs du failli entre les créanciers. Or, dans les cas où

³ We note that while s. 36 now codifies the jurisdiction of a supervising court to grant a sale and vesting order, and enumerates factors to guide the court's discretion to grant such an order, it is silent on when courts ought to approve a liquidation under the CCAA as opposed to requiring the parties to proceed to liquidation under a receivership or the BIA regime (see Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, at pp. 167-68; A. Nocilla, "Asset Sales Under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act and the Failure of Section 36" (2012) 52 Can. Bus. L.J. 226, at pp. 243-44 and 247). This issue remains an open question and was not put to this Court in either Indalex or these appeals.

(2) The Role of a Supervising Judge in CCAA Proceedings

[47] One of the principal means through which the CCAA achieves its objectives is by carving out a unique supervisory role for judges (see Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, at pp. 18-19). From beginning to end, each CCAA proceeding is overseen by a single supervising judge. The supervising judge acquires extensive knowledge and insight into the stakeholder dynamics and the business realities of the proceedings from their ongoing dealings with the parties.

[48] The CCAA capitalizes on this positional advantage by supplying supervising judges with broad discretion to make a variety of orders that respond to the circumstances of each case and “meet contemporary business and social needs” (Century Services, at para. 58) in “real-time” (para. 58, citing R. B. Jones, “The Evolution of Canadian Restructuring: Challenges for the Rule of Law”, in J. P. Sarra, ed., Annual Review of Insolvency Law 2005 (2006), 481, at p. 484). The anchor of this discretionary authority is s. 11, which empowers a judge “to make any order that [the judge] considers appropriate in the circumstances”. This section has been described as “the engine” driving the statutory scheme (Stelco la société débitrice ne s’extirpera jamais de la faillite, seul le dernier objectif est pertinent (voir par. 67). Dans la même veine, sous le régime de la LACC, lorsque la restructuration d’une société débitrice qui n’a pas déposé de proposition est impossible, une liquidation visant à protéger sa valeur d’exploitation et à maintenir ses activités courantes peut devenir l’objectif réparateur principal. En outre, lorsque la restructuration ou la liquidation est terminée et que le tribunal doit décider du sort des actifs résiduels, l’objectif de maximiser le recouvrement des créanciers à partir de ces actifs peut passer au premier plan. Comme nous l’expliquerons, la structure de la LACC laisse au juge surveillant le soin de procéder à un examen et à une mise en balance au cas par cas de ces objectifs réparateurs.

(2) Le rôle du juge surveillant dans les procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC

[47] Un des principaux moyens par lesquels la LACC atteint ses objectifs réside dans le rôle particulier de surveillance qu’elle réserve aux juges (voir Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 18-19). Chaque procédure fondée sur la LACC est supervisée du début à la fin par un seul juge surveillant. En raison de ses rapports continus avec les parties, ce dernier acquiert une connaissance approfondie de la dynamique entre les intéressés et des réalités commerciales entourant la procédure.

[48] La LACC mise sur la position avantageuse qu’occupe le juge surveillant en lui accordant le vaste pouvoir discrétionnaire de rendre toute une gamme d’ordonnances susceptibles de répondre aux circonstances de chaque cas et de « [s’adapter] aux besoins commerciaux et sociaux contemporains » (Century Services, par. 58) en « temps réel » (par. 58, citant R. B. Jones, « The Evolution of Canadian Restructuring : Challenges for the Rule of Law », dans J. P. Sarra, dir., Annual Review of Insolvency Law 2005 (2006), 481, p. 484). Le point d’ancrage de ce pouvoir discrétionnaire est l’art. 11, qui confère au juge le pouvoir de « rendre toute ordonnance qu’il estime indiquée ». Cette disposition a été décrite

[49] The discretionary authority conferred by the CCAA, while broad in nature, is not boundless. This authority must be exercised in furtherance of the remedial objectives of the CCAA, which we have explained above (see Century Services, at para. 59). Additionally, the court must keep in mind three “baseline considerations” (at para. 70), which the applicant bears the burden of demonstrating: (1) that the order sought is appropriate in the circumstances, and (2) that the applicant has been acting in good faith and (3) with due diligence (para. 69).

[50] The first two considerations of appropriateness and good faith are widely understood in the CCAA context. Appropriateness “is assessed by inquiring whether the order sought advances the policy objectives underlying the CCAA” (para. 70). Further, the well-established requirement that parties must act in good faith in insolvency proceedings has recently been made express in s. 18.6 of the CCAA, which provides:

Good faith

18.6 (1) Any interested person in any proceedings under this Act shall act in good faith with respect to those proceedings.

Good faith — powers of court

(2) If the court is satisfied that an interested person fails to act in good faith, on application by an interested person, the court may make any order that it considers appropriate in the circumstances.

(See also BIA, s. 4.2; Budget Implementation Act, 2019, No. 1, S.C. 2019, c. 29, ss. 133 and 140.)

[51] The third consideration of due diligence requires some elaboration. Consistent with the CCAA regime generally, the due diligence consideration discourages parties from sitting on their rights and ensures that creditors do not strategically manoeuvre or comme étant le « moteur » du régime législatif (Stelco Inc. (Re) (2005), 253 D.L.R. (4th) 109 (C.A. Ont.), par. 36).

[49] Quoique vaste, le pouvoir discrétionnaire conféré par la LACC n’est pas sans limites. Son exercice doit tendre à la réalisation des objectifs réparateurs de la LACC, que nous avons expliqués ci-dessus (voir Century Services, par. 59). En outre, la cour doit garder à l’esprit les trois « considérations de base » (par. 70) qu’il incombe au demandeur de démontrer : (1) que l’ordonnance demandée est indiquée, et (2) qu’il a agi de bonne foi et (3) avec la diligence voulue (par. 69).

[50] Les deux premières considérations, l’opportunité et la bonne foi, sont largement connues dans le contexte de la LACC. Le tribunal « évalue l’opportunité de l’ordonnance demandée en déterminant si elle favorisera la réalisation des objectifs de politique générale qui sous-tendent la Loi » (par. 70). Par ailleurs, l’exigence bien établie selon laquelle les parties doivent agir de bonne foi dans les procédures d’insolvabilité est depuis peu mentionnée de façon expresse à l’art. 18.6 de la LACC, qui dispose : 18.6 (1) Tout intéressé est tenu d’agir de bonne foi dans le cadre d’une procédure intentée au titre de la présente loi.

Bonne foi — pouvoirs du tribunal

(2) S’il est convaincu que l’intéressé n’agit pas de bonne foi, le tribunal peut, à la demande de tout intéressé, rendre toute ordonnance qu’il estime indiquée.

(Voir aussi LFI, art. 4.2; Loi n° 1 d’exécution du budget de 2019, L.C. 2019, c. 29, art. 133 et 140.)

[51] La troisième considération, celle de la diligence, requiert qu’on s’y attarde. Conformément au régime de la LACC en général, la considération de diligence décourage les parties de rester sur leurs positions et fait en sorte que les créanciers n’usent position themselves to gain an advantage (Lehndorff General Partner Ltd., Re (1993), 17 C.B.R. (3d) 24 (Ont. C.J. (Gen. Div.)), at p. 31). The procedures set out in the CCAA rely on negotiations and compromise between the debtor and its stakeholders, as overseen by the supervising judge and the monitor. This necessarily requires that, to the extent possible, those involved in the proceedings be on equal footing and have a clear understanding of their respective rights (see McElcheran, at p. 262). A party's failure to participate in CCAA proceedings in a diligent and timely fashion can undermine these procedures and, more generally, the effective functioning of the CCAA regime (see, e.g., North American Tungsten Corp. v. Global Tungsten and Powders Corp., 2015 BCCA 390, 377 B.C.A.C. 6, at paras. 21-23; Re BA Energy Inc., 2010 ABQB 507, 70 C.B.R. (5th) 24; HSBC Bank Canada v. Bear Mountain Master Partnership, 2010 BCSC 1563, 72 C.B.R. (5th) 276, at para. 11; Caterpillar Financial Services Ltd. v. 360networks Corp., 2007 BCCA 14, 279 D.L.R. (4th) 701, at paras. 51-52, in which the courts seized on a party's failure to act diligently).

[52] We pause to note that supervising judges are assisted in their oversight role by a court appointed monitor whose qualifications and duties are set out in the CCAA (see ss. 11.7, 11.8 and 23 to 25). The monitor is an independent and impartial expert, acting as “the eyes and the ears of the court” throughout the proceedings (Essar, at para. 109). The core of the monitor's role includes providing an advisory opinion to the court as to the fairness of any proposed plan of arrangement and on orders sought by parties, including the sale of assets and requests for interim financing (see CCAA, s. 23(1)(d) and (i); Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, at pp. 566 and 569).

pas stratégiquement de ruse ou ne se placent pas eux-mêmes dans une position pour obtenir un avantage (Lehndorff General Partner Ltd., Re (1993), 17 C.B.R. (3d) 24 (C.J. Ont. (Div. gén.)), p. 31). La procédure prévue par la LACC se fonde sur les négociations et les transactions entre le débiteur et les intéressés, le tout étant supervisé par le juge surveillant et le contrôleur. Il faut donc nécessairement que, dans la mesure du possible, ceux qui participent au processus soient sur un pied d'égalité et aient une compréhension claire de leurs droits respectifs (voir McElcheran, p. 262). La partie qui, dans le cadre d'une procédure fondée sur la LACC, n'agit pas avec diligence et en temps utile risque de compromettre le processus et, de façon plus générale, de nuire à l'efficacité du régime de la Loi (voir, p. ex., North American Tungsten Corp. c. Global Tungsten and Powders Corp., 2015 BCCA 390, 377 B.C.A.C. 6 par. 21-23; Re BA Energy Inc., 2010 ABQB 507, 70 C.B.R. (5th) 24; HSBC Bank Canada c. Bear Mountain Master Partnership, 2010 BCSC 1563, 72 C.B.R. (5th) 276 par. 11; Caterpillar Financial Services Ltd. c. 360networks Corp., 2007 BCCA 14, 279 D.L.R. (4th) 701, par. 51-52, où les tribunaux se sont penchés sur le manque de diligence d'une partie).

[52] Nous soulignons que les juges surveillants s'acquittent de leur rôle de supervision avec l'aide d'un contrôleur qui est nommé par le tribunal et dont les compétences et les attributions sont énoncées dans la LACC (voir art. 11.7, 11.8 et 23 à 25). Le contrôleur est un expert indépendant et impartial qui agit comme [TRADUCTION] « les yeux et les oreilles du tribunal » tout au long de la procédure (Essar, par. 109). Il a essentiellement pour rôle de donner au tribunal des avis consultatifs sur le caractère équitable de tout plan d'arrangement proposé et sur les ordonnances demandées par les parties, y compris celles portant sur la vente d'actifs et le financement provisoire (voir LACC, al. 23(1)d) et i); Sarra, Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 566 et 569).

(3) Appellate Review of Exercises of Discretion by a Supervising Judge

[53] A high degree of deference is owed to discretionary decisions made by judges supervising CCAA proceedings. As such, appellate intervention will only be justified if the supervising judge erred in principle or exercised their discretion unreasonably (see Grant Forest Products Inc. v. Toronto-Dominion Bank, 2015 ONCA 570, 387 D.L.R. (4th) 426, at para. 98; Bridging Finance Inc. v. Béton Brunet 2001 inc., 2017 QCCA 138, 44 C.B.R. (6th) 175, at para. 23). Appellate courts must be careful not to substitute their own discretion in place of the supervising judge's (New Skeena Forest Products Inc., Re, 2005 BCCA 192, 39 B.C.L.R. (4th) 338, at para. 20).

[54] This deferential standard of review accounts for the fact that supervising judges are steeped in the intricacies of the CCAA proceedings they oversee. In this respect, the comments of Tysoe J.A. in Canadian Metropolitan Properties Corp. v. Libin Holdings Ltd., 2009 BCCA 40, 308 D.L.R. (4th) 339 (“Re Edgewater Casino Inc.”), at para. 20, are apt:

... one of the principal functions of the judge supervising the CCAA proceeding is to attempt to balance the interests of the various stakeholders during the reorganization process, and it will often be inappropriate to consider an exercise of discretion by the supervising judge in isolation of other exercises of discretion by the judge in endeavoring to balance the various interests. ... CCAA proceedings are dynamic in nature and the supervising judge has intimate knowledge of the reorganization process. The nature of the proceedings often requires the supervising judge to make quick decisions in complicated circumstances.

[55] With the foregoing in mind, we turn to the issues on appeal.

(3) Le contrôle en appel de l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire du juge surveillant

[53] Les décisions discrétionnaires des juges chargés de la supervision des procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC commandent un degré élevé de déférence. Ainsi, les cours d'appel ne seront justifiées d'intervenir que si le juge surveillant a commis une erreur de principe ou exercé son pouvoir discrétionnaire de manière déraisonnable (voir Grant Forest Products Inc. c. Toronto-Dominion Bank, 2015 ONCA 570, 387 D.L.R. (4th) 426, par. 98; Bridging Finance Inc. c. Béton Brunet 2001 inc., 2017 QCCA 138, 44 C.B.R. (6th) 175, par. 23). Elles doivent prendre garde de ne pas substituer leur propre pouvoir discrétionnaire à celui du juge surveillant (New Skeena Forest Products Inc., Re, 2005 BCCA 192, 39 B.C.L.R. (4th) 338, par. 20).

[54] Cette norme déferente de contrôle tient compte du fait que le juge surveillant possède une connaissance intime des procédures intentées sous le régime de la LACC dont il assure la supervision. À cet égard, les observations formulées par le juge Tysoe dans Canadian Metropolitan Properties Corp. c. Libin Holdings Ltd., 2009 BCCA 40, 308 D.L.R. (4th) 339 (« Re Edgewater Casino Inc. »), par. 20, sont pertinentes :

[55] En gardant ce qui précède à l'esprit, nous passons maintenant aux questions soulevées par le présent pourvoi.

B. Callidus Should Not Be Permitted to Vote on Its New Plan

[56] A creditor can generally vote on a plan of arrangement or compromise that affects its rights, subject to any specific provisions of the CCAA that may restrict its voting rights (e.g., s. 22(3)), or a proper exercise of discretion by the supervising judge to constrain or bar the creditor's right to vote. We conclude that one such constraint arises from s. 11 of the CCAA, which provides supervising judges with the discretion to bar a creditor from voting where the creditor is acting for an improper purpose. Supervising judges are best-placed to determine whether this discretion should be exercised in a particular case. In our view, the supervising judge here made no error in exercising his discretion to bar Callidus from voting on the New Plan.

(1) Parameters of Creditors' Right to Vote on Plans of Arrangement

[57] Creditor approval of any plan of arrangement or compromise is a key feature of the CCAA, as is the supervising judge's oversight of that process. Where a plan is proposed, an application may be made to the supervising judge to order a creditors' meeting to vote on the proposed plan (CCAA, ss. 4 and 5). The supervising judge has the discretion to determine whether to order the meeting. For the purposes of voting at a creditors' meeting, the debtor company may divide the creditors into classes, subject to court approval (CCAA, s. 22(1)). Creditors may be included in the same class if "their interests or rights are sufficiently similar to give them a commonality of interest" (CCAA, s. 22(2); see also L. W. Houlden, G. B. Morawetz and J. P. Sarra, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law of Canada (4th ed. (loose-leaf)), vol. 4, at §149). If the requisite "double majority" in each class of creditors — again, a majority in number of class members, which also represents two-thirds in value of the class members' claims — vote in favour of the plan, the supervising judge may sanction the plan (Metcalfe & Mansfield Alternative Investments II Corp. (Re), 2008 ONCA 587, 296 D.L.R. (4th) 135, at para. 34; see CCAA, s. 6). The supervising judge will conduct what is

B. Callidus ne devrait pas être autorisée à voter sur son nouveau plan

[56] En général, un créancier peut voter sur un plan d'arrangement ou une transaction qui a une incidence sur ses droits, sous réserve des dispositions de la LACC qui peuvent limiter son droit de voter (p. ex., par. 22(3)), ou de l'exercice justifié par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire de limiter ou de supprimer ce droit. Nous concluons qu'une telle limite découle de l'art. 11 de la LACC, qui confère au juge surveillant le pouvoir discrétionnaire d'empêcher le créancier de voter lorsqu'il agit dans un but illégitime. Le juge surveillant est mieux placé que quiconque pour déterminer s'il doit exercer ce pouvoir dans un cas donné. À notre avis, le juge surveillant n'a, en l'espèce, commis aucune erreur en exerçant son pouvoir discrétionnaire pour empêcher Callidus de voter sur le nouveau plan.

(1) Les paramètres du droit d'un créancier de voter sur un plan d'arrangement

[57] L'approbation par les créanciers d'un plan d'arrangement ou d'une transaction est l'une des principales caractéristiques de la LACC, tout comme la supervision du processus assurée par le juge surveillant. Lorsqu'un plan est proposé, le juge surveillant peut, sur demande, ordonner que soit convoquée une assemblée des créanciers pour que ceux-ci puissent voter sur le plan proposé (LACC, art. 4 et 5). Le juge surveillant a le pouvoir discrétionnaire de décider ou non d'ordonner qu'une assemblée soit convoquée. Pour les besoins du vote à l'assemblée des créanciers, la compagnie débitrice peut établir des catégories de créanciers, sous réserve de l'approbation du tribunal (LACC, par. 22(1)). Peuvent faire partie de la même catégorie les créanciers « ayant des droits ou intérêts à ce point semblables [...] qu'on peut en conclure qu'ils ont un intérêt commun » (LACC, par. 22(2); voir aussi L. W. Houlden, G. B. Morawetz, et J. P. Sarra, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law of Canada (4^e éd. (feuilles mobiles)), vol. 4, §149). Si la « double majorité » requise dans chaque catégorie de créanciers — rappelons qu'il s'agit de la majorité en nombre d'une catégorie, qui représente aussi les deux-tiers en valeur des réclamations de cette catégorie — vote commonly referred to as a “fairness hearing” to determine, among other things, whether the plan is fair and reasonable (Wood, at pp. 490-92; see also Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, at p. 529; Houlden, Morawetz and Sarra at §45). Once sanctioned by the supervising judge, the plan is binding on each class of creditors that participated in the vote (CCAA, s. 6(1)).

[58] Creditors with a provable claim against the debtor whose interests are affected by a proposed plan are usually entitled to vote on plans of arrangement (Wood, at p. 470). Indeed, there is no express provision in the CCAA barring such a creditor from voting on a plan of arrangement, including a plan it sponsors.

[59] Notwithstanding the foregoing, the appellants submit that a purposive interpretation of s. 22(3) of the CCAA reveals that, as a general matter, a creditor should be precluded from voting on its own plan. Section 22(3) provides:

Related creditors

(3) A creditor who is related to the company may vote against, but not for, a compromise or arrangement relating to the company.

The appellants note that s. 22(3) was meant to harmonize the CCAA scheme with s. 54(3) of the BIA, which provides that “[a] creditor who is related to the debtor may vote against but not for the acceptance of the proposal.” The appellants point out that, under s. 50(1) of the BIA, only debtors can sponsor plans; as a result, the reference to “debtor” in s. 54(3) captures all plan sponsors. They submit that if s. 54(3) captures all plan sponsors, s. 22(3) of the CCAA must do the same. On this basis, the appellants ask us to extend the voting restriction in s. 22(3) to apply not only to creditors who are “related to the company”, as the provision states, but to any en faveur du plan, le juge surveillant peut homologuer celui-ci (Metcalfe & Mansfield Alternative Investments II Corp. (Re), 2008 ONCA 587, 296 D.L.R. (4th) 135, par. 34; voir la LACC, art. 6). Le juge surveillant tiendra ce qu’on appelle communément une [TRADUCTION] « audience d’équité » pour décider, entre autres choses, si le plan est juste et raisonnable (Wood, p. 490-492; Sarra, Rescue! The Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 529; Houlden, Morawetz et Sarra, §45). Une fois homologué par le juge surveillant, le plan lie chaque catégorie de créanciers qui a participé au vote (LACC, par. 6(1)).

[58] Les créanciers qui ont une réclamation prouvable contre le débiteur et dont les intérêts sont touchés par un plan d’arrangement proposé ont habituellement le droit de voter sur un tel plan (Wood, p. 470). En fait, aucune disposition expresse de la LACC n’interdit à un créancier de voter sur un plan d’arrangement, y compris sur un plan dont il fait la promotion.

[59] Nonobstant ce qui précède, les appelantes soutiennent qu’une interprétation téléologique du par. 22(3) de la LACC révèle que, de façon générale, un créancier ne devrait pas pouvoir voter sur son propre plan. Le paragraphe 22(3) prévoit :

Créancier lié

(3) Le créancier lié à la compagnie peut voter contre, mais non pour, l’acceptation de la transaction ou de l’arrangement.

Les appelantes font remarquer que le par. 22(3) devait permettre d’harmoniser le régime de la LACC avec le par. 54(3) de la LFI, qui dispose que « [u]n créancier qui est lié au débiteur peut voter contre, mais non pour, l’acceptation de la proposition. » Elles soulignent que, en vertu du par. 50(1) de la LFI, seuls les débiteurs peuvent faire la promotion d’un plan; ainsi, le « débiteur » auquel renvoie le par. 54(3) s’entend de tous les promoteurs de plan. Elles soutiennent que, si le par. 54(3) vise tous les promoteurs de plan, le par. 22(3) de la LACC doit également les viser. Pour cette raison, les appelantes nous demandent d’étendre la restriction au droit de creditor who sponsors a plan. They submit that this interpretation gives effect to the underlying intention of both provisions, which they say is to ensure that a creditor who has a conflict of interest cannot “dilute” or overtake the votes of other creditors.

[60] We would not accept this strained interpretation of s. 22(3). Section 22(3) makes no mention of conflicts of interest between creditors and plan sponsors generally. The wording of s. 22(3) only places voting restrictions on creditors who are “related to the [debtor] company”. These words are “precise and unequivocal” and, as such, must “play a dominant role in the interpretive process” (Canada Trustco Mortgage Co. v. Canada, 2005 SCC 54, [2005] 2 S.C.R. 601, at para. 10). In our view, the appellants’ analogy to the BIA is not sufficient to overcome the plain wording of this provision.

[61] While the appellants are correct that s. 22(3) was enacted to harmonize the treatment of related parties in the CCAA and BIA, its history demonstrates that it is not a general conflict of interest provision. Prior to the amendments incorporating s. 22(3) into the CCAA, the CCAA clearly allowed creditors to put forward a plan of arrangement (see Houlden, Morawetz and Sarra, at §33, Red Cross; Re 1078385 Ontario Inc. (2004), 206 O.A.C. 17). In contrast, under the BIA, only debtors could make proposals. Parliament is presumed to have been aware of this obvious difference between the two statutes (see ATCO Gas and Pipelines Ltd. v. Alberta (Energy and Utilities Board), 2006 SCC 4, [2006] 1 S.C.R. 140, at para. 59; see also Third Eye, at para. 57). Despite this difference, Parliament imported, with necessary modification, the wording of the BIA related creditor provision into the CCAA. Going beyond this language entails accepting that Parliament failed to choose the right words to give effect to its intention, which we do not.

voter imposée par le par. 22(3) de manière à ce qu’elle s’applique non seulement aux créanciers « lié[s] à la compagnie », comme le prévoit la disposition, mais aussi à tous les créanciers qui font la promotion d’un plan. Elles soutiennent que cette interprétation donne effet à l’intention sous-jacente aux deux dispositions, intention qui, de dire les appelantes, est de faire en sorte qu’un créancier qui est en conflit d’intérêts ne puisse pas « diluer » ou supplanter le vote des autres créanciers.

[60] Nous n’acceptons pas cette interprétation forcée du par. 22(3). Il n’est nullement question dans cette disposition de conflit d’intérêts entre les créanciers et les promoteurs d’un plan en général. Les restrictions au droit de voter imposées par le par. 22(3) ne s’appliquent qu’aux créanciers qui sont « lié[s] à la compagnie [débitrice] ». Ce libellé est « précis et non équivoque », et il doit ainsi « jouer un rôle primordial dans le processus d’interprétation » (Hypothèques Trustco Canada c. Canada, 2005 CSC 54, [2005] 2 R.C.S. 601, par. 10). À notre avis, l’analogie que les appelantes font avec la LFI ne suffit pas à écarter le libellé clair de cette disposition.

[61] Bien que les appelantes aient raison de dire que l’adoption du par. 22(3) visait à harmoniser le traitement réservé aux parties liées par la LACC et la LFI, son historique montre qu’il ne s’agit pas d’une disposition générale relative aux conflits d’intérêts. Avant qu’elle soit modifiée et qu’on y incorpore le par. 22(3), la LACC permettait clairement aux créanciers de présenter un plan d’arrangement (voir Houlden, Morawetz et Sarra, §33, Red Cross; Re 1078385 Ontario Inc. (2004), 206 O.A.C. 17). À l’opposé, en vertu de la LFI, seuls les débiteurs pouvaient déposer une proposition. Il faut présumer que le législateur était au fait de cette différence évidente entre les deux lois (voir ATCO Gas and Pipelines Ltd. c. Alberta (Energy and Utilities Board), 2006 CSC 4, [2006] 1 R.C.S. 140, par. 59; voir aussi Third Eye, par. 57). Le législateur a malgré tout importé dans la LACC, avec les adaptations nécessaires, le texte de la disposition de la LFI portant sur les créanciers liés. Aller au-delà de ce libellé suppose d’accepter que le législateur n’a pas choisi les bons mots pour donner effet à son intention, ce que nous ne ferons pas.

[62] Indeed, Parliament did not mindlessly reproduce s. 54(3) of the BIA in s. 22(3) of the CCAA. Rather, it made two modifications to the language of s. 54(3) to bring it into conformity with the language of the CCAA. First, it changed “proposal” (a defined term in the BIA) to “compromise or arrangement” (a term used throughout the CCAA). Second, it changed “debtor” to “company”, recognizing that companies are the only kind of debtor that exists in the CCAA context.

[63] Our view is further supported by Industry Canada’s explanation of the rationale for s. 22(3) as being to “reduce the ability of debtor companies to organize a restructuring plan that confers additional benefits to related parties” (Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy Canada, Bill C-12: Clause by Clause Analysis (online), cl. 71, s. 22 (emphasis added); see also Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce, at p. 151).

[64] Finally, we note that the CCAA contains other mechanisms that attenuate the concern that a creditor with conflicting legal interests with respect to a plan it proposes may distort the creditors’ vote. Although we reject the appellants’ interpretation of s. 22(3), that section still bars creditors who are related to the debtor company from voting in favour of any plan. Additionally, creditors who do not share a sufficient commonality of interest may be forced to vote in separate classes (s. 22(1) and (2)), and, as we will explain, a supervising judge may bar a creditor from voting where the creditor is acting for an improper purpose.

(2) Discretion to Bar a Creditor From Voting in Furtherance of an Improper Purpose

[65] There is no dispute that the CCAA is silent on when a creditor who is otherwise entitled to vote on a plan can be barred from voting. However, CCAA supervising judges are often called upon “to sanction measures for which there is no explicit authority in the CCAA” (Century Services, at para. 61; see also para. 62). In Century Services, this Court endorsed [62] En fait, le législateur n’a pas reproduit de façon irréfléchie, au par. 22(3) de la LACC, le texte du par. 54(3) de la LFI. Au contraire, il a apporté deux modifications au libellé du par. 54(3) pour l’adapter à celui employé dans la LACC. Premièrement, il a remplacé le terme « proposition » (défini dans la LFI) par les mots « transaction ou arrangement » (employés tout au long dans la LACC). Deuxièmement, il a remplacé « débiteur » par « compagnie », reconnaissant ainsi que les compagnies sont les seuls débiteurs qui existent dans le contexte de la LACC.

[63] Notre opinion est en outre appuyée par Industrie Canada, selon qui l’adoption du par. 22(3) se justifie par la volonté de « réduire la capacité des compagnies débitrices d’établir un plan de restructuration apportant des avantages supplémentaires à des personnes qui leur sont liées » (Bureau du surintendant des faillites Canada, Projet de loi C-12 : analyse article par article (en ligne), cl. 71, art. 22 (nous soulignons); voir aussi Comité sénatorial permanent des banques et du commerce, p. 166).

[64] Enfin, nous soulignons que la LACC prévoit d’autres mécanismes qui réduisent le risque qu’un créancier en situation de conflit d’intérêts par rapport au plan qu’il propose puisse biaiser le vote des créanciers. Bien que nous rejetions l’interprétation donnée par les appelantes au par. 22(3), ce paragraphe interdit tout de même aux créanciers liés à la compagnie débitrice de voter en faveur de tout plan. De plus, les créanciers qui n’ont pas suffisamment d’intérêts en commun pourraient être contraints de voter dans des catégories distinctes (par. 22(1) et (2)); et, comme nous l’expliquerons, le juge surveillant peut empêcher un créancier de voter si ce dernier agit dans un but illégitime.

(2) Le pouvoir discrétionnaire d’interdire à un créancier de voter dans un but illégitime

[65] Il est acquis aux débats que la LACC ne contient aucune disposition énonçant les circonstances dans lesquelles un créancier, autrement admissible à voter sur un plan, peut être empêché de le faire. Toutefois, les juges chargés d’appliquer la LACC sont souvent appelés à « sanctionner des mesures non expressément prévues par la LACC »

a “hierarchical” approach to determining whether jurisdiction exists to sanction a proposed measure: “. . . courts [must] rely first on an interpretation of the provisions of the CCAA text before turning to inherent or equitable jurisdiction to anchor measures taken in a CCAA proceeding” (para. 65). In most circumstances, a purposive and liberal interpretation of the provisions of the CCAA will be sufficient “to ground measures necessary to achieve its objectives” (para. 65).

[66] Applying this approach, we conclude that jurisdiction exists under s. 11 of the CCAA to bar a creditor from voting on a plan of arrangement or compromise where the creditor is acting for an improper purpose.

[67] Courts have long recognized that s. 11 of the CCAA signals legislative endorsement of the “broad reading of CCAA authority developed by the jurisprudence” (Century Services, at para. 68). Section 11 states:

General power of court

11 Despite anything in the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act or the Winding-up and Restructuring Act, if an application is made under this Act in respect of a debtor company, the court, on the application of any person interested in the matter, may, subject to the restrictions set out in this Act, on notice to any other person or without notice as it may see fit, make any order that it considers appropriate in the circumstances.

On the plain wording of the provision, the jurisdiction granted by s. 11 is constrained only by restrictions set out in the CCAA itself, and the requirement that the order made be “appropriate in the circumstances”.

[68] Where a party seeks an order relating to a matter that falls within the supervising judge’s purview, and for which there is no CCAA provision conferring more specific jurisdiction, s. 11 necessarily is the (Century Services, par. 61; voir aussi par. 62). Dans l’arrêt Century Services, notre Cour a souscrit à l’approche « hiérarchisée » qui vise à déterminer si le tribunal a compétence pour sanctionner une mesure proposée : « . . . les tribunaux procéderaient d’abord à une interprétation des dispositions de la LACC avant d’invoquer leur compétence inhérente ou leur compétence en equity pour justifier des mesures prises dans le cadre d’une procédure fondée sur la LACC » (par. 65). Dans la plupart des cas, une interprétation téléologique et large des dispositions de la LACC suffira à « justifier les mesures nécessaires à la réalisation de ses objectifs » (par. 65).

[66] Après avoir appliqué cette approche, nous concluons que l’art. 11 de la LACC confère au tribunal le pouvoir d’interdire à un créancier de voter sur un plan d’arrangement ou une transaction s’il agit dans un but illégitime.

[67] Les tribunaux reconnaissent depuis longtemps que le libellé de l’art. 11 de la LACC indique que le législateur a sanctionné « l’interprétation large du pouvoir conféré par la LACC qui a été élaborée par la jurisprudence » (Century Services, par. 68). L’article 11 est ainsi libellé :

Pouvoir général du tribunal

11 Malgré toute disposition de la Loi sur la faillite et l’insolvabilité ou de la Loi sur les liquidations et les restructurations, le tribunal peut, dans le cas de toute demande sous le régime de la présente loi à l’égard d’une compagnie débitrice, rendre, sur demande d’un intéressé, mais sous réserve des restrictions prévues par la présente loi et avec ou sans avis, toute ordonnance qu’il estime indiquée.

Selon le libellé clair de la disposition, le pouvoir conféré par l’art. 11 n’est limité que par les restrictions imposées par la LACC elle-même, ainsi que par l’exigence que l’ordonnance soit « indiquée » dans les circonstances.

[68] Lorsqu’une partie sollicite une ordonnance relativement à une question qui entre dans le champ de compétence du juge surveillant, mais pour laquelle aucune disposition de la LACC ne confère plus provision of first resort in anchoring jurisdiction. As Blair J.A. put it in Stelco, s. 11 “for the most part supplants the need to resort to inherent jurisdiction” in the CCAA context (para. 36).

[69] Oversight of the plan negotiation, voting, and approval process falls squarely within the supervising judge’s purview. As indicated, there are no specific provisions in the CCAA which govern when a creditor who is otherwise eligible to vote on a plan may nonetheless be barred from voting. Nor is there any provision in the CCAA which suggests that a creditor has an absolute right to vote on a plan that cannot be displaced by a proper exercise of judicial discretion. However, given that the CCAA regime contemplates creditor participation in decision-making as an integral facet of the workout regime, creditors should only be barred from voting where the circumstances demand such an outcome. In other words, it is necessarily a discretionary, circumstance-specific inquiry.

[70] Thus, it is apparent that s. 11 serves as the source of the supervising judge’s jurisdiction to issue a discretionary order barring a creditor from voting on a plan of arrangement. The exercise of this discretion must further the remedial objectives of the CCAA and be guided by the baseline considerations of appropriateness, good faith, and due diligence. This means that, where a creditor is seeking to exercise its voting rights in a manner that frustrates, undermines, or runs counter to those objectives — that is, acting for an “improper purpose” — the supervising judge has the discretion to bar that creditor from voting.

[71] The discretion to bar a creditor from voting in furtherance of an improper purpose under the CCAA parallels the similar discretion that exists under the BIA, which was recognized in Laserworks Computer Services Inc. (Bankruptcy), Re, 1998 NSCA 42, 165 N.S.R. (2d) 296. In Laserworks, the Nova Scotia précisément compétence, l’art. 11 est nécessairement la disposition à laquelle on peut recourir d’emblée pour fonder la compétence du tribunal. Comme l’a dit le juge Blair dans l’arrêt Stelco, l’art. 11 [TRANSDUCTION] « fait en sorte que la plupart du temps, il est inutile de recourir à la compétence inhérente » dans le contexte de la LACC (par. 36).

[69] La supervision des négociations entourant le plan, tout comme le vote et le processus d’approbation, relève nettement de la compétence du juge surveillant. Comme nous l’avons dit, aucune disposition de la LACC ne vise le cas où un créancier par ailleurs admissible à voter sur un plan peut néanmoins être empêché de le faire. Il n’existe non plus aucune disposition de la LACC selon laquelle le droit que possède un créancier de voter sur un plan est absolu et que ce droit ne peut pas être écarté par l’exercice légitime du pouvoir discrétionnaire du tribunal. Toutefois, étant donné le régime de la LACC, dont l’un des aspects essentiels tient à la participation du créancier au processus décisionnel, les créanciers ne devraient être empêchés de voter que si les circonstances l’exigent. Autrement dit, il faut nécessairement procéder à un examen discrétionnaire axé sur les circonstances propres à chaque situation.

[70] L’article 11 constitue donc manifestement la source de la compétence du juge surveillant pour rendre une ordonnance discrétionnaire empêchant un créancier de voter sur un plan d’arrangement. L’exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire doit favoriser la réalisation des objets réparateurs de la LACC et être fondé sur les considérations de base que sont l’opportunité, la bonne foi et la diligence. Cela signifie que, lorsqu’un créancier cherche à exercer ses droits de vote de manière à contrecarrer, à miner ces objectifs ou à aller à l’encontre de ceux-ci — c’est-à-dire à agir dans un « but illégitime » — le juge surveillant a le pouvoir discrétionnaire d’empêcher le créancier de voter.

[71] Le pouvoir discrétionnaire d’empêcher un créancier de voter dans un but illégitime au sens de la LACC s’apparente au pouvoir discrétionnaire semblable qui existe en vertu de la LFI, lequel a été reconnu dans l’arrêt Laserworks Computer Services Inc. (Bankruptcy), Re, 1998 NSCA 42, 165 N.S.R.

Court of Appeal concluded that the discretion to bar a creditor from voting in this way stemmed from the court's power, inherent in the scheme of the BIA, to supervise "[e]ach step in the bankruptcy process" (at para. 41), as reflected in ss. 43(7), 108(3), and 187(9) of the Act. The court explained that s. 187(9) specifically grants the power to remedy a "substantial injustice", which arises "when the BIA is used for an improper purpose" (para. 54). The court held that "[a]n improper purpose is any purpose collateral to the purpose for which the bankruptcy and insolvency legislation was enacted by Parliament" (para. 54).

[72] While not determinative, the existence of this discretion under the BIA lends support to the existence of similar discretion under the CCAA for two reasons.

[73] First, this conclusion would be consistent with this Court's recognition that the CCAA "offers a more flexible mechanism with greater judicial discretion" than the BIA (Century Services, at para. 14 (emphasis added)).

[74] Second, this Court has recognized the benefits of harmonizing the two statutes to the extent possible. For example, in Indalex, the Court observed that "in order to avoid a race to liquidation under the BIA, courts will favour an interpretation of the CCAA that affords creditors analogous entitlements" to those received under the BIA (para. 51; see also Century Services, at para. 24; Nortel Networks Corp., Re, 2015 ONCA 681, 391 D.L.R. (4th) 283, at paras. 34-46). Thus, where the statutes are capable of bearing a harmonious interpretation, that interpretation ought to be preferred "to avoid the ills that can arise from [insolvency] 'statute-shopping'" (Kitchener Frame Ltd., 2012 ONSC 234, 86 C.B.R. (5th) 274, at para. 78; see also para. 73). In our view, the articulation of "improper purpose" set out in Laserworks — that is, any purpose collateral to the purpose of insolvency legislation — is entirely harmonious with the nature and scope of judicial discretion afforded by the CCAA. Indeed, as we have explained, this

(2d) 296. Dans Laserworks, la Cour d'appel de la Nouvelle-Écosse a conclu que le pouvoir discrétionnaire d'empêcher un créancier de voter de cette façon découlait du pouvoir du tribunal, inhérent au régime établi par la LFI, de superviser [TRADUCTION] « [c]haque étape du processus de faillite » (par. 41), comme l'indiquent les par. 43(7), 108(3) et 187(9) de la Loi. La cour a expliqué que le par. 187(9) confère expressément le pouvoir de remédier à une « injustice grave », laquelle se produit « lorsque la LFI est utilisée dans un but illégitime » (par. 54). La cour a statué que « [l]e but illégitime est un but qui est accessoire à l'objet pour lequel la loi en matière de faillite et d'insolvabilité a été adoptée par le législateur » (par. 54).

[72] Bien qu'elle ne soit pas déterminante, l'existence de ce pouvoir discrétionnaire en vertu de la LFI étaye l'existence d'un pouvoir discrétionnaire semblable en vertu de la LACC pour deux raisons.

[73] D'abord, cette conclusion serait compatible avec le fait que la Cour a reconnu que la LACC « établit un mécanisme plus souple, dans lequel les tribunaux disposent d'un plus grand pouvoir discrétionnaire » que sous le régime de la LFI (Century Services, par. 14 (nous soulignons)).

[74] Ensuite, la Cour a reconnu les bienfaits de l'harmonisation, dans la mesure du possible, des deux lois. À titre d'exemple, dans l'arrêt Indalex, la Cour a souligné que « pour éviter de précipiter une liquidation sous le régime de la LFI, les tribunaux privilégieront une interprétation de la LACC qui confère [...] aux créanciers [des droits analogues] » à ceux dont ils jouissent en vertu de la LFI (par. 51; voir également Century Services, par. 24; Nortel Networks Corp., Re, 2015 ONCA 681, 391 D.L.R. (4th) 283, par. 34-46). Ainsi, lorsque les lois permettent une interprétation harmonieuse, il y a lieu de retenir cette interprétation [TRADUCTION] « afin d'écarter les embûches pouvant découler du choix des créanciers de "recourir à la loi la plus favorable" [en matière d'insolvabilité] » (Kitchener Frame Ltd., 2012 ONSC 234, 86 C.B.R. (5th) 274, par. 78; voir aussi par. 73). À notre avis, la manière dont a été formulé le « but illégitime » dans l'arrêt Laserworks — c'est-à-dire un but accessoire à l'objet de la loi en discretion is to be exercised in accordance with the CCAA's objectives as an insolvency statute.

[75] We also observe that the recognition of this discretion under the CCAA advances the basic fairness that “permeates Canadian insolvency law and practice” (Sarra, “The Oscillating Pendulum: Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law”, at p. 27; see also Century Services, at paras. 70 and 77). As Professor Sarra observes, fairness demands that supervising judges be in a position to recognize and meaningfully address circumstances in which parties are working against the goals of the statute:

The Canadian insolvency regime is based on the assumption that creditors and the debtor share a common goal of maximizing recoveries. The substantive aspect of fairness in the insolvency regime is based on the assumption that all involved parties face real economic risks. Unfairness resides where only some face these risks, while others actually benefit from the situation . . . If the CCAA is to be interpreted in a purposive way, the courts must be able to recognize when people have conflicting interests and are working actively against the goals of the statute. [Emphasis added.]

(“The Oscillating Pendulum: Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law”, at p. 30)

In this vein, the supervising judge’s oversight of the CCAA voting regime must not only ensure strict compliance with the Act, but should further its goals as well. We are of the view that the policy objectives of the CCAA necessitate the recognition of the discretion to bar a creditor from voting where the creditor is acting for an improper purpose.

matière d’insolvabilité — s’harmonise parfaitement avec la nature et la portée du pouvoir discrétionnaire judiciaire que confère la LACC. En effet, comme nous l’avons expliqué, ce pouvoir discrétionnaire doit être exercé conformément aux objets de la LACC en tant que loi en matière d’insolvabilité.

[75] Nous soulignons également que la reconnaissance de l’existence de ce pouvoir discrétionnaire sous le régime de la LACC favorise l’équité fondamentale qui [TRADUCTION] « imprègne le droit et la pratique en matière d’insolvabilité au Canada » (Sarra, « The Oscillating Pendulum : Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law », p. 27; voir également Century Services, par. 70 et 77). Comme le fait observer la professeure Sarra, l’équité commande que les juges surveillants soient en mesure de reconnaître les situations où les parties empêchent la réalisation des objectifs de la loi et de prendre des mesures utiles à leur égard :

(« The Oscillating Pendulum : Canada’s Sesquicentennial and Finding the Equilibrium for Insolvency Law », p. 30)

Dans le même ordre d’idées, la surveillance du régime de droit de vote prévu par la LACC qu’exerce le juge surveillant ne doit pas seulement assurer une application stricte de la Loi, mais doit aussi favoriser la réalisation de ses objectifs. Nous estimons que la réalisation des objectifs de politique de la LACC nécessite la reconnaissance du pouvoir discrétionnaire d’empêcher un créancier de voter s’il agit dans un but illégitime.

[76] Whether this discretion ought to be exercised in a particular case is a circumstance-specific inquiry that must balance the various objectives of the CCAA. As this case demonstrates, the supervising judge is best-positioned to undertake this inquiry.

(3) The Supervising Judge Did Not Err in Prohibiting Callidus From Voting

[77] In our view, the supervising judge's decision to bar Callidus from voting on the New Plan discloses no error justifying appellate intervention. As we have explained, discretionary decisions like this one must be approached from the appropriate posture of deference. It bears mentioning that, when he made this decision, the supervising judge was intimately familiar with Bluberi's CCAA proceedings. He had presided over them for over 2 years, received 15 reports from the Monitor, and issued approximately 25 orders.

[78] The supervising judge considered the whole of the circumstances and concluded that Callidus's vote would serve an improper purpose (paras. 45 and 48). We agree with his determination. He was aware that, prior to the vote on the First Plan, Callidus had chosen not to value any of its claim as unsecured and later declined to vote at all — despite the Monitor explicitly inviting it to do so.⁴ The supervising judge was also aware that Callidus's First Plan had failed to receive the other creditors' approval at the creditors' meeting of December 15, 2017, and that Callidus had chosen not to take the opportunity to amend or increase the value of its plan at that time, which it was entitled to do (see CCAA, ss. 6 and 7; Monitor, I.F., at para. 17). Between the failure of the First Plan and the proposal of the New Plan — which was identical to the First Plan, save for a modest increase of $250,000 — none of the factual circumstances relating to Bluberi's financial or business

(3) Le juge surveillant n'a pas commis d'erreur en interdisant à Callidus de voter

[77] À notre avis, la décision du juge surveillant d'empêcher Callidus de voter sur le nouveau plan ne révèle aucune erreur justifiant l'intervention d'une cour d'appel. Comme nous l'avons expliqué, il faut adopter l'attitude de déférence appropriée à l'égard des décisions discrétionnaires de ce genre. Il convient de mentionner que, lorsqu'il a rendu sa décision, le juge surveillant connaissait très bien les procédures fondées sur la LACC relatives à Bluberi. Il les avait présidées pendant plus de 2 ans, avait reçu 15 rapports du contrôleur et avait délivré environ 25 ordonnances.

[78] Le juge surveillant a tenu compte de l'ensemble des circonstances et a conclu que le vote de Callidus viserait un but illégitime (par. 45 et 48). Nous sommes d'accord avec cette conclusion. Il savait qu'avant le vote sur le premier plan, Callidus avait choisi de n'évaluer aucune partie de sa réclamation à titre de créancier non garanti et s'était par la suite abstenue de voter — bien que le contrôleur l'ait expressément invité à le faire⁴. Le juge surveillant savait aussi que le premier plan de Callidus n'avait pas reçu l'aval des autres créanciers à l'assemblée des créanciers tenue le 15 décembre 2017, et que Callidus avait choisi de ne pas profiter de l'occasion pour modifier ou augmenter la valeur de son plan à ce moment-là, ce qu'elle était en droit de faire (voir LACC, art. 6 et 7; contrôleur, m.i., par. 17). Entre l'insuccès du premier plan et la proposition du nouveau plan — qui était identique au premier plan, hormis la modeste augmentation de 250 000 $ — les affairs had materially changed. However, Callidus sought to value the entirety of its security at nil and, on that basis, sought leave to vote on the New Plan as an unsecured creditor. If Callidus were permitted to vote in this way, the New Plan would certainly have met the s. 6(1) threshold for approval. In these circumstances, the inescapable inference was that Callidus was attempting to strategically value its security to acquire control over the outcome of the vote and thereby circumvent the creditor democracy the CCAA protects. Put simply, Callidus was seeking to take a “second kick at the can” and manipulate the vote on the New Plan. The supervising judge made no error in exercising his discretion to prevent Callidus from doing so.

[79] Indeed, as the Monitor observes, “[o]nce a plan of arrangement or proposal has been submitted to the creditors of a debtor for voting purposes, to order a second creditors’ meeting to vote on a substantially similar plan would not advance the policy objectives of the CCAA, nor would it serve and enhance the public’s confidence in the process or otherwise serve the ends of justice” (I.F., at para. 18). This is particularly the case given that the cost of having another meeting to vote on the New Plan would have been upwards of $200,000 (see supervising judge’s reasons, at para. 72).

[80] We add that Callidus’s course of action was plainly contrary to the expectation that parties act with due diligence in an insolvency proceeding — which, in our view, includes acting with due diligence in valuing their claims and security. At all material times, Bluberi’s Retained Claims have been the sole asset securing Callidus’s claim. Callidus has pointed to nothing in the record that indicates that the value of the Retained Claims has changed. Had Callidus been of the view that the Retained Claims had no value, one would have expected Callidus to have valued its security accordingly prior to the vote on the First Plan, if not earlier. Parenthetically, we note that, irrespective of the timing, an attempt at circonstances factuelles se rapportant aux affaires financières ou commerciales de Bluberi n’avaient pas réellement changé. Pourtant, Callidus a tenté d’évaluer la totalité de sa sûreté à zéro et, sur cette base, a demandé l’autorisation de voter sur le nouveau plan à titre de créancier non garanti. Si Callidus avait été autorisée à voter de cette façon, le nouveau plan aurait certainement satisfait au critère d’approbation prévu par le par. 6(1). Dans ces circonstances, la seule conclusion possible était que Callidus tentait d’évaluer stratégiquement la valeur de sa sûreté afin de prendre le contrôle du vote et ainsi contourner la démocratie entre les créanciers que défend la LACC. En termes simples, Callidus cherchait à « se donner une seconde chance » et à manipuler le vote sur le nouveau plan. Le juge surveillant n’a pas commis d’erreur en exerçant son pouvoir discrétionnaire pour empêcher Callidus de le faire.

[79] En effet, comme le fait observer le contrôleur, [TRADUCTION] « [u]ne fois que le plan d’arrangement ou la proposition ont été présentés aux créanciers du débiteur aux fins d’un vote, le fait d’ordonner la tenue d’une seconde assemblée des créanciers pour voter sur un plan à peu près semblable ne favoriserait pas la réalisation des objectifs de politique de la LACC, pas plus qu’il ne servirait ou n’accroîtrait la confiance du public dans le processus ou ne servirait par ailleurs les fins de la justice » (m.i., par. 18). C’est particulièrement le cas en l’espèce étant donné que la tenue d’une autre assemblée pour voter sur le nouveau plan aurait coûté plus de 200 000 $ (voir les motifs du juge surveillant, par. 72).

[80] Ajoutons que la façon d’agir de Callidus était manifestement contraire à l’attente selon laquelle les parties agissent avec diligence dans les procédures d’insolvabilité — ce qui, à notre avis, comprend le fait de faire preuve de diligence raisonnable dans l’évaluation de leurs réclamations et sûretés. Pendant toute la période pertinente, les réclamations retenues de Bluberi ont constitué les seuls éléments d’actif garantissant la réclamation de Callidus. Cette dernière n’a rien relevé dans le dossier qui indique que la valeur des réclamations retenues a changé. Si Callidus estimait que les réclamations retenues n’avaient aucune valeur, on se serait attendu à ce qu’elle ait évalué sa sûreté en conséquence avant such a valuation may well have failed. This would have prevented Callidus from voting as an unsecured creditor, even in the absence of Callidus's improper purpose.

[81] As we have indicated, discretionary decisions attract a highly deferential standard of review. Deference demands that review of a discretionary decision begin with a proper characterization of the basis for the decision. Respectfully, the Court of Appeal failed in this regard. The Court of Appeal seized on the supervising judge's somewhat critical comments relating to Callidus's goal of being released from the Retained Claims and its conduct throughout the proceedings as being incapable of grounding a finding of improper purpose. However, as we have explained, these considerations did not drive the supervising judge's conclusion. His conclusion was squarely based on Callidus' attempt to manipulate the creditors' vote to ensure that its New Plan would succeed where its First Plan had failed (see supervising judge's reasons, at paras. 45-48). We see nothing in the Court of Appeal's reasons that grapples with this decisive impropriety, which goes far beyond a creditor merely acting in its own self-interest.

[82] In sum, we see nothing in the supervising judge's reasons on this point that would justify appellate intervention. Callidus was properly barred from voting on the New Plan.

[83] Before moving on, we note that the Court of Appeal addressed two further issues: whether Callidus is "related" to Bluberi within the meaning of s. 22(3) of the CCAA; and whether, if permitted to vote, Callidus should be ordered to vote in a separate class from Bluberi's other creditors (see CCAA, s. 22(1) and (2)). Given our conclusion that the supervising judge did not err in barring Callidus from voting on the New Plan on the basis that Callidus was acting for an improper purpose, it is unnecessary to le vote sur le premier plan, voire même plus tôt. Nous ouvrons une parenthèse pour souligner que, peu importe le moment, la tentative d'évaluer ainsi la sûreté aurait pu fort bien échouer. Cela aurait empêché Callidus de voter à titre de créancier non garanti même si elle ne poursuivait pas de but illégitime.

[81] Comme nous l'avons indiqué, les décisions discrétionnaires appellent une norme de contrôle empreinte d'une grande déférence. La déférence commande que l'examen d'une décision discrétionnaire commence par la qualification appropriée du fondement de la décision. Soit dit en tout respect, la Cour d'appel a échoué à cet égard. La Cour d'appel s'est saisie des commentaires quelque peu critiques formulés par le juge surveillant à l'égard de l'objectif de Callidus d'être libérée des réclamations retenues et de la conduite de celle-ci tout au long des procédures pour affirmer qu'il ne s'agissait pas de considérations pouvant donner lieu à une conclusion de but illégitime. Toutefois, comme nous l'avons expliqué, ce ne sont pas ces considérations qui ont amené le juge surveillant à tirer sa conclusion. Sa conclusion reposait nettement sur la tentative de Callidus de manipuler le vote des créanciers pour faire en sorte que son nouveau plan soit retenu alors que son premier plan ne l'avait pas été (voir les motifs du juge surveillant, par. 45-48). Nous ne voyons rien dans les motifs de la Cour d'appel qui s'attaque à cette irrégularité déterminante, qui va beaucoup plus loin que le simple fait pour un créancier d'agir dans son propre intérêt.

[82] En résumé, nous ne voyons rien dans les motifs du juge surveillant sur ce point qui justifie l'intervention d'une cour d'appel. Callidus a été à juste titre empêchée de voter sur le nouveau plan.

[83] Avant de passer au prochain point, soulignons que la Cour d'appel a abordé deux questions supplémentaires : Callidus est-elle « liée » à Bluberi au sens du par. 22(3) de la LACC? Si Callidus est autorisée à voter, convient-il de lui ordonner de voter dans une catégorie distincte des autres créanciers de Bluberi (voir la LACC, par. 22(1) et (2))? Vu notre conclusion que le juge surveillant n'a pas commis d'erreur en interdisant à Callidus de voter sur le nouveau plan au motif qu'elle avait agi dans un but illégitime, il n'est address either of these issues. However, nothing in our reasons should be read as endorsing the Court of Appeal's analysis of them.

C. Bluberi's LFA Should Be Approved as Interim Financing

[84] In our view, the supervising judge made no error in approving the LFA as interim financing pursuant to s. 11.2 of the CCAA. Interim financing is a flexible tool that may take on a range of forms. As we will explain, third party litigation funding may be one such form. Whether third party litigation funding should be approved as interim financing is a case-specific inquiry that should have regard to the text of s. 11.2 and the remedial objectives of the CCAA more generally.

(1) Interim Financing and Section 11.2 of the CCAA

[85] Interim financing, despite being expressly provided for in s. 11.2 of the CCAA, is not defined in the Act. Professor Sarra has described it as “refer[ring] primarily to the working capital that the debtor corporation requires in order to keep operating during restructuring proceedings, as well as to the financing to pay the costs of the workout process” (Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, at p. 197). Interim financing used in this way — sometimes referred to as “debtor-in-possession” financing — protects the going-concern value of the debtor company while it develops a workable solution to its insolvency issues (p. 197; Royal Oak Mines Inc., Re (1999), 6 C.B.R. (4th) 314 (Ont. C.J. (Gen. Div.)), at paras. 7, 9 and 24; Boutiques San Francisco Inc. v. Richter & Associés Inc., 2003 CanLII 36955 (Que. Sup. Ct.), at para. 32). That said, interim financing is not limited to providing debtor companies with immediate operating capital. Consistent with the remedial objectives of the CCAA, interim financing pas nécessaire de se prononcer sur l'une ou l'autre de ces questions. Cependant, rien dans les présents motifs ne doit être interprété comme souscrivant à l'analyse que la Cour d'appel a faite de ces questions.

C. L'AFL de Bluberi devrait être approuvé à titre de financement temporaire

[84] À notre avis, le juge surveillant n'a commis aucune erreur en approuvant l'AFL à titre de financement temporaire en vertu de l'art. 11.2 de la LACC. Le financement temporaire est un outil souple qui peut revêtir différentes formes. Comme nous l'expliquerons, le financement d'un litige par un tiers peut constituer l'une de ces formes. La question de savoir s'il y a lieu d'approuver le financement d'un litige par un tiers à titre de financement temporaire commande une analyse fondée sur les faits de l'espèce qui doit tenir compte du libellé de l'art. 11.2 et des objectifs réparateurs de la LACC de façon plus générale.

(1) Le financement temporaire et l'art. 11.2 de la LACC

[85] Bien qu'il soit expressément prévu par l'art. 11.2 de la LACC, le financement temporaire n'est pas défini dans la Loi. La professeure Sarra l'a décrit comme [TRADUCTION] « vis[ant] principalement le fonds de roulement dont a besoin la société débitrice pour continuer de fonctionner pendant la restructuration ainsi que les fonds nécessaires pour payer les frais liés au processus de sauvetage » (Rescue! The Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, p. 197). Utilisé de cette façon, le financement temporaire — parfois appelé financement de [TRADUCTION] « débiteur-exploitant » — protège la valeur d'exploitation de la compagnie débitrice pendant qu'elle met au point une solution viable à ses problèmes d'insolvabilité (p. 197; Royal Oak Mines Inc., Re (1999), 6 C.B.R. (4th) 314 (C.J. Ont. (Div. gén.)), par. 7, 9 et 24; Boutiques San Francisco Inc. c. Richter & Associés Inc., 2003 CanLII 36955 (C.S. Qc), par. 32). Cela dit, le financement temporaire ne se limite pas à fournir un fonds de roulement at its core enables the preservation and realization of the value of a debtor's assets.

[86] Since 2009, s. 11.2(1) of the CCAA has codified a supervising judge's discretion to approve interim financing, and to grant a corresponding security or charge in favour of the lender in the amount the judge considers appropriate:

Interim financing

11.2 (1) On application by a debtor company and on notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, a court may make an order declaring that all or part of the company's property is subject to a security or charge — in an amount that the court considers appropriate — in favour of a person specified in the order who agrees to lend to the company an amount approved by the court as being required by the company, having regard to its cash-flow statement. The security or charge may not secure an obligation that exists before the order is made.

[87] The breadth of a supervising judge's discretion to approve interim financing is apparent from the wording of s. 11.2(1). Aside from the protections regarding notice and pre-filing security, s. 11.2(1) does not mandate any standard form or terms.⁵ It simply provides that the financing must be in an amount that is "appropriate" and "required by the company, having regard to its cash-flow statement".

immédiat aux compagnies débitrices. Conformément aux objectifs réparateurs de la LACC, le financement temporaire permet essentiellement de préserver et de réaliser la valeur des éléments d'actif du débiteur.

[86] Depuis 2009, le par. 11.2(1) de la LACC a codifié le pouvoir discrétionnaire du juge surveillant d'approuver le financement temporaire et d'accorder une charge ou une sûreté correspondante, d'un montant qu'il estime indiqué, en faveur du prêteur :

Financement temporaire

11.2 (1) Sur demande de la compagnie débitrice, le tribunal peut par ordonnance, sur préavis de la demande aux créanciers garantis qui seront vraisemblablement touchés par la charge ou sûreté, déclarer que tout ou partie des biens de la compagnie sont grevés d'une charge ou sûreté — d'un montant qu'il estime indiqué — en faveur de la personne nommée dans l'ordonnance qui accepte de prêter à la compagnie la somme qu'il approuve compte tenu de l'état de l'évolution de l'encaisse et des besoins de celle-ci. La charge ou sûreté ne peut garantir qu'une obligation postérieure au prononcé de l'ordonnance.

[87] L'étendue du pouvoir discrétionnaire du juge surveillant d'approuver le financement temporaire ressort du libellé du par. 11.2(1). Abstraction faite des protections concernant le préavis et les sûretés constituées avant le dépôt des procédures, le par. 11.2(1) ne prescrit aucune forme ou condition type⁵. Il prévoit simplement que le financement doit être d'un montant qui est « indiqué » et qui tient compte de « l'état de l'évolution de l'encaisse et des besoins de [la compagnie] ».

⁵ Une autre exception a été codifiée dans les modifications apportées en 2019 à la LACC qui créent le par. 11.2(5) (voir Loi n° 1 d'exécution du budget de 2019, art. 138). Cet article prévoit que, lorsqu'une ordonnance relative à la demande initiale a été demandée, « le tribunal ne rend l'ordonnance visée au paragraphe 11.2 que s'il est également convaincu que les modalités du financement temporaire demandé sont limitées à ce qui est normalement nécessaire à la continuation de l'exploitation de la compagnie débitrice dans le cours ordinaire de ses affaires durant cette période ». Cette disposition ne s'applique pas en l'espèce, et les parties ne l'ont pas invoquée. Toutefois, il se peut qu'elle ait pour effet d'empêcher les juges surveillants d'approuver des AFL à titre de financement temporaire au moment où l'ordonnance relative à la demande initiale est rendue.

[88] The supervising judge may also grant the lender a “super-priority charge” that will rank in priority over the claims of any secured creditors, pursuant to s. 11.2(2):

Priority — secured creditors

(2) The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

[89] Such charges, also known as “priming liens”, reduce lenders’ risks, thereby incentivizing them to assist insolvent companies (Innovation, Science and Economic Development Canada, Archived — Bill C-55: clause by clause analysis, last updated December 29, 2016 (online), cl. 128, s. 11.2; Wood, at p. 387). As a practical matter, these charges are often the only way to encourage this lending. Normally, a lender protects itself against lending risk by taking a security interest in the borrower’s assets. However, debtor companies under CCAA protection will often have pledged all or substantially all of their assets to other creditors. Accordingly, without the benefit of a super-priority charge, an interim financing lender would rank behind those other creditors (McElcheran, at pp. 298-99). Although super-priority charges do subordinate secured creditors’ security positions to the interim financing lender’s — a result that was controversial at common law — Parliament has indicated its general acceptance of the trade-offs associated with these charges by enacting s. 11.2(2) (see M. B. Rotsztain and A. Dostal, “Debtor-In-Possession Financing”, in S. Ben-Ishai and A. Duggan, eds., Canadian Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law: Bill C-55, Statute c. 47 and Beyond (2007), 227, at pp. 228-29 and 240-50). Indeed, this balance was expressly considered by the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce that recommended codifying interim financing in the CCAA (pp. 100-104).

[90] Ultimately, whether proposed interim financing should be approved is a question that the supervising judge is best-placed to answer. The CCAA

Priorité — créanciers garantis

(2) Le tribunal peut préciser, dans l’ordonnance, que la charge ou sûreté a priorité sur toute réclamation des créanciers garantis de la compagnie.

[89] Ces charges, également appelées « superprivilèges », réduisent les risques des prêteurs, les incitant ainsi à aider les compagnies insolvable (Innovation, Sciences et Développement économique Canada, Archivé — Projet de loi C-55 : analyse article par article, dernière mise à jour le 29 décembre 2016 (en ligne), cl. 128, art. 11.2; Wood, p. 387). Sur le plan pratique, ces charges constituent souvent le seul moyen d’encourager ce type de prêt. Généralement, le prêteur se protège contre le risque de crédit en prenant une sûreté sur les éléments d’actifs de l’emprunteur. Or, les compagnies débitrices qui sont sous la protection de la LACC ont souvent donné en gage la totalité ou la presque totalité de leurs actifs à d’autres créanciers. En l’absence d’une charge super prioritaire, le prêteur qui accepte d’apporter un financement temporaire prendrait rang derrière les autres créanciers (McElcheran, p. 298-299). Bien que la charge super prioritaire subordonne les sûretés des créanciers garantis à celle du prêteur qui apporte un financement temporaire — un résultat qui a suscité la controverse en common law — le législateur a signifié son acceptation générale des transactions allant de pair avec ces charges en adoptant le par. 11.2(2) (voir M. B. Rotsztain et A. Dostal, « Debtor-In-Possession Financing », dans S. Ben-Ishai et A. Duggan, dir., Canadian Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law : Bill C-55, Statute c. 47 and Beyond (2007), 227, p. 228-229 et 240-250). En effet, cet équilibre a été expressément pris en considération par le Comité sénatorial permanent des banques et du commerce, qui a recommandé la codification du financement temporaire dans la LACC (p. 111-115).

[90] Au bout du compte, la question de savoir s’il y a lieu d’approuver le financement temporaire projeté est une question à laquelle le juge surveillant est le sets out a number of factors that help guide the exercise of this discretion. The inclusion of these factors in s. 11.2 was informed by the Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce's view that they would help meet the "fundamental principles" that have guided the development of Canadian insolvency law, including "fairness, predictability and efficiency" (p. 103; see also Innovation, Science and Economic Development Canada, cl. 128, s. 11.2). In deciding whether to grant interim financing, the supervising judge is to consider the following non-exhaustive list of factors:

Factors to be considered

(4) In deciding whether to make an order, the court is to consider, among other things,

- (a) the period during which the company is expected to be subject to proceedings under this Act;
- (b) how the company's business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings;
- (c) whether the company's management has the confidence of its major creditors;
- (d) whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the company;
- (e) the nature and value of the company's property;
- (f) whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge; and
- (g) the monitor's report referred to in paragraph 23(1)(b), if any.

(CCAA, s. 11.2(4))

[91] Prior to the coming into force of the above provisions in 2009, courts had been using the general discretion conferred by s. 11 to authorize interim financing and associated super-priority charges mieux placé pour répondre. La LACC énonce un certain nombre de facteurs qui encadrent l'exercice de ce pouvoir discrétionnaire. L'inclusion de ces facteurs dans le par. 11.2 reposait sur le point de vue du Comité sénatorial permanent des banques et du commerce selon lequel ils permettraient de respecter les « principes fondamentaux » ayant guidé la conception des lois en matière d'insolvabilité au Canada, notamment « l'équité, la prévisibilité et l'efficacité » (p. 115; voir également Innovation, Sciences et Développement économique Canada, cl. 128, art. 11.2). Pour décider s'il y a lieu d'accorder le financement temporaire, le juge surveillant doit prendre en considération les facteurs non exhaustifs suivants :

Facteurs à prendre en considération

(4) Pour décider s'il rend l'ordonnance, le tribunal prend en considération, entre autres, les facteurs suivants :

- a) la durée prévue des procédures intentées à l'égard de la compagnie sous le régime de la présente loi;
- b) la façon dont les affaires financières et autres de la compagnie seront gérées au cours de ces procédures;
- c) la question de savoir si ses dirigeants ont la confiance de ses créanciers les plus importants;
- d) la question de savoir si le prêt favorisera la conclusion d'une transaction ou d'un arrangement viable à l'égard de la compagnie;
- e) la nature et la valeur des biens de la compagnie;
- f) la question de savoir si la charge ou sûreté causera un préjudice sérieux à l'un ou l'autre des créanciers de la compagnie;
- g) le rapport du contrôleur visé à l'alinéa 23(1)b).

(LACC, par. 11.2(4))

[91] Avant l'entrée en vigueur en 2009 des dispositions susmentionnées, les tribunaux utilisaient le pouvoir discrétionnaire général que confère l'art. 11 pour autoriser le financement temporaire (Century Services, at para. 62). Section 11.2 largely codifies the approaches those courts have taken (Wood, at p. 388; McElcheran, at p. 301). As a result, where appropriate, guidance may be drawn from the pre-codification interim financing jurisprudence.

[92] As with other measures available under the CCAA, interim financing is a flexible tool that may take different forms or attract different considerations in each case. Below, we explain that third party litigation funding may, in appropriate cases, be one such form.

(2) Supervising Judges May Approve Third Party Litigation Funding as Interim Financing

[93] Third party litigation funding generally involves “a third party, otherwise unconnected to the litigation, agree[ing] to pay some or all of a party’s litigation costs, in exchange for a portion of that party’s recovery in damages or costs” (R. K. Agarwal and D. Fenton, “Beyond Access to Justice: Litigation Funding Agreements Outside the Class Actions Context” (2017), 59 Can. Bus. L.J. 65, at p. 65). Third party litigation funding can take various forms. A common model involves the litigation funder agreeing to pay a plaintiff’s disbursements and indemnify the plaintiff in the event of an adverse cost award in exchange for a share of the proceeds of any successful litigation or settlement (see Dugal v. Manulife Financial Corp., 2011 ONSC 1785, 105 O.R. (3d) 364; Bayens).

[94] Outside of the CCAA context, the approval of third party litigation funding agreements has been somewhat controversial. Part of that controversy arises from the potential of these agreements to offend the common law doctrines of champerty and et la constitution des charges super prioritaires s’y rattachant (Century Services, par. 62). L’article 11.2 codifie en grande partie les approches adoptées par ces tribunaux (Wood, p. 388; McElcheran, p. 301). En conséquence, il est possible, le cas échéant, de s’inspirer de la jurisprudence relative au financement temporaire antérieure à la codification.

[92] Comme c’est le cas pour les autres mesures susceptibles d’être prises sous le régime de la LACC, le financement temporaire est un outil souple qui peut revêtir différentes formes ou faire intervenir différentes considérations dans chaque cas. Comme nous l’expliquerons plus loin, le financement d’un litige par un tiers peut, dans les cas qui s’y prêtent, constituer l’une de ces formes.

(2) Les juges surveillants peuvent approuver le financement d’un litige par un tiers à titre de financement temporaire

[93] Le financement d’un litige par un tiers met généralement en cause [TRANSLATION] « un tiers, n’ayant par ailleurs aucun lien avec le litige, [qui] accepte de payer une partie ou la totalité des frais de litige d’une partie, en échange d’une portion de la somme recouvrée par cette partie au titre des dommages-intérêts ou des dépens » (R. K. Agarwal et D. Fenton, « Beyond Access to Justice : Litigation Funding Agreements Outside the Class Actions Context » (2017), 59 Rev. can. dr. comm. 65, p. 65). Le financement d’un litige par un tiers peut revêtir diverses formes. Un modèle courant met en cause un bailleur de fonds de litiges qui s’engage à payer les débours du demandeur et à indemniser ce dernier dans l’éventualité d’une adjudication des dépens défavorable, en échange d’une partie de la somme obtenue dans le cadre d’un procès ou d’un règlement couronné de succès (voir Dugal c. Manulife Financial Corp., 2011 ONSC 1785, 105 O.R. (3d) 364; Bayens).

[94] En dehors du cadre de la LACC, l’approbation des accords de financement d’un litige par un tiers a été quelque peu controversée. Une partie de cette controverse découle de la possibilité que ces accords portent atteinte aux doctrines de common maintenance.⁶ The tort of maintenance prohibits “of-ficious intermeddling with a lawsuit which in no way belongs to one” (L. N. Klar et al., Remedies in Tort (loose-leaf), vol. 1, by L. Berry, ed., at p. 14-11, citing Langtry v. Dumoulin (1884), 7 O.R. 644 (Ch. Div.), at p. 661). Champerty is a species of maintenance that involves an agreement to share in the proceeds or otherwise profit from a successful suit (McIntyre Estate v. Ontario (Attorney General) (2002), 218 D.L.R. (4th) 193 (Ont. C.A.), at para. 26).

[95] Building on jurisprudence holding that contingency fee arrangements are not champertous where they are not motivated by an improper purpose (e.g., McIntyre Estate), lower courts have increasingly come to recognize that litigation funding agreements are also not per se champertous. This development has been focussed within class action proceedings, where it arose as a response to barriers like adverse cost awards, which were stymieing litigants’ access to justice (see Dugal, at para. 33; Marcotte v. Banque de Montréal, 2015 QCCS 1915, at paras. 43-44 (CanLII); Houle v. St. Jude Medical Inc., 2017 ONSC 5129, 9 C.P.C. (8th) 321, at para. 52, aff’d 2018 ONSC 6352, 429 D.L.R. (4th) 739 (Div. Ct.); see also Stanway v. Wyeth, 2013 BCSC 1585, 56 B.C.L.R. (5th) 192, at para. 13). The jurisprudence on the approval of third party litigation funding agreements in the class action context — and indeed, the parameters of their legality generally — is still evolving, and no party before this Court has invited us to evaluate it.

law concernant la champartie (champerty) et le soutien abusif (maintenance)⁶. Le délit de soutien abusif interdit [TRADUCTION] « l’immixtion trop empressée dans une action avec laquelle on n’a rien à voir » (L. N. Klar et autres, Remedies in Tort (feuilles mobiles), vol. 1, par L. Berry, dir., p. 14-11, citant Langtry c. Dumoulin (1884), 7 O.R. 644 (Ch. Div.), p. 661). La champartie est une sorte de soutien abusif qui comporte un accord prévoyant le partage de la somme obtenue ou de tout autre profit réalisé dans le cadre d’une action réussie (McIntyre Estate c. Ontario (Attorney General) (2002), 218 D.L.R. (4th) 193 (C.A. Ont.), par. 26).

[95] S’appuyant sur la jurisprudence voulant que les conventions d’honoraires conditionnels ne constituent pas de la champartie lorsqu’elles ne sont pas motivées par un but illégitime (p. ex., McIntyre Estate), les tribunaux d’instance inférieure en sont venus progressivement à reconnaître que les accords de financement d’un litige ne constituent pas non plus de la champartie en soi. Cette évolution s’est opérée surtout dans le contexte des recours collectifs, en réaction aux obstacles, comme les adjudications de dépens défavorables, qui entravaient l’accès des parties à la justice (voir Dugal, par. 33; Marcotte c. Banque de Montréal, 2015 QCCS 1915, par. 43-44 (CanLII); Houle c. St. Jude Medical Inc., 2017 ONSC 5129, 9 C.P.C. (8th) 321, par. 52, conf. par 2018 ONSC 6352, 429 D.L.R. (4th) 739 (C. div.); voir également Stanway c. Wyeth, 2013 BCSC 1585, 56 B.C.L.R. (5th) 192, par. 13). La jurisprudence relative à l’approbation des accords de financement de litige par un tiers dans le contexte des recours collectifs — et même les paramètres de leur légalité en général — continue d’évoluer, et aucune des parties au présent pourvoi ne nous a invités à l’analyser.

⁶ L’ampleur de la controverse varie selon les provinces. En Ontario, les accords de champartie sont interdits par la loi (voir An Act respecting Champerty, R.S.O. 1897, c. 327). Au Québec, les questions relatives à la champartie et au soutien abusif ne se posent pas de façon aussi aiguë parce que la champartie et le soutien abusif ne font pas partie du droit comme tel (voir Montgrain c. Banque nationale du Canada, 2006 QCCA 557, [2006] R.J.Q. 1009; G. Michaud, « New Frontier : The Emergence of Litigation Funding in the Canadian Insolvabilité Landscape » dans J. P. Sarra et autres, dir., Annual Review of Insolvency Law 2018 (2019), 221, p. 231).

[96] That said, insofar as third party litigation funding agreements are not per se illegal, there is no principled basis upon which to restrict supervising judges from approving such agreements as interim financing in appropriate cases. We acknowledge that this funding differs from more common forms of interim financing that are simply designed to help the debtor “keep the lights on” (see Royal Oak, at paras. 7 and 24). However, in circumstances like the case at bar, where there is a single litigation asset that could be monetized for the benefit of creditors, the objective of maximizing creditor recovery has taken centre stage. In those circumstances, litigation funding furthers the basic purpose of interim financing: allowing the debtor to realize on the value of its assets.

[97] We conclude that third party litigation funding agreements may be approved as interim financing in CCAA proceedings when the supervising judge determines that doing so would be fair and appropriate, having regard to all the circumstances and the objectives of the Act. This requires consideration of the specific factors set out in s. 11.2(4) of the CCAA. That said, these factors need not be mechanically applied or individually reviewed by the supervising judge. Indeed, not all of them will be significant in every case, nor are they exhaustive. Further guidance may be drawn from other areas in which third party litigation funding agreements have been approved.

[98] The foregoing is consistent with the practice that is already occurring in lower courts. Most notably, in Crystallex, the Ontario Court of Appeal approved a third party litigation funding agreement in circumstances substantially similar to the case at bar. Crystallex involved a mining company that had the right to develop a large gold deposit in Venezuela. Crystallex eventually became insolvent and (similar to Bluberi) was left with only a single significant asset: a US$3.4 billion arbitration claim against Venezuela. After entering CCAA protection,

[97] Nous concluons que les accords de financement de litige par un tiers peuvent être approuvés à titre de financement temporaire dans le cadre des procédures fondées sur la LACC lorsque le juge surveillant estime qu’il serait juste et approprié de le faire, compte tenu de l’ensemble des circonstances et des objectifs de la Loi. Cela implique la prise en considération des facteurs précis énoncés au par. 11.2(4) de la LACC. Cela dit, ces facteurs ne doivent pas être appliqués machinalement ou examinés individuellement par le juge surveillant. En effet, ils ne seront pas tous importants dans tous les cas, et ils ne sont pas non plus exhaustifs. Des enseignements supplémentaires peuvent être tirés d’autres domaines où des accords de financement de litige par un tiers ont été approuvés.

[98] Ce qui précède est compatible avec la pratique qui a déjà cours devant les tribunaux d’instance inférieure. Plus particulièrement, dans Crystallex, la Cour d’appel de l’Ontario a approuvé un accord de financement de litige par un tiers dans des circonstances très semblables à celles en l’espèce. Cette affaire mettait en cause une société minière ayant le droit d’exploiter un grand gisement d’or au Venezuela. Crystallex est finalement devenue insolvable, et (comme Bluberi) il ne lui restait plus qu’un seul élément d’actif important : une réclamation

Crystallex sought the approval of a third party litigation funding agreement. The agreement contemplated that the lender would advance substantial funds to finance the arbitration in exchange for, among other things, a percentage of the net proceeds of any award or settlement. The supervising judge approved the agreement as interim financing pursuant to s. 11.2. The Court of Appeal unanimously found no error in the supervising judge's exercise of discretion. It concluded that s. 11.2 "does not restrict the ability of the supervising judge, where appropriate, to approve the grant of a charge securing financing before a plan is approved that may continue after the company emerges from CCAA protection" (para. 68).

[99] A key argument raised by the creditors in Crystallex — and one that Callidus and the Creditors' Group have put before us now — was that the litigation funding agreement at issue was a plan of arrangement and not interim financing. This was significant because, if the agreement was in fact a plan, it would have had to be put to a creditors' vote pursuant to ss. 4 and 5 of the CCAA prior to receiving court approval. The court in Crystallex rejected this argument, as do we.

[100] There is no definition of plan of arrangement in the CCAA. In fact, the CCAA does not refer to plans at all — it only refers to an "arrangement" or "compromise" (see ss. 4 and 5). The authors of Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law of Canada offer the following general definition of these terms, relying on early English case law:

A "compromise" presupposes some dispute about the rights compromised and a settling of that dispute on terms that are satisfactory to the debtor and the creditor. An agreement to accept less than 100¢ on the dollar would be a compromise where the debtor disputes the debt or lacks the means to pay it. "Arrangement" is a broader word d'arbitrage de 3,4 milliards de dollars américains contre le Venezuela. Après s'être placée sous la protection de la LACC, Crystallex a demandé l'approbation d'un accord de financement de litige par un tiers. L'accord prévoyait que le prêteur avancerait des fonds importants pour financer l'arbitrage en échange, notamment, d'un pourcentage de la somme nette obtenue à la suite d'une sentence ou d'un règlement. Le juge surveillant a approuvé l'accord à titre de financement temporaire en vertu de l'art. 11.2. La Cour d'appel a conclu à l'unanimité que le juge surveillant n'avait commis aucune erreur dans l'exercice de son pouvoir discrétionnaire. Elle a conclu que l'art. 11.2 [TRADUCTION] « n'empêche pas le juge surveillant d'approuver, s'il y a lieu, avant qu'un plan soit approuvé, l'octroi d'une charge garantissant un financement qui pourra continuer après que la compagnie aura émergé de la protection de la LACC » (par. 68).

[99] Dans Crystallex, l'un des principaux arguments soulevés par les créanciers — et l'un de ceux qu'ont soulevés Callidus et le groupe de créanciers dans le présent pourvoi — était que l'accord de financement de litige en cause était un plan d'arrangement et non pas un financement temporaire. Il s'agissait d'un argument important car, si l'accord était en fait un plan, il aurait dû être soumis à un vote des créanciers conformément aux art. 4 et 5 de la LACC avant de recevoir l'aval du tribunal. La cour, dans Crystallex, a rejeté cet argument, et nous en faisons autant.

[100] La LACC ne définit pas le plan d'arrangement. En fait, la LACC ne fait aucunement allusion aux plans — elle fait uniquement état d'un « arrangement » ou d'une « transaction » (voir art. 4 et 5). S'appuyant sur l'ancienne jurisprudence anglaise, les auteurs de Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law of Canada proposent la définition générale suivante de ces termes :

[TRADUCTION] La « transaction » suppose d'emblée l'existence d'un différend au sujet des droits visés par la transaction et d'un règlement de ce différend selon des conditions jugées satisfaisantes par le débiteur et le créancier. L'accord visant à accepter une somme inférieure à 100 ¢ par dollar constituerait une transaction lorsque than “compromise” and is not limited to something analogous to a compromise. It would include any scheme for reorganizing the affairs of the debtor: Re Guardian Assur. Co., [1917] 1 Ch. 431, 61 Sol. Jo 232, [1917] H.B.R. 113 (C.A.); Re Refund of Dues under Timber Regulations, [1935] A.C. 185 (P.C.).

(Houlden, Morawetz and Sarra, at §33)

[101] The apparent breadth of these terms notwithstanding, they do have some limits. More recent jurisprudence suggests that they require, at minimum, some compromise of creditors’ rights. For example, in Crystallex the litigation funding agreement at issue (known as the Tenor DIP facility) was held not to be a plan of arrangement because it did not “compromise the terms of [the creditors’] indebtedness or take away . . . their legal rights” (para. 93). The Court of Appeal adopted the following reasoning from the lower court’s decision, with which we substantially agree:

A “plan of arrangement” or a “compromise” is not defined in the CCAA. It is, however, to be an arrangement or compromise between a debtor and its creditors. The Tenor DIP facility is not on its face such an arrangement or compromise between Crystallex and its creditors. Importantly the rights of the noteholders are not taken away from them by the Tenor DIP facility. The noteholders are unsecured creditors. Their rights are to sue to judgment and enforce the judgment. If not paid, they have a right to apply for a bankruptcy order under the BIA. Under the CCAA, they have the right to vote on a plan of arrangement or compromise. None of these rights are taken away by the Tenor DIP.

(Re Crystallex International Corporation, 2012 ONSC 2125, 91 C.B.R. (5th) 169, at para. 50)

[102] Setting out an exhaustive definition of plan of arrangement or compromise is unnecessary to resolve these appeals. For our purposes, it is sufficient to conclude that plans of arrangement require at least le débiteur conteste la dette ou n’a pas les moyens de la payer. Le mot « arrangement » a un sens plus large que le mot « transaction » et ne se limite pas à quelque chose qui ressemble à une transaction. Il viserait tout plan de réorganisation des affaires du débiteur : Re Guardian Assur. Co., [1917] 1 Ch. 431, 61 Sol. Jo 232, [1917] H.B.R. 113 (C.A.); Re Refund of Dues under Timber Regulations, [1935] A.C. 185 (C.P.).

(Houlden, Morawetz et Sarra, §33)

[101] Malgré leur vaste portée apparente, ces termes connaissent quand même certaines limites. Selon une jurisprudence plus récente, ils exigeraient, à tout le moins, une certaine transaction à l’égard des droits des créanciers. Dans Crystallex, par exemple, on a conclu que l’accord de financement de litige en cause (également appelé [TRADUCTION] « facilité de DE Tenor ») ne constituait pas un plan d’arrangement parce qu’il ne comportait pas [TRADUCTION] « une transaction visant les conditions [des] dettes envers [des créanciers] ni ne [. . .] privait [ceux-ci] de [. . .] leurs droits reconnus par la loi » (par. 93). La Cour d’appel a fait sien le raisonnement suivant du tribunal de première instance, auquel nous souscrivons pour l’essentiel :

[TRADUCTION] Le « plan d’arrangement » et la « transaction » ne sont pas définis dans la LACC. Il doit toutefois s’agir d’un arrangement ou d’une transaction entre un débiteur et ses créanciers. La facilité de DE Tenor ne constitue pas, à première vue, un arrangement ou une transaction entre Crystallex et ses créanciers. Fait important, les détenteurs de billets ne sont pas privés de leurs droits par la facilité de DE Tenor. Les détenteurs de billets sont des créanciers non garantis. Leurs droits se résument à poursuivre en vue d’obtenir un jugement et à faire exécuter ce jugement. S’ils ne sont pas payés, ils ont le droit de demander une ordonnance de faillite en vertu de la LFI. Sous le régime de la LACC, ils ont le droit de voter sur un plan d’arrangement ou une transaction. La facilité de DE Tenor ne les prive d’aucun de ces droits.

(Re Crystallex International Corporation, 2012 ONSC 2125, 91 C.B.R. (5th) 169, par. 50)

[102] Il n’est pas nécessaire de définir exhaustivement les notions de plan d’arrangement ou de transaction pour trancher les présents pourvois. Il suffit de conclure que les plans d’arrangement doivent au

some compromise of creditors' rights. It follows that a third party litigation funding agreement aimed at extending financing to a debtor company to realize on the value of a litigation asset does not necessarily constitute a plan of arrangement. We would leave it to supervising judges to determine whether, in the particular circumstances of the case before them, a particular third party litigation funding agreement contains terms that effectively convert it into a plan of arrangement. So long as the agreement does not contain such terms, it may be approved as interim financing pursuant to s. 11.2 of the CCAA.

[103] We add that there may be circumstances in which a third party litigation funding agreement may contain or incorporate a plan of arrangement (e.g., if it contemplates a plan for distribution of litigation proceeds among creditors). Alternatively, a supervising judge may determine that, despite an agreement itself not being a plan of arrangement, it should be packaged with a plan and submitted to a creditors' vote. That said, we repeat that third party litigation funding agreements are not necessarily, or even generally, plans of arrangement.

[104] None of the foregoing is seriously contested before us. The parties essentially agree that third party litigation funding agreements can be approved as interim financing. The dispute between them focusses on whether the supervising judge erred in exercising his discretion to approve the LFA in the absence of a vote of the creditors, either because it was a plan of arrangement or because it should have been accompanied by a plan of arrangement. We turn to these issues now.

(3) The Supervising Judge Did Not Err in Approving the LFA

[105] In our view, there is no basis upon which to interfere with the supervising judge's exercise of his discretion to approve the LFA as interim financing.

moins comporter une certaine transaction à l'égard des droits des créanciers. Il s'ensuit que l'accord de financement de litige par un tiers visant à apporter un financement à la compagnie débitrice pour réaliser la valeur d'un élément d'actif ne constitue pas nécessairement un plan d'arrangement. Nous sommes d'avis de laisser aux juges surveillants le soin de déterminer si, compte tenu des circonstances particulières de l'affaire dont ils sont saisis, l'accord de financement de litige par un tiers comporte des conditions qui le convertissent effectivement en plan d'arrangement. Si l'accord ne comporte pas de telles conditions, il peut être approuvé à titre de financement temporaire en vertu de l'art. 11.2 de la LACC.

[103] Ajoutons que, dans certaines circonstances, l'accord de financement de litige par un tiers peut contenir ou incorporer un plan d'arrangement (p. ex., s'il contient un plan prévoyant la distribution aux créanciers des sommes obtenues dans le cadre du litige). Subsidiairement, le juge surveillant peut décider que, bien que l'accord lui-même ne constitue pas un plan d'arrangement, il y a lieu de l'accompagner d'un plan et de le soumettre à un vote des créanciers. Cela dit, nous le répétons, les accords de financement de litige par un tiers ne constituent pas nécessairement, ni même généralement, des plans d'arrangement.

[104] Rien de ce qui précède n'est sérieusement contesté en l'espèce. Les parties s'entendent essentiellement pour dire que les accords de financement de litige par un tiers peuvent être approuvés à titre de financement temporaire. Le différend qui les oppose porte sur la question de savoir si le juge surveillant a commis une erreur en exerçant son pouvoir discrétionnaire d'approuver l'AFL en l'absence d'un vote des créanciers, soit parce qu'il constituait un plan d'arrangement, soit parce qu'il aurait dû être accompagné d'un plan d'arrangement. Nous abordons maintenant cette question.

(3) Le juge surveillant n'a pas commis d'erreur en approuvant l'AFL

[105] À notre avis, il n'y a aucune raison d'intervenir dans l'exercice par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire d'approuver l'AFL à titre de

The supervising judge considered the LFA to be fair and reasonable, drawing guidance from the principles relevant to approving similar agreements in the class action context (para. 74, citing Bayens, at para. 41; Hayes, at para. 4). In particular, he canvassed the terms upon which Bentham and Bluberi's lawyers would be paid in the event the litigation was successful, the risks they were taking by investing in the litigation, and the extent of Bentham's control over the litigation going forward (paras. 79 and 81). The supervising judge also considered the unique objectives of CCAA proceedings in distinguishing the LFA from ostensibly similar agreements that had not received approval in the class action context (paras. 81-82, distinguishing Houle). His consideration of those objectives is also apparent from his reliance on Crystallex, which, as we have explained, involved the approval of interim financing in circumstances substantially similar to the case at bar (see paras. 67 and 71). We see no error in principle or unreasonableness to this approach.

[106] While the supervising judge did not canvass each of the factors set out in s. 11.2(4) of the CCAA individually before reaching his conclusion, this was not itself an error. A review of the supervising judge's reasons as a whole, combined with a recognition of his manifest experience with Bluberi's CCAA proceedings, leads us to conclude that the factors listed in s. 11.2(4) concern matters that could not have escaped his attention and due consideration. It bears repeating that, at the time of his decision, the supervising judge had been seized of these proceedings for well over two years and had the benefit of the Monitor's assistance. With respect to each of the s. 11.2(4) factors, we note that:

- the judge's supervisory role would have made him aware of the potential length of Bluberi's CCAA proceedings and the extent of creditor support for Bluberi's management (s. 11.2(4)(a) and (c)), though we observe that these factors financement temporaire. Se fondant sur les principes applicables à l'approbation d'accords semblables dans le contexte des recours collectifs (par. 74, citant Bayens, par. 41; Hayes, par. 4), le juge surveillant a estimé que l'AFL était juste et raisonnable. Plus particulièrement, il a examiné soigneusement les conditions selon lesquelles les avocats de Bentham et de Bluberi seraient payés si le litige était couronné de succès, les risques qu'ils prenaient en investissant dans le litige et l'étendue du contrôle qu'exercerait désormais Bentham sur le litige (par. 79 et 81). Le juge surveillant a également pris en compte les objectifs uniques des procédures fondées sur la LACC en établissant une distinction entre l'AFL et des accords apparemment semblables qui n'avaient pas été approuvés dans le contexte des recours collectifs (par. 81-82, établissant une distinction avec l'affaire Houle). Sa prise en compte de ces objectifs ressort également du fait qu'il s'est fondé sur Crystallex, qui, comme nous l'avons expliqué, portait sur l'approbation d'un financement temporaire dans des circonstances très semblables à celles en l'espèce (voir par. 67 et 71). Nous ne voyons aucune erreur de principe ni rien de déraisonnable dans cette approche.

[106] Certes, le juge surveillant n'a pas examiné à fond chacun des facteurs énoncés au par. 11.2(4) de la LACC de façon individuelle avant de tirer sa conclusion, mais cela ne constituait pas une erreur en soi. L'examen des motifs du juge surveillant dans leur ensemble, conjugué à la reconnaissance de son expérience évidente des procédures intentées par Bluberi sous le régime de la LACC, nous mène à conclure que les facteurs énumérés au par. 11.2(4) concernent des questions qui n'auraient pu échapper à son attention et à son examen adéquat. Il convient de rappeler qu'au moment où il a rendu sa décision, le juge surveillant était saisi des procédures en question depuis plus de deux ans et avait pu bénéficier de l'aide du contrôleur. En ce qui a trait à chacun des facteurs énoncés au par. 11.2(4), nous soulignons ce qui suit :

- le rôle de surveillance du juge lui aurait permis de connaître la durée prévue des procédures intentées par Bluberi sous le régime de la LACC ainsi que la mesure dans laquelle les dirigeants de Bluberi bénéficiaient du soutien des créanciers appear to be less significant than the others in the context of this particular case (see para. 96);

- the LFA itself explains “how the company’s business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings” (s. 11.2(4)(b));
- the supervising judge was of the view that the LFA would enhance the prospect of a viable plan, as he accepted (1) that Bluberi intended to submit a plan and (2) Bluberi’s submission that approval of the LFA would assist it in finalizing a plan “with a view towards achieving maximum realization” of its assets (para. 68, citing 9354-9186 Québec inc. and 9354-9178 Québec inc.’s application, at para. 99; s. 11.2(4)(d));
- the supervising judge was apprised of the “nature and value” of Bluberi’s property, which was clearly limited to the Retained Claims (s. 11.2(4)(e));
- the supervising judge implicitly concluded that the creditors would not be materially prejudiced by the Litigation Financing Charge, as he stated that “[c]onsidering the results of the vote [on the First Plan], and given the particular circumstances of this matter, the only potential recovery lies with the lawsuit that the Debtors will launch” (para. 91 (emphasis added); s. 11.2(4)(f)); and
- the supervising judge was also well aware of the Monitor’s reports, and drew from the most recent report at various points in his reasons (see, e.g., paras. 64-65 and fn. 1; s. 11.2(4)(g)). It is worth noting that the Monitor supported approving the LFA as interim financing.

[107] In our view, it is apparent that the supervising judge was focussed on the fairness at stake to all parties, the specific objectives of the CCAA, and the particular circumstances of this case when he approved the LFA as interim financing. We cannot say that he erred in the exercise of his discretion.

(al. 11.2(4)a) et c)), mais nous constatons que ces facteurs semblent revêtir beaucoup moins d’importance que les autres dans le contexte de la présente affaire (voir par. 96);

- l’AFL lui-même indique « la façon dont les affaires financières et autres de la compagnie seront gérées au cours de ces procédures » (al. 11.2(4)b));
- le juge surveillant était d’avis que l’AFL favoriserait la conclusion d’un plan viable, car il a accepté (1) le fait que Bluberi avait l’intention de présenter un plan et (2) l’argument de Bluberi selon lequel l’approbation de l’AFL l’aiderait à conclure un plan [TRADUCTION] « visant à atteindre une réalisation maximale » de ses éléments d’actif (par. 68, citant la demande de 9354-9186 Québec inc. et de 9354-9178 Québec inc., par. 99; al. 11.2(4)d));
- le juge surveillant était au courant de la « nature et [de] la valeur » des biens de Bluberi, qui se limitaient clairement aux réclamations retenues (al. 11.2(4)e));
- le juge surveillant a conclu implicitement que la charge relative au financement de litige ne causerait pas un préjudice sérieux aux créanciers, car il a affirmé que [TRADUCTION] « [c]ompte tenu du résultat du vote [sur le premier plan] et des circonstances particulières de la présente affaire, la seule possibilité de recouvrement réside dans l’action que vont tenter les débiteurs » (par. 91 (nous soulignons); al. 11.2(4)f));
- le juge surveillant était aussi bien au fait des rapports du contrôleur, et s’est appuyé sur le plus récent d’entre eux à divers endroits dans ses motifs (voir, p. ex., par. 64-65 et note 1; al. 11.2(4)g)). Il convient de souligner que le contrôleur appuyait l’approbation de l’AFL à titre de financement temporaire.

[107] À notre avis, il est manifeste que le juge surveillant a mis l’accent sur l’équité envers toutes les parties, les objectifs précis de la LACC et les circonstances particulières de la présente affaire lorsqu’il a approuvé l’AFL à titre de financement temporaire. Nous ne pouvons affirmer qu’il a commis une erreur

Although we are unsure whether the LFA was as favourable to Bluberi's creditors as it might have been — to some extent, it does prioritize Bentham's recovery over theirs — we nonetheless defer to the supervising judge's exercise of discretion.

[108] To the extent the Court of Appeal held otherwise, we respectfully do not agree. Generally speaking, our view is that the Court of Appeal again failed to afford the supervising judge the necessary deference. More specifically, we wish to comment on three of the purported errors in the supervising judge's decision that the Court of Appeal identified.

[109] First, it follows from our conclusion that LFAs can constitute interim financing that the Court of Appeal was incorrect to hold that approving the LFA as interim financing “transcended the nature of such financing” (para. 78).

[110] Second, in our view, the Court of Appeal was wrong to conclude that the LFA was a plan of arrangement, and that Crystallex was distinguishable on its facts. The Court of Appeal held that the LFA and associated super-priority Litigation Financing Charge formed a plan because they subordinated the rights of Bluberi's creditors to those of Bentham.

[111] We agree with the supervising judge that the LFA is not a plan of arrangement because it does not propose any compromise of the creditors' rights. To borrow from the Court of Appeal in Crystallex, Bluberi's litigation claim is akin to a “pot of gold” (para. 4). Plans of arrangement determine how to distribute that pot. They do not generally determine what a debtor company should do to fill it. The fact that the creditors may walk away with more or less money at the end of the day does not change the nature or existence of their rights to access the pot once it is filled, nor can it be said to “compromise” those rights. When the “pot of gold” is secure — that dans l'exercice de son pouvoir discrétionnaire. Nous ne savons pas avec certitude si l'AFL était aussi favorable aux créanciers de Bluberi qu'il aurait pu l'être — dans une certaine mesure, il donne priorité au recouvrement de Bentham sur le leur — mais nous nous en remettons néanmoins à l'exercice par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire.

[108] Dans la mesure où la Cour d'appel a conclu le contraire, en toute déférence, nous ne sommes pas d'accord. De façon générale, nous estimons que la Cour d'appel a encore une fois omis de faire preuve de la déférence nécessaire à l'égard du juge surveillant. Plus particulièrement, nous souhaitons faire des observations sur trois des erreurs qu'aurait décelées la Cour d'appel dans la décision du juge surveillant.

[109] Premièrement, il découle de notre conclusion selon laquelle les AFL peuvent constituer un financement temporaire que la Cour d'appel a eu tort de conclure que l'approbation de l'AFL à titre de financement temporaire [TRADUCTION] « transcendait la nature de ce type de financement » (par. 78).

[110] Deuxièmement, à notre avis, la Cour d'appel a eu tort de conclure que l'AFL était un plan d'arrangement, et qu'il était possible d'établir une distinction entre l'espèce et les faits de l'affaire Crystallex. La Cour d'appel a conclu que l'AFL et la charge relative au financement de litige super prioritaire s'y rattachant constituaient un plan parce qu'ils subordonnaient les droits des créanciers de Bluberi à ceux de Bentham.

[111] Nous souscrivons à l'opinion du juge surveillant selon laquelle l'AFL ne constitue pas un plan d'arrangement parce qu'il ne propose aucune transaction visant les droits des créanciers. Pour reprendre la formule qu'a employée la Cour d'appel dans Crystallex, la réclamation de Bluberi s'apparente à une [TRADUCTION] « marmite d'or » (par. 4). Les plans d'arrangement établissent la façon dont le contenu de cette marmite sera distribué. Ils n'indiquent généralement pas ce que la compagnie débitrice devra faire pour la remplir. Le fait que les créanciers puissent en fin de compte remporter plus ou moins d'argent ne modifie en rien la nature ou is, in the event of any litigation or settlement — the net funds will be distributed to the creditors. Here, if the Retained Claims generate funds in excess of Bluberi's total liabilities, the creditors will be paid in full; if there is a shortfall, a plan of arrangement or compromise will determine how the funds are distributed. Bluberi has committed to proposing such a plan (see supervising judge's reasons, at para. 68, distinguishing Cliffs Over Maple Bay Investments Ltd. v. Fisgard Capital Corp., 2008 BCCA 327, 296 D.L.R. (4th) 577).

[112] This is the very same conclusion that was reached in Crystallex in similar circumstances:

The facts of this case are unusual: there is a single “pot of gold” asset which, if realized, will provide significantly more than required to repay the creditors. The supervising judge was in the best position to balance the interests of all stakeholders. I am of the view that the supervising judge's exercise of discretion in approving the Tenor DIP Loan was reasonable and appropriate, despite having the effect of constraining the negotiating position of the creditors.

... While the approval of the Tenor DIP Loan affected the Noteholders' leverage in negotiating a plan, and has made the negotiation of a plan more complex, it did not compromise the terms of their indebtedness or take away any of their legal rights. It is accordingly not an arrangement, and a creditor vote was not required. [paras. 82 and 93]

[113] We disagree with the Court of Appeal that Crystallex should be distinguished on the basis that it involved a single option for creditor recovery (i.e., the arbitration) while this case involves two (i.e., litigation of the Retained Claims and Callidus's New l'existence de leurs droits d'avoir accès à la marmite une fois qu'elle est remplie, pas plus qu'on ne saurait dire qu'il s'agit d'une « transaction » à l'égard de leurs droits. Lorsque la « marmite d'or » aura été obtenue — c'est-à-dire dans l'éventualité d'une action ou d'un règlement — les sommes nettes seront distribuées aux créanciers. En l'espèce, si les réclamations retenues permettent de recouvrer des sommes qui dépassent le total des dettes de Bluberi, les créanciers seront payés en entier; si les sommes sont insuffisantes, un plan d'arrangement ou une transaction établira la façon dont les sommes seront distribuées. Bluberi s'est engagée à proposer un tel plan (voir les motifs du juge surveillant, par. 68, établissant une distinction avec Cliffs Over Maple Bay Investments Ltd. c. Fisgard Capital Corp., 2008 BCCA 327, 296 D.L.R. (4th) 577).

[112] C'est exactement la même conclusion qui a été tirée dans Crystallex dans des circonstances semblables :

[TRADUCTION] Les faits de l'espèce sont inhabituels : la « marmite d'or » ne contient qu'un seul élément d'actif qui, s'il est réalisé, rapportera beaucoup plus que ce qui est nécessaire pour rembourser les créanciers. Le juge surveillant était le mieux placé pour établir un équilibre entre les intérêts de toutes les parties intéressées. J'estime que l'exercice par le juge surveillant de son pouvoir discrétionnaire d'approuver le prêt de DE Tenor était raisonnable et approprié, bien qu'il ait eu pour effet de limiter la position de négociation des créanciers.

... L'approbation du prêt de DE Tenor a certes amoindri l'influence que pouvaient exercer les détenteurs de billets lors de la négociation d'un plan, et rendu plus complexe la négociation d'un plan, mais ce prêt ne constituait pas une transaction visant les conditions de leurs dettes ni ne les privait de l'un de leurs droits reconnus par la loi. Il ne s'agit donc pas d'un arrangement, et un vote des créanciers n'était pas nécessaire. [par. 82 et 93]

[113] Nous ne souscrivons pas à l'opinion de la Cour d'appel selon laquelle il y a lieu d'établir une distinction avec Crystallex parce que, dans cette affaire, les créanciers disposaient d'un seul moyen de recouvrement (c.-à-d. l'arbitrage) tandis que, dans la

Plan). Given the supervising judge's conclusion that Callidus could not vote on the New Plan, that plan was not a viable alternative to the LFA. This left the LFA and litigation of the Retained Claims as the "only potential recovery" for Bluberi's creditors (supervising judge's reasons, at para. 91). Perhaps more significantly, even if there were multiple options for creditor recovery in either Crystallex or this case, the mere presence of those options would not necessarily have changed the character of the third party litigation funding agreements at issue or converted them into plans of arrangement. The question for the supervising judge in each case is whether the agreement before them ought to be approved as interim financing. While other options for creditor recovery may be relevant to that discretionary decision, they are not determinative.

[114] We add that the Litigation Financing Charge does not convert the LFA into a plan of arrangement by "subordinat[ing]" creditors' rights (C.A. reasons, at para. 90). We accept that this charge would have the effect of placing secured creditors like Callidus behind in priority to Bentham. However, this result is expressly provided for in s. 11.2 of the CCAA. This "subordination" does not convert statutorily authorized interim financing into a plan of arrangement. Accepting this interpretation would effectively extinguish the supervising judge's authority to approve these charges without a creditors' vote pursuant to s. 11.2(2).

[115] Third, we are of the view that the Court of Appeal was wrong to decide that the supervising judge should have submitted the LFA together with a plan to the creditors for their approval (para. 89). As we have indicated, whether to insist that a debtor package their third party litigation funding agreement présente affaire, il y en a deux (c.-à-d. l'introduction d'une action à l'égard des réclamations retenues et le nouveau plan de Callidus). Étant donné que le juge surveillant avait conclu que Callidus ne pouvait pas voter sur le nouveau plan, ce plan ne constituait pas une solution de rechange viable à l'AFL. La [TRADUCTION] « seule possibilité de recouvrement » qui s'offrait aux créanciers de Bluberi résidait donc dans l'AFL et l'introduction d'une action à l'égard des réclamations retenues (motifs du juge surveillant, par. 91). Fait peut-être plus important, même si les créanciers avaient disposé de plusieurs moyens de recouvrement, tant dans l'affaire Crystallex que dans la présente affaire, la simple existence de ces moyens n'aurait pas nécessairement modifié la nature des accords de financement de litige par un tiers en cause ni n'aurait eu pour effet de les convertir en plans d'arrangement. La question que doit se poser le juge surveillant dans chaque affaire est de savoir si l'accord qui lui est soumis doit être approuvé à titre de financement temporaire. Certes, les autres moyens de recouvrement dont disposent les créanciers peuvent entrer en ligne de compte dans la prise de cette décision discrétionnaire, mais ils ne sont pas déterminants.

[114] Ajoutons que la charge relative au financement de litige ne convertit pas l'AFL en plan d'arrangement en [TRADUCTION] « subordonn[ant] » les droits des créanciers (motifs de la Cour d'appel, par. 90). Nous reconnaissons que cette charge aurait pour effet de placer les créanciers garantis comme Callidus derrière Bentham dans l'ordre de priorité, mais ce résultat est expressément prévu par l'art. 11.2 de la LACC. Cette « subordination » ne convertit pas le financement temporaire autorisé par la loi en plan d'arrangement. Retenir cette interprétation aurait pour effet d'annihiler le pouvoir du juge surveillant d'approuver ces charges sans un vote des créanciers en vertu du par. 11.2(2).

[115] Troisièmement, nous estimons que la Cour d'appel a eu tort de conclure que le juge surveillant aurait dû soumettre l'AFL accompagné d'un plan à l'approbation des créanciers (par. 89). Comme nous l'avons indiqué, la décision d'exiger que le débiteur accompagne d'un plan son accord de financement with a plan is a discretionary decision for the supervising judge to make.

[116] Finally, at the appellants' insistence, we point out that the Court of Appeal's suggestion that the LFA is somehow "akin to an equity investment" was unhelpful and potentially confusing (para. 90). That said, this characterization was clearly obiter dictum. To the extent that the Court of Appeal relied on it as support for the conclusion that the LFA was a plan of arrangement, we have already explained why we believe the Court of Appeal was mistaken on this point.

VI. Conclusion

[117] For these reasons, at the conclusion of the hearing we allowed these appeals and reinstated the supervising judge's order. Costs were awarded to the appellants in this Court and the Court of Appeal.

de litige par un tiers est une décision discrétionnaire qui appartient au juge surveillant.

[116] Enfin, sur les instances des appelantes, nous soulignons que l'affirmation de la Cour d'appel selon laquelle l'AFL [TRADUCTION] « s'apparente [en quelque sorte] à un placement à échéance non déterminée » était inutile et pouvait prêter à confusion (par. 90). Cela dit, il s'agissait manifestement d'une remarque incidente. Dans la mesure où la Cour d'appel s'est fondée sur cette qualification pour conclure que l'AFL constituait un plan d'arrangement, nous avons déjà expliqué pourquoi nous croyons que la Cour d'appel a fait erreur sur ce point.

HALL, J.:

INTRODUCTION

[1] Humber Valley Resort Corporation, Newfoundland Travel and Tourism Corporation, Humber Valley Construction Limited and the Humber Valley Interiors Limited (collectively, the “Resort” and/or the “Applicant”) applied to this Court for an order seeking a stay of proceedings under section 11 of the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 as amended (the “CCAA”). An Initial Order (the “Initial Order”) was granted and filed September 5, 2008, providing a stay of proceedings up to and including October 6, 2008, or such later date as this Court may further order stipulate (the “Stay Termination Date”). Additionally on the same date, the Court authorized the Resort to enter into an arrangement to obtain a non-revolving credit facility (the “DIP Facility”) from Newfound UK Limited (the “DIP Lender”) in a maximum principal amount of $600,000. Under that order (the “First DIP Order”) the DIP Lender was granted the right to obtain first priority charge, mortgage and security interest (the “DIP Charge”) over real and personal property of the resort comprising a portion of its operations and land known as “Strawberry Hill”, as described in a commitment letter between the Resort and the DIP Lender.

[2] This present application is brought inter partes by the Resort seeking two further orders. The first order sought is for an extension of the Stay Termination Date from October 6, 2008, to December 5, 2008, as may be granted by this court under the authority of Section 11(4) of the CCAA. The second order sought is for approval of additional debtor-in-possession and the securitization thereof (the “Second DIP Order”).

[3] The legislative purpose behind the CCAA and the principles to be considered in applications made under it have been considered by many Canadian courts. A clear delineation of the principles to be considered in applications under the CCAA is contained in the decision of Mr. Justice Brenner in Pacific National

Lease Holding Corp. (Re), (1992), 72 B.C.L.R. (2d) 368 (B.C.C.A.) where he states those principles at page 10 as follows:

- (1) The purpose of the C.C.A.A. is to allow an insolvent company a reasonable period of time to reorganize its affairs and prepare and file a plan for its continued operation subject to the requisite approval of the creditors and the Court.
- (2) The C.C.A.A. is intended to serve not only the company's creditors but also a broad constituency which includes the shareholders and the employees.
- (3) During the stay period the Act is intended to prevent maneuvers (sic) for positioning amongst the creditors of the company.
- (4) The function of the Court during the stay period is to play a supervisory role to preserve the status quo and to move the process along to the point where a compromise or arrangement is approved or it is evident that the attempt is doomed to failure.
- (5) The status quo does not mean preservation of the relative pre-debt status of each creditor. Since the companies under C.C.A.A. orders continue to operate and having regard to the broad constituency of interests the Act is intended to serve, preservation of the status quo is not intended to create a rigid freeze of relative pre-stay positions.
- (6) The Court has a broad discretion to apply these principles to the facts of a particular case.

[4] Section 11(4) of the CCAA specifically deals with the powers of a Court on applications other than an application for the Initial Stay Order. It provides

Other than initial application court orders

- (4) A court may, on an application in respect of a company other than an initial application, make an order on such terms as it may impose,
 - (a) staying, until otherwise ordered by the court, for such period as the court deems necessary, all proceedings taken or that might be taken in respect of the company under an Act referred to in subsection (1);

(b) restraining, until otherwise ordered by the court, further proceedings in any action, suit or proceeding against the company; and

(c) prohibiting, until otherwise ordered by the court, the commencement of or proceeding with any other action, suit or proceeding against the company.

[5] In making application for either an Initial Order or subsequent orders, section 11(6) of the CCAA establishes that certain preconditions must be met as follows:

Burden of proof on application

(6) The court shall not make an order under subsection (3) or (4) unless

(a) the applicant satisfies the court that circumstances exist that make such an order appropriate; and

(b) in the case of an order under subsection (4), the applicant also satisfies the court that the applicant has acted, and is acting, in good faith and with due diligence.

It is important to note that subsection 11(6) of the CCAA requires not only that the Applicant has acted in good faith and has acted with due diligence, but that the Applicant is continuing to do so.

[6] My first obligation in considering this matter, therefore, is to determine whether the Applicant has and continues to act in good faith and has and continues to act with due diligence in this matter. It is necessary to provide some background in these Reasons for Judgment as to the nature and extent of the business of the Resort as this will enlighten the reader as to the difficulties facing the Resort in formulating a plan or arrangement under the CCAA. The business of the Resort has been diverse. It acquired freehold and leasehold interests in two very large parcels of land, with a view to developing a high-end resort development wherein expensive chalets would be sold to high net worth investors and buyers. These people would be attracted to purchase land in the development and have the Resort build chalets for them by the fact that a world-class golf course would be constructed together with a substantial clubhouse and separate restaurant and conference centre facilities, which facilities in combination, would make the Resort area an attractive tourist destination and recreation home area. This development necessitated immense expenditures on infrastructure including a very expensive bridge across the Humber River in order to provide access to the development lands; the installation of a full municipal level water supply and treatment system; the installation of separate septic disposal systems for each chalet; the development of a significant road network; and other related infrastructure. In addition, in order to attract purchasers it has been necessary to become engaged in an extensive marketing campaign in the United Kingdom and Europe whence the bulk of the purchasers have been solicited and obtained. In order to make purchasing in the Resort development attractive, the Resort developed a subsidized charter flight system from the U.K., which has proven to be expensive and a generator of considerable losses for the Resort.

[7] Three hundred and seventy lots have been sold in the Resort development and two hundred and twenty chalets have been completed. All of these were completed at a loss to the Resort. An additional one hundred and thirty-five chalets are in various stages of construction, ranging from near completion to only the installation of foundations in some cases. Mr. Derrick White, a director of the Resort, testified that if all of the chalets are completed, this will result in a 7.5 million dollar loss to the Resort. In many cases, the cost to complete the chalet and to clear it of mechanics' liens and other encumbrances so that clear title can be delivered to the buyer exceeds the balance remaining to be paid to the Resort by that prospective purchaser.

[8] Additionally, neither the clubhouse, the golf course, the beach house restaurant nor the Strawberry Hill restaurant and conference centre have generated any positive cash flow for the Resort.

[9] Since the granting of the Initial Order in this matter, the Resort has closed the golf course, the clubhouse, the beach house restaurant and the Strawberry Hill restaurant and conference centre. The staffing of the Resort has been very seriously reduced with some employees remaining on staff in order to work out their notice and to provide services necessary to the Resort, in order to properly mothball it for the winter season. In addition, a much diminished staff exists in order to maintain core and key personnel for an ultimate reopening of the Resort and to deal with matters arising under the CCAA and relations with creditors and chalet owners.

[10] The Resort, with the assistance of the Monitor, is actively pursuing the sale of that portion of the Resort known as “Strawberry Hill”. Advertisements for its sale have been published and deadlines set for submission of tenders at October 15, 2008. I am satisfied that the efforts made by the Resort to dispose of this portion of its assets have been both diligent and reasonable and done in good faith.

[11] Mr. White deposed as well that the Resort and the Monitor had met with representatives of the Province of Newfoundland and Labrador to review with the Province the CCAA process and to discuss potential provincial assistance and involvement in the restructuring. No information was provided with respect to any details of those discussions or any outcomes therefrom. The Court was advised, however, that discussions remain ongoing with the Province.

[12] In addition, the Resort has met with representatives of a major international corporation which has expressed interest in the Resort and a representative of that party has toured the Resort on two occasions since the date of the Initial Order and confidential discussions with that party are ongoing.

[13] In addition to staff reductions, the Resort, with the concurrence of the Monitor, has taken steps to minimize its negative cash flow including closure of offices and reduction in the scale of operations. The Resort continues to provide essential services to maintain and preserve the key assets such as the golf course, the clubhouse and the beach house, which would be key components in a business restructuring of the Resort.

[14] At present no plan or arrangement nor any outline thereof has been presented the Court. It is clear, and I am satisfied that if the Stay Termination Date is not extended, the Resort's creditors will commence proceedings and that those proceedings will be prejudicial to the Resort to the extent that it would eliminate its ability to propose and complete any successful restructuring. Therefore, without the extension of the Stay of the Resort will fail.

RULING ON EXTENSION OF STAY TERMINATION DATE

[15] In other types of restructurings under the CCAA, one might have expected to see at this time a clearer indication from the Applicant that a plan or arrangement with creditors had been largely formulated and was projected to be successful. That is not the case here. The ultimate restructuring plan is still very much in the initial stages of discussion and development. The complex nature of the diverse operations of the Resort and the various factors which contributed to its accumulated losses are not in my view simple to either analyze or resolve. I am satisfied that the present lack of a plan is not reflective of a situation where the Applicant has engaged the Court only to defer liquidation without any real prospect of devising a plan acceptable to creditors. If I thought that were the case or that the Applicant was not proceeding with due diligence or in good faith, I would not exercise the discretion of the Court to grant the extension of the Stay. Obviously, however, in balancing the various interests which the CCAA is designed to protect and promote, stay periods can not be justified where there is no real prospect of a successful restructuring. However, I am satisfied that we are not at the point where a conclusion can be drawn that restructuring is likely to be unsuccessful.

[16] I am therefore satisfied to grant the Stay Extension sought by the Applicant to December 5, 2008. Two of the interested parties, while not opposing a Stay in principle, have asked me to shorten the Stay Extension period to 30 days from October 6, 2008. I am not prepared to accede to those requests but will deal with them later in this Judgment.

DECISION ON AUTHORIZATION OF ADDITIONAL DIP FINANCING AND SECURITIZATION

[17] As part of its application for Stay Extension and the authorization of additional DIP Financing, the Resort has filed the First Report of the Monitor dated October 1, 2008 (the “Monitor’s Report”). The Monitor’s Report has attached as Appendix B a revised cash flow projection for the period September 5, 2008, through to December 28, 2008. In the “Out Flows” section thereof, there is a categorized list of projected expenditures. As expected, the Monitor’s fees and other professional fees feature prominently therein as well as ongoing labour costs and the costs to the Resort of early termination of employment. With respect to all contractual employees, termination allowances have been made on the basis of their contracts as opposed to mere statutory notice periods under the Labour Standards Act. In addition, certain key personnel have received salary augmentations over and above their pre-Initial Order salaries in order to maintain their continued employment with the Resort during the restructuring period and to diminish the likelihood of the lost key personnel who would be important for a successful restructuring of the Resort. I have been asked by counsel representing chalet owners to reverse the provisions of the Initial Order authorizing such salary augmentations and also to order that no future payments be made on the basis of contractual termination provisions versus Labour Standards Act termination rights.

[18] I am not satisfied that it is appropriate for the Court to annul the previously approved termination arrangements or salary augmentations. In the scheme of things, the amount of unpaid termination benefits is not significant, given the fact that a large portion thereof remains payable to employees who are working out their notice period, as opposed to those whose employment has been terminated absolutely. Therefore the Resort is receiving the benefit of their labours. With respect to annulling or varying the salary augmentations for key employees, it is my view that such a decision would be counterproductive as it may result in the loss of those key personnel or some of them at a point in time when they are very busy and their historic institutional knowledge of the Resort is extremely important to formulating a successful plan or arrangement with the creditors of the Resort. Additionally, a key component in a successful restructuring will be the continuing ability of the Resort after restructuring to market its remaining lots. In my view the Resort needs to reach a certain critical mass of sold lots and constructed chalets which level is not yet met. The practice in the Resort has been that certain chalet owners make their chalets available as part of a rental pool, which the Resort then markets much as a hotel would be marketed. If key staff are cut back and relations with existing chalet owners deteriorate further as a result thereof, the dissatisfaction of existing chalet owners would create a very negative reputation for the Resort thus compounding the difficulties of the Resort in restructuring and marketing itself thus inhibiting prospects of additional chalet construction, thus the Resort will be marginalized. I am therefore not satisfied that varying these salary augmentations is wise in the long term.

[19] I have reviewed the cash flow statements provided and the categories of expense to which it is intended to apply any additional DIP Financing authorized by this Court. I am satisfied that the cash flow statement is sufficiently detailed so that it is not necessary for this Court to specifically order that the DIP Financing be used in specified amounts for specified purposes.

[20] In addition, the amount of additional DIP Financing sought in the amount of $1,400,000 in my view is not of sufficient magnitude as to greatly prejudice existing creditors, in the event that the restructuring plan or arrangement should fail by not being accepted by the creditors. The real hope for creditors in this matter lies largely in a successful restructuring of the Resort. The effects of a failure of the Resort to be successfully restructured are virtually impossible to predict but I am satisfied that the adverse effect upon creditors of such a failure would be greater than any diminution of their recovery caused by allowing the proposed DIP Financing. Therefore, the additional DIP Financing in amount of $1,400,000 and securitization thereof over the clubhouse, the golf course, the beach house and Strawberry Hill is approved.

[21] Counsel for chalet owners had asked me to reduce the amount of approved DIP Financing essentially by cutting it in half. The rationale behind this suggestion is that by early November the state of the proposed sale of Strawberry Hill, while not being completed, will be reasonably predictable and whether there is a need for all of the DIP Financing will then become clear because the available net proceeds from the sale of Strawberry Hill will then be known. While this proposal has an initial attractiveness to it, I am of the view that any hearing with respect to continuation of DIP Financing and the expansion thereof, up to the original amount requested by the Resort, would simply generate into a distracting hearing about the whole Stay Period Extension without much concomitant benefit resulting therefrom. Nothing in the Order authorizing the DIP Financing requires the Resort to draw down on that financing if it is not necessary to do so. I am satisfied, therefore, that normal commercial common sense will keep the DIP borrowings to the minimum amount necessary in order to carry out the development of and implementation of the plan or arrangement under the CCAA.

MAXIUM FINANCIAL SERVICES INC. (“MAXIUM”)

[22] Maxium is a corporation which finances and leases golf course equipment to various hotels and resorts. Its counsel filed an affidavit of John Barraclough, the senior manager, credit and collections, of Maxium. Mr. Barraclough disposed that under its master lease agreement 139 pieces of equipment were leased to the Resort for use in the operation of the golf course. Under the master lease agreement, title to that equipment remains in Maxium and defaults by the Resort, under the master lease agreement, have entitled Maxium to repossess the equipment, which right of repossession is stayed by the Initial Order. Maxium has indicated that there is definite limited season for the sale of golf course equipment to be utilized by resorts in the commencement of the 2009 golf season, which would commence around April 1, 2009. Maxium says that if the equipment is not available to it soon, Maxium will lose an opportunity to sell the equipment to another golf course prior to the commencement of the 2009 season. It estimates its loss as being as much as 20% to 25% of the value with respect to the equipment. Unfortunately with respect the sale of the equipment, Maxium does not provide any estimate of market value thereof. It only indicates that there is an outstanding balance as of September 5th owed to it by the Resort in the amount of $895,990.15. Therefore, I have no way of knowing whether Maxium will in fact suffer any loss at all if the equipment is repossessed at a later date and has to be sold at a lesser value. I am therefore not prepared to lift the Stay of Proceedings presently in place against Maxium in order to allow it to repossess its security. Maxium, of course, is at liberty under the CCAA to make a specific application to have the Stay against it lifted upon sufficient grounds indicating to the Court that Maxium will be unduly prejudiced by a continuation of the Stay.

MARINE CONTRACTORS INC. AND HOME CONSTRUCTION LTD.

[23] These two corporations have applied for an order lifting the Stay in order to allow them to commence mechanics' liens actions in order to perfect mechanics' liens already filed. The Applicant and the Monitor as well as creditors present at the hearing had no objection to this process and it is therefore ordered that a Stay of Proceedings granted in the Initial Order of September 5, 2008, is lifted to the extent only as required to allow commencement of actions under the Mechanics' Lien Act to enforce claims for liens described on the Schedule annexed to the Applications of these two companies naming, amongst others, Humber Valley Resort Corporation as a defendant, such Stay to be re-instated forthwith upon issuance of the said Statements of Claim as regard to any claim against Humber Valley Resort Corporation, such Stay to continue thereafter in full force and effect in accordance with the terms of the Initial Order until further Order of this Court.

NOTRE DAME AGENCIES AND R. & T. CUSTOM WOODWORKING LIMITED

[24] The above named corporations are in a similar position to Home Construction Limited and Marine Contractors Inc. They have filed mechanics' lien claims but have not as yet commenced any actions. They too will be seeking leave to commence their actions and have the Stay lifted against them on the same basis as ordered with respect to the previous two companies. Counsel for the Resort has no objection to this procedure and has undertaken to file a consent order in that respect. Upon the filing of an appropriate application to lift the Stay against them so as to allow the issuance of Statements of Claim under the Mechanics' Lien Act, leave to file a consent judgment is hereby granted without the need for further appearance in Court.

REASONS FOR JUDGMENT

MACDONALD J.:

INTRODUCTION

[1] On July 8, 2022, the Royal Bank of Canada (“RBC”) applied to appoint Ernst and Young Inc. as a court-appointed receiver over all or substantially all of the assets of Edward Collins Contracting Limited, Classic Security Ltd., FGC Holdings Ltd., 51037 Newfoundland and Labrador Inc. and H & E Designs Ltd (“Companies”). The Companies oppose the application.

[2] On July 18, 2022, the Companies applied for creditor protection and other relief under the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended (“CCAA”). They asked me to grant an initial order called for under section 11.02(1)(a) of the CCAA (“Initial Order”). If I deny the Initial Order, they ask that I dismiss the receivership application.

[3] On July 19 and 20, 2022, the Court heard the parties on both applications. The Court informed the parties that it could not hear these matters until September 16, 2022.

[4] On July 20, 2022, the Court granted a consent order (“Consent Order”). The Court ordered that any person having a contractual arrangement or a statutory mandate for the supply of goods or services, were restrained until further order from the Court from discontinuing, altering or terminating the supply of such goods or services (“Consent Stay”) until September 16, 2022 (“Consent Stay Period”).

[5] I heard both applications on September 16, 28 and 29, 2022. On September 16, 2022, I continued the Consent Order until now.

[6] The parties agree that I will deal with the CCAA application first. If I dismiss the CCAA application, I will then deal with the receivership application. I now turn to the CCAA application.

CCAA APPLICATION

[7] RBC, the principal secured creditor of the Companies, and Daimler Truck Financial Services Canada Corporation, a secured lender of certain equipment, oppose the CCAA application.

[8] The Western Surety Company (“Surety”), Edward Collins Contracting Limited’s (“Collins Contracting”) construction surety provider, the Canada Revenue Agency (“CRA”), and the other parties at the hearing neither supported nor opposed the CCAA application.

[9] I hereby grant the Companies the Initial Order which I attach as Schedule A. I will now explain why I made this decision.

[10] I have considered:

- (a) Do the Companies have standing under the CCAA?
- (b) Have the Companies satisfied the test to allow me to grant an Initial Order?
- (c) If so, should the Companies’ conduct during the Consent Stay cause me to refuse the Initial Order? and
- (d) Did the Companies act in bad faith?

[11] I will then deal with:

- (a) Should the Court exercise its discretion to grant the administration charge? and
- (b) What conditions should I impose in the Initial Order?

[12] I will first deal with whether the Companies have standing under the CCAA.

Do the Companies have standing under the CCAA?

[13] I find the Companies have standing under the CCAA. The CCAA applies to a debtor company or affiliated debtor Companies, if they are insolvent or have committed an act of bankruptcy and owe more than $5 million.

[14] The Companies owe RBC in excess of $5 million and CRA about $4.9 million. I am satisfied that the Companies are insolvent.

[15] Thus, I find that the Companies qualify as debtor companies under the CCAA. I now turn to whether the Companies met the test to allow me to issue an Initial Order.

Have the Companies satisfied the test to allow me to issue an Initial Order [16] I find that the Companies have satisfied the test. I will now explain why I made that decision.

[17] Under section 11.02(1)(a) of the CCAA, I may pursuant to an initial order stay all proceedings against the Companies for not more than 10 days.

[18] The Supreme Court of Canada in 9354-9186 Québec Inc. v. Callidus Capital Corp., 2020 SCC 10 (“Callidus”), gives me guidance on the purpose and objectives of the CCAA in paragraphs 39 to 42. I will now summarize that guidance.

[19] The CCAA is one of three principal insolvency statutes in Canada. Canada's insolvency statutes pursue an array of overarching remedial objectives that reflect the wide ranging and potentially “catastrophic” impacts insolvency can have.

[20] These objectives include:

- (a) providing for timely, efficient and impartial resolution of a debtor's insolvency;
- (b) preserving and maximizing the value of a debtor's assets;
- (c) ensuring fair and equitable treatment of the claims against a debtor;
- (d) protecting the public interest; and
- (e) balancing the costs and benefits of restructuring or liquidating the company.

[21] Among these objectives, the CCAA generally prioritizes avoiding the social and economic losses resulting from liquidation of an insolvent company.

[22] The typical CCAA case has historically involved an attempt to facilitate the reorganization and survival of the pre-filing debtor company in an operational state – that is, as a going concern.

[23] However, the CCAA is fundamentally insolvency legislation, and thus it also “has the simultaneous objectives of maximizing creditor recovery, preservation of going-concern value where possible, preservation of jobs and communities affected by the firm's financial distress ... and enhancement of the credit system generally”. (Callidus at para. 42).

[24] CCAA proceedings have evolved to permit outcomes that do not result in the emergence of the pre-filing debtor company in a restructured state, but rather involve some form of liquidation of the debtor's assets under the auspices of the CCAA itself. Such scenarios are referred to as “liquidating CCAAs”, and they are now commonplace in CCAA applications.

[25] Liquidating CCAAs take diverse forms and may involve:

- (a) the sale of the debtor company as a going concern;
- (b) an "en bloc" sale of assets that are capable of being operationalized by a buyer;
- (c) a partial liquidation or downsizing of business operations; or
- (d) a piecemeal sale of assets (Callidus at para. 43).

[26] In this case, the Companies seek the reorganization and survival of the Companies as a going concern. That is not to say the Companies’ plans may change when it formulates its final restructuring plan.

[27] Under Section 11.02(1) of the CCAA, I may, in an initial order, make any orders I see fit. I may:

- (a) Stay proceedings under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. B-3 (“BIA”); and
- (b) restrain proceedings in any existing action against the Companies and prohibit any new action against them.

[28] I cannot make the Initial Order effective for more than 10 days.

[29] Under subsection 11.02(2) of the CCAA, I can amend the Initial Order and extend the stay at a so-called comeback hearing. I must hold the hearing before the expiry of the stay in the Initial Order. I may amend these Orders. I will call these amendments the Amended Orders.

[30] Under section 11.02(3) of the CCAA, I cannot grant an Amended Order unless the Companies satisfy me that:

- (a) circumstances exist that make the extension appropriate; and
- (b) they are acting in good faith and with due diligence.

[31] Section 11.02(3)(b) of the CCAA says, “in the case of an order under subsection (2), the applicant also satisfies the court that the applicant has acted, and is acting, in good faith and with due diligence”. Subsection 2 deals with orders after the initial order.

[32] Despite the wording of section 11.02(3)(b) indicating “good faith and due diligence” applies only to orders under subsection (2), that being orders “other than initial applications”, the Supreme Court of Canada in Ted Leroy Trucking [Century Services] Ltd., Re, 2010 SCC 60 at para. 69, determined good faith and due diligence applies to initial orders as well.

[33] It said at paragraph 70 that “the requirements of appropriateness, good faith, and due diligence are baseline considerations that a court should always bear in mind when exercising CCAA authority”.

[34] Under section 11.7(1) of the CCAA, when I make an Initial Order, I must appoint a person to monitor the business and financial affairs of the Companies. The monitor must be a trustee, defined in section 2 of the BIA. The Companies ask that I appoint Grant Thornton Limited, represented by Phil Clarke, Senior Vice-President and Bankruptcy Trustee (“Proposed Monitor”).

[35] During the currency of the Initial Order and comeback Amended Orders, the Companies attempt to complete a plan of compromise and arrangement with its creditors. The Proposed Monitor assists them. The Proposed Monitor, as an officer of the Court, periodically reports to the Court on the progress of the plan.

[36] I will now turn to the circumstances the Companies must show me to allow me to grant the Initial Order.

Legal Test – Contents of Plan

[37] Justice Orsborn in Norcon Marine Services Ltd., (Re), 2019 NLSC 238, said at paragraph 15, that I should consider whether the Companies have some chance, by engaging the CCAA process, of furthering the purposes of the legislation.

[38] Justice Orsborn observed the Companies must overcome a low bar to trigger the CCAA process. However, the Companies must do more than simply ask for time.

[39] The Companies must put forth “a germ of a plan” that suggests “a reasonable possibility of restructuring” (Norcon at para. 16). However, they need not present a fully developed plan at the initial hearing, nor are they required to have the support of all of their creditors.

[40] To put this test in context, I will now describe the financial difficulties the Companies find themselves in and how these difficulties arose.

Companies’ Financial Woes

[41] Collins Contracting is a general contractor specializing in roadworks. As described in the affidavit of David Savoie, Business Specialist with RBC, in the 2019 fiscal year, its revenue was $12.1 million and its net income was $393,000. In the 2020 FY, its revenue was $11.4 million and its profit was $310,000.¹ Significantly, Collins Contracting's obligation to CRA increased from about $60,000 to about $451,000.²

[42] He says that in the 2021 FY, the Companies' revenue decreased to $8.5 million. Its 2020 FY profit became a $3.4 million loss in 2021. This loss was incurred despite Collins Contracting's $1.2 million emergency wage subsidy from Canada.³

[43] He further says the information in the 2021 financial statements caused Collins Contracting to be in default of the RBC loan facility because it no longer had minimum debt service coverage ratio of 1.25X called for in the loan facility.⁴

[44] Because of the Companies' financial difficulties and default, on December 31, 2021, RBC, Collins Contracting, H & E Designs Ltd., Frank Collins and Josh Collins executed the forbearance agreement.

[45] In the agreement, Collins Contracting acknowledges it is in default of its obligations to RBC. It agreed to provide interim financial statements and CRA balance reporting.

[46] It also agreed, at paragraph 1(e), to "confirm the rights and remedies available to the Bank under the Security are fully and immediately enforceable by [RBC] and hereby waive all notice periods of application thereto, including notice period of application under Section 244 of the [BIA]".

[47] In the second recital of the agreement, RBC agreed not to call its loans until February 28, 2022.

[48] Collins Contracting provided RBC monthly interim year-to-date financial statements from October, 2021 to March, 2022. All showed a continued deterioration of Collins Contracting's financial position.⁵

[49] The March 2022 interim statement, provided to RBC on June 9, 2022, shows revenue of $5.3 million, compared to forecasted revenue of $15.2 million, and a net loss of $2.1 million compared to forecasted net income of $3 million. The amount owing to CRA was then about $3.2 million.⁶

[50] Thus, over the 2021 FY and up to March 2022 FY, the Companies incurred a cumulative loss of about $5.5 million. Its CRA obligation increased from $451,000 in 2020 to $3.2 million.

[51] RBC demanded its loans on July 17, 2022. RBC was owed, as of June 15, 2022, more than $5 million, together with interest, expenses and fees.⁷

[52] CRA filed an affidavit on September 12, 2022, of Mark Lohnes, Resource Officer/Complex Case Officer with CRA. He said that the Companies owe CRA about $4.9 million. He said that over $3.3 million is for deemed trust unremitted employee payroll source deductions and HST.⁸ This, excluding interest and penalties, is the so-called deemed trust debt.

⁶ Ibid. at para. 51.

⁷ Receivership Originating Application, filed July 8, 2022 at para 11.

⁸ Affidavit of Mark Lohnes, filed September 12, 2022, [Lohnes Affidavit] at para. 38.

[53] CRA says Collins Contracting owes almost $4 million of this amount. It says about $2 million (excluding penalties and interest) is for deemed trust for unremitted employee payroll source deductions (“Payroll deemed trust debt”) and about $756,000 for HST deemed trust debt.⁹

[54] In paragraph 38, CRA says the remainder of the Companies owe CRA about $939,000. About $348,000 (excluding penalties and interest) is for Payroll deemed trust debt and about $205,500 is for HST deemed trust debt.¹⁰

[55] CRA says that Collins Contracting last remitted amounts in March 2022, and it was the last of the Companies to do so. The Proposed Monitor said, and I accept, that he made remittances over the summer of Collins Contracting’s monies owed to CRA for that period, but he did not remit any of the arrears.

[56] CRA is in the process of reviewing the Companies’ accounts, and it will determine the final arrears after that review. The timing of this review is currently within the control of CRA, and its counsel could not provide me any guidance on when this review might begin or end.

[57] The Companies provided little explanation for their financial difficulties in its application or in Francis Collins’ July 18, 2022 affidavit. They did not explain how it incurred the CRA debt.

[58] On July 18, 2022, Francis Collins, director of the Companies, filed an affidavit supporting the initial application. He provided me with the Companies’ 2021 FY financial statements, but provided no cash flow statements or any other historical financial data.

¹⁰ Ibid. at para. 38.

[59] Francis Collins, addressed the CRA balances by saying, “As appears from the Company’s books and records, there is currently a significant amount outstanding to the Canada Revenue Agency (“CRA”). The Company is actively working with CRA to determine the full outstanding balances and to work on a payment plan to relieve this liability. The Company is hopeful that the CCAA proceedings will bring CRA to the table to discuss options, as to date CRA has not been forthcoming with information or responsive to requests from the Company to discuss the Company’s CRA’s position of potential discrepancies in CRA’s accounting.”¹¹

[60] This statement shows, at best, a disturbing lack of awareness of how the Companies incurred almost $5 million in CRA obligations, including almost $3.3 million in deemed trust amounts for both income tax and HST.

[61] On September 23, 2022, Josh Collins filed an affidavit to provide me with further information. He answers the question, “How did [Edward Collins Contracting Limited] get itself into financial trouble and accumulate such a high amount of CRA Debt?”¹² He says two primary events caused both.

[62] The first event is the purchase of a defective asphalt plant. Collins Contracting underestimated the risk of purchasing a defective plant and the cost and time necessary to rectify the plant deficiencies and to bring its software up-to-date.¹³

[63] The second event is the collapse of Collins Contracting’s revenue during COVID-19.¹⁴

¹² Affidavit of Josh Collins, filed September 23, 2022 [Collins’ Second Affidavit], at heading A.

¹⁴ Ibid. at paras. 14-25.

[64] He says that both events contributed to a loss of almost $3 million in 2021.¹⁵ RBC said the loss was $3.4 million and I can only assume this was because Mr. Savoie relied on interim rather than final statements.

[65] Josh Collins admits that Collins Contracting maintained its liquidity despite these losses by not paying their CRA obligations,¹⁶ and in May 2020 by borrowing $1 million from RBC by way of a $1 million loan under the so-called “Highly Affected Sectors Credit Availability Program” (“HASCAP”). The Government of Canada guaranteed this HASCAP loan. This program is designed to support companies that suffered financially during the COVID-19 epidemic.

[66] The Proposed Monitor confirms in his first pre-filing report that the unpaid CRA funds “were used to offset the acquisition and operating losses incurred” for capital acquisitions, losses for underutilized equipment and other operational losses.¹⁷ In paragraph 21(b), the Proposed Monitor also identifies that Collins contracting lost more than $1 million dollars on an unfavourable bridge construction contract.

[67] Thus, I find the triggering causes of the Companies’ financial crisis are an improvident capital purchase, an unfavourable construction contract, and the general collapse of the Companies’ revenue and its resulting operating losses. This in turn caused the Companies not to pay the deemed trust debt to CRA to fund these losses.

[68] This, together with the collapse in the Companies’ retained earnings¹⁸ and profits and the increase in CRA’s deemed trust debt, caused RBC to take action to protect its security from further erosion.

[69] Having discussed the cause of the Companies' financial problems, I now turn to whether the Companies put forth "a germ of a plan" that suggests "a reasonable possibility of restructuring". (Norcon at para. 16)

Companies' "Germ of a Plan"

[70] I find that they have. I now will explain why I made that decision.

[71] The Companies' plan is contained in the Proposed Monitor's first and second pre-filing reports and in affidavits from Josh Collins.

[72] The plan is based on two pillars. The first pillar is the prospect of Travelers Capital refinancing the Companies' debt obligations. The Companies provided me with an executed "summary of terms and conditions" dated September 22, 2022. Joshua Collins is named as a guarantor. I will call this the Term Sheet.

[73] The Term Sheet indicates that Travelers will lend the Companies 90% of the appraised forced liquidation value of the Companies' equipment value and 50% of the appraised value of certain real property. Travelers estimates this value is $6,796,490.

[74] The Companies provided me with the forced liquidation value appraisal on September 23, 2022. The Proposed Monitor tells me the valuation supports the valuation of the equipment in the Term Sheet.

[75] Travelers also requires that the Companies provide it with:

- (a) completed environmental reports on specified property;
- (b) real estate appraisals;

- (c) forward-looking income and cash flow statements; and
- (d) Year-to-date statements and historical three-year prior financial statements.

[76] On September 22, 2022, the Companies filed copies of:

- (a) an appraisal of a residence on Lakeview Dr. in Deer Lake;
- (b) A real estate agent's assessment of a property at 30 Reid's Lane in Deer Lake;
- (c) an appraisal of Collins Contracting's office building in Placentia;
- (d) an appraisal of a real estate development;
- (e) a purchase and sale agreement for property on Charter Avenue in Placentia; and
- (f) an offer to purchase property at 28-30 Reid's Lane in Deer Lake.

[77] The total value of real estate described in these filings is about $2.75 million.

[78] The Term Sheet also provides that Travelers must be satisfied that the Companies have paid all CRA priority payments. As the CRA priority payments are not current, I presume they mean that the CRA priority debt must be retired from the proceeds of the loan.

[79] The Term Sheet lists all the Companies as borrowers. Thus, this condition would include deemed trust amounts due to CRA, or at least that portion that could rank ahead of Travelers' security if they remain unpaid on closing.

[80] However, the Proposed Monitor testified at the hearing that Travelers has agreed that the HST deemed trust debt need not be paid on closing. He also said he “understands” that CRA is open to compromising the HST deemed trust debt.

[81] Thus, it seems that Travelers will expect that the HST liability will be resolved by agreement with CRA or pursuant to a CCAA order before it advances funds under the Term Sheet.

[82] Travelers says in the Term Sheet that the total outstanding amounts to secured creditors and the CRA total is $7,058,337. It says this must be paid on closing.

[83] Josh Collins in his affidavit filed September 13, 2022, said there is a shortfall of about $250,000 between the amount of the Travelers’ loan and the debt the Companies must repay on closing. I will call this the Loan Gap. He said the Companies can finance the Loan Gap through a variety of sources being from:

- (a) $253,000 owed to the Companies by Olympic Construction Ltd. He did not provide me with any evidence of this amount or an acknowledgement from Olympic that this amount is due;
- (b) a potential sale of real property in Deer Lake based on an expression of interest with an asking price of $500,000. He said, “If this offer materializes, we will net approximately $250,000”.¹⁹ On September 22, 2022, he provided me with an offer of purchase and sale for a piece of property in Deer Lake for less than that amount; and
- (c) sale of equipment by the Companies for about $250,000 once they “further review our operational needs”.²⁰ This is highly contingent. It is subject to a review of operational needs. I have no evidence of the value of this equipment. I do not know if Travelers intends to take security over this equipment.

²⁰ Ibid. at para. 67(c).

[84] Even if the Companies can access this money, I do not accept that the Loan Gap is only $250,000.

[85] The Proposed Monitor provided an analysis of the amount Collins Contracting owes to CRA. He largely agrees with CRA's position but states that interest and penalties are not deemed trust amounts.

[86] He concludes that Collins Contracting and 51037 Newfoundland and Labrador Inc., after excluding interest and penalties, owes about $2.2 million in Payroll deemed trust debt. He acknowledges that CRA claims Collins Contracting owes it about $756,000 in HST deemed trust debt. However, he did not do an analysis in which he breaks out interest and penalties.

[87] He did not do a similar analysis for the remaining Companies. I only have CRA's evidence. It said that Classic Security Ltd. owes about $348,000 in payroll deemed trust amounts and about $151,000 in HST deemed trust debt, while H & E Designs Ltd. and FGC Holdings Ltd. owe about $28,000.²¹ I do not know what portion of these is interest and penalties.

[88] In his second report filed on September 26, 2022, the Proposed Monitor disagrees with Josh Collins' Loan Gap. He said it is $473,362.²²

[89] He said that the Companies now intend to close the Loan Gap by selling instead of financing one of the Reid Lane properties, thereby achieving a contribution of 100% of the sale price rather than 50% of its appraised value. This would net $199,000.²³

²¹ Affidavit of Mark Lohnes, filed September 12, 2022 at paras. 27, 34 and 37.

²² Pre-filing Report of Grant Thornton Limited, filed September 26, 2022 [Proposed Monitor's Second Pre-Filing Report] at 5.

²³ Ibid. at para. 17(a).

[90] Both he and Josh Collins say Collins Contracting is a beneficiary under a $500,000 insurance policy now, as the insureds died.²⁴ The Collinses say they discovered the existence of this policy at the end of August 2022.

[91] The Proposed Monitor said that only half of this amount, or $250,000, is available to offset the Loan Gap. The other half will be used to bolster Collins Contracting's cash flow.²⁵ I will discuss Collins Contracting's cash flow statements later in this decision.

[92] The Proposed Monitor described how Collins Contracting intends to sell equipment to realize more cash than Travelers 90% forced liquidation financing would generate.²⁶

[93] However, the Loan Gap is likely larger unless RBC continues to hold some of its debts, notably the HASCAP.

[94] Furthermore, the Proposed Monitor says the Companies' estimated value of real estate is about $3.3 million.²⁷

[95] However, the Companies' submitted appraisals, drive-by estimates and agreements of purchase and sale totaling about $2.7 million. Furthermore, the Proposed Monitor says the real estate value is $65,000 less than Travelers' estimate.²⁸ Although the difference is not material to my decision, I ask the Proposed Monitor to explain the discrepancy at or before the comeback hearing.

²⁵ Ibid. at paras. 17(c) and 17(d).

²⁶ Ibid. at para. 18.

²⁸ Ibid. at para. 16(a).

[96] Travelers provides in the Term Sheet that the Companies are to repay the loan principal in 24 monthly blended installments of principal and interest, with interest at the rate of 12.75%. The loan amounts are amortized up to 120 months for real estate, and 60 for equipment. The loan balance is payable at the end of the 24 months.²⁹

[97] This would seem to require the Companies to repay large sums of monies over two years. Presumably, the Companies will need to satisfy Travelers that they can meet this obligation when it submits its forward-looking pro-forma income statement.

[98] Finally, the Term Sheet is subject to a condition that said, “Final approval of the subject Loan transaction and the Loan Agreement, in form and in substance, by [Travelers’] credit committee.”³⁰ Thus, Travelers is not yet bound to the Term Sheet.

[99] I will now turn to the second pillar of the Companies’ restructuring plan - positive cash flow from existing contracts.

The Cash Flow Statements

[100] The CCAA requires the Companies to provide weekly projected cash flow statements. The Companies should make disclosure of all material facts known to them (see Hester Creek Estate Winery Ltd., Re, 2004 BCSC 345 at para. 5). The standard of disclosure expected of the Companies in these cash flow statements must be realistic (see United Used Auto & Truck Parts Ltd., Re, (1999), 12 C.B.R. (4th) 144, 93 A.C.W.S. (3d) 411 at para. 14 (B.C.S.C.).

²⁹ Supra note 19, Tab L, Travelers Term Sheet [Travelers Term Sheet].

³⁰ Travelers Loan Sheet, Conditions Precedent to Closing, clause 1.

[101] I find that these cash flow statements are adequate to support an Initial Order. In the absence of other evidence, the disclosure is realistic and there is no evidence that the Companies have not disclosed all material facts known to them.

[102] If this is not so, the Companies risk an application to set aside the Initial Order. In such an application, the test is whether the undisclosed facts may well have affected the outcome had they been known at the time of the application.

[103] In his first pre-filing report, the Proposed Monitor submitted cash flow statements for a 19-week period from September 17, 2022 to January 27, 2023. He said he prepared cash flow statements for 19 weeks because this gives the Companies time to complete the Travelers refinancing.

[104] In the cash flow statements, found at Tab M of his first pre-filing report, the Proposed Monitor said:

- (a) the project cash receipts, mostly from 18 existing construction contracts, is $2.84 million. Its costs associated with this revenue is about $1.19 million;
- (b) the Companies' cash flow before operating expenses will be about $1.65 million. Operating expenses will be about $770,000. Thus, the Companies will have a net cumulative cash position of $883,000; and
- (c) the cash flow statement includes a speculative "Potential New Projects" column. The Proposed Monitor said these might contribute net cash of $1.2 million. But he does not include this amount as part of his calculated cumulative cash position.

[105] I have limited information on the status of Collins Contracting's contracts. The Proposed Monitor makes a general statement that the Collins Contracting's trade accounts receivables are about $1.39 million. He said that Collins Contracting's counterparties owe them holdbacks, liquidated damages and force accounts (presumably, he means change orders under existing contracts) of about $1 million.³¹

[106] I do not know if Collins Contracting's counterparties contest these amounts. There is no evidence that the Proposed Monitor did a risk assessment on the potential recovery of these amounts. However, I will not require this information for the purposes of the Initial Order.

[107] The Proposed Monitor said that another counterparty terminated a contract that he did include in his original cash flow. He then submitted revised cash flow statements to address the $225,000 deficiency arising out of the termination. This project is for the Placentia Wellness Centre.³²

[108] He said Collins Contracting will replace this revenue by allocating $250,000 from the life insurance proceeds.³³

[109] In his second report, the Proposed Monitor said, "The operational assumptions required to be met to successfully achieve the refinancing include (a) [the Companies] achieve or exceed their cash flow forecast".³⁴

[110] Josh Collins responded to my request I made on the first day of the hearing. He said, "Of the four projects where we currently have claims, we are in discussions on two of these projects [the same ones referred to by the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador that I refer to later in this decision] regarding [Collins

³¹ Supra note 17 at para. 22(a).

Contracting] potentially returning to the projects to complete the work. As of the date of this affidavit we have been asked to present a plan to Western Surety on how we intend to complete the work, for their approval. That work is ongoing.”³⁵

[111] I get some comfort from the Proposed Monitor’s comments in paragraph 38 of his first pre-filing report. He says that he “has also reviewed the support provided by the Company for the Probable and Hypothetical Assumptions and the preparation and presentation of the Cash Flow Projection”.³⁶

[112] He goes on and says, “Based on [my] review, nothing has come to [my] attention that causes [me] to believe that, in all material respects:

- (a) the Probable and Hypothetical Assumptions are not inconsistent with the purpose of the Cash Flow Projection; and
- (b) ... the Probable and Hypothetical Assumption, developed by management are not suitably supported and consistent with the Company’s plans or do not provide a reasonable basis for the Cash Flow Projection, given the Probable and Hypothetical Assumptions”.³⁷

[113] However, this comfort goes only so far as he says, “The Cash Flow Forecast has been prepared by management using probable and hypothetical assumptions set out”³⁸ in the Cash Flow Projections. Thus, Collins Contracting prepared the Cash Flow Projections and the Probable and Hypothetical Assumptions.

[114] The Proposed Monitor did not include two contracts (Numbers 46–21PHP and 12–21PHC) with the Minister of the Department of Transportation and Infrastructure

³⁵ Supra note 12 at p. 35.

³⁶ Supra note 17 at para. 38.

³⁷ Ibid. at para. 38.

³⁸ Ibid. at para. 37.

(“Province”) in his cash flow projections. On September 23, 2022, the Province took a motion with respect to these contracts.

[115] It said that on April 8, 2022, the Province declared them in default. The Province called on the Surety’s performance bond. The Province has not terminated the two contracts. It said that the Surety accepted responsibility under the bonds.

[116] As the Proposed Monitor did not include these contracts in his cash flow statements, they are not relevant to this application, except to the extent they may give rise to concerns about the other contracts’ status.

[117] Under section 21 of the CCAA, the owner of the projects can claim set-off. If the Surety responds to these defaults, it may step into the shoes of the owner and then claim set-off.

[118] However, the Supreme Court of Canada in Montréal (Ville) c. Restructuration Deloitte Inc., 2021 SCC 53, at para. 63 said, “Although s. 21 of the CCAA indicates that there is a right to effect compensation in proceedings under that statute, we are of the opinion that it applies only to compensation [set-off] between debts that arise before an initial order is made (in other words, ‘pre-pre compensation’). [Emphasis in original.]

[119] It also said at paragraph 63, “s. 21 of the CCAA does not grant creditors a right to pre-post compensation that would be shielded from a supervising judge's power to order a stay under ss. 11 and 11.02 of the CCAA.”

[120] At paragraph 62 it said “it is our view that in the vast majority of cases an initial order will, and should, stay a creditor's right to set up pre-post compensation against the debtor. Finally, where an initial order has stayed the right of creditors to pre-post compensation, the court retains the discretion to lift the stay having regard to the circumstances.”

[121] It explained the policy reason for this decision by saying at paragraph 75, “allowing pre-post compensation would undermine the effectiveness of the status quo period, would jeopardize the survival of the debtor company or the business it operates and could derail the restructuring process”.

[122] If Collins Contracting’s counterparts had declared any of the contracts in default, this could undermine the prospect of Collins Contracting’s cash flow from these contracts to the extent they seek so-called “pre-pre compensation”.

[123] I do not know whether the Surety will continue to provide construction bonding in light of these two defaults. Lack of bonding might compromise Collins Contracting’s prospects for new work.

[124] Counsel for the Surety told me that owners have declared other Collins Contracting’s contracts in default, but he had no instructions on this point. He said it was unlikely the Surety will continue to offer bonding to Collins Contracting.

[125] Counsel for the Companies advised that I should not accept this evidence as it was hearsay statements from counsel for the Surety. I agree. Surety’s counsel said he had no instructions on these points. The Surety did not submit any evidence.

[126] In his September 23, 2022 affidavit, Josh Collins provided me with information about Collins Contracting’s bonding facility with Western Surety. Such a bonding facility is essential if Collins Contracting is to bid on any significant provincial contracts. The Surety’s counsel told the Court that while a Surety facility is in place, the Surety reserves the right to issue bonds in its sole discretion.

[127] The Surety’s support is a critical part of Collins Contracting continuing to work its way out of its financial problems. Josh Collins said in paragraph 26 of his affidavit that in the last 30 days, it has bid $1 million in new construction work. He did not tell me that these contracts required construction bonds.

[128] Again this is not determinative of whether I will grant the Initial Order, but it represents a significant contingency that Collins Contracting must resolve if it successfully restructures as a going-concern entity.

[129] Thus, the Companies' plan depends on a number of contingencies. The critical ones are:

- (a) satisfaction of the Term Sheet conditions precedent, including real estate appraisals supporting Travelers' loan valuation of $6,796,490;
- (b) successful efforts to close the Loan Gap;
- (c) the consent of RBC to remain as the HASCAP lender subordinate to Travelers and if not, assignment of this debt to another;
- (d) resolution of the CRA deemed HST debt and interest and penalties in all of the debt; and
- (e) the accuracy of the 17-week cash flow statements provided by the Proposed Monitor.

[130] The Companies' restructuring contingency list is daunting. However, any insolvent debtor who seeks protection under the CCAA likely has a similar list.

[131] The Companies seek an Initial Order. That order will expire in 10 days. The Companies have provided more than a "germ of a plan". They presented a plan that, if successful, could present a reasonable possibility of restructuring.

[132] Therefore, the Companies have established that circumstances exist which would allow me to grant the Initial Order. I now turn to whether the Companies' conduct during the Consent Stay cause me to refuse the Initial Order?

Should the Companies' conduct during the Consent Stay cause me to refuse the Initial Order?

[133] I find that the Companies' conduct during the Consent Stay does not cause me to refuse the Initial Order. I will now explain why I made that decision.

[134] RBC says the Companies' conduct during the Consent Stay is relevant for three reasons:

- (a) The first reason is the Companies' late filings show they did not act with due diligence;
- (b) The second reason is the Companies' inaction to address its financial problems show they did not act with due diligence; and
- (c) The third reason is that the Companies should meet a more onerous standard of whether they have "a germ of a plan" because they had advantage of the Consent Stay Period.

[135] I will first deal with the Companies' late filings.

Did the Companies' late filings show they did not act with due diligence?

[136] I find that the Companies have acted with due diligence to the extent they need to in their application for the Initial Order. I will now explain why I made this decision.

[137] The Saskatchewan Court of Appeal in Industrial Properties Regina Limited v. Copper Sands Land Corp., 2018 SKCA 36 at para. 23 said, "Although it is a consideration for granting an initial order, courts generally defer the in-depth analysis of good faith and due diligence to subsequent applications." It continued and said, “If, however, the court determines the debtor corporation is not seeking CCAA protection in good faith or there is convincing evidence of a lack of due diligence, the court may deny an initial order ...”. [Emphasis added.]

[138] Applicants often operate under severe financial pressure when they apply for an Initial Order. They have limited time to prepare their application and information by necessity is usually preliminary. As CCAA applications are usually urgent, the court may receive information shortly before the hearing. The timelines are necessarily compressed.

[139] This issue might not have arisen if the Companies had taken its application in September instead of July and made filing shortly before the hearing dates. However, the Court could not schedule the hearing until September 16, 2022, two months after the initial filing.

[140] The parties agreed on the Consent Order. The order included the Consent Stay. Both RBC and the Companies agreed to this in their interest. The Consent Stay likely benefits both the Companies and RBC as it preserves the status quo for both for more than two months. Critically, this is not a stay under the CCAA, or under the BIA.

[141] In a perfect world, the Companies would have taken advantage of the Consent Stay to improve their plan. However, this likely proved to be impossible because on August 5, 2022, the Companies replaced the Proposed Monitor with Grant Thornton.

[142] This replacement was within their rights. The Proposed Monitor is a critical part of the CCAA process. An applicant must have confidence in their monitor. It is not unreasonable for a new monitor to need some time to file a preliminary pre-filing report.

[143] There is no doubt the Companies filed information at the last minute. The Companies did not file their cash flow statements until the Proposed Monitor did so in his first pre-filing report, one day before the hearing. He filed a revision in his second pre-filing report, after the hearing started. Section 10(2) of the CCAA requires that these must accompany the application.

[144] The receivership and CCAA applications were heard together. RBC's evidence was all filed in the receivership application. A summary of the key filings is set out in this table:

Documents	Filing Date
RBC Receivership Application (BIA) and supporting Affidavit	July 8, 2022

[145] The parties all took advantage of the extra time afforded to them because of the Consent Stay Period, some more than others.

[146] CRA, a principal creditor of the Companies, filed its documents late in the process. The Province also filed its documents after the hearing began.

[147] The Companies filed some information I asked for after the start of the hearing. I asked for further details on the construction contracts and Collins Contracting's construction bonding. Both RBC and I asked for the equipment appraisal. RBC asked for a signed copy of the Term Sheet.

[148] Furthermore, I asked the Proposed Monitor at the end of the first day of the hearing to report to me if he became aware that there was any material change in the circumstances of the Companies' financial situation.

[149] In his second pre-filing report, he altered the cash flow statements because of a termination of a contract. He reported on the proposed use of a newly discovered $500,000 insurance policy payout benefiting Collins Contracting. He was right to do so.

[150] Furthermore, this matter was urgent. No one asked for a postponement. No one said how they might be prejudiced by the delay. Had anyone asked me for one, I would have been reluctant to grant it. Both RBC and the Companies, without a hearing on the merits, obtained the Consent Stay that affected other creditors' rights.

[151] By its nature, CCAAs are conducted in, as the Supreme Court of Canada in Ted Leroy Trucking at para. 58 states, "the hothouse of real-time litigation". Late filings in these circumstances, although are not condoned, are sometimes inevitable.

[152] The Companies, in particular though, should not assume that I am satisfied with the timing of some of their last-minute filings. The Proposed Monitor and the Companies should not expect similar latitude throughout this process.

[153] I will now deal whether the Companies' inaction to address their financial problems show they did not act with due diligence.

Did the Companies' inaction to address their financial problems show they did not act with due diligence?

[154] I find it does not. I will now explain why I made this decision.

[155] RBC suggested that I should consider not only the Companies' inaction during the Consent Stay, but before.

[156] This position is inconsistent with the Supreme Court of Canada's guidance in Callidus. It suggests at paragraph 51, that the parties must act with due diligence in the CCAA proceeding, when it said, "A party's failure to participate in CCAA proceedings in a diligent and timely fashion can undermine ... the effective functioning of the CCAA regime"

[157] RBC says it asked the Companies to restructure as early as July 2021. RBC says the Companies hired two other consultants to help them with the restructure. They fired them both and hired Grant Thornton about a month and a half ago. RBC says they wasted months before they hired the Proposed Monitor.

[158] The CCAA focuses on the go-forward restructuring, not on the past. Someone might speculate that had the Companies taken a series of different actions, they might have avoided their financial difficulty. Perhaps they might have restructured earlier.

[159] I find that speculation about the Companies' actions which led up to its financial difficulties is irrelevant. I will not consider the Companies' failure to take action to restructure before they came to the Court seeking the Initial Order.

[160] If I were to do so, this would have the effect of denying creditor protection to debtors who are the author of their own misfortune. The CCAA, at least for the Initial Order, offers a no-fault remedy, provided that the applicants act in good faith and act with due diligence in the CCAA application.

[161] I will now deal with whether the Companies should meet a more onerous standard of whether they have “a germ of a plan” because they had advantage of the Consent Stay.

Should the Companies meet a more onerous standard of whether they have “a germ of a plan” because they had advantage of the Consent Stay?

[162] I find they should not. I will now explain why I made that decision. However, even if they should have done so, I find that they have.

[163] Justice Orsborn in Norcon said at paragraph 17, “The present case is a little different than the usual CCAA initial application. Norcon’s Notice of Intention to make a BIA proposal was filed on November 25, 2019, just over two weeks ago.”

[164] He continues and said, “In my view, this suggests that restructuring is not a possibility that has just appeared. Although not a lot of time has passed, the fact that the Court is being asked to continue an existing restructuring proceeding suggests that the ‘germ’ of any plan should exhibit a slightly higher possibility of coming to life than might otherwise be the case.”

[165] This may be so, but the Initial Order was not part of any formal restructuring process. There is no court-appointed receiver or monitor to assist the Companies as an intermediary to formulate a restructuring plan.

[166] I find the Consent Stay is not a stay under the BIA or the CCAA. It is a negotiated order to accommodate the Court schedule. RBC and the Companies negotiated this stay. Presumably, they did so because it was in their mutual advantage to do so.

[167] On the other hand, even if I consider that the CCAA application and the request for the Initial Order is a continuation of the restructuring process discussed between RBC and the Companies for over a year, I find it difficult to assess whether the Companies' "plan" exhibits "a slightly higher possibility of coming to life than might otherwise be the case".

[168] I have outlined the challenging contingencies the Companies' face in completing a successful plan. I have no way of knowing if the Companies are more likely to overcome these contingencies than "might otherwise be the case". However, the Companies did more than present "a germ of a plan". I discussed the reason for this earlier in this decision. I now turn to whether the Companies acted in bad faith.

Did the Companies act in bad faith?

[169] Although the Companies referred to RBC's alleged bad faith in their pleadings, affidavits and brief, these allegations relate to RBC's actions leading up to it demanding repayment of the Companies' loans.

[170] While the allegations may be relevant to the receivership application, they have little bearing on the Companies' application for an Initial Order. Furthermore, its counsel said he would not argue that RBC acted in bad faith.

[171] I now turn to RBC's allegation of the Companies' bad faith.

[172] In argument, RBC's counsel said the Companies acted in bad faith when they failed to report the escalation of the CRA deemed trust debt to RBC and when they failed to comply with the forbearance agreement.

[173] I find that RBC did not properly bring this issue before me. However, even if it had, there is insufficient evidence to establish that the Companies acted in bad faith. I will now explain why I made this decision.

[174] David Savoie says at paragraph 34 of his affidavit, filed August 5, 2022, that RBC did not discover the "substantial" increase in the CRA debt until November 1, 2021. He says that was the first time RBC received any FY 2021 financial statements.

[175] RBC's bad faith allegation perhaps relates to whether the Companies should have told RBC about the increased CRA debt before they revealed it in their financial statements. Perhaps the allegation relates to Collin's Contracting's failure to deliver to RBC the financial statements on time, or perhaps it relates to Collins Contracting's performance of the forbearance agreement.

[176] This imprecision on exactly what good faith obligation the Companies breached is why RBC should have expressly grounded its allegation in its pleadings, affidavits or briefs, and not merely raise the issue in their argument.

[177] The British Columbia Supreme Court dealt with a similar situation in United Used Auto. The court said at paragraph 15, "I am also not persuaded by the submissions of the secured lenders that the Petitioners are not acting in good faith. The facts that the Petitioners failed to abide by the terms of the forbearance agreements and that they obtained restructuring advice from Deloitte & Touche Inc. in February 1998 [the court issued its decision in November 1999] does not, in my view, demonstrate a lack of good faith in bringing these proceedings."

[178] I now turn to whether I should exercise my discretion and grant the administration fee in the Initial Order.

Should the Court exercise its Discretion to grant the administration charge?

[179] I will not grant the administration charge in the Initial Order. I will now explain why I made that decision.

[180] The Companies seek, pursuant to section 11.52(1) of the CCAA, a charge on the Companies' property to a maximum amount of $50,000 to secure the Monitor's costs, and his and the Companies' costs for legal, financial and other experts.

[181] I must limit this administration charge to that which is reasonably necessary for the continued operation of the Companies during the initial 10-day stay.

[182] The Companies' cash flow statements show that administration costs and legal fees will be about $45,000 up to the issuance of the Initial Order, and about $20,000 for the two weeks beginning October 15, 2022.

[183] The cash flow statements show a positive cash position without the administration fee for the weeks ending September 30 to October 21, 2022.

[184] In the circumstances, I will not provide for an administration fee in the Initial Order. I will consider this request again at the comeback hearing.

[185] I now turn to what other provisions that were not in the draft order the Companies circulated, I should include in the Initial Order.

FURTHER ORDERS

[186] Under section 11.02(1) of the CCAA, I can make an order on any terms that I may impose.

[187] I first note that the Companies are not asking me to authorize DIP financing in the Initial Order, so I will not do so.

[188] Given some of the information deficiencies I have identified in this decision, on or before the close of business on Thursday, October 13, 2022, the Companies will file:

- (a) the FY 2022 financial statements, even if only in interim or draft form; and
- (b) a breakdown of the Companies' current contracts, expected revenue, and other information to support the projections in the cash-flow statements provided to the Court in the initial filings. The Companies should disclose if any of the contracts have been declared to be in default.

[189] The Companies and the Monitor shall file an explanation if they cannot provide this information by the deadline. I now turn to the receivership application.

OTHER MATTERS – RECEIVERSHIP APPLICATION

[190] As I have granted the Initial Order, I hereby stay RBC's receivership application.

OTHER MATTERS - OUTSTANDING MOTION AND APPLICATION

[191] A motion and application remain outstanding.

[192] The first is that the Province asks that I order the Consent Order, or by extension the Initial Order, does not affect the Province's ability to engage the bond, remedy the defaults, and complete the contracts declared in default in the manner directed by the Surety.

[193] Second is that the Companies ask that I hold one of the Companies' contract counterparties in contempt of the Consent Order.

[194] The parties should, at the comeback hearing, be prepared to discuss a process to resolve both matters if I do not set the process before then.

DISPOSITION

[195] I hereby:

- (a) grant the Initial Order described in Schedule "A" annexed; and
- (b) appoint Grant Thornton Limited to monitor the business and financial affairs of the Companies.

[196] I hereby set the comeback hearing for October 17, 2022, at 10:00 a.m. I make no order as to costs.

RESPONDENT

Before: Justice David B. Orsborn

Place of Hearing: St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador

Date(s) of Hearing: December 17, 2019

Date of Oral Judgment: December 18, 2019

Summary:

On or about November 9, 2019, Business Development Bank of Canada (“BDC”), a secured creditor of Norcon Marine Services Ltd. (“Norcon”) served a Notice of Intention to enforce its security pursuant to section 244 of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (“BIA”). In response, but more than ten days after being served with BDC’s Notice of Intention, Norcon, pursuant to section 50.4 of the BIA, filed Notice of Intention to make a proposal to its creditors. On December 5, 2019, Norcon applied pursuant to section 11.02(1) of the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, (“CCAA”) to transfer its proposal process to the CCAA restructuring regime. Concurrently, BDC applied pursuant to section 243 of the BIA for a court-appointed receiver. Both applications were heard together. Held: Both applications were dismissed. The evidence did not support a finding of “appropriate circumstances” to warrant initiating proceedings under the CCAA. Neither, in the circumstances where BDC enjoyed a contractual right to appoint a receiver, did the evidence support the conclusion that it would be just and convenient for the Court to exercise its discretion to appoint a receiver.

REASONS FOR JUDGMENT

ORSBORN, J.:

INTRODUCTION

[1] The Court has been asked to rule on what are essentially two competing applications. One is an application by a debtor – Norcon Marine Services Ltd. (“Norcon”) to transfer restructuring proceedings from the proposal track in the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. B-3 (“BIA”), to the reorganization track provided by the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 (“CCAA”). The second is an application by a secured creditor – Business Development Bank of Canada (“BDC”) – pursuant to section 243 of the BIA for a court-appointed receiver.

[2] The applications were heard on December 17, 2019 and a decision given on December 18 in the form of a brief summary only. Both applications were dismissed.

ISSUES

[3] Is Norcon to be permitted to continue its restructuring proceedings under the CCAA?

[4] Should a receiver be appointed by the Court?

BACKGROUND

[5] For some 20 years, Norcon has been involved in the marine transportation business, operating passenger/freight and cargo ships. Presently, it owns four vessels.

[6] In recent times, Norcon has been hit hard by the loss of government contracts for ferry services and by problems in the aquaculture industry, an industry which provides and continues to provide a source of revenue for Norcon. Two of Norcon's vessels are presently listed for sale, and one is under arrest pursuant to proceedings in the Federal Court. The fourth vessel is working in the aquaculture business. Norcon also owns some real property.

[7] Because of the loss of the ferry contracts, the downturn in the aquaculture business and the need to write off a large debt from a related company, Norcon's financial situation is not good.

[8] BDC is owed almost $1,400,000, some $836,000 of which represents the guaranteed debt of Burry's Shipyard Inc. ("BSI"), a related company which is now bankrupt.

[9] On or about November 9, 2019, BDC served a Notice of Intention to enforce its security under section 244 of the BIA. On November 25, 2019, Norcon filed, pursuant to section 50.4 of the BIA, a Notice of Intention to make a proposal under the BIA. Such a notice may only be filed by an insolvent person.

[10] It is clear that one of the reasons, if not the primary reason, for Norcon's filing of a Notice of Intention was to impose a statutory stay on any enforcement actions by BDC. However, due to the lapse of time between November 9 and November 25, 2019, the statutory stay provision was not engaged.

[11] On December 5, 2019, Norcon filed an application seeking, in effect, to transition the BIA proceedings to CCAA proceedings. It asked for an initial order under section 11.02(1) of the CCAA, the effect of which would be to stay all proceedings – including BDC's enforcement action, for an initial ten days. Concurrently, BDC filed an application pursuant to section 243 of the BIA asking for a court-appointed receiver. These are the two applications before the Court.

DISCUSSION

[12] I will deal first with Norcon’s application for an initial CCAA order.

[13] Provided that no proposal has been filed, proceedings commenced under Part III of the BIA may be continued under the CCAA. As Justice Brown said in Clothing for Modern Times Ltd., Re, 2011 ONSC 7522, the BIA proposal regime and the CCAA regime “serve the same remedial purpose” (paragraph 11), with the CCAA regime being somewhat more flexible. However, the objective remains the same – to provide a window of opportunity within which, without having to deal with creditors’ claims and enforcement proceedings (because of a statutory stay), a company can explore the prospect of a reorganization or a sale which would avoid or significantly lessen the harmful economic and social effects of a liquidation and cessation of the business. See, generally, Ted Leroy Trucking [Century Services] Ltd., Re, 2010 SCC 60. I refer particularly to paragraph 59:

59 Judicial discretion must of course be exercised in furtherance of the CCAA’s purposes. The remedial purpose I referred to in the historical overview of the Act is recognized over and over again in the jurisprudence. To cite one early example:

The legislation is remedial in the purest sense in that it provides a means whereby the devastating social and economic effects of bankruptcy or creditor initiated termination of ongoing business operations can be avoided while a court-supervised attempt to reorganize the financial affairs of the debtor company is made.

[14] The threshold for gaining access to the CCAA process is not high. On an initial application, section 11.02(3)(a) requires an applicant to satisfy the court that “circumstances exist that make the order appropriate”. When a continuation is sought in circumstances where, as here, the BIA proposal process has already been engaged, case authorities suggest the section 11.02(3)(b) criteria of good faith and diligence also come into play. See Clothing for Modern Times at paragraph 14; and Industrial Properties Regina Limited v. Copper Sands Land Corp., 2018 SKCA 36, at paragraphs 22-23.

[15] Although the threshold of appropriate circumstances is, in my view, low, it does require the Court to consider the initial application in the context of the objectives of the CCAA. In other words, is the Court able to conclude, even at an early stage, that there is some chance that engaging the CCAA process – which brings all enforcement proceedings to a halt – will result in furthering the purposes of the legislation?

[16] To obtain this breathing room, a debtor must do more than simply plead for time. The authorities speak of the need to have “a germ of a plan” that would suggest “a reasonable possibility of restructuring”. In Industrial Properties Regina, the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal put it this way – at paragraphs 19-21:

19 The evidentiary burden the debtor corporation must satisfy to establish “appropriate circumstances” for the purposes of a 30-day stay order is not exceptionally onerous: Alberta Treasury Branches v. Tallgrass Energy Corp., 2013 ABQB 432 (Alta. Q.B.) at para 14, (2013), 8 C.B.R. (6th) 161 (Alta. Q.B.) [Alberta Treasury]; Matco Capital Ltd. v. Interex Oilfield Services Ltd. (August 1, 2006), Doc. 0601-08395 (Alta. Q.B.) [Matco]; Hush Homes Inc., Re, 2015 ONSC 370 (Ont. S.C.J.) at paras 51-53, (2015), 22 C.B.R. (6th) 67 (Ont. S.C.J.); Redstone Investment Corp., Re, 2014 ONSC 2004 (Ont. S.C.J.) at paras 49-50.

20 ... The debtor corporation is often in crisis-mode due to its failure to meet creditor obligations and is seeking CCAA protection to obtain some breathing room to enable it to get its affairs in order without creditors knocking at the door. Therefore, to obtain an initial 30-day order [now ten days], the applicant is not required to prove it has a “feasible plan” but merely “a germ of a plan”: Alberta Treasury at para 14. The court must assess whether the circumstances are such that, with the initial order, the debtor corporation has a “reasonable possibility of restructuring”: Matco. To require the applicant corporation to present a fully-developed restructuring plan or have the support of all its creditors at the initial stage of CCAA proceedings, although desirable, is not expected. To impose such a threshold to establish “appropriate circumstances” would unduly hinder the purpose of an initial order which, as the Supreme Court explained in Century Services, is to provide the conditions under which the debtor can attempt to reorganize.

21 For the purposes of an initial order, the debtor corporation must convince the court that the initial order will “usefully further” its efforts towards attempted reorganization. ... If, however, the debtor corporation fails to satisfy this onus and the court determines that the application is merely an effort by the debtor corporation to avoid its obligations to its creditors and postpone an inevitable liquidation, the initial application should be denied: ...

[17] The present case is a little different than the usual CCAA initial application. Norcon’s Notice of Intention to make a BIA proposal was filed on November 25, 2019, just over two weeks ago. In my view, this suggests that restructuring is not a possibility that has just appeared. Although not a lot of time has passed, the fact that the Court is being asked to continue an existing restructuring proceeding suggests that the “germ” of any plan should exhibit a slightly higher possibility of coming to life than might otherwise be the case. Further, once a debtor has engaged the BIA proposal process, there should be some reason, linked to the purpose of the restructuring/reorganization objective, to warrant continuing under the CCAA process. See, for example, the impending expiration of the maximum six-month proposal period in Clothing for Modern Times. The earlier in the BIA proposal process the transfer request, the more apparent should be the particular purpose precipitating the request for transition to the CCAA.

[18] What does the evidence here suggest?

[19] The evidence from Norcon consists of a pro-forma affidavit of Glenn Burry – an owner of the company – deposing as to the facts in the application. The only paragraph in the application that looks to the future is paragraph 12:

12. The Company is actively seeking new contracts for its vessels and services, but does not expect to enter into such new contracts until early Spring, 2020.

[20] There is no other evidence from Norcon about potential available contracts, ability to bid, chances of success, terms, efforts to date, or the like.

[21] BDC filed an affidavit of Robert Prince, Director of Business Restructuring, setting out the lengthy history of BDC's dealings with Norcon and BSI. Norcon filed a "Pre-filing Report" of Deloitte Restructuring, the proposed CCAA monitor, and also filed its "review engagement" financial statements for the year ending January 31, 2019. The monitor updated the figures to October 31, 2019.

[22] As October 31, 2019, Norcon's current assets totaled $611,000, primarily receivables of $561,000 (rounded). Current liabilities were just over $2,660,000, not including the $836,000 liability attached to the guaranteed debt of BSI. The current liabilities include approximately $444,000 owed to the Canada Revenue Agency for unpaid source deductions and the like, income taxes of $54,000, bank indebtedness and accounts payable of over $1,290,000, and $873,000 representing the current portion of long-term debt. The long-term debt (excluding the current portion) owed to arm's-length creditors is $1,400,000. It is not contested that Norcon, as of the date of filing of the application, satisfied the $5,000,000 threshold under section 3(1) of the CCAA.

[23] The net book value of the fixed assets – primarily the vessels – is shown as $5,800,000. There is no evidence of current estimated market value.

[24] Of the efforts to date to reorganize or restructure Norcon, the Pre-filing Report says this – at paragraph 6.1:

6.1 [Norcon] has taken the following steps to deal with operational and financial challenges it is currently facing:

- (i) Reduced operating expenses, including a reduction in headcount and a redeployment of Management resources from administrative to revenue generating tasks.
- (ii) Actively pursuing contracts for the next operating season.
- (iii) Prior to the NOI Filing, the Applicant was working with CRA on an arrangement satisfactory to both parties to reduce the liability owing from the Applicant.

- (iv) Engaged in discussions with Deloitte regarding a financial consulting engagement during the week beginning November 17, 2019.

[25] The proposed monitor reviewed Norcon's projected cash flow statement for the 13 weeks ended February 28, 2020. The Pre-filing Report says:

- 7.3 The Cash Flow Forecast has been prepared by Management for the purpose described in the notes to the Cash Flow Forecast, using the probable and hypothetical assumptions set out in the notes.

[26] The assumptions referred to are the projection of the collection of accounts receivable as of November 25, 2019, and the continuation of an existing vessel crewing contract and aquaculture support contract. No evidence was given as to the particular provisions or durations of these contracts.

[27] I did not find the proposed monitor's comments on the cash flow report particularly helpful:

- 7.4 The Proposed Monitor's review of the Cash Flow Forecast consisted of inquiries, analytical procedures and discussions on the information provided by Management of the Applicant. The Proposed Monitor's involvement with respect to the hypothetical assumptions was limited to evaluating whether they were consistent with the purpose of the Cash Flow Forecast. The Proposed Monitor has also reviewed the supporting documentation provided by Management of the Applicant for the probable assumptions and the preparation and presentation of the Cash Flow Forecast.

- 7.5 Based on our review and the foregoing reserves and limitations, nothing has come to the attention of the Proposed Monitor that causes us to believe that, in all materials respects:

- (i) the hypothetical assumptions are not consistent with the purpose of the Cash Flow Forecast;
- (ii) as at the date of the Pre-filing Report, the probable assumptions developed by the Applicant are not suitably supported and consistent with the plans of the Applicant or do not provide a reasonable basis for the Cash Flow Forecast, given the hypothetical assumptions; or

- (iii) the Cash Flow Forecast does not reflect the probable and hypothetical assumptions.

Counsel was not able to assist in my comprehension of these paragraphs.

[28] The projected cash flow report, on its face, shows a cash position improvement of $197,001 over the 13-week period. However, $283,476 of the cash inflow comes from the collection of existing accounts receivable. Taking these receivables out of the equation, the projected cash position will worsen by $86,475.

[29] The projected cash flow took no account of debt servicing over the 13-week period, such debt servicing estimated by BDC to be in excess of $83,000.

[30] The monitor appears to offer argument in support of Norcon's application for a CCAA process. It gives the following reasons – at paragraph 9.1:

9.1 As discussed herein, the Applicant wishes to convert the NOI Filing to the CCAA Proceedings on December 17, 2019 for the following reasons:

- (i) the CCAA will provide the Applicant with increased flexibility as it moves forward with its restructuring plan;
- (ii) the CCAA will provide the Applicant with additional time (if required) to prepare and present a restructuring plan, including a Plan of Arrangement, to its creditors; and
- (iii) if granted, the Initial Order will provide the Applicant with a stay of proceedings against all creditors, including the pending application of BDC to appoint a Receiver over the Property of the Applicant.

[31] The arguments relating to increased flexibility and additional time were not explained. The time argument is difficult to accept where, unlike the situation in Clothing for Modern Times, the BIA proposal process is just beginning and can potentially last for six months. I note that the situation in Clothing for Modern Times was where the available extensions of time to make a proposal had expired, leaving a CCAA continuation as the only means of avoiding a deemed bankruptcy.

[32] There is nothing I see in the proposed monitor's report which provides a hint of a plan for restructuring, other than, as noted, a plan to reduce operating costs in some undefined amount.

[33] The cash flow projection shows a 13-week total of compensation, occupancy and related general expenses of some $263,000, a weekly average of just over $20,000. How savings within these expenditures would realistically assist in restructuring the finances of Norcon – with a current ratio (current assets/current liabilities) of 0.23 was not explained. I think it is fair to say that, overall, the issues facing Norcon are issues of revenue and debt servicing rather than control over relatively minor expenses.

[34] The financial statements and the projected cash flow statement provide no support for Norcon's position. The report of the proposed monitor provides no support for Norcon's position. The only hope offered is one in the form of pursuing new contracts with the hope of getting one. In the circumstances of this case, that hope is not sufficient to satisfy the appropriateness threshold needed to open the door to CCAA proceedings.

[35] Assessing the matter as objectively as I can, the evidence does not disclose a germ of a reasonable possibility of reorganizing or restructuring Norcon to a position from which it can either continue its operations or be sold as a going concern or otherwise. The evidence discloses no potentially viable thread with which to begin the process of weaving a plan that will fulfill the objectives of the CCAA. The threshold of appropriate circumstances has not been crossed.

[36] In view of this finding, it is not necessary to consider the issues of good faith and due diligence.

[37] The application for an initial CCAA application is dismissed.

[38] That leaves BDC's request for a court-appointed receiver. BDC's request is supported by the Bank of Nova Scotia, another senior secured creditor.

[39] BDC's application was brought following its November 9, 2019, Notice of Intention to enforce its security. As noted, BDC is owed almost $1,400,000 by Norcon, including the guaranteed debt of BSI, a related company which is now bankrupt. It is fair to assume that BDC initiated the enforcement mechanism to protect its own interests as a secured creditor.

[40] The appointment of a receiver by the Court engages the exercise of the Court's discretion. A receiver may be appointed when it appears to the Court to be just or convenient to do so. Any discretion must be judicially exercised.

[41] In Enterprise Cape Breton Corp. v. Crown Jewel Resort Ranch Inc., 2014 NSSC 128, Justice Edwards set out, from The 2013-2014 Annotated Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, factors that may be considered by a court – at paragraph 26:

- (a) whether irreparable harm might be caused if no order were made, although it is not essential for a creditor to establish irreparable harm if a receiver is not appointed;
- (b) the risk to the security holder taking into consideration the size of the debtor's equity in the assets and the need for protection or safeguarding of the assets while litigation takes place;
- (c) the nature of the property;
- (d) the apprehended or actual waste of the debtor's assets;
- (e) the preservation and protection of the property pending judicial resolution;
- (f) the balance of convenience to the parties;
- (g) the fact that the creditor has the right to appoint a receiver under the documentation provided for in the loan;

- (h) the enforcement of rights under a security instrument where the security holder encounters or expects to encounter difficulty with the debtor and others;
- (i) the principle that the appointment of a receiver is extraordinary relief that should be granted cautiously and sparingly;
- (j) the consideration of whether a court appointment is necessary to enable the receiver to carry out its duties more efficiently;
- (k) the effect of the order on the parties;
- (l) the conduct of the parties;
- (m) the length of time that a receiver may be in place;
- (n) the cost to the parties;
- (o) the likelihood of maximizing return to the parties; and
- (p) the goal of facilitating the duties of the receiver.

[42] In Lemare Lake Logging Ltd. v. 3L Cattle Co., 2014 SKCA 35 (rev'd on constitutional grounds 2015 SCC 53), the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal suggested this analysis – at paragraph 99:

99 The third edition of Bennett on Receiverships, (Toronto: Carswell, 2011), at pp. 155-162, suggests that the following factors are typically taken into consideration in deciding whether to appoint a receiver: (a) whether irreparable harm might be caused if no order is made; (b) whether the security holder's position will be prejudiced if no receivership order is made; (c) whether it is necessary to apprehend or stop waste of the debtor's assets; (d) whether it is necessary to preserve and protect property pending a judicial resolution of matters outstanding; and (e) the balance of convenience between the parties. See also: Houlden, et al, The 2013 Annotated Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (Toronto: Carswell, 2013) at p. 1005.

[43] These factors are not unlike those considered when injunctive relief is sought.

[44] It is accepted that the court's appointment of a receiver over the property of a person is an extraordinary order. It reflects the authority and jurisdiction of the court to act to protect and preserve property, often before the issues between the parties have been adjudicated.

[45] The extraordinary and intrusive nature of the order must inform what is considered to be just and convenient, although as I will point out, this aspect assumes less importance when a party already has a contractual right to appoint a receiver.

[46] The party asking the Court to appoint a receiver must persuade the Court that the appointment would be just or convenient. The word ‘just’ suggests a requirement of fairness and balance while “convenient” suggests, in my view, not just an order which the applicant would find helpful, but one that is necessary for the protection of the assets in question. To put it simply, is it fair or necessary that the authority of the Court be used to pass control of, in this case, the debtor’s assets to a receiver who will deal with those assets pursuant to court supervision?

[47] In this analysis, of what relevance is it that the applicant – here, BDC – has the ability and contractual authority to appoint a receiver and manager without enlisting the aid of the Court?

[48] In Bank of Montreal v. Sherco Properties Inc., 2013 ONSC 7023, the Court said this at paragraph 42:

42 Where the security instrument governing the relationship between the debtor and the secured creditor provides for a right to appoint a receiver upon default, this has the effect of relaxing the burden on the applicant seeking to have the receiver appointed. While the appointment of a receiver is generally regarded as an extraordinary equitable remedy, courts do not regard the nature of the remedy as extraordinary or equitable where the relevant security document permits the appointment of a receiver. This is because the applicant is merely seeking to enforce a term of an agreement that was assented to by both parties. See Textron Financial Canada Ltd. v. Chetwynd Motels Ltd., 2010 BCSC 477 (B.C. S.C. [In Chambers]); Freure Village, supra; Canadian Tire Corp. v. Healy, 2011 ONSC 4616 (Ont. S.C.J. [Commercial List]) and Bank of Montreal v. Carnival National Leasing Ltd., 2011 ONSC 1007 (Ont. S.C.J.).

[Emphasis added.]

[49] Blair J. of the Ontario Superior Court expressed it slightly differently in Bank of Nova Scotia v. Freure Village on Clair Creek, [1996] O.J. No. 5088, 40 C.B.R. (3d) 274 (Ct. J.) when he said at paragraphs 11 and 13:

11 The Court has the power to appoint a receiver or receiver and manager where it is “just or convenient” to do so: ... In deciding whether or not to do so, it must have regard to all of the circumstances but in particular the nature of the property and the rights and interests of all parties in relation thereto. ... The fact that the moving party has a right under its security to appoint a receiver is an important factor to be considered but so, in such circumstances, is the question of whether or not an appointment by the Court is necessary to enable the receiver-manager to carry out its work and duties more efficiently; ...

13 While I accept the general notion that the appointment of a receiver is an extraordinary remedy, it seems to me that where the security instrument permits the appointment of a private receiver ... and where the circumstances of default justify the appointment of a private receiver, the “extraordinary” nature of the remedy sought is less essential to the inquiry. Rather, the “just or convenient” question becomes one of the Court determining, in the exercise of its discretion, whether it is more in the interests of all concerned to have the receiver appointed by the Court or not. This, of course, involves an examination of all the circumstances ... including the potential costs, the relationship between the debtor and the creditors, the likelihood of maximizing the return on and preserving the subject property and the best way of facilitating the work and duties of the receiver-manager.

[Emphasis added.]

[50] I note his use of the word “necessary” when referring to a court appointment. Thus, while the fact of a party’s prior consent to a private contractual appointment may lessen or eliminate the need for caution because of the intrusive nature of the appointment of a receiver, the threshold of just or convenient must still be met. Particularly when considering whether an appointment would be convenient – an element which incorporates the practical and protective nature of the appointment – my view is that a court must consider whether court supervision of the receiver is necessary to protect and preserve the assets in question and to manage any undue complexity in the functioning of the receivership. The issue is not that far removed from situations in administrative law where the availability of an adequate alternative avenue of relief may persuade a court not to exercise its discretion to grant relief by way of an order in the nature of a prerogative writ.

[51] Is a court-supervised receivership order convenient in the sense of the added factor of court supervision being necessary to protect the interests of BDC and others affected by the fortunes of Norcon?

[52] Here, counsel for BDC acknowledged that a receivership of Norcon's secured property would be relatively straightforward. As noted, the assets are primarily fixed assets – four vessels and real property – covered by security. There is no suggestion that the assets are at risk of being removed from the jurisdiction. Any ongoing management of the business would not be complex. Counsel advised that two primary creditors, BDC and the Bank of Nova Scotia, have already signed an inter-creditor agreement addressing issues of relevance to them.

[53] BDC offers the following reasons to support a finding of just or convenient:

29. BDC submits that it is just and convenient for this Court to appoint a receiver in the present case for the following reasons:
 - (a) BDC has the contractual right to appoint a private receiver.
 - (b) The amount of the Indebtedness is not in dispute.
 - (c) ... Norcon has withheld information, has shown disregard for DBC's rights and has occasioned several Events of Default. A court-appointed receiver will be able to prevent and/or mitigate further defaults through greater transparency.
 - (d) The arrest of one of Norcon's vessels in which BDC has a security interest establishes that BDC's security is in jeopardy. A court-appointed receiver is necessary to immediately protect and preserve BDC's security interest in Norcon's property.
 - (e) A court-appointed receiver will be able to more effectively deal with and sell property in a manner that will maximize the value for the creditors of Norcon.
 - (f) A court-appointed receiver will be able to provide all stakeholders with a more efficient forum for creditors of Norcon to resolve priority issues.

- (g) A court-appointed receiver is required as the cooperation of Norcon with a private receiver is unlikely, given Norcon's conduct to date.

[54] The application continues:

30. The Court's refusal to grant the Receivership Application would place the interests of BDC and other creditors at significant risk.

[55] There is little, if any, evidence on these points.

[56] With respect to the conduct of Norcon, the evidence is that it did not disclose to BDC that one of its vessels had been arrested in the context of a proceeding in Federal Court. Without further evidence and argument on the point, I am not prepared to conclude, without more, that the arrest in and of itself places BDC's security in jeopardy and while this one instance of non-disclosure may be a fact, it is not sufficient to support the inference that Norcon or its management would be obstructionist so as to warrant Court supervision of a receivership. Neither, in my view, does it support the inference that Norcon's management would not cooperate with a private receiver. The evidence does support the view that the BIA-related history of the related company, BSI, and the CCAA filing by Norcon reflect efforts to delay enforcement action by creditors. But where a creditor has the ability to act expeditiously pursuant to a contractual right, the fact that a debtor may try to delay the process does not call for the intervention of the Court.

[57] The suggestion by BDC that Court supervision is necessary to more effectively deal with and sell the property and provide a more efficient forum for the resolution of priority disputes is simply that – a suggestion. I refer again to Blair J.'s comments in Freure Village where he suggests that an examination of all the circumstances is required to determine whether or not an appointment by the court is necessary.

[58] A fair assessment of all of the circumstances requires evidence. I note the comprehensive nature of the evidence before Edwards J. in Crown Jewel Resort.

[59] Looking at the evidence as a whole, I am not satisfied that there is sufficient evidence from which to draw reliable inferences relating to, and these are examples only, (i) the potential for irreparable harm in the absence of court supervision; (ii) the risk to BDC and the need for the added factor of court supervision in the protection and preservation of the assets; (iii) the need for court supervision of the relationship between Norcon and its creditors; and (iv) the relative costs and returns of a court-supervised process.

[60] In effect, and with respect, I am being asked to assume that a court-supervised process is necessary – just or convenient – for the effective and lawful realization of BDC’s security interest. I am not prepared to make such an assumption.

[61] BDC has the contractual right to appoint a receiver/manager with wide powers to take over the business, manage Norcon and its assets and, if considered appropriate, sell the assets. There is no evidence to suggest that such a receiver/manager would not act efficiently and responsibly in accordance with the law, would not properly protect BDC’s security, would not act in good faith to secure maximum value for the secured property, and would not have ready access to the court process should the need arise.

[62] In summary, on such evidence as I have, I am not able to reasonably draw the inference that the circumstances are such as to render just or convenient the Court’s appointment of a receiver.

[63] BDC’s application for a court-appointed receiver is dismissed.

[64] The parties will bear their own costs in both matters.

REASONS FOR DECISION

Introduction

[1] Canwest Global Communications Corp. ("Canwest Global") is a leading Canadian media company with interests in (i) newspaper publishing and digital media; and (ii) free-to-air television stations and subscription based specialty television channels. Canwest Global, the entities in its Canadian television business (excluding CW Investments Co. and its subsidiaries) and the National Post Company (which prior to October 30, 2009 owned and published the National Post) (collectively, the "CMI Entities"), obtained protection from their creditors in a

*Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act*¹ ("CCAA") proceeding on October 6, 2009.² Now, the Canwest Global Canadian newspaper entities with the exception of National Post Inc. seek similar protection. Specifically, Canwest Publishing Inc./Publications Canwest Inc. ("CPI"), Canwest Books Inc. ("CBI"), and Canwest (Canada) Inc. ("CCI") apply for an order pursuant to the CCAA. They also seek to have the stay of proceedings and the other benefits of the order extend to Canwest Limited Partnership/Canwest Société en Commandite (the "Limited Partnership"). The Applicants and the Limited Partnership are referred to as the "LP Entities" throughout these reasons. The term "Canwest" will be used to refer to the Canwest enterprise as a whole. It includes the LP Entities and Canwest Global's other subsidiaries which are not applicants in this proceeding.

[2] All appearing on this application supported the relief requested with the exception of the Ad Hoc Committee of 9.25% Senior Subordinated Noteholders. That Committee represents certain unsecured creditors whom I will discuss more fully later.

[3] I granted the order requested with reasons to follow. These are my reasons.

newspapers and own and operate a number of digital media and online operations. The community served by the LP Entities is huge. In addition, based on August 31, 2009 figures, the LP Entities employ approximately 5,300 employees in Canada with approximately 1,300 of those employees working in Ontario. The granting of the order requested is premised on an anticipated going concern sale of the newspaper business of the LP Entities. This serves not just the interests of the LP Entities and their stakeholders but the Canadian community at large.

[5] Secondly, the order requested may contain some shortcomings; it may not be perfect. That said, insolvency proceedings typically involve what is feasible, not what is flawless.

[6] Lastly, although the builders of this insolvent business are no doubt unhappy with its fate, gratitude is not misplaced by acknowledging their role in its construction.

Background Facts

(i) Financial Difficulties

[7] The LP Entities generate the majority of their revenues through the sale of advertising. In the fiscal year ended August 31, 2009, approximately 72% of the LP Entities' consolidated revenue derived from advertising. The LP Entities have been seriously affected by the economic downturn in Canada and their consolidated advertising revenues declined substantially in the latter half of 2008 and in 2009. In addition, they experienced increases in certain of their operating costs.

[8] On May 29, 2009 the Limited Partnership failed, for the first time, to make certain interest and principal reduction payments and related interest and cross currency swap payments totaling approximately $10 million in respect of its senior secured credit facilities. On the same day, the Limited Partnership announced that, as of May 31, 2009, it would be in breach of certain financial covenants set out in the credit agreement dated as of July 10, 2007 between its predecessor, Canwest Media Works Limited Partnership, The Bank of Nova Scotia as administrative agent, a syndicate of secured lenders ("the LP Secured Lenders"), and the predecessors of CCI, CPI and CBI as guarantors. The Limited Partnership also failed to make principal, interest and fee payments due pursuant to this credit agreement on June 21, June 22, July 21, July 22 and August 21, 2009.

[9] The May 29, 2009, defaults under the senior secured credit facilities triggered defaults in respect of related foreign currency and interest rate swaps. The swap counterparties (the “Hedging Secured Creditors”) demanded payment of $68.9 million. These unpaid amounts rank pari passu with amounts owing under the LP Secured Lenders’ credit facilities.

[10] On or around August 31, 2009, the Limited Partnership and certain of the LP Secured Lenders entered into a forbearance agreement in order to allow the LP Entities and the LP Secured Lenders the opportunity to negotiate a pre-packaged restructuring or reorganization of the affairs of the LP Entities. On November 9, 2009, the forbearance agreement expired and since then, the LP Secured Lenders have been in a position to demand payment of approximately $953.4 million, the amount outstanding as at August 31, 2009. Nonetheless, they continued negotiations with the LP Entities. The culmination of this process is that the LP Entities are now seeking a stay of proceedings under the CCAA in order to provide them with the necessary “breathing space” to restructure and reorganize their businesses and to preserve their enterprise value for the ultimate benefit of their broader stakeholder community.

[11] The Limited Partnership released its annual consolidated financial statements for the twelve months ended August 31, 2009 and 2008 on November 26, 2009. As at August 31, 2009, the Limited Partnership had total consolidated assets with a net book value of approximately $644.9 million. This included consolidated current assets of $182.7 million and consolidated non-current assets of approximately $462.2 million. As at that date, the Limited Partnership had total consolidated liabilities of approximately $1.719 billion (increased from $1.656 billion as at August 31, 2008). These liabilities consisted of consolidated current liabilities of $1.612 billion and consolidated non-current liabilities of $107 million.

[12] The Limited Partnership had been experiencing deteriorating financial results over the past year. For the year ended August 31, 2009, the Limited Partnership’s consolidated revenues decreased by $181.7 million or 15% to $1.021 billion as compared to $1.203 billion for the year ended August 31, 2008. For the year ended August 31, 2009, the Limited Partnership reported a consolidated net loss of $66 million compared to consolidated net earnings of $143.5 million for fiscal 2008.

(ii) Indebtedness under the Credit Facilities

[13] The indebtedness under the credit facilities of the LP Entities consists of the following.

- (a) The LP senior secured credit facilities are the subject matter of the July 10, 2007 credit agreement already mentioned. They are guaranteed by CCI, CPI and CBI. The security held by the LP Secured Lenders has been reviewed by the solicitors for the proposed Monitor, FTI Consulting Canada Inc. and considered to be valid and enforceable.³ As at August 31, 2009, the amounts owing by the LP Entities totaled $953.4 million exclusive of interest.⁴
- (b) The Limited Partnership is a party to the aforementioned foreign currency and interest rate swaps with the Hedging Secured Creditors. Defaults under the LP senior secured credit facilities have triggered defaults in respect of these swap arrangements. Demand for repayment of amounts totaling $68.9 million (exclusive of unpaid interest) has been made. These obligations are secured.
- (c) Pursuant to a senior subordinated credit agreement dated as of July 10, 2007, between the Limited Partnership, The Bank of Nova Scotia as administrative agent for a syndicate of lenders, and others, certain subordinated lenders agreed to provide the Limited Partnership with access to a term credit facility of up to $75 million. CCI, CPI, and CBI are guarantors. This facility is unsecured, guaranteed on an unsecured basis and currently fully drawn. On June 20, 2009, the Limited Partnership failed to make an interest payment resulting in an event of default under the credit agreement. In addition, the defaults under the senior secured credit facilities resulted in a default under this facility. The senior subordinated lenders are in a position to take steps to demand payment.

³ Subject to certain assumptions and qualifications.

- (d) Pursuant to a note indenture between the Limited Partnership, The Bank of New York Trust Company of Canada as trustee, and others, the Limited Partnership issued 9.5% per annum senior subordinated unsecured notes due 2015 in the aggregate principal amount of US $400 million. CPI and CBI are guarantors. The notes are unsecured and guaranteed on an unsecured basis. The noteholders are in a position to take steps to demand immediate payment of all amounts outstanding under the notes as a result of events of default.

[14] The LP Entities use a centralized cash management system at the Bank of Nova Scotia which they propose to continue. Obligations owed pursuant to the existing cash management arrangements are secured (the “Cash Management Creditor”).

(iii) LP Entities’ Response to Financial Difficulties

[15] The LP Entities took a number of steps to address their circumstances with a view to improving cash flow and strengthening their balance sheet. Nonetheless, they began to experience significant tightening of credit from critical suppliers and other trade creditors. The LP Entities’ debt totals approximately $1.45 billion and they do not have the liquidity required to make payment in respect of this indebtedness. They are clearly insolvent.

[16] The board of directors of Canwest Global struck a special committee of directors (the “Special Committee”) with a mandate to explore and consider strategic alternatives. The Special Committee has appointed Thomas Strike, the President, Corporate Development & Strategy Implementation, as Recapitalization Officer and has retained Gary Colter of CRS Inc. as Restructuring Advisor for the LP Entities (the “CRA”). The President of CPI, Dennis Skulsky, will report directly to the Special Committee.

[17] Given their problems, throughout the summer and fall of 2009, the LP Entities have participated in difficult and complex negotiations with their lenders and other stakeholders to obtain forbearance and to work towards a consensual restructuring or recapitalization.

[18] An ad hoc committee of the holders of the senior subordinated unsecured notes (the “Ad Hoc Committee”) was formed in July, 2009 and retained Davies Ward Phillips & Vineberg as counsel. Among other things, the Limited Partnership agreed to pay the Committee’s legal fees up to a maximum of $250,000. Representatives of the Limited Partnership and their advisors have had ongoing discussions with representatives of the Ad Hoc Committee and their counsel was granted access to certain confidential information following execution of a confidentiality agreement. The Ad Hoc Committee has also engaged a financial advisor who has been granted access to the LP Entities’ virtual data room which contains confidential information regarding the business and affairs of the LP Entities. There is no evidence of any satisfactory proposal having been made by the noteholders. They have been in a position to demand payment since August, 2009, but they have not done so.

[19] In the meantime and in order to permit the businesses of the LP Entities to continue to operate as going concerns and in an effort to preserve the greatest number of jobs and maximize value for the stakeholders of the LP Entities, the LP Entities have been engaged in negotiations with the LP Senior Lenders, the result of which is this CCAA application.

(iv) The Support Agreement, the Secured Creditors’ Plan and the Solicitation Process

[20] Since August 31, 2009, the LP Entities and the LP administrative agent for the LP Secured Lenders have worked together to negotiate terms for a consensual, prearranged restructuring, recapitalization or reorganization of the business and affairs of the LP Entities as a going concern. This is referred to by the parties as the Support Transaction.

[21] As part of this Support Transaction, the LP Entities are seeking approval of a Support Agreement entered into by them and the administrative agent for the LP Secured Lenders. 48% of the LP Secured Lenders, the Hedging Secured Creditors, and the Cash Management Creditor (the “Secured Creditors”) are party to the Support Agreement.

[22] Three interrelated elements are contemplated by the Support Agreement and the Support Transaction: the credit acquisition, the Secured Creditors’ plan (the “Plan”), and the sale and investor solicitation process which the parties refer to as SISP.

[23] The Support Agreement contains various milestones with which the LP Entities are to comply and, subject to a successful bid arising from the solicitation process (an important caveat in my view), commits them to support a credit acquisition. The credit acquisition involves an acquisition by an entity capitalized by the Secured Creditors and described as AcquireCo. AcquireCo. would acquire substantially all of the assets of the LP Entities (including the shares in National Post Inc.) and assume certain of the liabilities of the LP Entities. It is contemplated that AcquireCo. would offer employment to all or substantially all of the employees of the LP Entities and would assume all of the LP Entities’ existing pension plans and existing post-retirement and post-employment benefit plans subject to a right by AcquireCo., acting commercially reasonably and after consultation with the operational management of the LP Entities, to exclude certain specified liabilities. The credit acquisition would be the subject matter of a Plan to be voted on by the Secured Creditors on or before January 31, 2010. There would only be one class. The Plan would only compromise the LP Entities’ secured claims and would not affect or compromise any other claims against any of the LP Entities (“unaffected claims”). No holders of the unaffected claims would be entitled to vote on or receive any distributions of their claims. The Secured Creditors would exchange their outstanding secured claims against the LP Entities under the LP credit agreement and the swap obligations respectively for their pro rata shares of the debt and equity to be issued by AcquireCo. All of the LP Entities’ obligations under the LP secured claims calculated as of the date of closing less $25 million would be deemed to be satisfied following the closing of the Acquisition Agreement.

LP secured claims in the amount of $25 million would continue to be held by AcquireCo. and constitute an outstanding unsecured claim against the LP Entities.

[24] The Support Agreement contemplates that the Financial Advisor, namely RBC Dominion Securities Inc., under the supervision of the Monitor, will conduct the solicitation process. Completion of the credit acquisition process is subject to a successful bid arising from the solicitation process. In general terms, the objective of the solicitation process is to obtain a better offer (with some limitations described below) than that reflected in the credit acquisition. If none is obtained in that process, the LP Entities intend for the credit acquisition to proceed assuming approval of the Plan. Court sanction would also be required.

[25] In more detailed terms, Phase I of the solicitation process is expected to last approximately 7 weeks and qualified interested parties may submit non-binding proposals to the Financial Advisor on or before February 26, 2010. Thereafter, the Monitor will assess the proposals to determine whether there is a reasonable prospect of obtaining a Superior Offer. This is in essence a cash offer that is equal to or higher than that represented by the credit acquisition. If there is such a prospect, the Monitor will recommend that the process continue into Phase II. If there is no such prospect, the Monitor will then determine whether there is a Superior Alternative Offer, that is, an offer that is not a Superior Offer but which might nonetheless receive approval from the Secured Creditors. If so, to proceed into Phase II, the Superior Alternative Offer must be supported by Secured Creditors holding more than at least 33.3% of the secured claims. If it is not so supported, the process would be terminated and the LP Entities would then apply for court sanction of the Plan.

[26] Phase II is expected to last approximately 7 weeks as well. This period allows for due diligence and the submission of final binding proposals. The Monitor will then conduct an assessment akin to the Phase 1 process with somewhat similar attendant outcomes if there are no Superior Offers and no acceptable Alternative Superior Offers. If there were a Superior Offer or an acceptable Alternative Superior Offer, an agreement would be negotiated and the requisite approvals sought.

[27] The solicitation process is designed to allow the LP Entities to test the market. One concern is that a Superior Offer that benefits the secured lenders might operate to preclude a Superior Alternative Offer that could provide a better result for the unsecured creditors. That said, the LP Entities are of the view that the solicitation process and the support transaction present the best opportunity for the businesses of the LP Entities to continue as going concerns, thereby preserving jobs as well as the economic and social benefits of their continued operation. At this stage, the alternative is a bankruptcy or liquidation which would result in significant detriment not only to the creditors and employees of the LP Entities but to the broader community that benefits from the continued operation of the LP Entities' business. I also take some comfort from the position of the Monitor which is best captured in an excerpt from its preliminary Report:

The terms of the Support Agreement and SISP were the subject of lengthy and intense arm's length negotiations between the LP Entities and the LP Administrative Agent. The Proposed Monitor supports approval of the process contemplated therein and of the approval of those documents, but without in any way fettering the various powers and discretions of the Monitor.

[28] It goes without saying that the Monitor, being a court appointed officer, may apply to the court for advice and directions and also owes reporting obligations to the court.

[29] As to the objection of the Ad Hoc Committee, I make the following observations. Firstly, they represent unsecured subordinated debt. They have been in a position to take action since August, 2009. Furthermore, the LP Entities have provided up to $250,000 for them to retain legal counsel. Meanwhile, the LP Secured Lenders have been in a position to enforce their rights through a non-consensual court proceeding and have advised the LP Entities of their abilities in that regard in the event that the LP Entities did not move forward as contemplated by the Support Agreement. With the Support Agreement and the solicitation process, there is an enhanced likelihood of the continuation of going concern operations, the preservation of jobs and the maximization of value for stakeholders of the LP Entities. It seemed to me that in the face of these facts and given that the Support Agreement expired on January 8, 2010, adjourning the proceeding was not merited in the circumstances. The Committee did receive very short notice. Without being taken as encouraging or discouraging the use of the comeback clause in the order, I disagree with the submission of counsel to the Ad Hoc Committee to the effect that it is very difficult if not impossible to stop a process relying on that provision. That provision in the order is a meaningful one as is clear from the decision in *Muscletech Research & Development Inc.*⁵. On a come back motion, although the positions of parties who have relied bona fide on an Initial Order should not be prejudiced, the onus is on the applicants for an Initial Order to satisfy the court that the existing terms should be upheld.

Proposed Monitor

[30] The Applicants propose that FTI Consulting Canada Inc. serve as the Monitor. It currently serves as the Monitor in the CMI Entities' CCAA proceeding. It is desirable for FTI to act; it is qualified to act; and it has consented to act. It has not served in any of the incompatible capacities described in section 11.7(2) of the CCAA. The proposed Monitor has an enhanced role that is reflected in the order and which is acceptable.

Proposed Order

[31] As mentioned, I granted the order requested. It is clear that the LP Entities need protection under the CCAA. The order requested will provide stability and enable the LP Entities to pursue their restructuring and preserve enterprise value for their stakeholders. Without the benefit of a stay, the LP Entities would be required to pay approximately $1.45 billion and would be unable to continue operating their businesses.

⁵ 2006 CarswellOnt 264 (S.C.J.).

(a) Threshold Issues

[32] The chief place of business of the Applicants is Ontario. They qualify as debtor companies under the CCAA. They are affiliated companies with total claims against them that far exceed $5 million. Demand for payment of the swap indebtedness has been made and the Applicants are in default under all of the other facilities outlined in these reasons. They do not have sufficient liquidity to satisfy their obligations. They are clearly insolvent.

(b) Limited Partnership

[33] The Applicants seek to extend the stay of proceedings and the other relief requested to the Limited Partnership. The CCAA definition of a company does not include a partnership or a limited partnership but courts have exercised their inherent jurisdiction to extend the protections of an Initial CCAA Order to partnerships when it was just and convenient to do so. The relief has been held to be appropriate where the operations of the partnership are so intertwined with those of the debtor companies that irreparable harm would ensue if the requested stay were not granted: *Re Canwest Global Communications Corp*⁶ and *Re Lehndorff General Partners Ltd*⁷.

[34] In this case, the Limited Partnership is the administrative backbone of the LP Entities and is integral to and intertwined with the Applicants' ongoing operations. It owns all shared information technology assets; it provides hosting services for all Canwest properties; it holds all software licences used by the LP Entities; it is party to many of the shared services agreements involving other Canwest entities; and employs approximately 390 full-time equivalent employees who work in Canwest's shared services area. The Applicants state that failure to extend the stay to the Limited Partnership would have a profoundly negative impact on the value of the Applicants, the Limited Partnership and the Canwest Global enterprise as a whole. addition, exposing the assets of the Limited Partnership to the demands of creditors would make it impossible for the LP Entities to successfully restructure. I am persuaded that under these circumstances it is just and convenient to grant the request.

(c) Filing of the Secured Creditors' Plan

[35] The LP Entities propose to present the Plan only to the Secured Creditors. Claims of unsecured creditors will not be addressed.

[36] The CCAA seems to contemplate a single creditor-class plan. Sections 4 and 5 state:

s.4 Where a compromise or an arrangement is proposed between a debtor company and its unsecured creditors or any class of them, the court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any such creditor or of the trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator of the company, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors and, if the court so determines, of the shareholders of the company, to be summoned in such manner as the court directs.

s.5 Where a compromise or an arrangement is proposed between a debtor company and its secured creditors or any class of them, the court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any such creditor or of the trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator of the company, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors and, if the court so determines, of the shareholders of the company, to be summoned in such manner as the court directs.

[37] Case law has interpreted these provisions as authorizing a single creditor-class plan. For instance, Blair J. (as he then was) stated in *Re Philip Services Corp.*⁸ : " There is no doubt that a debtor is at liberty, under the terms of sections 4 and 5 of the CCAA, to make a proposal to secured creditors or to unsecured creditors or to both groups."⁹ Similarly, in *Re Anvil Range Mining Corp.*¹⁰, the Court of Appeal stated: "It may also be noted that s. 5 of the CCAA contemplates a plan which is a compromise between a debtor company and its secured creditors and that by the terms of s. 6 of the Act, applied to the facts of this case, the plan is binding only on the secured creditors and the company and not on the unsecured creditors."¹¹

[38] Based on the foregoing, it is clear that a debtor has the statutory authority to present a plan to a single class of creditors. In Re Anvil Range Mining Corp., the issue was raised in the context of the plan's sanction by the court and a consideration of whether the plan was fair and reasonable as it eliminated the opportunity for unsecured creditors to realize anything. The basis of the argument was that the motions judge had erred in not requiring a more complete and in depth valuation of the company's assets relative to the claims of the secured creditors.

[39] In this case, I am not being asked to sanction the Plan at this stage. Furthermore, the Monitor will supervise a vigorous and lengthy solicitation process to thoroughly canvass the market for alternative transactions. The solicitation should provide a good indication of market value. In addition, as counsel for the LP Entities observed, the noteholders and the LP Entities never had any forbearance agreement. The noteholders have been in a position to take action since last summer but chose not to do so. One would expect some action on their part if they themselves believed that they "were in the money". While the process is not perfect, it is subject to the supervision of the court and the Monitor is obliged to report on its results to the court.

[40] In my view it is appropriate in the circumstances to authorize the LP Entities to file and present a Plan only to the Secured Creditors.

(d) DIP Financing

[41] The Applicants seek approval of a DIP facility in the amount of $25 million which would be secured by a charge over all of the assets of the LP Entities and rank ahead of all other charges except the Administration Charge, and ahead of all other existing security interests except validly perfected purchase money security interests and certain specific statutory encumbrances.

[42] Section 11.2 of the CCAA provides the statutory jurisdiction to grant a DIP charge. In *Re Canwest*¹², I addressed this provision. Firstly, an applicant should address the requirements contained in section 11.2 (1) and then address the enumerated factors found in section 11.2(4) of the CCAA. As that list is not exhaustive, it may be appropriate to consider other factors as well.

[43] Applying these principles to this case and dealing firstly with section 11.2(1) of the CCAA, notice either has been given to secured creditors likely to be affected by the security or charge or alternatively they are not affected by the DIP charge. While funds are not anticipated to be immediately necessary, the cash flow statements project a good likelihood that the LP Entities will require the additional liquidity afforded by the $25 million. The ability to borrow funds that are secured by a charge will help retain the confidence of the LP Entities' trade creditors, employees and suppliers. It is expected that the DIP facility will permit the LP Entities to conduct the solicitation process and consummate a recapitalization transaction of a sale of all or some of its assets. The charge does not secure any amounts that were owing prior to the filing. As such, there has been compliance with the provisions of section 11.2 (1).

[44] Turning then to a consideration of the factors found in section 11.2(4) of the Act, the LP Entities are expected to be subject to these CCAA proceedings until July 31, 2010. Their business and financial affairs will be amply managed during the proceedings. This is a consensual filing which is reflective of the confidence of the major creditors in the current management configuration. All of these factors favour the granting of the charge. The DIP loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement and would ensure the necessary stability during the CCAA process. I have already touched upon the issue of value. That said, in relative terms, the quantum of the DIP financing is not large and there is no readily apparent material prejudice to any creditor arising from the granting of the charge and approval of the financing. I also note that it is endorsed by the proposed Monitor in its report.

[45] Other factors to consider in assessing whether to approve a DIP charge include the reasonableness of the financing terms and more particularly the associated fees. Ideally there should be some evidence on this issue. Prior to entering into the forbearance agreement, the LP Entities sought proposals from other third party lenders for a DIP facility. In this case, some but not all of the Secured Creditors are participating in the financing of the DIP loan. Therefore, only some would benefit from the DIP while others could bear the burden of it. While they may have opted not to participate in the DIP financing for various reasons, the concurrence of the non participating Secured Creditors is some market indicator of the appropriateness of the terms of the DIP financing.

[46] Lastly, I note that the DIP lenders have indicated that they would not provide a DIP facility if the charge was not approved. In all of these circumstances, I was prepared to approve the DIP facility and grant the DIP charge.

(e) Critical Suppliers

[47] The LP Entities ask that they be authorized but not required to pay pre-filing amounts owing in arrears to certain suppliers if the supplier is critical to the business and ongoing operations of the LP Entities or the potential future benefit of the payments is considerable and of value to the LP Entities as a whole. Such payments could only be made with the consent of the proposed Monitor. At present, it is contemplated that such suppliers would consist of certain newspaper suppliers, newspaper distributors, logistic suppliers and the Amex Bank of Canada. The LP Entities do not seek a charge to secure payments to any of its critical suppliers.

[48] Section 11.4 of the CCAA addresses critical suppliers. It states:

11.4(1) On application by a debtor company and on notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, the court may make an order declaring a person to be a critical supplier to the company if the court is satisfied that the person is a supplier of goods and services to the company and that the goods or services that are supplied are critical to the company's continued operation.

(2) If the court declares the person to be a critical supplier, the court may make an order requiring the person to supply any goods or services specified by the court to the company on any terms and conditions that are consistent with the supply relationship or that the court considers appropriate.

(3) If the court makes an order under subsection (2), the court shall, in the order, declare that all or part of the property of the company is subject to a security or charge in favour of the person declared to be a critical supplier, in an amount equal to the value of the goods or services supplied upon the terms of the order.

(4) The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

[49] Mr. Byers, who is counsel for the Monitor, submits that the court has always had discretion to authorize the payment of critical suppliers and that section 11.4 is not intended to address that issue. Rather, it is intended to respond to a post-filing situation where a debtor company wishes to compel a supplier to supply. In those circumstances, the court may declare a person to be a critical supplier and require the person to supply. If the court chooses to compel a person to supply, it must authorize a charge as security for the supplier. Mr. Barnes, who is counsel for the LP Entities, submits that section 11.4 is not so limited. Section 11.4 (1) gives the court general jurisdiction to declare a supplier to be a "critical supplier" where the supplier provides goods or services that are essential to the ongoing business of the debtor company. The permissive as opposed to mandatory language of section 11.4 (2) supports this interpretation.

[50] Section 11.4 is not very clear. As a matter of principle, one would expect the purpose of section 11.4 to be twofold: (i) to codify the authority to permit suppliers who are critical to the continued operation of the company to be paid and (ii) to require the granting of a charge in circumstances where the court is compelling a person to supply. If no charge is proposed to be granted, there is no need to give notice to the secured creditors. I am not certain that the distinction between Mr. Byers and Mr. Barnes' interpretation is of any real significance for the purposes of this case. Either section 11.4(1) does not oust the court's inherent jurisdiction to make provision for the payment of critical suppliers where no charge is requested or it provides authority to the court to declare persons to be critical suppliers. Section 11.4(1) requires the person to be a supplier of goods and services that are critical to the companies' operation but does not impose any additional conditions or limitations.

[51] The LP Entities do not seek a charge but ask that they be authorized but not required to make payments for the pre-filing provision of goods and services to certain third parties who are critical and integral to their businesses. This includes newsprint and ink suppliers. The LP Entities are dependent upon a continuous and uninterrupted supply of newsprint and ink and they have insufficient inventory on hand to meet their needs. It also includes newspaper distributors who are required to distribute the newspapers of the LP Entities; American Express whose corporate card programme and accounts are used by LP Entities employees for business related expenses; and royalty fees accrued and owing to content providers for the subscription-based on-line service provided by FPinfomart.ca, one of the businesses of the LP Entities. The LP Entities believe that it would be damaging to both their ongoing operations and their ability to restructure if they are unable to pay their critical suppliers. I am satisfied that the LP Entities may treat these parties and those described in Mr. Strike's affidavit as critical suppliers but none will be paid without the consent of the Monitor.

(f) Administration Charge and Financial Advisor Charge

[52] The Applicants also seek a charge in the amount of $3 million to secure the fees of the Monitor, its counsel, the LP Entities' counsel, the Special Committee's financial advisor and counsel to the Special Committee, the CRA and counsel to the CRA. These are professionals whose services are critical to the successful restructuring of the LP Entities' business. This charge is to rank in priority to all other security interests in the LP Entities' assets, with the exception of purchase money security interests and specific statutory encumbrances as provided for in the proposed order.¹³ The LP Entities also request a $10 million charge in favour of the Financial Advisor, RBC Dominion Securities Inc. The Financial Advisor is providing investment banking services to the LP Entities and is essential to the solicitation process. This charge would rank in third place, subsequent to the administration charge and the DIP charge.

[53] In the past, an administration charge was granted pursuant to the inherent jurisdiction of the court. Section 11.52 of the amended CCAA now provides statutory jurisdiction to grant an administration charge. Section 11.52 states:

On notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, the court may make an order declaring that all or part of the property of the debtor company is subject to a security or charge – in an amount that the court considers appropriate – in respect of the fees and expenses of

- (a) the monitor, including the fees and expenses of any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the monitor in the performance of the monitor's duties;
- (b) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the company for the purpose of proceedings under this Act; and
- (c) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by any other interested person if the court is satisfied that the security or charge is necessary for their effective participation in proceedings under this Act.

¹³ This exception also applies to the other charges granted.

- (2) The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

[54] I am satisfied that the issue of notice has been appropriately addressed by the LP Entities. As to whether the amounts are appropriate and whether the charges should extend to the proposed beneficiaries, the section does not contain any specific criteria for a court to consider in its assessment. It seems to me that factors that might be considered would include:

- (a) the size and complexity of the businesses being restructured;
- (b) the proposed role of the beneficiaries of the charge;
- (c) whether there is an unwarranted duplication of roles;
- (d) whether the quantum of the proposed charge appears to be fair and reasonable;
- (e) the position of the secured creditors likely to be affected by the charge; and
- (f) the position of the Monitor.

This is not an exhaustive list and no doubt other relevant factors will be developed in the jurisprudence.

[55] There is no question that the restructuring of the LP Entities is large and highly complex and it is reasonable to expect extensive involvement by professional advisors. Each of the professionals whose fees are to be secured has played a critical role in the LP Entities restructuring activities to date and each will continue to be integral to the solicitation and restructuring process. Furthermore, there is no unwarranted duplication of roles. As to quantum of both proposed charges, I accept the Applicants' submissions that the business of the LP Entities and the tasks associated with their restructuring are of a magnitude and complexity that justify the amounts. I also take some comfort from the fact that the administrative agent for the LP Secured Lenders has agreed to them. In addition, the Monitor supports the charges requested. The quantum of the administration charge appears to be fair and reasonable. As to the quantum of the charge in favour of the Financial Advisor, it is more unusual as it involves an incentive payment but I note that the Monitor conducted its own due diligence and, as mentioned, is supportive of the request. The quantum reflects an appropriate incentive to secure a desirable alternative offer. Based on all of these factors, I concluded that the two charges should be approved.

(g) Directors and Officers

[56] The Applicants also seek a directors and officers charge (“D & O charge”) in the amount of $35 million as security for their indemnification obligations for liabilities imposed upon the Applicants’ directors and officers. The D & O charge will rank after the Financial Advisor charge and will rank pari passu with the MIP charge discussed subsequently. Section 11.51 of the CCAA addresses a D & O charge. I have already discussed section 11.51 in *Re Canwest*¹⁴ as it related to the request by the CMI Entities for a D & O charge. Firstly, the charge is essential to the successful restructuring of the LP Entities. The continued participation of the experienced Boards of Directors, management and employees of the LP Entities is critical to the restructuring. Retaining the current officers and directors will also avoid destabilization. Furthermore, a CCAA restructuring creates new risks and potential liabilities for the directors and officers. The amount of the charge appears to be appropriate in light of the obligations and liabilities that may be incurred by the directors and officers. The charge will not cover all of the directors’ and officers’ liabilities in a worse case scenario. While Canwest Global maintains D & O liability insurance, it has only been extended to February 28, 2009 and further extensions are unavailable. As of the date of the Initial Order, Canwest Global had been unable to obtain additional or replacement insurance coverage.

[57] Understandably in my view, the directors have indicated that due to the potential for significant personal liability, they cannot continue their service and involvement in the restructuring absent a D & O charge. The charge also provides assurances to the employees of the LP Entities that obligations for accrued wages and termination and severance pay will be satisfied. All secured creditors have either been given notice or are unaffected by the D & O charge. Lastly, the Monitor supports the charge and I was satisfied that the charge should be granted as requested.

(h) Management Incentive Plan and Special Arrangements

[58] The LP Entities have made amendments to employment agreements with 2 key employees and have developed certain Management Incentive Plans for 24 participants (collectively the “MIPs”). They seek a charge in the amount of $3 million to secure these obligations. It would be subsequent to the D & O charge.

[59] The CCAA is silent on charges in support of Key Employee Retention Plans (“KERPs”) but they have been approved in numerous CCAA proceedings. Most recently, in *Re Canwest*¹⁵, I approved the KERP requested on the basis of the factors enumerated in *Re Grant Forrest*¹⁶ and given that the Monitor had carefully reviewed the charge and was supportive of the request as were the Board of Directors, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors, the Human Resources Committee of Canwest Global and the Adhoc Committee of Noteholders.

[60] The MIPs in this case are designed to facilitate and encourage the continued participation of certain senior executives and other key employees who are required to guide the LP Entities through a successful restructuring. The participants are critical to the successful restructuring of the LP Entities. They are experienced executives and have played critical roles in the restructuring initiatives to date. They are integral to the continued operation of the business during the restructuring and the successful completion of a plan of restructuring, reorganization, compromise or arrangement.

¹⁶ [2009] O.J. No. 3344 (S.C.J.).

[61] In addition, it is probable that they would consider other employment opportunities in the absence of a charge securing their payments. The departure of senior management would distract from and undermine the restructuring process that is underway and it would be extremely difficult to find replacements for these employees. The MIPs provide appropriate incentives for the participants to remain in their current positions and ensures that they are properly compensated for their assistance in the reorganization process.

[62] In this case, the MIPs and the MIP charge have been approved in form and substance by the Board of Directors and the Special Committee of Canwest Global. The proposed Monitor has also expressed its support for the MIPs and the MIP charge in its pre-filing report. In my view, the charge should be granted as requested.

(i) Confidential Information

[63] The LP Entities request that the court seal the confidential supplement which contains individually identifiable information and compensation information including sensitive salary information about the individuals who are covered by the MIPs. It also contains an unredacted copy of the Financial Advisor's agreement. I have discretion pursuant to Section 137(2) of the *Courts of Justice Act*¹⁷ to order that any document filed in a civil proceeding be treated as confidential, sealed and not form part of the public record. That said, public access in an important tenet of our system of justice.

[64] The threshold test for sealing orders is found in the Supreme Court of Canada decision of *Sierra Club of Canada v Canada (Minister of Finance)*¹⁸. In that case, Iacobucci J. stated that an order should only be granted when: (i) it is necessary in order to prevent a serious risk to an important interest, including a commercial interest, in the context of litigation because reasonable alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and (ii) the salutary effects of the confidentiality order, including the effects on the right of civil litigants to a fair trial, outweigh its deleterious effects, including the effects on the right to free expression, which in this context includes the public interest in open and accessible court proceedings.

[65] In *Re Canwest*¹⁹ I applied the Sierra Club test and approved a similar request by the Applicants for the sealing of a confidential supplement containing unredacted copies of KERPs for the employees of the CMI Entities. Here, with respect to the first branch of the Sierra Club test, the confidential supplement contains unredacted copies of the MIPs. Protecting the disclosure of sensitive personal and compensation information of this nature, the disclosure of which would cause harm to both the LP Entities and the MIP participants, is an important commercial interest that should be protected. The information would be of obvious strategic advantage to competitors. Moreover, there are legitimate personal privacy concerns in issue. The MIP participants have a reasonable expectation that their names and their salary information will be kept confidential. With respect to the second branch of the Sierra Club test, keeping the information confidential will not have any deleterious effects. As in the Re Canwest case, the aggregate amount of the MIP charge has been disclosed and the individual personal information adds nothing. The salutary effects of sealing the confidential supplement outweigh any conceivable deleterious effects. In the normal course, outside of the context of a CCAA proceeding, confidential personal and salary information would be kept confidential by an employer and would not find its way into the public domain. With respect to the unredacted Financial Advisor agreement, it contains commercially sensitive information the disclosure of which could be harmful to the solicitation process and the salutary effects of sealing it outweigh any deleterious effects. The confidential supplements should be sealed and not form part of the public record at least at this stage of the proceedings.

Conclusion

[66] For all of these reasons, I was prepared to grant the order requested.

INTRODUCTION

[1] On June 17, 2020, the petitioners filed these proceedings seeking a restructuring solution to their financial problems, pursuant to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 (the "CCAA").

[2] The petitioner, 1057863 B.C. Ltd., a British Columbia company, is the parent company of the other petitioners. The corporate group also includes various limited partnerships that are not named petitioners. Together, the group operates a pulp mill in Pictou County, Nova Scotia (the "Pulp Mill"). They also conduct related forestry activities in the Province of Nova Scotia to support those operations. I will refer to the group collectively as the "Petitioners".

[3] On January 31, 2020, the Petitioners were required to shut down the Pulp Mill, resulting in a complete cessation of its business activities. At the centre of the reasons for the shut down is an Effluent Treatment Facility ("ETF") that became inoperable after that date. The ETF is source of considerable controversy with certain of the stakeholders.

[4] Without the ability to use the ETF, the Pulp Mill could not operate.

[5] The Petitioners describe that the shut down of the Pulp Mill had a "devastating effect" on them and their partners. Indeed, most employees were laid off after the shut down.

[6] On June 19, 2020, the Petitioners sought and the Court granted an initial order under the CCAA (the "Initial Order"). The Petitioners' stated intention at that time was to continue to ensure the orderly hibernation, care and maintenance of the Pulp Mill while they investigated and assessed various restructuring options. The Initial Order granted was what is colloquially termed a "skinny" order, particularly in light of new strictures under s. 11.001 of the CCAA that limit the initial relief to what is reasonably necessary during the initial stay period.

[7] In the Initial Order, I appointed Ernst & Young Inc. as Monitor. I granted a Director's Charge limited to $500,000. I extended the stay of proceedings to the limited partnerships, as appropriate in these circumstances: 4519922 Canada Inc. (Re), 2015 ONSC 124 at para. 37. Finally, I granted an Administration Charge of $500,000. At the time of the initial hearing, the Petitioners indicated that it was their intention to come back to the Court to seek approval of interim financing and other relief, including approval of a Key Employee Retention Plan ("KERP") and authority to pay certain pre-filing amounts.

[8] Since June 19, 2020, I have extended the stay a number of times to allow further discussions between the Petitioners and their stakeholders toward a possible resolution, including with the Province of Nova Scotia ("Nova Scotia"), their major secured creditor. The Monitor supported those extensions, as set out in its first report to the Court dated July 2, 2020 (the "First Report").

[9] Unfortunately, considerable disagreement remains as to whether this proceeding should continue and if so, on what terms.

[10] This hearing was essentially the comeback hearing. The Petitioners sought an Amended and Restated Initial Order ("ARIO") to incorporate the original relief in the Initial Order, with some amendments; significantly, they sought approval for interim financing that would allow their restructuring activities to continue.

[11] On August 6, 2020, I granted an ARIO that incorporated much of the relief sought. In addition, I granted the order sought by Unifor, Local 440 ("Unifor") for representative status in this proceeding. These reasons follow from my decisions at that time.

BACKGROUND

[12] The Pulp Mill has a considerable history leading to the current and fraught relationship between the owners of the Pulp Mill and other stakeholders, being Nova Scotia in particular. I will only provide a very high-level description of that history as is relevant to this application.

[13] The Pulp Mill has been in operation since 1967. It is located on Abercrombie Point in Pictou County, NS. The process of producing pulp at the Pulp Mill creates wastewater, and it is necessary to treat that wastewater before discharge. Since 1972, the treatment of the wastewater was done at the ETF, which is located near “Boat Harbour”. Nova Scotia owns the ETF and has leased it to the Pulp Mill’s owners over the years. As stated, the Pulp Mill cannot operate without treating the wastewater at the ETF.

[14] The Pulp Mill is adjacent to reserve lands of the Pictou Landing First Nation (“PLFN”), a Mi’kmaq First Nation.

[15] In 2011, Paper Excellence Canada Holdings Corporation (“PEC”) directly or indirectly acquired ownership of the Petitioners. PEC describes having spent more than $118 million in respect of the operations of the Pulp Mill and related activities.

[16] Events leading to the Petitioners’ financial difficulties include:

- a) In 2014, there was an effluent leak in the pipeline from the Pulp Mill to the ETF; that event led to PLFN members blockading the area;
- b) In 2015, Nova Scotia passed the Boat Harbour Act, S.N.S. 2015, c. 4 (the “BHAct”). The BHAct required the Petitioners cease using the ETF for the reception and treatment of effluent from the Pulp Mill by January 31, 2020. The deadline set in this legislation was contrary to the terms of the lease between Nova Scotia and the Pulp Mill (entered into prior to PEC’s involvement) that contemplated use of the ETF until December 31, 2030;
- c) The Petitioners set about planning for a replacement ETF (“RETF”) that would allow the Pulp Mill’s operations to continue past January 2020. The Petitioners have spent considerable monies to advance the project, with financial and other contributions by Nova Scotia;

- d) The Petitioners' efforts to establish the RETF involved, understandably, considerable input and agreement from Nova Scotia under its environmental and regulatory process and requirements;
- e) The RETF approval process did not go smoothly, at least from the Petitioners' point of view. In part, the process took place in the face of litigation between Nova Scotia and PLFN relating to Nova Scotia's decisions in relation to the Petitioners and the Pulp Mill;
- f) The Petitioners say that they told Nova Scotia that it was not possible to complete the RETF by January 2020. Nova Scotia says that they never gave the Petitioners any inkling that a possible extension would be afforded to them;
- g) Matters came to a head somewhat in late December 2019. Nova Scotia's Minister of Environment ("MOE") determined that a further environmental assessment report ("EAR") was required for the RETF. Almost immediately thereafter, Nova Scotia gave formal notice to the Petitioners that no extension under the BHAct was forthcoming;
- h) In January 2020, the Petitioners filed a judicial review proceeding challenging the MOE's requirement to file a further EAR (the "Judicial Review");
- i) The Pulp Mill ceased operations on January 12, 2020;
- j) Commencing January 29, 2020, the MOE issued various orders to the Petitioners in respect of the orderly shutdown of the Pulp Mill. The MOE's May 14, 2020 order was appealed to the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia (the "Appeal"); and
- k) The Petitioners have clearly signalled to Nova Scotia that they are seeking financial redress from the Province arising from the passage and implementation of the BHAct (the "BH Claim"). As matters stand, the Judicial Review and Appeal are in abeyance, along with the Petitioners' consideration of the BH Claim against Nova Scotia.

[17] The primary debt owed by the Petitioners is to PEC and Nova Scotia. The Petitioners owe PEC approximately $213 million; $30 million of that amount is secured against the Petitioners' assets. The Petitioners owe Nova Scotia approximately $85 million, which has a first ranking secured position against the assets. The Petitioners also owe Nova Scotia $1.3 million on an unsecured basis.

[18] In addition to unsecured amounts owed to PEC, Nova Scotia and employees, the Petitioners owe approximately $4.3 million to trade creditors and owners of the timberlands that they harvested.

[19] Before the shutdown of the Pulp Mill, the Petitioners employed approximately 200 unionized persons, represented by Unifor. In addition, there were approximately 135 other full-time employees, including salaried personnel. The Petitioners also retained approximately 600 contractors on a full or part-time basis.

[20] As of June 2020, approximately 32 employees and 18 seasonal part-time employees remained. The rest of the employees were laid off or terminated.

[21] Considered more broadly, the impact of the shutdown of the Pulp Mill has had far-reaching and considerable negative consequences for the stakeholders.

[22] The Monitor confirms in the First Report that the Petitioners contributed more than $279 million annually to the Nova Scotia economy, arising from purchases of goods and services. The Petitioners maintained a supply chain of approximately 1,379 companies who supported the operations of the Pulp Mill. Finally, the Pulp Mill provided employment for an estimated 2,679 full-time equivalent jobs, generating an estimated $38 million annually in provincial and federal taxes.

INTERIM FINANCING

[23] The Petitioners seek court approval of an interim financing term sheet (the "Term Sheet") for a financing facility (the "Interim Lending Facility") between the Petitioners, as borrowers, PEC, as arranger and agent, and PEC together with Pacific Harbor North American Resources Ltd., as lenders (collectively, the “Interim Lenders”).

[24] The Interim Lending Facility contemplates a maximum principal amount of $50 million. However, the Petitioners presently only seek approval of an initial advance of $15 million and a corresponding charge in favour of the Interim Lenders over the Petitioners’ assets in first ranking priority (the “Interim Financing Charge”). The stated purpose for these initial funds is to allow payment of the Petitioners’ expenses to December 2020. If the Term Sheet is approved, the Petitioners intend to make later applications for court approval to access further draws.

[25] In support of their request, the Petitioners prepared a budget to detail the uses of the $50 million (the “Financing Budget”). The Financing Budget indicates the projected financing requirements of the Petitioners to June 2022. As stated by Bruce Chapman, the general manager of the Petitioners and PEC, those projections were based on a “successful outcome” of these proceedings, said to include: the successful shutdown of the ETF; hibernation of the Pulp Mill; identifying, designing, and obtaining approvals for the RETF; and, negotiating contributions and financing associated with those activities.

[26] After the Petitioners’ introduced the Financing Budget as part of this application, Nova Scotia raised a variety of objections. Nova Scotia’s response at para. 2, filed in opposition to the application, sets out those objections:

- (a) there is no restructuring plan being pursued by the Applicants;
- (b) the DIP financing will be used to fund the Applicants’ pre-filing obligations;
- (c) the DIP financing will be an inappropriate re-prioritization of security;
- (d) the cash flow statements are not supported by appropriate documentation; and
- (e) the Applicants have not engaged the Province in any meaningful way, other than to continue to pursue their agenda for obtaining the DIP financing to fund existing obligations.

[27] The Monitor has brought considerable balance and objectivity forward in terms of assisting the stakeholders in understanding the Financing Budget. In particular, the Monitor has sought to address Nova Scotia's concerns in the face of significant disputes between the Petitioners and Nova Scotia.

[28] In the Monitor's second report dated July 23, 2020 (the "Second Report"), the Monitor introduced the concept of milestones. The milestones set out categories of work or activities required to move the overall restructuring toward the anticipated "success" date of June 2022. Target Completion Dates are identified in the "Milestones Schedule" at Appendix C to the Second Report, along with Evaluation Dates and the Cumulative DIP Draw required by the respective dates. This "Milestones Schedule" provides, in my view, considerable structure to the approval process and it will allow, in the future, the Court, the Monitor and the stakeholders (particularly Nova Scotia) to gauge the ongoing progress of the Petitioners' efforts.

[29] In addition, the Monitor assisted in the development of an interim budget to December 2020 (the "Interim Budget"). That document, discussed in the Monitor's Second Report and its Supplemental Report dated July 30, 2020, provides a detailed breakdown of the activities and the estimated cost of those activities under the initial draw of $15 million. Those activities and costs are:

Activity	Activity Costs
Boat Harbour operations and de-commissioning costs and environmental costs	$6,846,698
Mill operating costs	$1,231,650
Financing and administration costs	$407,734
Employee costs	$1,161,104
Severance and salary continuations	$2,646,498
Professional fees (includes approx. $575,000 for the Judicial Review and Appeal)	$3,481,625
TOTAL	$15,775,308

[30] The Monitor anticipates that, with cash on hand of approximately $4.8 million, the Petitioners will have sufficient funding through to the end of 2020 with this interim financing.

[31] Section 11.2(1) and (2) of the CCAA confirms the Court's jurisdiction to approve interim financing and approve a charge in priority to existing secured creditors:

- (1) On application by a debtor company and on notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, a court may make an order declaring that all or part of the company's property is subject to a security or charge – in an amount that the court considers appropriate – in favour of a person specified in the order who agrees to lend the company an amount approved by the court as being required by the company, having regard to its cash-flow statement. The security or charge may not secure an obligation that exists before the order is made.
- (2) The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

[32] The Supreme Court of Canada recently commented on the importance of the relief available under s. 11.2, including the granting of an interim lenders' charge. In 9354-9186 Québec inc. v. Callidus Capital Corp., 2020 SCC 10 at para. 85-86, the Court confirmed that a court may exercise its discretion to approve such financing to achieve the important statutory objective under the CCAA of not only providing working capital, but also enabling the "preservation and realization of the value of a debtor's assets".

[33] The Court in Callidus also acknowledged that a court's ability to grant a charge in favour of an interim financier is often necessarily and practically the only way to secure this benefit:

[89] Such charges, also known as "priming liens", reduce lenders' risks, thereby incentivizing them to assist insolvent companies. As a practical matter, these charges are often the only way to encourage this lending. Normally, a lender protects itself against lending risk by taking a security interest in the borrower's assets. However, debtor companies under CCAA protection will often have pledged all or substantially all of their assets to other creditors. Accordingly, without the benefit of a super-priority charge, an interim financing lender would rank behind those other creditors. Although super-priority charges do subordinate secured creditors' security positions to the interim financing lender's — a result that was controversial at common law — Parliament has indicated its general acceptance of the trade-offs associated with these charges by enacting s. 11.2(2) [citations omitted].

[34] Section 11.2(4) of the CCAA sets out certain non-exhaustive factors to be considered by the court in deciding whether to approve interim financing and grant an interim lenders' charge:

- (a) the period during which the company is expected to be subject to proceedings under this Act;
- (b) how the company's business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings;
- (c) whether the company's management has the confidence of its major creditors;
- (d) whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the company;
- (e) the nature and value of the company's property;
- (f) whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge; and
- (g) the monitor's report...

[35] No one factor set out in s. 11.2(4) governs or limits the Court's consideration. The exercise is necessarily one of balancing the respective interests of the debtors and its stakeholders towards ensuring, if appropriate, that the financing will assist the debtor company to obtain the "breathing room" said to be needed to hopefully achieve a restructuring acceptable to the creditors and the court: White Birch Paper Holding Co. (Re), 2010 QCCS 1176, at para. 33 and Pacific Shores Resort & Spa Ltd. (Re), 2011 BCSC 1775 at para. 49.

[36] I will discuss the factors in turn.

[37] These proceedings were filed in mid-June 2020. Despite the Petitioners' initial intentions to undertake a restructuring process to mid-2022 under the Interim Lending Facility, their ambitions have been significantly curtailed, at least in the short term. Under the present proposal, the Petitioners seek only to extend these proceedings to December 2020, when hopefully there will be further clarity about how the restructuring may proceed. This shortened period will allow the Court, the Monitor and the stakeholders to get a sense of the Petitioners' progress toward assessing whether any further extension of the proceedings is justified.

[38] Nova Scotia submitted that, if the Court approved the interim financing and extended the stay, that stay period should only be to October 2020, when the Court could assess matters then.

[39] I would not accede to this submission. There is considerable cost and energy to bring matters forward to the Court, which may not necessarily be justified depending on the status of matters in October 2020. Rather, I accept that the financing is justified in order to allow further operations to December 2020. I have specifically ordered the Monitor to provide oversight with respect to the Petitioners' expenditures to ensure that they are consistent with the Interim Budget. In addition, I ordered that the Monitor file a formal report with the Court by no later than October 31, 2020 as to the status of the Petitioners' restructuring efforts and spending under the Interim Budget. That information will of course be available to the stakeholders. If anything arises from that report, the Monitor or any stakeholder may apply to the Court.

[40] Nova Scotia has raised, however obliquely, concerns regarding how the Petitioners' business and financial affairs will be managed during the proceedings. In my view, this largely arises from the great degree of mistrust and suspicion, if not downright animosity, that exists in the chasm that separates Nova Scotia and the Petitioners.

[41] Nova Scotia filed various affidavits in support of its opposition to this application, being those of Duff MacKay Montgomerie, Paul Bradley and Kenneth Swain. All of these affidavits were intended to provide Nova Scotia's side of the "story" and respond to Mr. Chapman's various affidavits. Mr. Chapman replied to the points raised in Nova Scotia's affidavits.

[42] Clearly, the disagreements between the Petitioners and Nova Scotia are many, and some long-standing. Two major issues relate to (a) payments made by the Petitioners to PEC as a shareholder some years ago when monies were owed to Nova Scotia, and (b) the use of monies advanced by Nova Scotia to the Petitioners for environmental expenses under a Contribution Agreement. I only note the existence of those disputes; in my view, there is no need at this time and in these proceedings to resolve those disputes. Whether those disputes need to be resolved in the fullness of time remains to be seen.

[43] I accept that Nova Scotia's concerns give rise to some question as to the future conduct of these proceedings. However, this question is largely answered by the Monitor, who raises no concerns regarding the conduct of the Petitioners' management from the time of the Initial Order. As stated in Pacific Shores at para. 31, the good faith requirement to support the relief on this application relates to conduct within the proceeding, not conduct pre-existing the filing. The Monitor continues to provide oversight with respect to the Petitioners' activities.

[44] One of the major factors is whether the loan would enhance the prospect of the Petitioners making a viable compromise or arrangement with their creditors.

[45] The result of not approving this financing is stark. The shutdown of the Pulp Mill has resulted in a complete cessation of any revenue. Both Mr. Chapman and the Monitor confirm that, without the financing, the Petitioners cannot continue any restructuring efforts or even the continued hibernation of the Pulp Mill. The Monitor confirms that a lack of funding would likely result in a receivership or bankruptcy, with the usual dire result of yielding nothing for the majority of the stakeholders.

[46] A large portion of the $15 million interim financing is earmarked for what Mr. Chapman calls "critical expenses" relating to the direct and indirect expenses of the hibernation of the Pulp Mill. In its opposition, Nova Scotia does not address what would happen in the event that PEC walked away from its investment in the Petitioners and the Pulp Mill. As best I can tell, Nova Scotia seems to be ready to test PEC's resolve to determine if PEC will, as the shareholder, fund the ongoing costs itself without any interim financing and related charge.

[47] In my view, given the sensitive nature of the assets, and the potential and negative consequences particular to the environment and local population arising on a liquidation, I do not consider it is reasonable to allow a “game of chicken” to take place between Nova Scotia and PEC. It appears to be the case that even if a receivership takes place (perhaps at the behest of Nova Scotia), many of these costs would be incurred in any event: Pacific Shores at para. 49(f).

[48] Nova Scotia also takes issue with payment of pre-filing unsecured amounts, including amounts owed to employees and former employees, which the Petitioners seek to fund under the Financing Budget and the Interim Budget. I will address that issue separately below.

[49] Finally, Nova Scotia takes great umbrage in having an Interim Financing Charge placed ahead of its own charge when some of the funds under the Financing and Interim Budgets are to be used to some extent to advance litigation (or potential litigation) against it. Paragraph 10 of the Term Sheet provides that the purpose of the facility is in part to fund expenses associated with:

... the evaluation, settlement or progression of claims and other legal remedies that may be available to the Borrowers and to pay transaction costs, fees and expenses [including all reasonable fees and expenses in connection with any other proceeding pursued or defended by the Borrowers relating to the Northern Pulp facility and business] ...

[50] It is common ground that the “claims and other legal remedies” include the Judicial Review, the Appeal and the potential BH Claim against Nova Scotia. The estimated cost in the Interim Budget of professional fees toward those matters is approximately $575,000. Nova Scotia questions whether the Interim Financing Facility is simply to improve the Petitioners’ negotiating position with Nova Scotia.

[51] The Petitioners state that they remain committed to pursuing the re-start of the Pulp Mill in an environmentally responsible manner by ultimately constructing the RETF and resuming operations. The Petitioners believe that a re-start of operations affords Nova Scotia the best opportunity to recover its secured claims for money advanced. Nova Scotia disagrees and appears to have considered the consequences of a complete and permanent shutdown of the Pulp Mill.

[52] The Petitioners say that they have continued the litigation – and are still considering the BH Claim – against Nova Scotia only as a backstop if they are not able to resolve their outstanding claims against Nova Scotia through negotiation and settlement. As noted by the Petitioners’ counsel, the rights of the Petitioners under the Judicial Review, the Appeal and the BH Claim are choses in action and part of the Petitioners’ assets. In Callidus at para. 96, the Court recognized that funding to preserve a “litigation asset” may be appropriate if it is intended to preserve and realize upon that asset for the benefit of the stakeholders.

[53] In my view, in the overall context, the limited amount of litigation funding proposed to be spent between now and December 2020 is justified in these circumstances. If the proceedings are extended beyond that date, and further funding for that purpose is requested, the Court may revisit the matter.

[54] Another factor is the nature and value of the Petitioners’ property. The Monitor sets out in the First Report that the 2019 unaudited consolidated assets of the Petitioners (at book value) was approximately $343 million. The estimated liabilities as of mid-June 2020 were approximately $311 million. By any measure, most of the value of the Petitioners’ assets, particularly the Pulp Mill, will only be realized if the Pulp Mill begins operations again. That necessarily involves the establishment of the RETF.

[55] The Interim Financing Facility, as limited by the initial draw under the Interim Budget, will allow the Petitioners a short period (some five months) to show real progress toward that objective of enhancing the value of their assets. I do not agree with Nova Scotia that the Petitioners have failed to identify any restructuring plan or that the Interim Financing Facility is the plan. The materials before the Court clearly show a “kernel of a plan” – namely the restart of the Pulp Mill and the Petitioners’ operations, all intended to alleviate the dire financial circumstances here and allow the Petitioners to fashion a way forward with the support of their creditors. The Petitioners should be allowed some opportunity to advance their efforts to that end, if possible.

[56] Another significant factor here is whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced if the Interim Financing Charge is granted. Clearly, Nova Scotia, as the major and presently first ranking secured creditor thinks so. It is not difficult to discern that Nova Scotia faces a myriad of concerns with respect to the Petitioners and the Pulp Mill, including relating to the environment, employment of its citizens, the general welfare of the employees, obligations to the PLFN and the state of its economy.

[57] It is not my role on this application to judge how Nova Scotia has seen fit to balance its duties and obligations in this complex situation. Nova Scotia is clearly frustrated with the Petitioners, noting in particular that it has already contributed significant amounts of public money and other benefits to assist them in meeting their environmental obligations.

[58] I agree that Nova Scotia faces prejudice, although not to the degree submitted by its counsel. As stated above, it remains the case that, if a receivership occurs, a receiver would incur some of these expenses anyway. This is particularly so, with respect to the expenses (both direct and indirect) intended to protect the environment and the citizens of Pictou County in the Pulp Mill hibernation process.

[59] I have no concerns that Nova Scotia is anything but committed to the well-being of the environment and its citizens, particularly those living near the Pulp Mill, such as members of the PLFN. I acknowledge Nova Scotia's concerns, but they must be balanced against other stakeholder interests and prejudice faced by those stakeholders if the financing is not approved: Pacific Shores at para. 49.

[60] The final factor is whether the monitor supports the financing. That is clearly the case here. As stated above, the Monitor has attempt to bridge the gap between Nova Scotia's concerns and the objectives of the Petitioners. It has succeeded to some degree.

[61] The Monitor has carefully analyzed the proposed financing terms. In its various reports, the Monitor has provided a detailed summary of the key elements of the Term Sheet, including specific terms that Nova Scotia questioned (including those provisions relating to payment-in-kind terms, change of control, right of first refusal and right to match, a prohibition on voluntary provisions and certain default terms). In light of submissions made by the Petitioners, and comments of the Monitor, I have no concerns regarding those matters.

[62] Nova Scotia also raised an issue with respect to possible action by the Interim Lenders if there is an Event of Default (para. 23 of the Term Sheet). Again, I had no concerns in that respect as those were normal terms. I ordered an amendment to the draft ARIO to ensure that it was consistent with the provisions in the Term Sheet.

[63] The Monitor recommends approval of the Interim Financing Facility, limited to the initial draw under the Interim Budget. I expect that the Monitor will work closely with the Petitioners in the next few months to ensure that proper expenditures are made in accordance with the Interim Budget. Such oversight will allow adequate protection to the stakeholders in this critical interim period while the Petitioners explore what options are available to them in the future with or without certain stakeholder support.

[64] I conclude that the Interim Financing Facility is reasonable and appropriate in the circumstances. I approve the interim draw of $15 million, as sought. This financing will provide a viable short term path forward to allow the Petitioners to explore restructuring options, all for the benefit of the entire large stakeholder group, including Nova Scotia, the employees (both past and present) and members of the PLFN, all of whom were represented on this application.

[65] As noted by Petitioners' counsel, no other viable alternatives are available to avoid the significant and negative social, economic and environmental consequences if the Petitioners do not receive the funding they need to advance their restructuring plan.

SEVERANCE / SALARY CONTINUATION PAYMENTS

[66] The Initial Order provided that the Petitioners could pay certain employee expenses incurred prior to that date:

4. The Petitioners shall be entitled, but not required, to pay the following expenses which may have been incurred prior to the Order Date:
 - (a) all outstanding wages, salaries, employee and pension benefits (including long and short term disability payments), vacation pay and expenses (but excluding severance pay) payable before or after the Order Date, in each case incurred in the ordinary course of business and consistent with the relevant compensation policies and arrangements existing at the time incurred ...

[67] The pre-filing unsecured employee obligations fall into two categories:

- a) 191 unionized employees were terminated before filing (or expect to be terminated shortly), triggering severance obligations under Unifor's collective bargaining agreements (the "Severance Obligations"). Before the filing, approximately half of that amount ($1.65 million) was paid, leaving approximately $1.94 million to be paid (some already due and the rest to be funded into July 2021); and
- b) Between January and June 2020, 45 salaried employees were terminated. In that event, their employment agreements require payment of salary continuance (the "Salary Continuance"). Before the filing, $3.3 million of Salary Continuance was paid. Under the terms of the Initial Order, $370,000 was paid to these employees. The remaining estimated amount of Salary Continuance budgeted to be paid from August 2020 to September 2024 is approximately $3.5 million.

[68] The Interim Budget provides for payment of the Severance Obligations and the Salary Continuance, together with benefits to retired employees. The Petitioners seek an order allowing them to make such payments, estimated in total at $2.9 million to December 2020.

[69] Unifor understandably supports the Petitioners' request to make pre-filing payments of the Severance Obligations in accordance with the Interim Budget.

[70] There is no dispute between the parties that I have the jurisdiction to authorize payment of pre-filing unsecured obligations. Section 11 of the CCAA provides a broad discretion to the Court to make any order as may be "appropriate in the circumstances". The more difficult question is whether I should exercise my discretion to allow such payments here.

[71] Nova Scotia disputes that these payments are appropriate in the circumstances. The Monitor presents, appropriately, a neutral exposition of the relevant circumstances, without recommendation.

[72] The Petitioners refer to Cinram International Inc. (Re), 2012 ONSC 3767. In Cinram, the Court authorized payments to certain employees, including any obligations that arose prior to the filing. However, as noted at paras. 23 and 43, the Court did so in the context of Cinram's "ongoing business operations" and with respect to the "active employment of employees in the ordinary course".

[73] In this case, there are no ongoing business operations as discussed in Cinram; in addition, the payments are to be made to former employees who were terminated before the filing.

[74] The circumstances considered in JTI-Macdonald Corp. (Re), 2019 ONSC 1625 are also unhelpful to the Petitioners. At paras. 24-25, the Court's discussion of payment of pre-filing employee claims took place within the context of "critical suppliers" and the need to ensure continued delivery of necessary goods and services for the debtor's operations and to support the restructuring. The Court accepted the recommendation of the proposed monitor that pre and post-filing "payroll and benefits" be paid. The monitor's reasons included that many of the relevant payments would have priority status and/or give rise to director liability if not paid. Further, in the proposed monitor's experience, it is common to pay pre-filing and post-filing obligations to employees in the normal course, to ensure continued and uninterrupted service by employees. Importantly, the debtor had sufficient cash on hand to pay these expenses, which is not the case here.

[75] The reasons advanced by the Petitioners in asserting that these payments are “critical” are much more ephemeral than the reasons advanced in JTI-Macdonald. The Petitioners argue that allowing payment of the pre-filing unsecured employee amounts (in addition to ongoing employee expenses) is necessary to:

- a) preserve the Petitioners’ going concern value;
- b) ensure that the other activities provided for in the Interim Financing Budget can be carried out by the Petitioners’ remaining employees;
- c) mitigate the adverse effects of the Pulp Mill’s closure in the communities in which the Petitioners operate. The Petitioners emphasize the significant negative consequences suffered by the lay-offs and terminations, particularly in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic;
- d) preserve their relationships with the employees who are no longer working, many of whom are expected to be called upon to return to employment at the Pulp Mill in the future if the construction of the RETF is undertaken; and
- e) preserve their relationship with Unifor. The Petitioners state that unions as a whole will inevitably be present in some form if the Petitioners resume operations. They say that preserving an effective working relationship with Unifor, consistent with Unifor’s collective bargaining agreements, will provide an additional benefit to them, both during and after these proceedings.

[76] The Petitioners also reiterate that payment of these pre-filing employee amounts will signal their commitment to the stakeholders to develop and implement a plan to recommence the Pulp Mill's operations and in doing so, alleviate financial hardship within what they describe is a critical stakeholder group.

[77] I appreciate that court approval to allow payment to employees, even for pre-filing unsecured amounts, is often granted. When a debtor is conducting ongoing operations during a proceeding, it will often be necessary to ensure that employment relationships are not disrupted so as to hinder the restructuring efforts.

[78] However, the starting point for this discussion continues to be that all pre-filing unsecured amounts are not to be paid in a CCAA proceeding, even if owed to employees. All pre-filing creditors are covered under the general stay of proceedings; any payment is the exception to the general rule. That starting point is intended to preserve the status quo between creditors of the debtor pending the debtor advancing a fair and equitable proposal at the end of the day in respect of all of its obligations.

[79] At that later stage, it is generally anticipated that unsecured creditors will be treated fairly and equitably in any plan of arrangement, usually by way of a pro rata payment, subject to certain minimum requirements with respect to employee claims, as set out in s. 6(5) of the CCAA.

[80] Two Ontario decisions, cited by Nova Scotia, are of assistance.

[81] The first decision is Nortel Networks Corp. (Re), [2009] O.J. No. 2558 (Ont. S.C.J.) aff'd Sproule v. Nortel Networks Corp., 2009 ONCA 833. In the lower court, Justice Morawetz (as he then was) was addressing requests from the union and former employees for payment of their pre-filing claims for retirement allowance payments, voluntary retirement options, vacation pay, benefit options and termination and severance pay.

[82] At para. 51 of Nortel, Morawetz J. noted that it was necessary to take into account the overall financial picture of the applicants, who opposed the applications. There, as here, the debtor was not in a position to pay their obligations to all creditors and a number of defaults were present, including those relating to the unionized and former employees. At para. 57, Morawetz J. described that Nortel was not carrying on “business as usual”, which is also the case here. The Court dismissed the application stating:

[60] An overriding consideration is that the employee claims whether put forth by the Union or the Former Employees, are unsecured claims. These claims do not have any statutory priority.

[80] At this stage of the Applicants’ CCAA process, I see no basis in principle to treat either unionized or non-unionized employees differently than other unsecured creditors of the Applicants. Their claims are all stayed. The Applicants are attempting to restructure for the benefit of all stakeholders and their resources should be used for such a purpose.

[83] In Sproule, the Court of Appeal agreed that the stay applied to these types of claims:

[39] The CCAA stay provision is a clear example of a case where the intent of Parliament, to allow the court to freeze the debt obligations owing to all creditors for past services (and goods) in order to permit a company to restructure for the benefit of all stakeholders, would be frustrated if the court’s stay order could not apply to statutory termination and severance payments owed to terminated employees in respect of past services.

[84] The Court in Nortel asked the monitor to investigate whether an interim payment might be made to the employees in any event. That request was made, however, in very different circumstances where there were no significant secured creditors and a distribution to the unsecured creditors seemed likely in any event:

[87] However, I am also mindful that the record, as I have previously noted, makes reference to a number of individuals that are severely impacted by the cessation of payments. There are no significant secured creditors of the Applicants, outside of certain charges provided for in the CCAA proceedings, and in view of the Applicants’ declared assets, it is reasonable to expect that there will be a meaningful distribution to unsecured creditors, including retirees and Former Employees. The timing of such distribution may be extremely important to a number of retirees and Former Employees who have been severely impacted by the cessation of payments. In my view, it would be both helpful and equitable if a partial distribution could be made to affected employees on a timely basis.

[85] In Windsor Machine & Stamping Ltd. (Re), [2009] O.J. No. 3195 (Ont. S.C.J.), the union brought an application to require the debtors to pay termination and severance pay owing as a result of post-filing terminations. The major secured creditor objected. Justice Morawetz similarly rejected this application, citing the priority of that secured creditor:

[43] First, the priority of secured creditors must, in my view, be recognized. Counsel to the Union made the submission that the Applicants and the Bank are advancing a priority argument that may be relevant in a bankruptcy or receivership proceeding but not in a CCAA proceeding, as there is no priority distribution scheme in the CCAA. In my view this submission is misguided. Although there is no specific priority distribution scheme in the CCAA, that does not mean that priority issues should not be considered. An initial order under the CCAA usually results in a stay of proceedings as against secured creditors as well as unsecured creditors. The stay prevents secured creditors from taking enforcement proceedings which would confirm their priority position. The inability of a secured creditor to take such enforcement proceedings should not result in an enhanced position for unsecured creditors. There is no basis, in my view, for the argument that somehow the absence of a statutory distribution scheme entitles unsecured creditors to obtain enhanced priority over secured creditors for pre-filing obligations. To give effect to this argument would result in a situation where secured creditors would be prejudiced by participating in CCAA proceedings as opposed to receivership/bankruptcy proceedings. This could very well result in a situation where secured creditors would prefer the receivership/bankruptcy option as opposed to the CCAA option as it would recognize their priority position. Such an outcome would undermine certain key objectives of the CCAA, namely, (i) maintain the status quo during the proceedings; and (ii) to facilitate the ability of a debtor to restructure its affairs. In my view, it is essential, in a court supervised process, to give due consideration to the priority rights of secured creditors. In this case, the secured creditors have priority over the termination pay and severance pay claims of the Tilbury Union Employees and the Pellus Union Employees.

[44] Second, counsel to the Union also submits that based on the rationale in the decision of the Court of Appeal in Re 1231640 Ontario Inc. (State Group) (2007), 37 C.B.R. (5th) 185 (Ont. C.A.), priority rules do not crystallize in a CCAA proceeding. I do not accept this argument. State Group addressed a priority issue as between competing PPSA secured creditors in the context of a interim receivership under s. 47 of the BIA. The issue in State Group was whether a s. 47 BIA receiver was a person who represents creditors of the debtor under s. 20(1)(b) of the PPSA. The Court of Appeal held that an interim receiver was not such a person. The issue in State Group governs the relationship as between competing interests under the PPSA. In my view, it does not stand for the proposition that the priority position of a secured creditor vis-à-vis unsecured creditors should not be recognized in the context of a CCAA proceeding.

[45] Third, the Union put forth submissions to the effect that, in this particular situation, the amount of termination pay and severance pay is relatively low and the Applicants have the cash to pay the amounts owing and, further, that such payments would not jeopardize the Proposed Sale.

[46] In my view, the fact that the Applicants may have available cash does not mean that the Applicants can use the cash as they see fit. The asset is to be used in accordance with credit agreements and court authorized purposes, including those set out in the Amended and Restated Initial Order. I am in agreement with these submissions of counsel to the Applicants as set out at [15]. This Order placed restrictions on the use of cash, which restrictions are consistent with legal priorities. In my view, the fact that the Applicants have cash does not justify an alteration of legal priorities. The legal priority position is that the claims for termination pay and severance pay are unsecured claims which rank pari passu with other unsecured creditors and subordinate to the interests of the secured creditors. (See also Indalex Limited, [2009] O.J. No. 3165, CV-09-8122-00CL – July 24, 2009 on this point.)

[47] I acknowledge that the situation facing the employees is unfortunate and that in Nortel, a hardship exception was made. However, this exception was predicated, in part, on the reasonable expectation that there will be a meaningful distribution to unsecured creditors, including the former employees. Such is not the case in this matter.

[86] The circumstances here are more resonant with the facts discussed in Nortel and Windsor Machine. Given that this proceeding is very much in its early days, I cannot conclude that a distribution to pre-filing unsecured claims (including to the employees) is likely at the end of the day. There are no ongoing operations; there is no cash with which to pay these amounts.

[87] Significantly, Nova Scotia, the major secured creditor, whose security would be primed by these payments, objects. In the absence of any objection by Nova Scotia, and with the general support of the Petitioners and the stakeholders appearing on this application, I might have come to a different conclusion.

[88] The Petitioners also argue that the Severance Obligations constitute inchoate priority charges under provisions of the Nova Scotia Labour Standards Code, R.S.N.S. 1989, c. 246 (the “Code”). They argue that these provisions would be triggered if an employee makes a successful claim to the Nova Scotia Labour Board (the “Board”) and the Board issues an order. They refer to s. 88 of the Code that provides that amounts in an order are a debt due to the Board secured by a lien or mortgage that has priority over all other liens, charges, or mortgages. They also refer to ss. 90 and 90A of the Code with respect to potential actions by the Board. However, any such actions are currently stayed under the Initial Order, just as they are with respect to any action that might have been taken by Nova Scotia as a secured creditor.

[89] This is an unpersuasive argument by the Petitioners in any event. It is well taken that a province cannot create priorities that alter the federal scheme of distribution in the event of a bankruptcy: Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. B-3, ss. 86-87, 136: Husky Oil Operations Ltd. v. Minister of National Revenue, [1995] 3 S.C.R. 453. Given that these proceedings are in their nascent days, it is anyone's guess on the outcome. A bankruptcy remains a possibility, however slight in the Petitioners' minds.

[90] I accept, without hesitation, that these hard working and dedicated employees will meet my decision with a great deal of disappointment, if not dismay. The reasons for the closure and shutdown are completely divorced from their commitment to their jobs. I also appreciate that this vulnerable group of stakeholders will suffer arising from my decision. I say this knowing that the Petitioners represented – or at least previously represented – a significant employer in the province and in Pictou County, particularly. I expect that many of these lost jobs, no doubt some with expertise involving work at pulp mills, cannot be easily replaced, if at all.

[91] The Petitioners have emphasized the need to maintain the goodwill of their workforce in the event that the RETF is constructed and operations recommence. Whether or not the Petitioners will achieve that objective is simply unknown at this time.

[92] Unfortunately, I conclude that there is no principled basis upon which I could exercise my discretion to grant this relief. The Petitioners have not advanced a persuasive case toward authorizing such payments in such nebulous circumstances, particularly when it would amount to prioritizing those unsecured creditors over the existing security of Nova Scotia and where Nova Scotia objects.

TERRAPURE

[93] Before and after the CCAA filing, EnviroSystems Inc., dba Terrapure Environmental (“Terrapure”) provided services to the Petitioners relating to the removal of wastewater. The pre-filing debt owed to Terrapure for its services is approximately $1.1 million.

[94] The Petitioners do not seek any relief in favour of Terrapure, such as a declaration that it is a “critical supplier”. Indeed, by the date of this application, the Petitioners had found an alternate means to remove the wastewater and they advised that it is unlikely they will need any further services from Terrapure.

[95] Terrapure’s position on this application is to support the approval of the Interim Financing Facility and the payment of the unsecured pre-filing claims of the employees, but only if Terrapure is similarly paid its pre-filing unsecured claim.

[96] The general discussion above regarding the general application of the stay of proceedings with respect to unsecured creditors equally applies to Terrapure. Nova Scotia similarly objects to any payment to Terrapure, since the means to make any such payment could only arise from the Interim Financing Facility.

[97] In my view, there is no basis to prefer Terrapure in this case by allowing payment of its pre-filing unsecured claim. All claims by unsecured creditors are equally covered by the stay under the Initial Order, including the claims by employees, as discussed above, and Terrapure.

[98] In the event that the Court did not approve payment of its pre-filing debt, Terrapure requested the addition of a term in the ARIO to confirm that it has no further obligation to provide services to the Petitioners. No one raised any objections to that provision and I grant that relief.

KEY EMPLOYEE RETENTION PLAN (KERP)

[99] The Petitioners seek approval of a KERP and the granting of a Court ordered KERP charge to a maximum of $342,207 (the “KERP Charge”). They say that the KERP is for a select group of key employees to incentivize their continued retention, which is necessary if there is to be any viable prospect for the Petitioners to pursue their restructuring strategy.

[100] They propose that the KERP Charge rank directly below the Directors' Charge.

[101] The Court may exercise its discretion under its general statutory jurisdiction under s. 11 of the CCAA to approve a KERP and grant a KERP Charge: U.S. Steel Canada Inc. (Re), 2014 ONSC 6145 at para. 27.

[102] As the Petitioners note, courts across Canada have approved key employee incentive plans in numerous CCAA proceedings: for example, Nortel Networks Corp. (Re), [2009] O.J. No. 1044 (Ont. S.C.J.) and U.S. Steel Canada.

[103] In Walter Energy Canada Holdings, Inc. (Re), 2016 BCSC 107, this Court stated:

[58] Factors to be considered by the court in approving a KERP will vary from case to case, but some factors will generally be present. See for example, Grant Forest Products Inc. (Re) (2009), 57 C.B.R. (5th) 128 (Ont. S.C.J.); and U.S. Steel Canada at paras. 28-33.

[104] In Walter Energy at para. 59, I discussed the Grant Forest Products factors, as follows:

- Is this employee important to the restructuring process?
- Does the employee have specialized knowledge that cannot be easily replaced?
- Will the employee consider other employment options if the KERP is not approved?
- Was the KERP developed through a consultative process involving the Monitor and other professionals?; and
- Does the Monitor support the KERP and a charge?

[105] More recently, in Aralez Pharmaceuticals Inc. (Re), 2018 ONSC 6980 at para. 30, Justice Dunphy stated that three criterion underlie all of the considerations of key employee retention and incentive programs in insolvency proceedings as discussed in the relevant case law: arm's length safeguards, necessity and reasonableness of design.

[106] As Mr. Chapman describes, the KERP has been designed to facilitate and encourage the continued participation of select key employees of the Petitioners who are contemplated to either (a) provide necessary services up to the expiry of the stay period (to December 2020); or (b) guide the business through the restructuring and preserve value for stakeholders over the length of the case.

[107] The KERP consists of two independent programs: the Key Management Employee Retention Plan (the "Management KERP") and the Key Technical Employee Retention Plan (the "Technical KERP"). These plans would apply to a small number of employees: five under the Management KERP; two under the Technical KERP. Payments under the Technical KERP are conditional on the proceedings continuing on the date that each payment is to be made and do not amount to a long-term payment commitment if the restructuring fails.

[108] The Petitioners' evidence on this application fully supports an affirmative answer to all of the above questions set out in Walter Energy. These employees are important to the restructuring process; the Monitor describes a "knowledge and operational void" if their employment is not further secured in some fashion. Given the nature of the assets in question, I agree that these employees, both management and technical, have specialized knowledge that cannot be easily replaced.

[109] There is no evidence on this application that any of these employees are considering other employment options if the KERP is not approved. However, that lack of evidence is not fatal to approval of the KERP since that very scenario is intended to be avoided by approval of the KERP.

[110] The KERP was developed through a consultative process involving the Monitor. The Monitor supports the KERP and the KERP Charge, noting that without securing this “human capital”, the ability of the Petitioners to restructure their affairs will be greatly impaired.

[111] The Monitor notes in particular that Mr. Chapman, a PEC employee and general manager of the Pulp Mill, is included in the KERP. The Monitor describes Mr. Chapman as a “key resource” and provides that his continued support is “critical” toward achieving a successful restructuring. Mr. Chapman has been the person providing significant evidence in support of the Petitioners in this proceeding to date, which speaks to that fact.

[112] No stakeholder opposes this relief. In my view, such relief is appropriate. I approve the KERP and I grant the KERP Charge on the terms sought.

ADMINISTRATION / DIRECTORS’ CHARGES

[113] The Petitioners have not sought an increase of the Administration Charge on this application. The Petitioners seek the continuation of the Administration Charge in its previously approved amount (not to exceed $500,000) to secure professional fees and disbursements of the Monitor, counsel to the Monitor and the Petitioners' counsel.

[114] The Petitioners have also determined that they do not require an increase of the Directors’ Charge at this time. The Petitioners seek the continuation of the Directors’ Charge in its previously approved amount (not to exceed $500,000) to secure the indemnity provided for in the Initial Order.

[115] Again, no opposition arises. In my view, continuing this relief from the Initial Order is appropriate and I grant it.

STAY EXTENSION

[116] The Petitioners seek an extension of the stay to December 31, 2020.

[117] Under s. 11.02(2) of the CCAA, the Court has broad jurisdiction to extend a stay of proceedings where the circumstances warrant and for any period the Court considers necessary. Baseline considerations include those set out in s. 11.02(3) of the CCAA, including confirmation that the debtor is acting with due diligence and in good faith and that the relief sought is appropriate.

[118] The comments of court in Timminco Limited (Re), 2012 ONSC 2515 aptly set out the statutory objectives intended to be achieved by the stay:

[15] The stay of proceedings is one of the main tools available to achieve the purpose of the CCAA. The stay provides the [debtors] with a degree of time in which to attempt to arrange an acceptable restructuring plan or sale of assets in order to maximize recovery for stakeholders. The court's jurisdiction in granting a stay extends to both preserving the status quo and facilitating a restructuring. See Re Stelco Inc., (2005) O.J. No. 1171 (C.A.) at para. 36.

[119] Throughout this proceeding, and to this time, the Monitor confirms its view that the Petitioners have been working in good faith and with due diligence. The Monitor recommends the extension of the stay to December 31, 2020.

[120] It will be more than apparent from the discussion above and the orders I have granted, particularly as to the Interim Financing Facility, that I have concluded that an extension of the stay to December 31, 2020 is appropriate in the circumstances. As discussed above, there is somewhat of a "check" on the proceedings arising from the Monitor's report that will be filed before the end of October 2020.

[121] The stay period to December 2020 will allow the Petitioners to advance their objective of securing a restructuring option for the benefit of the stakeholders. I conclude that they should be afforded the opportunity to do so here.

UNIFOR APPLICATION

[122] Unifor seeks an order authorizing it to represent the current and former union members of the local, including pensioners, retirees, deferred vested participants, and their surviving spouses and dependants, employed or formerly employed by the Petitioners, in these proceedings. Unifor does not seek any court ordered funding to secure its participation or that of Pink Larkin, its counsel.

[123] The Petitioners support this relief and no stakeholder objects.

[124] As with much of the above relief, the Court has jurisdiction to exercise its discretion to grant the order sought under its broad statutory jurisdiction found in s. 11 of the CCAA.

[125] In Canwest Publishing Inc., 2010 ONSC 1328, the Court discussed the factors typically considered in granting such relief. Justice Pepall (as she then was) set those out as follows:

[21] Factors that have been considered by courts in granting these orders include:

- the vulnerability and resources of the group sought to be represented;
- any benefit to the companies under CCAA protection;
- any social benefit to be derived from representation of the group;
- the facilitation of the administration of the proceedings and efficiency;
- the avoidance of a multiplicity of legal retainers;
- the balance of convenience and whether it is fair and just including to the creditors of the Estate;
- whether representative counsel has already been appointed for those who have similar interests to the group seeking representation and who is also prepared to act for the group seeking the order; and
- the position of other stakeholders and the Monitor.

See also Target Canada Co. (Re), 2015 ONSC 303 at para. 61.

[126] I agree that these employees presently have a commonality of interest that is best represented in this proceeding as an entire group. Wanda Skinner is the president of the Unifor local. Ms. Skinner's affidavit #2 sworn July 28, 2020 supports the vulnerability of the unionized employees arising from the disastrous economic consequences to them of losing their jobs and benefits.

[127] Unifor clearly has a relationship with this cohort and is in the best position to advance the entire group's interests, at least at this time. That representation will be a benefit to the Petitioners in advancing this restructuring by facilitating discussions between them. The estate will incur no cost by reason of Unifor's representation, welcome news given the lack of cash resources available to the Petitioners.

[128] The order sought by Unifor is consistent with the order granted in the Fraser Papers Inc. restructuring: see Fraser Papers Inc. (Re), 2009 CanLII 55115 and 2009 CanLII 63589 (Ont. S.C.J.).

[129] I am satisfied that the terms of the order sought are appropriate, with one exception. In para. 3 of the draft order, Unifor seeks authority to “determine, file, advance or compromise” any claims of its current or former employees. The only change I would make to that provision is to amend it to provide that any compromise proposed to be made by Unifor will be subject to court approval. This will ensure some oversight in respect of any decisions that Unifor seeks to make for the employee group they will represent.

INTRODUCTION

[1] On September 14, 2020, the petitioners, Mountain Equipment Co-operative and its wholly owned subsidiary, 1314625 Ontario Limited (“131”), sought and obtained relief pursuant to the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 (the “CCAA”). I will refer to the petitioners jointly by the first petitioner’s well-known acronym, “MEC”.

[2] On September 14, 2020, I granted an Initial Order in favour of MEC that included a stay until September 24, 2020, although that was later extended to the time of this comeback hearing. I also approved an interim financing facility to a total of $100 million (the “Interim Financing”), although draws were then limited to $15 million, consistent with the test set out in s. 11.2(5) of the CCAA. I appointed Alvarez & Marsal Canada Inc. (“A&M”) as the Monitor. Finally, I approved charges usually granted in these proceedings: an Administration Charge ($1 million), a D&O Charge ($4.5 million) and an Interim Financing Charge ($102 million).

[3] At this comeback hearing, MEC seeks an Amended and Restated Initial Order (ARIO) to continue the relief granted in the Initial Order, with approval to access the entire amount under the Interim Financing. In addition, MEC seeks approval of a Key Employee Retention Program (KERP) and a related charge. Finally, MEC seeks an order approving a sale of substantially all of its assets, pursuant to a Sale Approval and Vesting Order (SAVO).

[4] Since September 14, 2020, formidable opposition has formed in response to MEC’s application for approval to sell its assets under the SAVO.

[5] Many parties now seek an adjournment of MEC’s application for the SAVO, objecting to any sale at this time for various reasons. Those parties include two landlords, Plateau Village Properties Inc. (“Plateau”) and Midtown Plaza Inc. (“Midtown”), and Kevin Harding, spokesperson for the steering committee for the “SaveMEC” campaign. Mr. Harding also seeks an order appointing his law firm as representative counsel for certain members of MEC, with an accompanying charge for their expenses.

[6] MEC contends that it is critical that the sale occur without delay. MEC opposes all of the relief sought by the objecting parties.

[7] On October 1, 2020, I concluded the comeback hearing. On October 2, 2020, I granted the orders sought by MEC, including the SAVO, and dismissed the relief sought by the objecting parties, with reasons to follow. These are my reasons.

BACKGROUND

[8] MEC is a co-operative association incorporated under the Cooperative Association Act, S.B.C. 1999, c. 28 (the “Co-op Act”).

[9] In 1971, almost 50 years ago, MEC was formed from the passion of many Vancouverites who loved to spend time outdoors and appreciated having the right equipment and gear to do so. Since then, MEC has become an iconic retailer of outdoor activity equipment and clothing, serving the needs of the public who share that passion for the outdoors. MEC sells many well-known brands and also has its own very successful private label for many products.

[10] MEC’s ownership is unique. MEC currently has approximately 5.8 million members, each having paid a $5 lifetime membership fee for the right to shop at MEC and participate in its governance as a co-operative member. Counsel advises that the breadth of MEC’s membership in Canada is significant, representing some 22% of the Canadian working population.

[11] 131 owns a parcel of land that comprises the parking lot at the site of MEC’s Ottawa Store. 131’s assets are not significant in the overall circumstances. Similarly, MEC also owns an interest in a limited partnership which has nominal value.

[12] MEC has a significant history of community involvement. Since 1987, MEC has contributed approximately $44 million to organizations focused on conservation and outdoor recreation.

[13] MEC’s head office is located at leased premises in Vancouver, BC. MEC operates online and also, operates 22 retail locations across Canada in BC, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia. MEC leases its eastern distribution centre in Brampton, Ontario and most (16) of its store operations. MEC owns six store locations and its western distribution centre in Surrey, BC.

[14] As of September 7, 2020, MEC has approximately 1,516 employees: 1,143 active employees, 176 laid off employees, 118 employees on the Canada Emergency Wage Subsidy program and 79 employees on unpaid leave.

[15] MEC's board of directors (the "Board") has eight directors. As of September 10, 2020, MEC's senior management consists of seven officers. Philippe Arrata is MEC's Chief Executive Officer who has provided most of the sworn evidence on behalf of MEC in this proceeding.

[16] In 2015, MEC embarked on a significant growth plan. That plan resulted in six new stores and two new relocated stores in Vancouver and Toronto, a new head office, a new eastern distribution centre as well as significant investments in online retail resources. MEC has commitments for two additional new stores (Calgary North West and Saskatoon) that have not yet opened, which is a point of controversy on this application. Over the ensuing years, this growth plan was successful from a market expansion and sales perspective, but it also resulted in a higher fixed cost structure and increased debt levels.

[17] In August 2017, MEC, as borrower, and 131, as guarantor, entered into a credit agreement with the Royal Bank of Canada (RBC), as agent, and RBC, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Toronto-Dominion Bank (collectively, the Lenders") for a senior secured asset-based revolving credit facility (the "Credit Facility").

[18] The Credit Facility initially allowed MEC to borrow up to a maximum of $130 million with a maturity date of August 3, 2020. Through various amendments implemented over 2020, that borrowing maximum was reduced to its present level, $100 million. The Lenders hold first priority security over all of MEC's assets.

[19] The results of MEC's growth strategy led to challenging fiscal circumstances. Since 2015, MEC's operating losses were approximately $80 million, offset to some extent by real estate transactions that realized capital gains. Even so, the net loss for the year ending February 23, 2020 was approximately $22.7 million, largely arising from increased costs, certain under-performing stores and liquidity strains.

[20] MEC's assets consist primarily of: owned and leased real property; equipment; inventory; accounts receivable; and intangible assets including certain trademarks on trade names, membership lists and goodwill. As of February 2020, MEC's recorded a book value of approximately $389 million in current and long-term assets.

[21] MEC's liabilities are comprised primarily of: amounts owed to suppliers; governments and employees; amounts owed to the Lenders under the Credit Facility; gift cards and provision for sales returns; lease obligations; and deferred lease liabilities. MEC's current and long-term liabilities, as reported in its February 2020 Financial Statements, totalled approximately $229.6 million.

EVENTS LEADING TO CCAA PROCEEDINGS

[22] In early 2020, MEC took steps to address its financial difficulties. MEC's Board brought in a new management team to focus on cost reduction and a return to profitability.

[23] On February 10, 2020, MEC engaged Alvarez and Marsal Canada Securities ULC ("A&M Securities") as a financial advisor to assist in a review of strategic alternatives, provide assistance to obtain and negotiate new financing. A&M Securities is an entity affiliated with A&M, the Monitor.

[24] In March 2020, the Board struck a special committee, comprised of three Board members (the "Special Committee"). The mandate of the Special Committee was to make recommendations to MEC's Board on strategic alternatives, including (a) transactions with a view to sell all or substantially all or any portion of MEC's assets (or a merger, amalgamation or some other strategic alliance involving MEC);

(b) pursuit of organic growth; (c) recapitalization, restructuring or reorganization; or (d) any other strategic alternative in the best interests of MEC.

[25] The efforts of the new management team, the Special Committee and A&M Securities led eventually to the implementation of a Sales and Investment Solicitation Process (SISP) that resulted in the proposed sale that MEC now seeks to have court approved.

[26] Under its initial mandate, A&M Securities made efforts toward identifying a satisfactory refinancing, including: establishing a data room; contacting a number of lenders; and, entering into a number of Non-Disclosure Agreements (NDAs) with lenders. However, MEC and A&M Securities' efforts to find a solution to MEC's very difficult financial difficulties were hampered by the COVID-19 pandemic that hit Canada in March 2020. As one might expect, the pandemic had a significant and negative impact on the retail sector generally and on MEC's already struggling operations. All of MEC's stores closed as of March 18, 2020.

[27] As the Monitor notes, MEC's insolvency arose from an unsustainable 25 "bricks and mortar" store operating model, the "disastrous" impact from the pandemic on sales and cash flow and inadequate financing capacity to sustain ongoing losses and provide working capital.

[28] Although A&M Securities received a number of term sheets for a refinancing, none of them provided for a complete refinancing of MEC's debt that solved its serious financial challenges.

[29] On June 1, 2020, as permitted by the BC Registrar for all cooperative associations, MEC announced that its Annual General Meeting (AGM) (originally scheduled for June 23, 2020) would be postponed by up to six months due to the impact of COVID-19 and to allow MEC to focus on the urgent financial challenges impacting its business. The AGM is scheduled for December 10, 2020.

[30] On June 10, 2020, with the support of the Lenders, MEC expanded A&M Securities' engagement to explore whether there were other potential viable refinancing options and to initiate a SISP. The Special Committee established guiding commercial principles in the design of the SISP to: provide maximum value to the broad stakeholder group; preserve the maximum number of store locations and jobs; and ensure that, if possible, the buyer preserved MEC's purpose, values and outreach programs.

[31] Again, A&M Securities followed the usual path in this effort, including establishing a data room, identifying potential interested purchasers, distributing an initial "teaser" letter to 158 parties and entering into confidentiality agreements with 39 interested parties. A&M Securities requested non-binding Letters of Intent (LOIs).

[32] By July 15, 2020, A&M Securities had received nine LOIs and reviewed and conducted due diligence on each of them. On July 16, 2020, A&M Securities presented the LOIs to the Special Committee for its consideration and later provided its recommendations with respect to having bidders move into "Phase 2" of the SISP process. On July 24, 2020, MEC's Board considered the Special Committee's recommendation with respect to the LOIs.

[33] On August 6, 2020, Phase 2 of the SISP process began with five recommended bidders who had submitted LOIs. The Phase 2 process established a final bid deadline of August 28, 2020. Four bids were received by that deadline, as were later reviewed by A&M Securities and the Special Committee.

[34] On September 4, 2020, MEC's Board, with the input of their advisors, identified Kingswood Capital Management LP ("Kingswood"), a US based private investment firm, as the successful bidder and negotiations began to finalize a purchase and sale agreement.

[35] As with many retailers, by mid-September 2020, the impact of the pandemic, which only exacerbated MEC's pre-existing difficulties, remained very relevant. In the months leading to September 2020, MEC realized a considerable increase in online sales, however, it still experienced a substantial reduction in sales compared to last year for that period ($98 million). By mid-September 2020, MEC has reopened many of its stores, however, five remain closed because of the pandemic. The stores that had re-opened were operating at a reduced sales volume.

[36] As of September 4, 2020, and primarily due to the pandemic, MEC owed approximately $4.6 million in rent deferrals or arrears in respect of its leases, and MEC had agreed to rent deferral plans with some of its landlords to repay these arrears by late 2021. Further, MEC had significant past due amounts owed to merchandise suppliers and other vendors.

[37] As of September 11, 2020, MEC owed approximately $74 million under the Credit Facility, leaving approximately $19 million available under the borrowing base. At that time, MEC was unable to repay the Credit Facility by the maturity date of September 30, 2020.

[38] All of these factors, together with MEC's ongoing lease, contractual and trade creditor obligations, led MEC to decide that it had no alternative but to seek a formal restructuring of its affairs in court proceedings and seek to conclude the Kingswood sale in those proceedings.

[39] On September 11, 2020, MEC and Kingswood entered into an asset purchase and sale agreement (the "Sale Agreement"). Under the Sale Agreement, Kingswood, through a Canadian-based subsidiary, agreed to purchase substantially all of MEC's assets. The Sale Agreement is conditional on MEC obtaining court approval through this CCAA proceeding.

[40] By the date of the filing (September 14, 2020), RBC had formally notified MEC of defaults under the Credit Facility. Despite MEC's challenging financial affairs, the Lenders confirmed their support for MEC in this CCAA proceeding and they continue to support MEC in terms of the relief presently sought.

GERM OF THE PLAN

[41] When I granted the Initial Order, MEC had outlined a restructuring plan. During the course of these proceedings, MEC indicated its intention to:

- a) Immediately stabilize its cash flows and operations;
- b) Develop a strategy that would address its liquidity issues and generate sufficient revenue to sustain operations through the CCAA process, including by streamlining operations;
- c) Apply for the SAVO to approve the transaction with Kingswood, which would allow repayment to the Lenders and also allow MEC's business to emerge as a better capitalized operation with as little disruption as practicable; and
- d) Establish and complete a claims process toward formulating a plan of compromise and arrangement for presentation to its creditors. The intention is to fund a plan from the proceeds arising from the Kingswood sale.

FUTHER CCAA RELIEF SOUGHT

[42] As stated above, MEC seeks to continue the relief sought in the Initial Order, with additional relief relating to: full approval of draws under the Interim Financing, approval of a KERP, extending the stay to November 3, 2020 and granting the SAVO.

[43] MEC's application is supported by the Monitor's First Report dated September 24, 2020 (the "First Report").

Interim Financing

[44] At the commencement of these proceedings, MEC indicated that it required the Interim Financing to support its operations and restructuring efforts. It was and is very apparent that MEC needs the Interim Financing for those purposes.

[45] MEC secured a financing commitment from the Lenders pursuant to a restructuring support agreement dated September 11, 2020 (the "Restructuring Support Agreement"). It was a condition of the Lenders' support under the Restructuring Support Agreement that they obtain a court-ordered security interest, lien and charge over all of MEC's assets. One of the key financial terms of the Interim Financing was that it was subject to a calculation of borrowing availability, with a maximum principal amount of $100 million under the combined Credit Facility and the Interim Financing, funded in progressive advances on an as-needed basis.

[46] Pursuant to the Initial Order, I approved the Interim Financing, with draws limited to $15 million to the time of the comeback hearing, and approved the Interim Financing Charge. During the course of this hearing, I increased the draw limit to $23 million.

[47] Firstly, I was satisfied that the Interim Financing Charge complied with s. 11.2(1) of the CCAA in that it did not secure any of MEC's pre-filing obligations to the Lenders, as prohibited by that provision.

[48] The Interim Financing agreements are amendments to the Credit Facility, pursuant to which the Lenders will provide further liquidity to MEC despite any defaults under the Credit Facility. It is an express term of the Interim Financing that advances made under the Interim Financing cannot be used to satisfy pre-filing obligations under the Credit Facility or any other pre-filing debt. In addition, the Interim Financing Charge does not secure any of MEC's pre-filing obligations and includes a "carve out" to ensure that other secured creditors (such as those with Purchase Money Security Interests (PMSIs)) are not primed by the Charge.

[49] While the terms of the Interim Financing provide that post-filing receipts collected by MEC will be applied to pay down MEC's pre-filing debt under the Credit Facility, I agreed with MEC that mechanisms in interim financing agreements by which pre-filing obligations are paid from proceeds derived by post-filing operations do not contravene s. 11.2(1) of the CCAA.

[50] In Performance Sports Group Ltd. (Re), 2016 ONSC 6800, Justice Newbould concluded that a similarly crafted interim lending facility did not offend s. 11.2(1):

[22] Section 11.2(1) of the CCAA provides that security for a DIP facility may not secure an obligation that existed before the order authorizing the security was made. The effect of this provision is that advances under a DIP facility may not be used to repay pre-filing obligations. In this case, the ABL DIP Facility is a revolving facility. Under its terms, receipts from operations of the PSG Entities post-filing may be used to pay down the existing ABL Facility. The applicants submit that in this case, the ABL DIP Facility preserves the pre-filing status quo by upholding the relative pre-stay priority position of each secured creditor. By requiring that the PSG Entities only use post-filing cash receipts to pay down the accrued balance under the revolving credit facility, the ABL DIP Lenders are in no better position with respect to the priority of their pre-filing debt relative to other creditors. I accept that no advances under the ABL DIP Facility will be used to pay pre-filing obligations and there has been inserted in the Initial Order a provision that expressly prevents that. The provision that receipts from operations of the PSG Entities post-filing may be used to pay down the existing ABL Facility is approved.

[51] Similar conclusions were reached in Comark Inc. (Re), 2015 ONSC 2010 at paras. 17-29. Regional Senior Justice Morawetz (as he then was) accepted that the proposed interim financing facility would not result in a greater level of secured debt than was contemplated under the pre-filing facilities and would not prime PMSIs. Effectively, the court found that, since the proposed charge would increase while the pre-filing facility would be paid down by the use of the debtor's cash generated from its business, the proposed charge only secured post-filing advances made under the interim facility in compliance with s. 11.2(1) of the CCAA.

[52] In May 2020, Justice Romaine reached the same conclusion in a recent CCAA proceeding involving ENTREC Corporation (Alta QB, Calgary Judicial Centre; File No. 2001 06423).

[53] Secondly, I was satisfied that a consideration of the factors set out in s. 11.2(4) of the CCAA supported that the Interim Financing (then with limited draws) was appropriate. Those factors are:

- a) the period during which the company is expected to be subject to proceedings under this Act;
- b) how the company's business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings;
- c) whether the company's management has the confidence of its major creditors;
- d) whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the company;
- e) the nature and value of the company's property;

- f) whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge; and
- g) the monitor's report referred to in paragraph 23(1)(b), if any.

[54] The governing factors at the time of the granting of the Initial Order were:

- a) MEC anticipated that it would seek an extension of the stay of proceedings at the comeback hearing for a further amount of time to allow it to complete the sale process without having to seek a further extension;
- b) MEC's business and financial affairs were to be managed by MEC's Board and key management employees in consultation with the (then) proposed Monitor;
- c) MEC had the confidence of the Lenders, its senior secured creditors and the proposed Interim Lenders. The Lenders supported the approval of the Interim Financing and the granting of the Interim Financing Charge;
- d) Without the Interim Financing, MEC was not able to fund its operations and continue its restructuring efforts, and the value of its assets would have diminished as a result. In fact, the Credit Facility matured on September 30, 2020;
- e) I was satisfied that no secured creditor would be materially prejudiced by the Interim Financing Charge, as the charge includes the carve out and preserved the pre-filing status quo; and
- f) The proposed Monitor supported the approval of the Interim Financing and granting of the Interim Financing Charge.

[55] Finally, in light of s. 11.2(5) of the CCAA, I was satisfied that the terms of the financing were limited to those reasonably necessary for MEC's continued operations in the ordinary course of business during the period to the comeback hearing. In addition, I was satisfied that the terms of the Interim Financing were consistent with ordinary commercial transactions of this nature, as also confirmed by the proposed Monitor. See Miniso International Hong Kong Limited v. Migu Investments Inc., 2019 BCSC 1234 at paras 79-90.

[56] The Interim Financing provides for a maturity date that is the earlier of a) November 30, 2020; b) the completion of a “Transaction” in relation to all or substantially all of MEC’s assets, and sufficient to repay the Lenders in full, and is approved by the Court; and c) at the Lenders’ option, the occurrence of any Event of Default (other than the commencement of the CCAA proceedings).

[57] MEC now seeks approval of the Interim Financing generally, which would allow it to request subsequent advances up to the $100 million limit until the next extension period on November 3, 2020.

[58] No creditor or stakeholder objects to the Interim Financing sought by MEC.

[59] The Cash Flow Forecast prepared in mid-September 2020 readily supported that MEC is in urgent need of interim funding during the restructuring. In the First Report, the Monitor noted that the Lenders had already advanced $9.4 million under the Interim Facility and confirmed that the full amount of the funding under the Interim Financing was required. No other source of financing was available; the Credit Facility expired on September 30, 2020. No creditor will be prejudiced, let alone materially prejudiced, by this funding.

[60] MEC’s financial circumstances continue to be very challenging, even in the short term. Ongoing weekly losses of approximately $1.1-1.6 million are being incurred. In October 2020 alone, MEC projects losses of over $15 million.

[61] Having considered all of the factors in s. 11.2(4) of the CCAA, I have no hesitation concluding that approval of the full amount of the Interim Financing is appropriate. Without the Interim Financing, MEC is unable to continue its operations, a result that would have disastrous consequences to the larger stakeholder group, whether or not the SAVO is granted.

The KERP

[62] MEC seeks approval of a KERP. To secure obligations under the proposed KERP, MEC also seeks the granting of a third-priority court-ordered charge on MEC's assets in priority to all other charges, other than the Administration Charge and the D&O Charge (the "KERP Charge").

[63] MEC asserts that the KERP is necessary to allow it to maintain its business operations, complete the restructuring, including completing the sale to Kingswood and preserve asset value. MEC says that, without a KERP, its efforts would be seriously compromised.

[64] In July and September 2020, MEC's Board approved retention agreements (the "Retention Agreements") for eight key senior managers for total compensation of $778,000. The Retention Agreements were filed under seal in these proceedings, as summarized in Appendix E to the First Report.

[65] The Retention Agreements include provision for payment of compensation upon the earlier of certain dates, including a sale of all or substantially all of MEC's assets (or the merger, amalgamation or consolidation of MEC with another entity), the employee's termination without cause or, by certain dates in December 2020, depending on the employee. It is not certain that all executives offered Retention Agreements will remain with MEC through to conclusion of the restructuring.

[66] The Court may exercise its discretion under its general statutory jurisdiction under s. 11 of the CCAA to approve a KERP and grant a KERP Charge: U.S. Steel Canada Inc. (Re), 2014 ONSC 6145 at para. 27.

[67] Courts across Canada have approved key employee incentive plans in numerous CCAA proceedings: for example, Nortel Networks Corp. (Re), [2009] O.J. No. 1044 (Ont. S.C.J.) and U.S. Steel Canada. In Walter Energy Canada Holdings, Inc. (Re), 2016 BCSC 107, this Court stated:

[58] Factors to be considered by the court in approving a KERP will vary from case to case, but some factors will generally be present. See for example, Grant Forest Products Inc. (Re) (2009), 57 C.B.R. (5th) 128 (Ont. S.C.J.); and U.S. Steel Canada at paras. 28-33.

[68] In Walter Energy at para. 59, I discussed the Grant Forest Products factors, as follows:

- a) Is this employee important to the restructuring process?
- b) Does the employee have specialized knowledge that cannot be easily replaced?
- c) Will the employee consider other employment options if the KERP is not approved?
- d) Was the KERP developed through a consultative process involving the Monitor and other professionals?; and
- e) Does the Monitor support the KERP and a charge?

[69] In Aralez Pharmaceuticals Inc. (Re), 2018 ONSC 6980 at para. 30, Justice Dunphy stated that three criterion underlie all of the considerations of key employee retention and incentive programs in insolvency proceedings as discussed in the relevant case law: a) arm's length safeguards, b) necessity, and c) reasonableness of design.

[70] The Monitor has reviewed the terms of the Retention Agreements and has concluded that the terms of the proposed KERP Charge are reasonable in the circumstances and customary in similar CCAA proceedings. The Monitor has also confirmed that the KERP will provide stability for MEC's business operations, particularly in the critical time period when MEC is attempting to stabilize its operations and, if the SAVO is granted, working to finalize the final negotiations with Kingswood, leading to a closing of that transaction. The Lenders have confirmed they are agreeable to the KERP and the KERP Charge as well.

[71] I accept the Monitor's assessment and conclusions with respect to the KERP. I conclude that the KERP is reasonable and necessary in the circumstances and I exercise my discretion to approve the KERP and grant the KERP Charge.

The Stay

[72] Clearly, an extension of the stay is necessary to allow MEC's restructuring efforts to continue, whether the SAVO is granted or not.

[73] No stakeholder objects to MEC's application for the ARIO, including an extension of the stay of proceedings. The Monitor confirms its view that MEC is acting in good faith and with due diligence.

[74] I am satisfied that an extension of the stay is appropriate until November 3, 2020, in accordance with s. 11.02 of the CCAA.

SISP/SAVO

[75] The main focus on this application has been in relation to MEC's application for the granting of the SAVO in favour of Kingswood, pursuant to s. 36(1) of the CCAA. Section 36(3) of the CCAA lists the relevant non-exhaustive factors to be considered:

- (a) whether the process leading to the proposed sale or disposition was reasonable in the circumstances;
- (b) whether the monitor approved the process leading to the proposed sale or disposition;
- (c) whether the monitor filed with the court a report stating that in their opinion the sale or disposition would be more beneficial to the creditors than a sale or disposition under a bankruptcy;
- (d) the extent to which the creditors were consulted;
- (e) the effects of the proposed sale or disposition on the creditors and other interested parties; and
- (f) whether the consideration to be received for the assets is reasonable and fair, taking into account their market value.

[76] Mr. Harding, Plateau and Midtown all seek an adjournment of MEC's application for the SAVO for "at least" two weeks. Plateau and Midtown also seek orders that would allow them to obtain further document discovery and cross-examine MEC's deponents, including Mr. Arrata and Mr. Robert Wallis. The parties seeking an adjournment are supported by the BC Co-op Association and Cooperatives and Mutuals Canada (the "Co-op Associations").

[77] I address the arguments advanced against MEC's application for the SAVO below. There is considerable overlap and interrelationship between the various categories below, so they should be read as a whole.

i) The Kingswood Sale Agreement

[78] MEC describes the key aims and elements of the Sale Agreement as:

- a) Kingswood will continue to operate the business as a going concern under a similar name to MEC and will maintain the goodwill of the retail business;
- b) the purchased assets comprise almost all of the assets currently used by MEC for the business;
- c) Kingswood will retain at least 75% of the active employees of MEC;
- d) Kingswood will acquire, or assume, the leases for at least 17 of MEC's retail locations. For those leases not being acquired or assumed, MEC has already or will provide disclaimers to the landlords;
- e) Kingswood will assume liabilities including with respect to warranties, existing gift cards (estimated $13.2 million) and employees who accept offers of employment (estimated $2 million);
- f) In order to protect goodwill with existing suppliers and contractors, Kingswood will assume liability for payments to certain inventory and other key vendors and suppliers (estimated $25 million) and will seek assignment of certain contracts; and
- g) The Sale Agreement is not conditional on any financing or third-party approvals.

[79] The Court has had the benefit of reviewing certain confidential documents arising from the SISP, including the unredacted Sale Agreement and Confidential Appendix C to the First Report that were both filed under seal in this proceeding.

[80] Significantly, the Sale Agreement provides for a sale price (base amount of $120 million, subject to certain adjustments) that will repay the Lenders in full, maximize the ongoing number of operating stores and retention of a majority number of employees, and leave MEC with additional funds to support a CCAA plan that would see a distribution to unsecured creditors. The Board and Special Committee consider that the Kingswood offer was consistent with the guiding principles of the SISP as had been earlier established.

[81] I have reviewed the details of the other three bids received and reviewed by the Special Committee and MEC's Board prior to acceptance of Kingswood's offer. I agree that the Kingswood offer is clearly the most advantageous one, both in terms of price, continuity of business operations, retention of stores, retention of employees and assumed liabilities.

ii) The Monitor Issue

[82] As part of Plateau's objection to the SAVO, it seeks an order replacing A&M as Monitor with Ernst & Young Inc., pursuant to s. 11.7(3) of the CCAA.

[83] Plateau argues that, since A&M Securities, A&M's affiliate, was involved in the SISP, A&M is not appropriate to continue as Monitor in these proceedings. Plateau argues that, in the circumstances, the Monitor cannot opine on the adequacy of the SISP as required under s. 36(3)(b) of the CCAA.

[84] I will note at the outset that no one on this application, let alone Plateau, questions the professionalism of A&M. Rather, Plateau asserts that there is a perception of bias in respect of the Monitor's views of the SISP, which cannot stand in the face of the clear requirement that a monitor be independent and impartial while exercising its fiduciary obligations to all stakeholders. Plateau cites various authorities including: United Used Auto & Truck Parts Ltd. (Re), [1999] B.C.J. No. 2754 at para. 20 (S.C.); Winalta Inc. (Re), 2011 ABQB 399; Can-Pacific Farms Inc. (Re), 2012 BCSC 760; and Walter Energy Canada Holdings Inc. (Re), 2017 BCSC 53 at paras. 24-25.

[85] I have reviewed the terms of A&M Securities' engagements with MEC. As counsel note, s. 11.7(2) of the CCAA provides restrictions on who may be a monitor. A&M clearly did not fall within that restricted list and was able to accept an appointment as Monitor when the Initial Order was granted.

[86] Under the February 10, 2020 engagement, A&M Securities was providing consulting services with respect to identifying potential financing. A&M Securities' compensation was a fixed fee with hourly rates after a certain time period. I am unable to discern any conflict between that engagement and A&M's current one as Monitor that causes any concern.

[87] Similarly, the A&M Securities' June 10, 2020 engagement with MEC also provided for consulting services in respect of the SISP, also on an hourly basis.

[88] It is apparent that, by June 2020, MEC foresaw that it may be necessary to file under the CCAA in order to resolve the significant financial difficulties it faced. In the second engagement with A&M Securities, MEC specifically addressed that potential step. Paragraph 4 of the June 10, 2020 engagement agreement provided that MEC could choose to put A&M forward as the Monitor. MEC and A&M expressly agreed that no conflict would arise between the second engagement and that potential appointment. As the Monitor notes, this type of pre-planning for a potential monitor appointment is typically undertaken since it allows a debtor to seamless and efficiently transition into the restructuring process while taking advantage of efforts begun even prior to that time.

[89] Plateau places great emphasis on the reasoning and result found in Nelson Education Ltd. (Re), 2015 ONSC 3580. In that case, Newbould J. considered an application to replace the monitor where the monitor was recommending a sale. The monitor had been a financial advisor to the company for two years prior to its appointment, and it had conducted a SISP prior to the CCAA filing that involved dealings with the second lien holders. Almost immediately after the filing, the debtor sought approval to sell the assets to the first lien holders, leaving nothing for the second lien holders.

[90] Justice Newbould found that replacement of the monitor was necessary since firstly, the monitor was in no position to comment independently on the validity of the SISP and, secondly, there was an appearance of a lack of impartiality:

[30] The problem is that Nelson has proposed a quick court approval of a transaction in which the first lien lenders will acquire the business of Nelson and in which essentially all creditors other than the second lien lenders will be taken care of. Nelson has asserted in its material that the SISP process undertaken by Nelson prior to the CCAA proceedings has established that there is no value in the Nelson business that could give rise to any payout to the second lien lenders. The SISP process was taken on the advice of A&M and under their direction. It was put in Nelson's factum that:

The Applicants, with the assistance of their advisors, conducted a comprehensive SISP which did not result in an executable transaction that would result in proceeds sufficient to repay the obligations under the First Lien Credit Agreement in full or would otherwise be supported by the First Lien Lenders;

[31] Nelson intends to request Court approval of the proposed transaction. An issue that will be front and centre will be whether the SISP process prior to this CCAA proceeding can be relied on to establish that there is no value in the security of the second lien lenders and whether other steps could have been taken to obtain financing to assist Nelson in continuing in business other than a credit bid by the first lien lenders. A&M was centrally involved in that process. It is in no position to be providing impartial advice to the Court on the central issue before the Court.

[91] A&M Securities' involvement with MEC was clearly in the context of finding a solution to MEC's financial difficulties in the short term. It is common ground that MEC could most likely have obtained CCAA protection in early 2020 and then conducted the search for financing and/or the SISP within those proceedings. MEC states that it had good reason not to obtain court protection at that time, as I will discuss later in these reasons. This is a distinguishing factor from Nelson Education, where the monitor had a much more extensive and historical relationship with the debtor and other stakeholders.

[92] Further, I can discern no conflict, whether real or apparent, arising from A&M Securities' previous involvement. Importantly, there is no success fee or compensation built into the second engagement that could possibly stand as an incentive for the Monitor to recommend the Kingswood sale (or any other sale) for approval. Unlike Nelson Education, this is not a case where only one secured creditor is apparently benefitting from the proposed transaction. The Sale Agreement will benefit all the stakeholders generally, although in different degrees given their different priorities. Although clearly hindsight, I note that Newbould J. later approved the proposed transaction (Nelson Education Ltd. (Re), 2015 ONSC 5557), about two-and-a-half months later, at no doubt considerable cost to the estate.

[93] In addition, as I will discuss in more detail below, there would be considerable cost and delay in replacing the Monitor at this time. The monitor engagement for MEC is not a simple affair and any new firm would take some time to fully assume that role and prepare a report – likely not even within “at least” two weeks, the delay sought by the objecting parties. Time is not on MEC’s side in these urgent circumstances. See Can-Pacific Farms at para. 26.

[94] Finally, the s. 36(3)(b) factor – the monitor’s approval of the process – is only one of the relevant factors that the court is to consider, among others. None of the s. 36(3) factors have primacy in respect of the court’s consideration as to whether a sale should be approved. The previous involvement of the Monitor with MEC is a consideration, however, not a controlling one.

[95] Every sale approval application will be fact intensive toward ensuring that any proposed sale is fair and reasonable, after an appropriate sales process.

[96] I have no concerns arising from A&M’s affiliate acting as MEC’s financial advisor in the months leading to this proceeding. I decline to exercise my discretion to replace A&M as Monitor in these proceedings.

iii) The SISP

[97] Plateau and Midtown question the appropriateness of MEC filing for CCAA protection after having conducted the SISP. They say that the CCAA is being improperly used to approve a “quick slip sale” arising from a process that took place outside of the Court’s supervision, without the Court’s approval and without consultation with MEC’s stakeholders.

[98] MEC began taking steps toward finding a solution to its financial difficulties many months before the CCAA filing. MEC asserts that, while the Court did not pre-approve the SISP, the SISP was extensive and properly canvassed the market to identify the best and highest value for its business.

[99] As the parties note, this is a classic “pre-packaged” proceeding, or “pre-pack”, as it is colloquially known. As in many previous CCAA proceedings, most of MEC’s restructuring efforts have taken place before the filing of the court proceeding, and the most obvious restructuring path presented now by MEC is the sale to Kingswood arising from the SISP.

[100] There is nothing inherently flawed in a “pre-pack” approach. There are often good reasons why a debtor company may choose such a course of action, more often than not arising from the real or perceived threats or disruptions to a business by pursuing options within a proceeding. The Monitor confirms its own experience and views in that respect, particularly relating to retail operations where it is critical to preserve going concern value.

[101] Here, MEC contends it ran the SISP prior to any CCAA proceedings to maintain stability in its business and to promote a going concern solution, all as supported by the Lenders, who were increasingly concerned about their credit exposure in light of the financial crisis faced by MEC. I readily accept that running a retail operation within CCAA proceedings, particularly with the uncertainty in the marketplace, both from a general economic view and by reason of the pandemic, would give rise to risk and potential disruption to future operations. I also accept that MEC had good reason to seek to avoid further risks and disruptions to its operations, given its already fragile economic state.

[102] Similar circumstances were considered in Sanjel Corp. (Re), 2016 ABQB 257, where a SISP conducted outside of the proceedings was challenged. In that case, the SISP was conducted by a financial advisor for about four months prior to the CCAA filing. At that time, the accounting firm was identified as the potential monitor and, when later appointed as monitor, recommended court approval of the sale that arose through the SISP.

[103] Justice Romaine discussed the concerns that arise where a court is presented with a “pre-pack” where court approval of a sale that arose from a pre-filing SISP is sought. Her comments are apt here and I would adopt them:

[70] A pre-filing SISP is not of itself abusive of the CCAA. Nothing in the statute precludes it. Of course, a pre-filing SISP must meet the principles and requirements of section 36 of the CCAA and must be considered against the Soundair principles. The Trustee submits that such a SISP should be subject to heightened scrutiny. It may well be correct that a pre-filing SISP will be subject to greater challenges from stakeholders, and that it may be more difficult for the debtor company to establish that it was conducted in a fair and effective manner, given the lack of supervision by the Court and the Monitor, who as a court officer has statutory duties.

[71] Without prior court approval of the process, conducting a SISP outside of the CCAA means that both the procedure and the execution of the SISP are open to attack by aggrieved stakeholders and bitter bidders, as has been the case here. Any evidence or reasonable allegations of impropriety would have to be investigated carefully, whereas in a court-approved process, comfort can be obtained through the Monitor’s review and the Court’s approval of the process in advance. However, in the end, it is the specific details of the SISP as conducted that will be scrutinized.

[104] Justice Romaine’s reasoning was followed by this Court in Feronia Inc. (Re), 2020 BCSC 1372 where Justice Milman accepted the proposal trustee’s recommendation in support of a sale achieved through a pre-filing sales process (paras. 50-57). The proposal trustee’s affiliate firm had been engaged to assist with that sales process.

[105] The court’s comments in Sanjel about a pre-filing SISP being more open to attack is certainly evident here.

[106] I will now address the actual financing and SISP process in more detail. Evidence of MEC and A&M Securities’ efforts is found in Mr. Arrata’s evidence as was supplemented by Mr. Wallis’ evidence. Mr. Wallis is a MEC director and Chair of the Special Committee. The Monitor also addresses the financing and SISP process in its First Report.

[107] A&M Securities was engaged to secure new financing in February 2020, principally to replace the Credit Facility which was approaching maturity. Unfortunately, the pandemic wrought havoc with those efforts and MEC quickly moved to form a committee to address those issues. That informal committee was formally constituted as the Special Committee on March 27, 2020 with its mandate to pursue a broad range of strategic alternatives.

[108] Although the financing options being pursued were not successful, it was not for want of effort. The steps that A&M Securities designed to seek the financing, as listed above, can only be described as typical. Government aid programs were considered. Approximately 66 lenders were contacted; the listing of those lenders indicates a broad range of lending institutions, including two co-operatives. A May 12, 2020 term sheet provided to RBC by one lender was considerably below what the Lenders were owed and required first priority security that was not a realistic request from the Lenders' point of view given the financing amount.

[109] Mr. Harding, supported by the Co-op Associations, asserts that MEC could have asked its members for the necessary funding. Mr. Wallis addresses that matter, stating that the Special Committee considered but then rejected that option as impractical. In my view, his reasons are amply supportable and are reasonable in the circumstances: a public plea for such funding was unlikely to garner the very substantial amounts needed to repay the Lenders, even if it could be achieved, which was questionable, while creating negative impacts on MEC's business in the meantime.

[110] Finally, the Special Committee considered that the Lenders were very unlikely to grant an extension of the Credit Facility, without significant improvement in MEC's financial performance that, in the teeth of the pandemic, appeared also very unlikely.

[111] Having exhausted refinancing efforts, the Special Committee and the Board had no choice but to then consider a sale. After interviewing other financial advisors, the Special Committee decided that it was in MEC's best interests to continue with A&M Securities under the SISP, given its expertise and experience with MEC.

[112] Again, the Special Committee and the Board expressly considered whether the SISP should be conducted prior to any CCAA proceeding. They decided to do so in order to avoid the likelihood of a distressed-assets sale situation and to preserve MEC's relationships with vendors, customers and service providers with respect to its ongoing business operations in order to preserve going concern value.

[113] As with the refinancing efforts, A&M Securities' design of the SISP included the usual features (as listed above), in that it was structured and implemented in the same or similar manner as is typically done in a SISP in the course of CCAA proceedings. No party appearing on this application contended that the SISP steps were inappropriate or lacking, resting on the contention only that they weren't consulted in its implementation.

[114] The list of persons contacted was extensive, including Canadian and US private investment firms, retail conglomerates and even REI, a US co-operative that was in fact the inspiration for MEC in the first place. As stated above, Kingswood's bid was clearly the best bid of the four that MEC received.

[115] The Lenders' support, including under the Interim Financing, is premised on MEC seeking approval of the Kingswood transaction. I note this as a factor, although the Lenders' support is not surprising since the proposed transaction will generate sufficient funds to pay the Lenders in full. The Monitor's liquidation analysis would also suggest that the Lenders would be paid in full under that scenario.

[116] Another relevant factor in the Court's consideration of the adequacy of the SISP is the level of oversight throughout the process.

[117] The Special Committee and MEC's Board, both comprised of well-qualified and experienced business professionals, oversaw A&M Securities' efforts. Both Mr. Arrata and Mr. Wallis fully endorse those efforts as having produced the very best alternative for MEC in the circumstances. I have no reason to question their commercial and business judgment: AbitibiBowater Inc., 2010 QCCS 1742 at para. 71. Mr. Wallis confirms that, despite rumours in the community, no MEC Board members are receiving any incentives or compensation in respect of the Kingswood transaction. Further, the process was reviewed by the Lenders and their experienced professional advisors, again without objection.

[118] In my view, it is not surprising in the circumstances that the Monitor supports the SISP efforts as being sufficiently robust in the circumstances, particularly with its usual features and oversight. The Monitor states that the SISP is likely consistent with what the Monitor would have recommended in a court-supervised process, with which I agree. It is also worth emphasizing that the entire SISP process from June-September 2020 ran over a 100 day period, hardly a rushed process (i.e., even well beyond the “aggressive timelines” approved in Sanjel at paras. 75-77).

[119] I conclude that the SISP was a competitive process, was conducted in a fair and reasonable manner and adequately canvassed the market for options available to MEC.

iv) Harding / Co-Operative Association Issues

[120] Mr. Harding is the spokesperson for the steering committee of the “SaveMEC” campaign, involving who he describes as a “highly motivated, well organized group of Members, seeking to preserve MEC’s status as a cooperative association with an operating business”. They have been assisted through various online efforts, suggesting support from some 140,000 individuals, and contributions from 2,500 persons toward a legal fund of over $100,000. As I noted on October 2, 2020, the passion of the “SaveMEC” group members is evident, as it was with MEC’s original founders.

[121] Like Plateau and Midtown, Mr. Harding seeks an adjournment of “at least” two weeks. He suggests that his group would like to explore opportunities to address MEC’s liquidity crisis in the short term. He says that the very short notice given to MEC members in respect of these proceedings is challenging in terms of identifying alternatives; MEC gave notice to its members of this proceeding on September 14, 2020. Mr. Harding is supported in his submissions by the Co-op Associations’ counsel.

[122] Mr. Harding indicates some “definitive” sources of funding have already been identified by his group. Unfortunately, none even come close to resolving the very significant financial issues faced by MEC, particularly given the amounts owing to the ever increasingly concerned Lenders who are owed in excess of $80 million in a very uncertain retail environment, MEC’s ongoing losses and MEC’s required working capital.

[123] Mr. Harding’s most significant complaint against the SAVO is that the members will “lose” their substantial financial interest in MEC through their membership. He points to MEC’s February 2020 balance sheet that indicated the book value of members’ shares was in excess of $192 million.

[124] In my view, this argument has little merit. Each MEC member only stands to “lose” their $5 investment, although I appreciate that collectively, the investment is significant. Based on the evidence presented on this application, the best bid which was received from Kingswood is not sufficient to repay the unsecured creditors in full, let alone provide for any return to MEC’s members. Accordingly, assuming the SISF has produced the best financial result in the circumstances, which I accept, MEC members have no real financial interest at this time.

[125] I appreciate that Mr. Harding only seeks a short period of time to confirm whether other more advantageous options are available. This argument also is not persuasive. I consider that the chances of SaveMEC coming up with an option within two weeks to stave off the Lenders, secure funding to cover the losses and necessary working capital and pay the unpaid creditors to be an extremely outside one, however sincere that intention and those efforts may be.

[126] I completely disagree with Mr. Harding that there is no prejudice to MEC, Kingswood or the Lenders if the sale is delayed until his group has a chance to investigate other options. As Mr. Wallis states in his Affidavit, set out below, there is significant prejudice to MEC and its stakeholders in terms of delay, cost, ongoing losses and deal risk. Mr. Harding’s group is risking nothing at this point; to the contrary, other broad stakeholder interests are very much “in the money” under the Kingswood transaction in the sense of it providing recovery to creditors and preserving jobs and business relationships.

[127] I note that the broad stakeholder group who Mr. Harding seeks to represent includes many MEC members who stand to preserve their jobs and redeem the significant value in gift certificates, all by reason of the Kingswood sale.

[128] Mr. Harding also asserts that these CCAA proceedings must be conducted in a manner that respects the fundamental freedom of MEC members, namely the “freedom of association”, that arises under s. 2(d) of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms (the “Charter”).

[129] It is unusual to face Charter arguments in commercial matters or even CCAA proceedings. That said, I accept Mr. Harding’s submissions that co-operatives provide important social and community benefits and that the right to join a co-operative and exercise collective rights through that means goes to the root of the protection offered by s. 2(d): Mounted Police Association of Ontario v. Canada (Attorney General), 2015 SCC 1 at para. 54, citing Reference re Public Service Employee Relations Act (Alberta), [1987] 1 S.C.R. 313. MEC is clearly an example of the exercise of that right, leading to it being, as Mr. Harding asserts, the largest co-operative in Canada.

[130] I cannot see, however, that MEC seeking court protection in its present circumstances offends any rights arising under s. 2(d) of the Charter. As MEC’s counsel states, the Charter does not protect against an organization incurring losses and finding itself in insolvent circumstances, even if the organization is a co-operative.

[131] No one, including Mr. Harding, disputes that MEC qualified to seek court protection under the CCAA. Rather, he asserts that MEC members must be able to exercise their democratic right to shape the future of MEC, and particularly, he argues that any decision to sell MEC’s assets cannot be made without the approval of MEC’s members. The Co-op Act, s. 71(2), and MEC’s Rules of Co-operation

(8.11) both provide that a sale of the whole or substantially the whole of the co-operative's undertaking requires a special resolution of the members.

[132] Mr. Harding's complaint that the members have been unfairly and oppressively denied participation in this important decision to sell MEC's assets is understandable; however, it but does not change the fact that such participation is a very unwieldy step, particularly with the pandemic, it would delay matters where urgency is required, and its relevance is questionable in any event given that the best evidence is that the members have no financial interest in MEC.

[133] I disagree with counsel for the Co-op Associations that the application of the CCAA in the face of the Co-op Act is an "unsettled area of law". Cooperatives are able to avail themselves of the CCAA if they are insolvent and they otherwise meet the statutory requirements.

[134] The CCAA expressly recognizes that participation by corporate shareholders (the equivalent of MEC's members here) toward approving a sale of the assets, is not a requirement before the court can exercise its jurisdiction under s. 36(1):

36(1) A debtor company in respect of which an order has been made under this Act may not sell or otherwise dispose of assets outside the ordinary course of business unless authorized to do so by a court. Despite any requirement for shareholder approval, including one under federal or provincial law, the court may authorize the sale or disposition even if shareholder approval was not obtained.

[135] Mr. Harding suggests that MEC's affairs are being conducted in an oppressive manner by this attempt to sell MEC's assets without member approval. I see no utility in embarking upon an analysis of the oppression remedy under s. 156 of the Co-op Act in the present circumstances, although I would hasten to add that no such court ordered relief has been formally sought. Mr. Harding refers to the comments of this Court in Radford v. MacMillan, 2017 BCSC 1168, aff'd 2018 BCCA 335, concerning the assessment of reasonable expectations in the oppression analysis. In this Court in Radford, Justice Masuhara stated that expectations must be "realistic": para. 119.

[136] I hardly think the MEC members could conceivably realistically consider that they, and they alone, would dictate whether a sale would occur, when the co-operative is insolvent and their memberships presently have no value.

[137] It is unfortunate that Mr. Harding appears to be singularly focussed on preserving MEC as a co-operative entity to continue its business. Given the co-operative principle of “concern for community” embraced by MEC as part of its DNA, the “SaveMEC” campaign group and the Co-op Associations might have given some consideration to the fact that the Kingswood sale will benefit many persons in the community. The sale will ensure ongoing employment to most MEC employees, the maintenance of business relationships which support other jobs and repayment of at least some portion of the debt that MEC owes to its many unsecured creditors.

[138] Mr. Harding’s application for an adjournment is dismissed.

v) Disclaimed Lease Issues

[139] Plateau and Midtown both seek an adjournment of MEC’s application for the SAVO for “at least” two weeks. In addition, both seek an order that MEC produce substantial further documents in relation to the refinancing and sale efforts. Finally, they seek to cross-examine Mr. Arrata and Mr. Wallis on their affidavits.

[140] Plateau and Midtown’s objection to the SAVO derives from the extremely unfortunate circumstances that arise from MEC’s disclaimer of their store leases (in Calgary North West and Saskatoon respectively).

[141] In its petition materials, MEC has earlier identified that the Sale Agreement with Kingswood did not include an assignment of three leases, including those for the Saskatoon and Calgary North West stores. The Saint-Denis store had already been permanently closed; the Saskatoon and Calgary North West stores had not yet opened.

[142] In Mr. Arrata's Affidavit #1 sworn September 13, 2020, he stated that MEC expected to be disclaiming those leases, with the approval of the Monitor, in accordance with s. 32(1) of the CCAA.

[143] As forecast, after the Initial Order was granted, on September 15, 2020, MEC issued notices of intention to disclaim or resiliate all three leases. The Monitor approved these disclaimers in order to "reduce costs and downsize redundant operations". On September 22, 2020, MEC provided its reason for the disclaimer of Plateau's lease, citing its liquidity crisis, that Kingswood had decided not to acquire the leases and that the disclaimer was necessary to enhance the prospects of a viable compromise. The same considerations apply to Midtown's lease.

[144] In the First Report, the Monitor stated that it is also of the view that the disclaimers will enhance the prospect of a viable arrangement and further the restructuring of MEC, as contemplated by the Kingswood Sale Agreement.

[145] On September 30, 2020, Plateau filed a Notice of Application to prohibit the disclaimer of its lease by the deadline, and I assume that Midtown has done likewise.

[146] I agree that both Plateau and Midtown face challenging economic circumstances themselves by reason of the disclaimers. Both landlords have expended substantial sums of money in outfitting their developments for MEC, who was to have been the anchor tenant. Both landlords will suffer significant losses in respect of lost rental revenue and any indirect benefits that might have been derived by MEC's presence in their developments.

[147] Based on my conclusions that the SISF was fair and reasonable in the circumstances, I reject these landlords' request for any delay in approving the Kingswood sale and decline to exercise my discretion to do so. I see no reasonable prospect that these landlords will be in any better position after a delay of two weeks. I also see no need for further document production beyond the documentation that MEC provided on September 26, 2020 in response to Plateau and Midtown's applications.

[148] Kingswood's decision not to take up these leases was made independently of MEC and, on the face of things, aligns with what Kingswood envisions by way of its future operations. The Sale Agreement provides for a contraction of MEC's operating stores to at least 17 locations; in that event, it hardly makes business sense that, at the same time, Kingswood would also agree to incur the considerable expense of fixturing, outfitting, staffing and supplying one or two new locations. None of the other three bidders expressed any interest in these locations either.

[149] As with Mr. Harding's argument, I also reject Plateau and Midtown's assertions that little or no prejudice arises from any adjournment. To the contrary, the unsecured creditor pool will be enhanced by an expeditious sale which obviates any further weekly losses being incurred by MEC. These landlords stand to gain by that enhanced pool of money in respect of their claims that will no doubt be filed, claims that will not increase whether or not the SAVO is granted. Plateau and Midtown have solely focussed on process issues, to the exclusion of other interests at play. They have failed to justify their position.

[150] Plateau and Midtown's arguments appear to conflate MEC's application for the SAVO with their right to contest the disclaimers. They suggest that, effectively, no sale can be considered by the court until the disclaimer issue is determined. No authority was cited in support for this proposition. Indeed, the sale application might just as easily have been considered and the Kingswood sale approved even before any disclaimer notice was issued.

[151] As MEC's counsel notes, MEC decided to be forthright from the outset in signalling this very bad news to these landlords.

[152] I appreciate that granting the SAVO to allow a sale of substantially all of MEC's assets to Kingswood can be interpreted as effectively determining the disclaimer issue. It will be difficult for the landlords to argue that the disclaimer should be prohibited so as to allow MEC, which no longer operates its business, to take up the lease.

[153] However, this ignores the simple reality of the situation. MEC cannot force a buyer to take up these leases. In addition, MEC's dire financial circumstances, as revealed on this application, would hardly have supported a business decision to start up these stores even if the SAVO is not granted. There is no realistic chance that the Lenders would support such an endeavour under the Credit Agreement. Further, I see no basis upon which this Court would effectively require MEC to spend millions of dollars on these new stores under its CCAA jurisdiction. It is difficult to imagine that this Court would, in balancing the various interests at play in relation to the benefits of the Kingswood sale, require such a result to the detriment of the many stakeholders other than these two landlords.

[154] I would add that five other MEC landlords also appeared on this application. They indicated that they were not opposed to the granting of the SAVO or were not taking any position. I suspect that they are all hoping that their store locations will be viewed favourably by Kingswood when the at least 17 store "winners" are chosen to continue operations. If any of them are not in the "winner" category, any losses will be added to the unsecured creditor group to share in the net recovery under the Kingswood sale.

[155] Plateau and Midtown's applications for an adjournment, document discovery and cross-examination of Mr. Arrata and Mr. Wallis are dismissed.

vi) Should the Kingswood Transaction be Approved?

[156] The Court's approach in considering a proposed sale under s. 36 of the CCAA is informed by the CCAA's statutory objectives, as was discussed in Century Services Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General), 2010 SCC 60.

[157] The main objective is to avoid, if possible, the devastating social and economic costs of a liquidation of a debtor's assets: Century Services at para. 15. In achieving these remedial goals, the court must be cognizant of the various interests at stake, including the debtor, the creditors, employees, counterparties, directors and shareholders: Century Services at paras. 59-60. As evident from my discussion above, many of those stakeholder interests were represented on this application and expressed their views. However, the court must also recognize and give effect to, to the extent possible, all stakeholder interests whether present on this application or not.

[158] As with many applications for relief under the CCAA, the Court must strive to balance what are often competing interests and objectives. That exercise is often within the rubric of the need to conclude that the relief is “appropriate”.

Appropriateness is assessed by inquiring whether the purpose of the order sought and the means it employs advances the statutory objectives or remedial purpose of the CCAA. As Justice Deschamps stated in Century Services at para. 70, the chance of achieving that goal is enhanced when “all stakeholders are treated as advantageously and fairly as the circumstances permit” [Emphasis added.]

[159] The relevant factors to be balanced and considered under s. 36(3) are reflective of a consideration of what can be, and is on this application, a broad range of interests.

[160] I have concluded that the refinancing efforts and the SISF were conducted in a fair and reasonable manner. There is no basis upon which to second guess the adequacy of the substantial efforts that were made by the Board, the Special Committee and A&M Securities in that respect.

[161] The Kingswood transaction that arose from that competitive process was clearly the best from the few bids that were received. All other bids paled in comparison, particularly in relation to the purchase price and commitments to ongoing store operations and employee retention. As noted in the Monitor’s First Report, the consideration that MEC will receive is substantial. While the base purchase price is $120 million, the total indicative purchase price is actually $150 million, after accounting for the substantial liabilities that Kingswood will assume in respect of vendor trade payables, employee obligations and gift card obligations.

[162] The process conducted outside of this CCAA proceeding was not a rushed affair. I accept that many of the stakeholders on this application consider that they have been ignored or disadvantaged by reason of the lack of prior consultation and the short notice given to them to respond to this application. In my view, MEC has provided reasonable and understandable explanations for proceeding in that manner. The Monitor provides further support in the First Report in stating that to proceed otherwise would have created significant uncertainty and disruption in MEC's day to day business and put MEC's business operations and a potential going concern sale at unnecessary risk.

[163] As the Monitor notes, the perfect financial storm faced by MEC, still exacerbated by the risks posed by the ongoing pandemic, does not give MEC the luxury of time here. What is needed is a timely solution, after, of course, the Court has fully reviewed the evidence and is satisfied that the requested relief is appropriate. There is no evidence to suggest that MEC's Board or Kingswood have manufactured the need for what is described as urgent relief by approval of the SAVO.

[164] I have also concluded that, although some minor delay could be accommodated with the time limits under the Restructuring Agreement and the Sale Agreement, the perceived benefits do not outweigh the risks that follow. I accept the evidence of Mr. Wallis as to why it is urgent to approve the Sale Agreement as soon as possible. He states:

45. [MEC] believe[s] that the approval of the Sale Agreement is a matter of urgency. Any extension or delay in obtaining Court approval and Closing may have serious and detrimental consequences for its business and stakeholders, including, but not limited to, its employees, members and suppliers. This is particularly the case given the extent of [MEC's] ongoing weekly operating losses, as shown in [MEC's] Cash Flow Forecast, and the importance that any potential purchaser of the Business would have to close this transaction in sufficient time to take advantage of the coming holiday sales period.

46. The projections reflect an erosion of the borrowing base under the Interim Financing Facility and cash availability becomes very tight under the borrowing base calculation towards the end of October. It is therefore imperative that matters progress as quickly as possible so that MEC's customers, suppliers, landlords and employees have confidence that MEC will continue as a successful going concern.
47. Given the recent rise in COVID-19 transmissions across Canada, there is also a real and unpredictable risk that increased COVID-19 rates and/or restrictions would result in further deterioration in sales below those set out in the Updated Cash Flow Forecast provided by the Monitor, which would in turn jeopardize the availability of the Interim Financing Facility or ability to meet the closing condition of requiring repayment of the Credit Facility. The Lenders have confirmed they require a timely completion of the Transaction.

[165] The work to be done to conclude all matters under the Sale Agreement and move toward a closing of the transaction will no doubt be complex and take some time. Many contractual matters need to be concluded by Kingswood with stakeholders, such as employees, landlords and suppliers, in advance of the closing. As noted by MEC and the Monitor, it is critical to the success of the ongoing business that the transaction close as soon as possible so that Kingswood can order additional inventory in advance of the "Black Friday" and holiday shopping season. Kingswood is able to close the transaction by mid-late October 2020.

[166] The Monitor has also conducted a liquidation analysis to compare the results of the Kingswood sale to that which might be achieved by an orderly liquidation of MEC's assets through a bankruptcy and/or receivership. Under the Kingswood sale, estimated recovery to unsecured creditors is between $0.30-50 on the dollar; in a liquidation, estimated recovery to unsecured creditors is between $0.30-60 on the dollar. What is significant as between these two scenarios, however, is that in a liquidation, there would be far greater creditor claims.

[167] The Kingswood sale avoids the devastating impact of a liquidation on employee's jobs, preserves many of the leases, trade supply agreements and service agreements, and provides value to many unsecured creditors by Kingswood's full assumption of liabilities. These latter considerations figure greatly in the Court's decision as to whether a sale should be approved. That decision is made toward achieving the main statutory objectives under the CCAA which are to allow the business to continue, with all the economic, societal and community benefits that that option affords. Many of the indirect benefits are unquantifiable.

[168] I agree with the Monitor that, in all the circumstances, the Kingswood sale is commercially reasonable and, on balance, is more beneficial to MEC's stakeholders, and particularly its creditors, than any other alternative. I grant the SAVO on the terms sought.

Representative Counsel

[169] Mr. Harding also sought an order under s. 11 of the CCAA that Victory Square Law Office be appointed as representative counsel for MEC's members. He also sought a charge of $100,000 under s. 11.52 of the CCAA to secure anticipated fees in respect of participation, ranking behind the four court-ordered charges but ahead of the Lenders' security.

[170] I conclude that this relief might have been more seriously considered if there was any indicative value held by the MEC members and, if these proceedings had taken a different path where the members' interests were in play.

[171] Having concluded that the Kingswood sale should be approved, which will divest MEC of substantially all of its assets in the short term, I see little utility in granting this relief. As I discuss above, this sale will garner some net proceeds for the unsecured creditors, leaving no recovery for MEC's members.

[172] I would add that the Kingswood sale does not mean that MEC will cease to exist as a co-operative. It may be that MEC's members can still consider whether any options remain for them in that respect, particularly if a plan is approved and successfully executed to leave the co-operative intact in a legal sense but without the burden of any debt and, of course, with few assets.

[173] Mr. Harding is, of course, welcome to continue to participate in these proceedings on behalf of the “SaveMEC” group, as he wishes, which I assume can be done with counsel given the funds already raised.

[174] Mr. Harding’s application for appointment of representative counsel and a related charge is dismissed.

FINAL THOUGHTS

[175] I accept that this decision is a disappointing conclusion to the fate of what was an iconic Canadian retailer who has inspired the passion and commitment of many Canadians for outdoor activity. Like many Canadian retailers, MEC has fallen victim to economic forces, and perhaps questionable business judgments made years ago, all exacerbated by the cataclysmic and unprecedented impact of the COVID-19 pandemic throughout most of 2020.

[176] This result, however, will ensure the continuation of MEC’s business, albeit in another organization. While this sale transaction is not wrapped in the Canadian flag, the best evidence is that Kingswood will continue to support MEC’s core values and principles, being community engagement and promotion of a healthy outdoor lifestyle. More importantly, the ongoing operations will support Canadian individuals and their families and also businesses where jobs are disappearing quickly given ongoing economic disruptions. Creditors will be paid, or paid a substantial portion of what they are owed, no doubt to the relief of many.

[177] This is the core objective under a CCAA proceeding, and while that objective was not achieved here in a perfect manner, it was still achieved in a reasonable manner. That is all that anyone can ask.

EN APPEL DE LA COUR D'APPEL FÉDÉRALE

Pratique — Cour fédérale du Canada — Production de documents confidentiels — Contrôle judiciaire demandé par un organisme environnemental de la décision du gouvernement fédéral de donner une aide financière à une société d'État pour la construction et la vente de réacteurs nucléaires — Ordonnance de confidentialité demandée par la société d'État pour certains documents — Analyse applicable à l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire judiciaire sur une demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité — Faut-il accorder l'ordonnance? — Règles de la Cour fédérale (1998), DORS/98-106, règle 151.

Un organisme environnemental, Sierra Club, demande le contrôle judiciaire de la décision du gouvernement fédéral de fournir une aide financière à Énergie atomique du Canada Ltée (« ÉACL »), une société de la Couronne, pour la construction et la vente à la Chine de deux réacteurs CANDU. Les réacteurs sont actuellement en construction en Chine, où ÉACL est l'entrepreneur principal et le gestionnaire de projet. Sierra Club soutient que by the government triggered s. 5(1)(b) of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act ("CEAA"), requiring an environmental assessment as a condition of the financial assistance, and that the failure to comply compels a cancellation of the financial arrangements. AECL filed an affidavit in the proceedings which summarized confidential documents containing thousands of pages of technical information concerning the ongoing environmental assessment of the construction site by the Chinese authorities. AECL resisted Sierra Club's application for production of the confidential documents on the ground, inter alia, that the documents were the property of the Chinese authorities and that it did not have the authority to disclose them. The Chinese authorities authorized disclosure of the documents on the condition that they be protected by a confidentiality order, under which they would only be made available to the parties and the court, but with no restriction on public access to the judicial proceedings. AECL's application for a confidentiality order was rejected by the Federal Court, Trial Division. The Federal Court of Appeal upheld that decision.

Held: The appeal should be allowed and the confidentiality order granted on the terms requested by AECL.

In light of the established link between open courts and freedom of expression, the fundamental question for a court to consider in an application for a confidentiality order is whether the right to freedom of expression should be compromised in the circumstances. The court must ensure that the discretion to grant the order is exercised in accordance with Charter principles because a confidentiality order will have a negative effect on the s. 2(b) right to freedom of expression. A confidentiality order should only be granted when (1) such an order is necessary to prevent a serious risk to an important interest, including a commercial interest, in the context of litigation because reasonably alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and (2) the salutary effects of the confidentiality order, including the effects on the right of civil litigants to a fair trial, outweigh its deleterious effects, including the effects on the right to free expression, which in this context includes the public interest in open and accessible court proceedings. Three important elements are subsumed under the first branch of the test. First, the risk must be real and substantial, well grounded in evidence, posing a serious threat to the commercial interest in question. Second, the important commercial interest must be one which can be expressed in terms of a public interest in confidentiality, where there is a general principle at stake. Finally, the judge is required to consider not only whether reasonable alternatives are available to such an order but also to restrict the order as much as is reasonably possible while preserving the commercial interest in question.

l'autorisation d'aide financière du gouvernement déclenche l'application de l'al. 5(1)b) de la Loi canadienne sur l'évaluation environnementale (« LCÉE ») exigeant une évaluation environnementale comme condition de l'aide financière, et que le défaut d'évaluation entraîne l'annulation des ententes financières. ÉACL dépose un affidavit qui résume des documents confidentiels contenant des milliers de pages d'information technique concernant l'évaluation environnementale du site de construction qui est faite par les autorités chinoises. ÉACL s'oppose à la communication des documents demandée par Sierra Club pour la raison notamment qu'ils sont la propriété des autorités chinoises et qu'elle n'est pas autorisée à les divulguer. Les autorités chinoises donnent l'autorisation de les communiquer à la condition qu'ils soient protégés par une ordonnance de confidentialité n'y donnant accès qu'aux parties et à la cour, mais n'imposant aucune restriction à l'accès du public aux débats. La demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité est rejetée par la Section de première instance de la Cour fédérale. La Cour d'appel fédérale confirme cette décision.

Arrêt : L'appel est accueilli et l'ordonnance demandée par ÉACL est accordée.

Vu le lien existant entre la publicité des débats judiciaires et la liberté d'expression, la question fondamentale pour la cour saisie d'une demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité est de savoir si, dans les circonstances, il y a lieu de restreindre le droit à la liberté d'expression. La cour doit s'assurer que l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire de l'accorder est conforme aux principes de la Charte parce qu'une ordonnance de confidentialité a des effets préjudiciables sur la liberté d'expression garantie à l'al. 2b). On ne doit l'accorder que (1) lorsqu'elle est nécessaire pour écarter un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important, y compris un intérêt commercial, dans le contexte d'un litige, en l'absence d'autres options raisonnables pour écarter ce risque, et (2) lorsque ses effets bénéfiques, y compris ses effets sur le droit des justiciables civils à un procès équitable, l'emportent sur ses effets préjudiciables, y compris ses effets sur la liberté d'expression qui, dans ce contexte, comprend l'intérêt du public dans la publicité des débats judiciaires. Trois éléments importants sont subsumés sous le premier volet de l'analyse. Premièrement, le risque en cause doit être réel et important, être bien étayé par la preuve et menacer gravement l'intérêt commercial en question. Deuxièmement, l'intérêt doit pouvoir se définir en termes d'intérêt public à la confidentialité, mettant en jeu un principe général. Enfin le juge doit non seulement déterminer s'il existe d'autres options raisonnables, il doit aussi restreindre l'ordonnance autant qu'il est raisonnablement possible de le faire tout en préservant l'intérêt commercial en question.

Applying the test to the present circumstances, the commercial interest at stake here relates to the objective of preserving contractual obligations of confidentiality, which is sufficiently important to pass the first branch of the test as long as certain criteria relating to the information are met. The information must have been treated as confidential at all relevant times; on a balance of probabilities, proprietary, commercial and scientific interests could reasonably be harmed by disclosure of the information; and the information must have been accumulated with a reasonable expectation of it being kept confidential. These requirements have been met in this case. Disclosure of the confidential documents would impose a serious risk on an important commercial interest of AECL, and there are no reasonably alternative measures to granting the order.

Under the second branch of the test, the confidentiality order would have significant salutary effects on AECL's right to a fair trial. Disclosure of the confidential documents would cause AECL to breach its contractual obligations and suffer a risk of harm to its competitive position. If a confidentiality order is denied, AECL will be forced to withhold the documents in order to protect its commercial interests, and since that information is relevant to defences available under the CEAA, the inability to present this information hinders AECL's capacity to make full answer and defence. Although in the context of a civil proceeding, this does not engage a Charter right, the right to a fair trial is a fundamental principle of justice. Further, the confidentiality order would allow all parties and the court access to the confidential documents, and permit cross-examination based on their contents, assisting in the search for truth, a core value underlying freedom of expression. Finally, given the technical nature of the information, there may be a substantial public security interest in maintaining the confidentiality of such information.

The deleterious effects of granting a confidentiality order include a negative effect on the open court principle, and therefore on the right to freedom of expression. The more detrimental the confidentiality order would be to the core values of (1) seeking the truth and the common good, (2) promoting self-fulfilment of individuals by allowing them to develop thoughts and ideas as they see fit, and (3) ensuring that participation in the political process is open to all persons, the harder it will be to justify the confidentiality order. In the hands of the parties and their experts, the confidential documents may be of great assistance in probing the truth of the Chinese environmental assessment process, which would assist the court in reaching accurate factual conclusions. Given the highly technical nature of the documents, the important value of the search for the truth which underlies En l'espèce, l'intérêt commercial en jeu, la préservation d'obligations contractuelles de confidentialité, est suffisamment important pour satisfaire au premier volet de l'analyse, pourvu que certaines conditions soient remplies : les renseignements ont toujours été traités comme des renseignements confidentiels; il est raisonnable de penser que, selon la prépondérance des probabilités, leur divulgation compromettrait des droits exclusifs, commerciaux et scientifiques; et les renseignements ont été recueillis dans l'expectative raisonnable qu'ils resteraient confidentiels. Ces conditions sont réunies en l'espèce. La divulgation des documents confidentiels ferait courir un risque sérieux à un intérêt commercial important de ÉACL et il n'existe pas d'options raisonnables autres que l'ordonnance de confidentialité.

À la deuxième étape de l'analyse, l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait des effets bénéfiques considérables sur le droit de ÉACL à un procès équitable. Si ÉACL divulguait les documents confidentiels, elle manquerait à ses obligations contractuelles et s'exposerait à une détérioration de sa position concurrentielle. Le refus de l'ordonnance obligerait ÉACL à retenir les documents pour protéger ses intérêts commerciaux et comme ils sont pertinents pour l'exercice des moyens de défense prévus par la LCÉE, l'impossibilité de les produire empêcherait ÉACL de présenter une défense pleine et entière. Même si en matière civile cela n'engage pas de droit protégé par la Charte, le droit à un procès équitable est un principe de justice fondamentale. L'ordonnance permettrait aux parties et au tribunal d'avoir accès aux documents confidentiels, et permettrait la tenue d'un contre-interrogatoire fondé sur leur contenu, favorisant ainsi la recherche de la vérité, une valeur fondamentale sous-tendant la liberté d'expression. Il peut enfin y avoir un important intérêt de sécurité publique à préserver la confidentialité de ce type de renseignements techniques.

Une ordonnance de confidentialité aurait un effet préjudiciable sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires et donc sur la liberté d'expression. Plus l'ordonnance porte atteinte aux valeurs fondamentales que sont (1) la recherche de la vérité et du bien commun, (2) l'épanouissement personnel par le libre développement des pensées et des idées et (3) la participation de tous au processus politique, plus il est difficile de justifier l'ordonnance. Dans les mains des parties et de leurs experts, les documents peuvent être très utiles pour apprécier la conformité du processus d'évaluation environnementale chinois, et donc pour aider la cour à parvenir à des conclusions de fait exactes. Compte tenu de leur nature hautement technique, la production des documents confidentiels en vertu de l'ordonnance demandée favoriserait mieux l'importante valeur de la recherche de la vérité, qui both freedom of expression and open justice would be promoted to a greater extent by submitting the confidential documents under the order sought than it would by denying the order.

Under the terms of the order sought, the only restrictions relate to the public distribution of the documents, which is a fairly minimal intrusion into the open court rule. Although the confidentiality order would restrict individual access to certain information which may be of interest to that individual, the second core value of promoting individual self-fulfilment would not be significantly affected by the confidentiality order. The third core value figures prominently in this appeal as open justice is a fundamental aspect of a democratic society. By their very nature, environmental matters carry significant public import, and openness in judicial proceedings involving environmental issues will generally attract a high degree of protection, so that the public interest is engaged here more than if this were an action between private parties involving private interests. However, the narrow scope of the order coupled with the highly technical nature of the confidential documents significantly temper the deleterious effects the confidentiality order would have on the public interest in open courts. The core freedom of expression values of seeking the truth and promoting an open political process are most closely linked to the principle of open courts, and most affected by an order restricting that openness. However, in the context of this case, the confidentiality order would only marginally impede, and in some respects would even promote, the pursuit of these values. The salutary effects of the order outweigh its deleterious effects and the order should be granted. A balancing of the various rights and obligations engaged indicates that the confidentiality order would have substantial salutary effects on AECL's right to a fair trial and freedom of expression, while the deleterious effects on the principle of open courts and freedom of expression would be minimal.

sous-tend à la fois la liberté d'expression et la publicité des débats judiciaires, que ne le ferait le refus de l'ordonnance.

Aux termes de l'ordonnance demandée, les seules restrictions ont trait à la distribution publique des documents, une atteinte relativement minime à la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Même si l'ordonnance de confidentialité devait restreindre l'accès individuel à certains renseignements susceptibles d'intéresser quelqu'un, la deuxième valeur fondamentale, l'épanouissement personnel, ne serait pas touchée de manière significative. La troisième valeur joue un rôle primordial dans le pourvoi puisque la publicité des débats judiciaires est un aspect fondamental de la société démocratique. Par leur nature même, les questions environnementales ont une portée publique considérable, et la transparence des débats judiciaires sur les questions environnementales mérite généralement un degré élevé de protection, de sorte que l'intérêt public est en l'espèce plus engagé que s'il s'agissait d'un litige entre personnes privées à l'égard d'intérêts purement privés. Toutefois la portée étroite de l'ordonnance associée à la nature hautement technique des documents confidentiels tempère considérablement les effets préjudiciables que l'ordonnance de confidentialité pourrait avoir sur l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Les valeurs centrales de la liberté d'expression que sont la recherche de la vérité et la promotion d'un processus politique ouvert sont très étroitement liées au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, et sont les plus touchées par une ordonnance limitant cette publicité. Toutefois, en l'espèce, l'ordonnance de confidentialité n'entraverait que légèrement la poursuite de ces valeurs, et pourrait même les favoriser à certains égards. Ses effets bénéfiques l'emportent sur ses effets préjudiciables, et il y a lieu de l'accorder. Selon la pondération des divers droits et intérêts en jeu, l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait des effets bénéfiques importants sur le droit de ÉACL à un procès équitable et à la liberté d'expression, et ses effets préjudiciables sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires et la liberté d'expression seraient minimes.

I. Introduction

Dans notre pays, les tribunaux sont les institutions généralement choisies pour résoudre au mieux les différends juridiques par l'application de principes juridiques aux faits de chaque espèce. Un des principes sous-jacents au processus judiciaire est la transparence, tant dans la procédure suivie que dans les éléments pertinents à la solution du litige. Certains de ces éléments peuvent toutefois faire l'objet d'une ordonnance de confidentialité. Le issues of when, and under what circumstances, a confidentiality order should be granted.

For the following reasons, I would issue the confidentiality order sought and accordingly would allow the appeal.

II. Facts

The appellant, Atomic Energy of Canada Limited (“AECL”) is a Crown corporation that owns and markets CANDU nuclear technology, and is an intervenor with the rights of a party in the application for judicial review by the respondent, the Sierra Club of Canada (“Sierra Club”). Sierra Club is an environmental organization seeking judicial review of the federal government’s decision to provide financial assistance in the form of a $1.5 billion guaranteed loan relating to the construction and sale of two CANDU nuclear reactors to China by the appellant. The reactors are currently under construction in China, where the appellant is the main contractor and project manager.

The respondent maintains that the authorization of financial assistance by the government triggered s. 5(1)(b) of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act, S.C. 1992, c. 37 (“CEAA”), which requires that an environmental assessment be undertaken before a federal authority grants financial assistance to a project. Failure to undertake such an assessment compels cancellation of the financial arrangements.

The appellant and the respondent Ministers argue that the CEAA does not apply to the loan transaction, and that if it does, the statutory defences available under ss. 8 and 54 apply. Section 8 describes the circumstances where Crown corporations are required to conduct environmental assessments. Section 54(2)(b) recognizes the validity of an environmental assessment carried out by a foreign authority provided that it is consistent with the provisions of the CEAA.

In the course of the application by Sierra Club to set aside the funding arrangements, the appellant pourvoi soulève les importantes questions de savoir à quel moment et dans quelles circonstances il y a lieu de rendre une ordonnance de confidentialité.

Pour les motifs qui suivent, je suis d’avis de rendre l’ordonnance de confidentialité demandée et par conséquent d’accueillir le pourvoi.

II. Les faits

L’appelante, Énergie atomique du Canada Limitée (« ÉACL »), société d’État propriétaire et vendeuse de la technologie nucléaire CANDU, est une intervenante ayant reçu les droits de partie dans la demande de contrôle judiciaire présentée par l’intimé, Sierra Club du Canada (« Sierra Club »), un organisme environnemental. Sierra Club demande le contrôle judiciaire de la décision du gouvernement fédéral de fournir une aide financière, sous forme de garantie d’emprunt de 1,5 milliard de dollars, pour la construction et la vente à la Chine de deux réacteurs nucléaires CANDU par l’appelante. Les réacteurs sont actuellement en construction en Chine, où l’appelante est entrepreneur principal et gestionnaire de projet.

L’intimé soutient que l’autorisation d’aide financière du gouvernement déclenche l’application de l’al. 5(1)b) de la Loi canadienne sur l’évaluation environnementale, L.C. 1992, ch. 37 (« LCÉE »), qui exige une évaluation environnementale avant qu’une autorité fédérale puisse fournir une aide financière à un projet. Le défaut d’évaluation entraîne l’annulation des ententes financières.

Selon l’appelante et les ministres intimés, la LCÉE ne s’applique pas à la convention de prêt et si elle s’y applique, ils peuvent invoquer les défenses prévues aux art. 8 et 54 de cette loi. L’article 8 prévoit les circonstances dans lesquelles les sociétés d’État sont tenues de procéder à des évaluations environnementales. Le paragraphe 54(2) reconnaît la validité des évaluations environnementales effectuées par des autorités étrangères pourvu qu’elles soient compatibles avec les dispositions de la LCÉE.

Dans le cadre de la requête de Sierra Club en annulation des ententes financières, l’appelante a filed an affidavit of Dr. Simon Pang, a senior manager of the appellant. In the affidavit, Dr. Pang referred to and summarized certain documents (the “Confidential Documents”). The Confidential Documents are also referred to in an affidavit prepared by Mr. Feng, one of AECL’s experts. Prior to cross-examining Dr. Pang on his affidavit, Sierra Club made an application for the production of the Confidential Documents, arguing that it could not test Dr. Pang’s evidence without access to the underlying documents. The appellant resisted production on various grounds, including the fact that the documents were the property of the Chinese authorities and that it did not have authority to disclose them. After receiving authorization by the Chinese authorities to disclose the documents on the condition that they be protected by a confidentiality order, the appellant sought to introduce the Confidential Documents under Rule 312 of the Federal Court Rules, 1998, SOR/98-106, and requested a confidentiality order in respect of the documents.

7 Under the terms of the order requested, the Confidential Documents would only be made available to the parties and the court; however, there would be no restriction on public access to the proceedings. In essence, what is being sought is an order preventing the dissemination of the Confidential Documents to the public.

8 The Confidential Documents comprise two Environmental Impact Reports on Siting and Construction Design (the “EIRs”), a Preliminary Safety Analysis Report (the “PSAR”), and the supplementary affidavit of Dr. Pang which summarizes the contents of the EIRs and the PSAR. If admitted, the EIRs and the PSAR would be attached as exhibits to the supplementary affidavit of Dr. Pang. The EIRs were prepared by the Chinese authorities in the Chinese language, and the PSAR was prepared by the appellant with assistance from the Chinese participants in the project. The documents contain a mass of technical information and comprise thousands of pages. They describe the ongoing environmental assessment of the construction site by the Chinese authorities under Chinese law.

déposé un affidavit de M. Simon Pang, un de ses cadres supérieurs. Dans l’affidavit, M. Pang mentionne et résume certains documents (les « documents confidentiels ») qui sont également mentionnés dans un affidavit de M. Feng, un expert d’ÉACL. Avant de contre-interroger M. Pang sur son affidavit, Sierra Club a demandé par requête la production des documents confidentiels, au motif qu’il ne pouvait vérifier la validité de sa déposition sans consulter les documents de base. L’appelante s’oppose pour plusieurs raisons à la production des documents, dont le fait qu’ils sont la propriété des autorités chinoises et qu’elle n’est pas autorisée à les divulguer. Après avoir obtenu des autorités chinoises l’autorisation de communiquer les documents à la condition qu’ils soient protégés par une ordonnance de confidentialité, l’appelante a cherché à les produire en invoquant la règle 312 des Règles de la Cour fédérale (1998), DORS/98-106, et a demandé une ordonnance de confidentialité à leur égard.

Aux termes de l’ordonnance demandée, seules les parties et la cour auraient accès aux documents confidentiels. Aucune restriction ne serait imposée à l’accès du public aux débats. On demande essentiellement d’empêcher la diffusion des documents confidentiels au public.

Les documents confidentiels comprennent deux Rapports d’impact environnemental (« RIE ») sur le site et la construction, un Rapport préliminaire d’analyse sur la sécurité (« RPAS ») ainsi que l’affidavit supplémentaire de M. Pang qui résume le contenu des RIE et du RPAS. S’ils étaient admis, les rapports seraient joints en annexe de l’affidavit supplémentaire de M. Pang. Les RIE ont été préparés en chinois par les autorités chinoises, et le RPAS a été préparé par l’appelante en collaboration avec les responsables chinois du projet. Les documents contiennent une quantité considérable de renseignements techniques et comprennent des milliers de pages. Ils décrivent l’évaluation environnementale du site de construction qui est faite par les autorités chinoises en vertu des lois chinoises.

As noted, the appellant argues that it cannot introduce the Confidential Documents into evidence without a confidentiality order, otherwise it would be in breach of its obligations to the Chinese authorities. The respondent's position is that its right to cross-examine Dr. Pang and Mr. Feng on their affidavits would be effectively rendered nugatory in the absence of the supporting documents to which the affidavits referred. Sierra Club proposes to take the position that the affidavits should therefore be afforded very little weight by the judge hearing the application for judicial review.

The Federal Court of Canada, Trial Division refused to grant the confidentiality order and the majority of the Federal Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal. In his dissenting opinion, Robertson J.A. would have granted the confidentiality order.

III. Relevant Statutory Provisions

Federal Court Rules, 1998, SOR/98-106

151. (1) On motion, the Court may order that material to be filed shall be treated as confidential.

(2) Before making an order under subsection (1), the Court must be satisfied that the material should be treated as confidential, notwithstanding the public interest in open and accessible court proceedings.

IV. Judgments Below

A. Federal Court, Trial Division, [2000] 2 F.C. 400

Pelletier J. first considered whether leave should be granted pursuant to Rule 312 to introduce the supplementary affidavit of Dr. Pang to which the Confidential Documents were filed as exhibits. In his view, the underlying question was that of relevance, and he concluded that the documents were relevant to the issue of the appropriate remedy. Thus, in the absence of prejudice to the respondent, the affidavit should be permitted to be served and filed. He noted that the respondent would be prejudiced by delay, but since both parties had brought Comme je le note plus haut, l'appelante prétend ne pas pouvoir produire les documents confidentiels en preuve sans qu'ils soient protégés par une ordonnance de confidentialité, parce que ce serait un manquement à ses obligations envers les autorités chinoises. L'intimé soutient pour sa part que son droit de contre-interroger M. Pang et M. Feng sur leurs affidavits serait pratiquement futile en l'absence des documents auxquels ils se réfèrent. Sierra Club entend soutenir que le juge saisi de la demande de contrôle judiciaire devrait donc leur accorder peu de poids.

La Section de première instance de la Cour fédérale du Canada a rejeté la demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité et la Cour d'appel fédérale, à la majorité, a rejeté l'appel. Le juge Robertson, dissident, était d'avis d'accorder l'ordonnance.

III. Dispositions législatives

Règles de la Cour fédérale (1998), DORS/98-106

151. (1) La Cour peut, sur requête, ordonner que des documents ou éléments matériels qui seront déposés soient considérés comme confidentiels.

(2) Avant de rendre une ordonnance en application du paragraphe (1), la Cour doit être convaincue de la nécessité de considérer les documents ou éléments matériels comme confidentiels, étant donné l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires.

IV. Les décisions antérieures

A. Cour fédérale, Section de première instance, [2000] 2 C.F. 400

Le juge Pelletier examine d'abord s'il y a lieu, en vertu de la règle 312, d'autoriser la production de l'affidavit supplémentaire de M. Pang auquel sont annexés les documents confidentiels. À son avis, il s'agit d'une question de pertinence et il conclut que les documents se rapportent à la question de la réparation. En l'absence de préjudice pour l'intimé, il y a donc lieu d'autoriser la signification et le dépôt de l'affidavit. Il note que des retards seraient préjudiciables à l'intimé mais que, puisque les deux parties ont présenté des requêtes interlocutory motions which had contributed to the delay, the desirability of having the entire record before the court outweighed the prejudice arising from the delay associated with the introduction of the documents.

interlocutoires qui ont entraîné les délais, les avantages de soumettre le dossier au complet à la cour compensent l'inconvénient du retard causé par la présentation de ces documents.

13 On the issue of confidentiality, Pelletier J. concluded that he must be satisfied that the need for confidentiality was greater than the public interest in open court proceedings, and observed that the argument for open proceedings in this case was significant given the public interest in Canada's role as a vendor of nuclear technology. As well, he noted that a confidentiality order was an exception to the rule of open access to the courts, and that such an order should be granted only where absolutely necessary.

Sur la confidentialité, le juge Pelletier conclut qu'il doit être convaincu que la nécessité de protéger la confidentialité l'emporte sur l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Il note que les arguments en faveur de la publicité des débats judiciaires en l'espèce sont importants vu l'intérêt du public envers le rôle du Canada comme vendeur de technologie nucléaire. Il fait aussi remarquer que les ordonnances de confidentialité sont une exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires et ne devraient être accordées que dans des cas de nécessité absolue.

14 Pelletier J. applied the same test as that used in patent litigation for the issue of a protective order, which is essentially a confidentiality order. The granting of such an order requires the appellant to show a subjective belief that the information is confidential and that its interests would be harmed by disclosure. In addition, if the order is challenged, then the person claiming the benefit of the order must demonstrate objectively that the order is required. This objective element requires the party to show that the information has been treated as confidential, and that it is reasonable to believe that its proprietary, commercial and scientific interests could be harmed by the disclosure of the information.

Le juge Pelletier applique le même critère que pour une ordonnance conservatoire en matière de brevets, qui est essentiellement une ordonnance de confidentialité. Pour obtenir l'ordonnance, le requérant doit démontrer qu'il croit subjectivement que les renseignements sont confidentiels et que leur divulgation nuirait à ses intérêts. De plus, si l'ordonnance est contestée, le requérant doit démontrer objectivement qu'elle est nécessaire. Cet élément objectif l'oblige à démontrer que les renseignements ont toujours été traités comme étant confidentiels et qu'il est raisonnable de croire que leur divulgation risque de compromettre ses droits exclusifs, commerciaux et scientifiques.

15 Concluding that both the subjective part and both elements of the objective part of the test had been satisfied, he nevertheless stated: "However, I am also of the view that in public law cases, the objective test has, or should have, a third component which is whether the public interest in disclosure exceeds the risk of harm to a party arising from disclosure" (para. 23).

Ayant conclu qu'il est satisfait à l'élément subjectif et aux deux volets de l'élément objectif du critère, il ajoute : « J'estime toutefois aussi que, dans les affaires de droit public, le critère objectif comporte, ou devrait comporter, un troisième volet, en l'occurrence la question de savoir si l'intérêt du public à l'égard de la divulgation l'emporte sur le préjudice que la divulgation risque de causer à une personne » (para. 23).

16 A very significant factor, in his view, was the fact that mandatory production of documents was not in issue here. The fact that the application involved a voluntary tendering of documents to advance the appellant's own cause as opposed to mandatory production weighed against granting the confidentiality order.

In weighing the public interest in disclosure against the risk of harm to AECL arising from disclosure, Pelletier J. noted that the documents the appellant wished to put before the court were prepared by others for other purposes, and recognized that the appellant was bound to protect the confidentiality of the information. At this stage, he again considered the issue of materiality. If the documents were shown to be very material to a critical issue, "the requirements of justice militate in favour of a confidentiality order. If the documents are marginally relevant, then the voluntary nature of the production argues against a confidentiality order" (para. 29). He then decided that the documents were material to a question of the appropriate remedy, a significant issue in the event that the appellant failed on the main issue.

Pelletier J. also considered the context of the case and held that since the issue of Canada's role as a vendor of nuclear technology was one of significant public interest, the burden of justifying a confidentiality order was very onerous. He found that AECL could expunge the sensitive material from the documents, or put the evidence before the court in some other form, and thus maintain its full right of defence while preserving the open access to court proceedings.

Pelletier J. observed that his order was being made without having perused the Confidential Documents because they had not been put before him. Although he noted the line of cases which holds that a judge ought not to deal with the issue of a confidentiality order without reviewing the documents themselves, in his view, given their voluminous nature and technical content as well as his lack of information as to what information was already in the public domain, he found that an examination of these documents would not have been useful.

par opposition à une production obligatoire, joue contre l'ordonnance de confidentialité.

En soupesant l'intérêt du public dans la divulgation et le préjudice que la divulgation risque de causer à ÉACL, le juge Pelletier note que les documents que l'appelante veut soumettre à la cour ont été rédigés par d'autres personnes à d'autres fins, et il reconnaît que l'appelante est tenue de protéger la confidentialité des renseignements. À cette étape, il examine de nouveau la question de la pertinence. Si on réussit à démontrer que les documents sont très importants sur une question cruciale, « les exigences de la justice militent en faveur du prononcé d'une ordonnance de confidentialité. Si les documents ne sont pertinents que d'une façon accessoire, le caractère facultatif de la production milite contre le prononcé de l'ordonnance de confidentialité » (par. 29). Il conclut alors que les documents sont importants pour résoudre la question de la réparation à accorder, elle-même un point important si l'appelante échoue sur la question principale.

Le juge Pelletier considère aussi le contexte de l'affaire et conclut que, puisque la question du rôle du Canada comme vendeur de technologies nucléaires est une importante question d'intérêt public, la charge de justifier une ordonnance de confidentialité est très onéreuse. Il conclut qu'ÉACL pourrait retrancher les éléments délicats des documents ou soumettre à la cour la même preuve sous une autre forme, et maintenir ainsi son droit à une défense complète tout en préservant la publicité des débats judiciaires.

Le juge Pelletier signale qu'il prononce l'ordonnance sans avoir examiné les documents confidentiels puisqu'ils n'ont pas été portés à sa connaissance. Bien qu'il mentionne la jurisprudence indiquant qu'un juge ne devrait pas se prononcer sur une demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité sans avoir examiné les documents eux-mêmes, il estime qu'il n'aurait pas été utile d'examiner les documents, vu leur volume et leur caractère technique, et sans savoir quelle part d'information était déjà dans le domaine public.

20 Pelletier J. ordered that the appellant could file the documents in current form, or in an edited version if it chose to do so. He also granted leave to file material dealing with the Chinese regulatory process in general and as applied to this project, provided it did so within 60 days.

B. Federal Court of Appeal, [2000] 4 F.C. 426

(1) Evans J.A. (Sharlow J.A. concurring)

21 At the Federal Court of Appeal, AECL appealed the ruling under Rule 151 of the Federal Court Rules, 1998, and Sierra Club cross-appealed the ruling under Rule 312.

22 With respect to Rule 312, Evans J.A. held that the documents were clearly relevant to a defence under s. 54(2)(b) which the appellant proposed to raise if s. 5(1)(b) of the CEAA was held to apply, and were also potentially relevant to the exercise of the court's discretion to refuse a remedy even if the Ministers were in breach of the CEAA. Evans J.A. agreed with Pelletier J. that the benefit to the appellant and the court of being granted leave to file the documents outweighed any prejudice to the respondent owing to delay and thus concluded that the motions judge was correct in granting leave under Rule 312.

23 On the issue of the confidentiality order, Evans J.A. considered Rule 151, and all the factors that the motions judge had weighed, including the commercial sensitivity of the documents, the fact that the appellant had received them in confidence from the Chinese authorities, and the appellant's argument that without the documents it could not mount a full answer and defence to the application. These factors had to be weighed against the principle of open access to court documents. Evans J.A. agreed with Pelletier J. that the weight to be attached to the public interest in open proceedings varied with context and held that, where a case raises issues of public significance, the principle of openness of judicial process carries greater weight as a factor in Dans son ordonnance, le juge Pelletier autorise l'appelante à déposer les documents sous leur forme actuelle ou sous une version révisée, à son gré. Il autorise aussi l'appelante à déposer des documents concernant le processus réglementaire chinois en général et son application au projet, à condition qu'elle le fasse sous 60 jours.

B. Cour d'appel fédérale, [2000] 4 C.F. 426

(1) Le juge Evans (avec l'appui du juge Sharlow)

ÉACL fait appel en Cour d'appel fédérale, en vertu de la règle 151 des Règles de la Cour fédérale (1998), et Sierra Club forme un appel incident en vertu de la règle 312.

Sur la règle 312, le juge Evans conclut que les documents en cause sont clairement pertinents dans une défense que l'appelante a l'intention d'invoquer en vertu du par. 54(2) si la cour conclut que l'al. 5(1)b) de la LCÉE doit s'appliquer, et pourraient l'être aussi pour l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire de la cour de refuser d'accorder une réparation dans le cas où les ministres auraient enfreint la LCÉE. Comme le juge Pelletier, le juge Evans est d'avis que l'avantage pour l'appelante et pour la cour d'une autorisation de déposer les documents l'emporte sur tout préjudice que le retard pourrait causer à l'intimé, et conclut par conséquent que le juge des requêtes a eu raison d'accorder l'autorisation en vertu de la règle 312.

Sur l'ordonnance de confidentialité, le juge Evans examine la règle 151 et tous les facteurs que le juge des requêtes a appréciés, y compris le secret commercial attaché aux documents, le fait que l'appelante les a reçus à titre confidentiel des autorités chinoises, et l'argument de l'appelante selon lequel, sans les documents, elle ne pourrait assurer effectivement sa défense. Ces facteurs doivent être pondérés avec le principe de la publicité des documents soumis aux tribunaux. Le juge Evans convient avec le juge Pelletier que le poids à accorder à l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats varie selon le contexte, et il conclut que lorsqu'une affaire soulève des questions de grande importance pour le public, le principe de la publicité des débats a plus de poids the balancing process. Evans J.A. noted the public interest in the subject matter of the litigation, as well as the considerable media attention it had attracted.

In support of his conclusion that the weight assigned to the principle of openness may vary with context, Evans J.A. relied upon the decisions in AB Hassle v. Canada (Minister of National Health and Welfare), [2000] 3 F.C. 360 (C.A.), where the court took into consideration the relatively small public interest at stake, and Ethyl Canada Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General) (1998), 17 C.P.C. (4th) 278 (Ont. Ct. (Gen. Div.)), at p. 283, where the court ordered disclosure after determining that the case was a significant constitutional case where it was important for the public to understand the issues at stake. Evans J.A. observed that openness and public participation in the assessment process are fundamental to the CEEA, and concluded that the motions judge could not be said to have given the principle of openness undue weight even though confidentiality was claimed for a relatively small number of highly technical documents.

Evans J.A. held that the motions judge had placed undue emphasis on the fact that the introduction of the documents was voluntary; however, it did not follow that his decision on the confidentiality order must therefore be set aside. Evans J.A. was of the view that this error did not affect the ultimate conclusion for three reasons. First, like the motions judge, he attached great weight to the principle of openness. Secondly, he held that the inclusion in the affidavits of a summary of the reports could go a long way to compensate for the absence of the originals, should the appellant choose not to put them in without a confidentiality order. Finally, if AECL submitted the documents in an expunged fashion, the claim for confidentiality would rest upon a relatively unimportant factor, i.e., the appellant's claim that it would suffer a loss of business if it breached its undertaking with the Chinese authorities.

Evans J.A. rejected the argument that the motions judge had erred in deciding the motion without comme facteur à prendre en compte dans le processus de pondération. Le juge Evans note l'intérêt du public à l'égard de la question en litige ainsi que la couverture médiatique considérable qu'elle a suscitée.

À l'appui de sa conclusion que le poids accordé au principe de la publicité des débats peut varier selon le contexte, le juge Evans invoque les décisions AB Hassle c. Canada (Ministre de la Santé nationale et du Bien-être social), [2000] 3 C.F. 360 (C.A.), où la cour a tenu compte du peu d'intérêt du public, et Ethyl Canada Inc. c. Canada (Attorney General) (1998), 17 C.P.C. (4th) 278 (C. Ont. (Div. gén.)), p. 283, où la cour a ordonné la divulgation après avoir déterminé qu'il s'agissait d'une affaire constitutionnelle importante et qu'il importait que le public comprenne ce qui était en cause. Le juge Evans fait remarquer que la transparence du processus d'évaluation et la participation du public ont une importance fondamentale pour la LCÉE, et il conclut qu'on ne peut prétendre que le juge des requêtes a accordé trop de poids au principe de la publicité des débats, même si la confidentialité n'est demandée que pour un nombre relativement restreint de documents hautement techniques.

Le juge Evans conclut que le juge des requêtes a donné trop de poids au fait que la production des documents était volontaire mais qu'il ne s'ensuit pas que sa décision au sujet de la confidentialité doive être écartée. Le juge Evans est d'avis que l'erreur n'entâche pas sa conclusion finale, pour trois motifs. Premièrement, comme le juge des requêtes, il attache une grande importance à la publicité du débat judiciaire. Deuxièmement, il conclut que l'inclusion dans les affidavits d'un résumé des rapports peut, dans une large mesure, compenser l'absence des rapports, si l'appelante décide de ne pas les déposer sans ordonnance de confidentialité. Enfin, si ÉACL déposait une version modifiée des documents, la demande de confidentialité reposerait sur un facteur relativement peu important, savoir l'argument que l'appelante perdrait des occasions d'affaires si elle violait son engagement envers les autorités chinoises.

Le juge Evans rejette l'argument selon lequel le juge des requêtes a commis une erreur en statuant reference to the actual documents, stating that it was not necessary for him to inspect them, given that summaries were available and that the documents were highly technical and incompletely translated. Thus the appeal and cross-appeal were both dismissed.

(2) Robertson J.A. (dissenting)

27 Robertson J.A. disagreed with the majority for three reasons. First, in his view, the level of public interest in the case, the degree of media coverage, and the identities of the parties should not be taken into consideration in assessing an application for a confidentiality order. Instead, he held that it was the nature of the evidence for which the order is sought that must be examined.

28 In addition, he found that without a confidentiality order, the appellant had to choose between two unacceptable options: either suffering irreparable financial harm if the confidential information was introduced into evidence, or being denied the right to a fair trial because it could not mount a full defence if the evidence was not introduced.

29 Finally, he stated that the analytical framework employed by the majority in reaching its decision was fundamentally flawed as it was based largely on the subjective views of the motions judge. He rejected the contextual approach to the question of whether a confidentiality order should issue, emphasizing the need for an objective framework to combat the perception that justice is a relative concept, and to promote consistency and certainty in the law.

30 To establish this more objective framework for regulating the issuance of confidentiality orders pertaining to commercial and scientific information, he turned to the legal rationale underlying the commitment to the principle of open justice, referring to Edmonton Journal v. Alberta (Attorney General), [1989] 2 S.C.R. 1326. There, the Supreme Court of Canada held that open proceedings foster the search for the truth, and reflect the importance of public scrutiny of the courts.

sans avoir examiné les documents réels, affirmant que cela n'était pas nécessaire puisqu'il y avait des précis et que la documentation était hautement technique et partiellement traduite. L'appel et l'appel incident sont donc rejetés.

(2) Le juge Robertson (dissident)

Le juge Robertson se dissocie de la majorité pour trois raisons. En premier lieu, il estime que le degré d'intérêt du public dans une affaire, l'importance de la couverture médiatique et l'identité des parties ne devraient pas être pris en considération pour statuer sur une demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité. Selon lui, il faut plutôt examiner la nature de la preuve que protégerait l'ordonnance de confidentialité.

Il estime aussi qu'à défaut d'ordonnance de confidentialité, l'appelante doit choisir entre deux options inacceptables : subir un préjudice financier irréparable si les renseignements confidentiels sont produits en preuve, ou être privée de son droit à un procès équitable parce qu'elle ne peut se défendre pleinement si la preuve n'est pas produite.

Finalement, il dit que le cadre analytique utilisé par les juges majoritaires pour arriver à leur décision est fondamentalement défectueux en ce qu'il est fondé en grande partie sur le point de vue subjectif du juge des requêtes. Il rejette l'approche contextuelle sur la question de l'ordonnance de confidentialité, soulignant la nécessité d'un cadre d'analyse objectif pour combattre la perception que la justice est un concept relatif et pour promouvoir la cohérence et la certitude en droit.

Pour établir ce cadre plus objectif appelé à régir la délivrance d'ordonnances de confidentialité en matière de renseignements commerciaux et scientifiques, il examine le fondement juridique du principe de la publicité du processus judiciaire, en citant l'arrêt de notre Cour, Edmonton Journal c. Alberta (Procureur général), [1989] 2 R.C.S. 1326, qui conclut que la publicité des débats favorise la recherche de la vérité et témoigne de l'importance de soumettre le travail des tribunaux à l'examen public.

Robertson J.A. stated that although the principle of open justice is a reflection of the basic democratic value of accountability in the exercise of judicial power, in his view, the principle that justice itself must be secured is paramount. He concluded that justice as an overarching principle means that exceptions occasionally must be made to rules or principles.

He observed that, in the area of commercial law, when the information sought to be protected concerns “trade secrets”, this information will not be disclosed during a trial if to do so would destroy the owner’s proprietary rights and expose him or her to irreparable harm in the form of financial loss. Although the case before him did not involve a trade secret, he nevertheless held that the same treatment could be extended to commercial or scientific information which was acquired on a confidential basis and attached the following criteria as conditions precedent to the issuance of a confidentiality order (at para. 13):

(1) the information is of a confidential nature as opposed to facts which one would like to keep confidential; (2) the information for which confidentiality is sought is not already in the public domain; (3) on a balance of probabilities the party seeking the confidentiality order would suffer irreparable harm if the information were made public; (4) the information is relevant to the legal issues raised in the case; (5) correlatively, the information is “necessary” to the resolution of those issues; (6) the granting of a confidentiality order does not unduly prejudice the opposing party; and (7) the public interest in open court proceedings does not override the private interests of the party seeking the confidentiality order. The onus in establishing that criteria one to six are met is on the party seeking the confidentiality order. Under the seventh criterion, it is for the opposing party to show that a prima facie right to a protective order has been overtaken by the need to preserve the openness of the court proceedings. In addressing these criteria one must bear in mind two of the threads woven into the fabric of the principle of open justice: the search for truth and the preservation of the rule of law. As stated at the outset, I do not believe that the perceived degree of public importance of a case is a relevant consideration.

Selon le juge Robertson, même si le principe de la publicité du processus judiciaire reflète la valeur fondamentale que constitue dans une démocratie l’imputabilité dans l’exercice du pouvoir judiciaire, le principe selon lequel il faut que justice soit faite doit, à son avis, l’emporter. Il conclut que la justice vue comme principe universel signifie que les règles ou les principes doivent parfois souffrir des exceptions.

Il fait observer qu’en droit commercial, lorsque les renseignements qu’on cherche à protéger ont trait à des « secrets industriels », ils ne sont pas divulgués au procès lorsque cela aurait pour effet d’annihiler les droits du propriétaire et l’exposerait à un préjudice financier irréparable. Il conclut que, même si l’espèce ne porte pas sur des secrets industriels, on peut traiter de la même façon des renseignements commerciaux et scientifiques acquis sur une base confidentielle, et il établit les critères suivants comme conditions à la délivrance d’une ordonnance de confidentialité (au par. 13) :

1) les renseignements sont de nature confidentielle et non seulement des faits qu’une personne désire ne pas divulguer; 2) les renseignements qu’on veut protéger ne sont pas du domaine public; 3) selon la prépondérance des probabilités, la partie qui veut obtenir une ordonnance de confidentialité subirait un préjudice irréparable si les renseignements étaient rendus publics; 4) les renseignements sont pertinents dans le cadre de la résolution des questions juridiques soulevées dans le litige; 5) en même temps, les renseignements sont « nécessaires » à la résolution de ces questions; 6) l’octroi d’une ordonnance de confidentialité ne cause pas un préjudice grave à la partie adverse; 7) l’intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires ne prime pas les intérêts privés de la partie qui sollicite l’ordonnance de confidentialité. Le fardeau de démontrer que les critères un à six sont respectés incombe à la partie qui cherche à obtenir l’ordonnance de confidentialité. Pour le septième critère, c’est la partie adverse qui doit démontrer que le droit prima facie à une ordonnance de non-divulgaration doit céder le pas au besoin de maintenir la publicité des débats judiciaires. En utilisant ces critères, il y a lieu de tenir compte de deux des fils conducteurs qui sous-tendent le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires : la recherche de la vérité et la sauvegarde de la primauté du droit. Comme je l’ai dit au tout début, je ne crois pas que le degré d’importance qu’on croit que le public accorde à une affaire soit une considération pertinente.

33 In applying these criteria to the circumstances of the case, Robertson J.A. concluded that the confidentiality order should be granted. In his view, the public interest in open court proceedings did not override the interests of AECL in maintaining the confidentiality of these highly technical documents.

34 Robertson J.A. also considered the public interest in the need to ensure that site plans for nuclear installations were not, for example, posted on a Web site. He concluded that a confidentiality order would not undermine the two primary objectives underlying the principle of open justice: truth and the rule of law. As such, he would have allowed the appeal and dismissed the cross-appeal.

- (1) The General Framework: Herein the Dagenais Principles

36 The link between openness in judicial proceedings and freedom of expression has been firmly established by this Court. In Canadian Broadcasting Corp. v. New Brunswick (Attorney General), [1996] 3 S.C.R. 480, at para. 23, La Forest J. expressed the relationship as follows:

The principle of open courts is inextricably tied to the rights guaranteed by s. 2(b). Openness permits public access to information about the courts, which in turn permits the public to discuss and put forward opinions and criticisms of court practices and proceedings. While the freedom to express ideas and opinions about the operation of the courts is clearly within the ambit of the Applicant ces critères aux circonstances de l'espèce, le juge Robertson conclut qu'il y a lieu de rendre l'ordonnance de confidentialité. Selon lui, l'intérêt du public dans la publicité des débats judiciaires ne prime pas l'intérêt de ÉACL à préserver le caractère confidentiel de ces documents hautement techniques.

Le juge Robertson traite aussi de l'intérêt du public à ce qu'il soit garanti que les plans de site d'installations nucléaires ne seront pas, par exemple, affichés sur un site Web. Il conclut qu'une ordonnance de confidentialité n'aurait aucun impact négatif sur les deux objectifs primordiaux du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, savoir la vérité et la primauté du droit. Il aurait par conséquent accueilli l'appel et rejeté l'appel incident.

VI. Analyse

A. Méthode d'analyse applicable aux ordonnances de confidentialité

- (1) Le cadre général : les principes de l'arrêt Dagenais

Le lien entre la publicité des procédures judiciaires et la liberté d'expression est solidement établi dans Société Radio-Canada c. Nouveau-Brunswick (Procureur général), [1996] 3 R.C.S. 480. Le juge La Forest l'exprime en ces termes au par. 23 :

Le principe de la publicité des débats en justice est inextricablement lié aux droits garantis à l'al. 2b). Grâce à ce principe, le public a accès à l'information concernant les tribunaux, ce qui lui permet ensuite de discuter des pratiques des tribunaux et des procédures qui s'y déroulent, et d'émettre des opinions et des critiques à cet égard. La liberté d'exprimer des idées et des opinions sur freedom guaranteed by s. 2(b), so too is the right of members of the public to obtain information about the courts in the first place.

Under the order sought, public access and public scrutiny of the Confidential Documents would be restricted; this would clearly infringe the public's freedom of expression guarantee.

A discussion of the general approach to be taken in the exercise of judicial discretion to grant a confidentiality order should begin with the principles set out by this Court in Dagenais v. Canadian Broadcasting Corp., [1994] 3 S.C.R. 835. Although that case dealt with the common law jurisdiction of the court to order a publication ban in the criminal law context, there are strong similarities between publication bans and confidentiality orders in the context of judicial proceedings. In both cases a restriction on freedom of expression is sought in order to preserve or promote an interest engaged by those proceedings. As such, the fundamental question for a court to consider in an application for a publication ban or a confidentiality order is whether, in the circumstances, the right to freedom of expression should be compromised.

Although in each case freedom of expression will be engaged in a different context, the Dagenais framework utilizes overarching Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms principles in order to balance freedom of expression with other rights and interests, and thus can be adapted and applied to various circumstances. As a result, the analytical approach to the exercise of discretion under Rule 151 should echo the underlying principles laid out in Dagenais, although it must be tailored to the specific rights and interests engaged in this case.

Dagenais dealt with an application by four accused persons under the court's common law jurisdiction requesting an order prohibiting the broadcast of a television programme dealing with the physical and sexual abuse of young boys at le fonctionnement des tribunaux relève clairement de la liberté garantie à l'al. 2b), mais en relève également le droit du public d'obtenir au préalable de l'information sur les tribunaux.

L'ordonnance sollicitée aurait pour effet de limiter l'accès du public aux documents confidentiels et leur examen public; cela porterait clairement atteinte à la garantie de la liberté d'expression du public.

L'examen de la méthode générale à suivre dans l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire d'accorder une ordonnance de confidentialité devrait commencer par les principes établis par la Cour dans Dagenais c. Société Radio-Canada, [1994] 3 R.C.S. 835. Cette affaire portait sur le pouvoir discrétionnaire judiciaire, issu de la common law, de rendre des ordonnances de non-publication dans le cadre de procédures criminelles, mais il y a de fortes ressemblances entre les interdictions de publication et les ordonnances de confidentialité dans le contexte des procédures judiciaires. Dans les deux cas, on cherche à restreindre la liberté d'expression afin de préserver ou de promouvoir un intérêt en jeu dans les procédures. En ce sens, la question fondamentale que doit résoudre le tribunal auquel on demande une interdiction de publication ou une ordonnance de confidentialité est de savoir si, dans les circonstances, il y a lieu de restreindre le droit à la liberté d'expression.

Même si, dans chaque cas, la liberté d'expression entre en jeu dans un contexte différent, le cadre établi dans Dagenais fait appel aux principes déterminants de la Charte canadienne des droits et libertés afin de pondérer la liberté d'expression avec d'autres droits et intérêts, et peut donc être adapté et appliqué à diverses circonstances. L'analyse de l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire sous le régime de la règle 151 devrait par conséquent refléter les principes sous-jacents établis par Dagenais, même s'il faut pour cela l'ajuster aux droits et intérêts précis qui sont en jeu en l'espèce.

L'affaire Dagenais porte sur une requête par laquelle quatre accusés demandaient à la cour de rendre, en vertu de sa compétence de common law, une ordonnance interdisant la diffusion d'une émission de télévision décrivant des abus physiques et religious institutions. The applicants argued that because the factual circumstances of the programme were very similar to the facts at issue in their trials, the ban was necessary to preserve the accuseds' right to a fair trial.

Lamer C.J. found that the common law discretion to order a publication ban must be exercised within the boundaries set by the principles of the Charter. Since publication bans necessarily curtail the freedom of expression of third parties, he adapted the pre-Charter common law rule such that it balanced the right to freedom of expression with the right to a fair trial of the accused in a way which reflected the substance of the test from R. v. Oakes, [1986] 1 S.C.R. 103. At p. 878 of Dagenais, Lamer C.J. set out his reformulated test:

A publication ban should only be ordered when:

(a) Such a ban is necessary in order to prevent a real and substantial risk to the fairness of the trial, because reasonably available alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and

(b) The salutary effects of the publication ban outweigh the deleterious effects to the free expression of those affected by the ban. [Emphasis in original.]

41

In New Brunswick, supra, this Court modified the Dagenais test in the context of the related issue of how the discretionary power under s. 486(1) of the Criminal Code, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46, to exclude the public from a trial should be exercised. That case dealt with an appeal from the trial judge's order excluding the public from the portion of a sentencing proceeding for sexual assault and sexual interference dealing with the specific acts committed by the accused on the basis that it would avoid "undue hardship" to both the victims and the accused.

La Forest J. found that s. 486(1) was a restriction on the s. 2(b) right to freedom of expression in that it provided a "discretionary bar on public and media access to the courts": New Brunswick, at para. 33;

sexuels infligés à de jeunes garçons dans des établissements religieux. Les requérants soutenaient que l'interdiction était nécessaire pour préserver leur droit à un procès équitable, parce que les faits racontés dans l'émission ressemblaient beaucoup aux faits en cause dans leurs procès.

Le juge en chef Lamer conclut que le pouvoir discrétionnaire de common law d'ordonner l'interdiction de publication doit être exercé dans les limites prescrites par les principes de la Charte. Puisque les ordonnances de non-publication restreignent nécessairement la liberté d'expression de tiers, il adapte la règle de common law qui s'appliquait avant l'entrée en vigueur de la Charte de façon à établir un juste équilibre entre le droit à la liberté d'expression et le droit de l'accusé à un procès équitable, d'une façon qui reflète l'essence du critère énoncé dans R. c. Oakes, [1986] 1 R.C.S. 103. À la page 878 de Dagenais, le juge en chef Lamer énonce le critère reformulé :

Une ordonnance de non-publication ne doit être rendue que si :

a) elle est nécessaire pour écarter le risque réel et important que le procès soit inéquitable, vu l'absence d'autres mesures raisonnables pouvant écarter ce risque;

b) ses effets bénéfiques sont plus importants que ses effets préjudiciables sur la libre expression de ceux qui sont touchés par l'ordonnance. [Souligné dans l'original.]

Dans Nouveau-Brunswick, précité, la Cour modifie le critère de l'arrêt Dagenais dans le contexte de la question voisine de l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire d'ordonner l'exclusion du public d'un procès en vertu du par. 486(1) du Code criminel, L.R.C. 1985, ch. C-46. Il s'agissait d'un appel d'une décision du juge du procès d'ordonner l'exclusion du public de la partie des procédures de détermination de la peine pour agression sexuelle et contacts sexuels portant sur les actes précis commis par l'accusé, au motif que cela éviterait un « préjudice indu » aux victimes et à l'accusé.

Le juge La Forest conclut que le par. 486(1) limite la liberté d'expression garantie à l'al. 2b) en créant un « pouvoir discrétionnaire permettant d'interdire au public et aux médias l'accès aux however he found this infringement to be justified under s. 1 provided that the discretion was exercised in accordance with the Charter. Thus, the approach taken by La Forest J. at para. 69 to the exercise of discretion under s. 486(1) of the Criminal Code, closely mirrors the Dagenais common law test:

(a) the judge must consider the available options and consider whether there are any other reasonable and effective alternatives available;

(b) the judge must consider whether the order is limited as much as possible; and

(c) the judge must weigh the importance of the objectives of the particular order and its probable effects against the importance of openness and the particular expression that will be limited in order to ensure that the positive and negative effects of the order are proportionate.

In applying this test to the facts of the case, La Forest J. found that the evidence of the potential undue hardship consisted mainly in the Crown's submission that the evidence was of a "delicate nature" and that this was insufficient to override the infringement on freedom of expression.

This Court has recently revisited the granting of a publication ban under the court's common law jurisdiction in R. v. Mentuck, [2001] 3 S.C.R. 442, 2001 SCC 76, and its companion case R. v. O.N.E., [2001] 3 S.C.R. 478, 2001 SCC 77. In Mentuck, the Crown moved for a publication ban to protect the identity of undercover police officers and operational methods employed by the officers in their investigation of the accused. The accused opposed the motion as an infringement of his right to a fair and public hearing under s. 11(d) of the Charter. The order was also opposed by two intervening newspapers as an infringement of their right to freedom of expression.

The Court noted that, while Dagenais dealt with the balancing of freedom of expression on the one hand, and the right to a fair trial of the accused on the other, in the case before it, both the right of the tribunaux » (Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 33). Il considère toutefois que l'atteinte peut être justifiée en vertu de l'article premier pourvu que le pouvoir discrétionnaire soit exercé conformément à la Charte. Donc l'analyse de l'exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire en vertu du par. 486(1) du Code criminel, décrite par le juge La Forest au par. 69, concorde étroitement avec le critère de common law établi par Dagenais :

a) le juge doit envisager les solutions disponibles et se demander s'il existe d'autres mesures de rechange raisonnables et efficaces;

b) il doit se demander si l'ordonnance a une portée aussi limitée que possible; et

c) il doit comparer l'importance des objectifs de l'ordonnance et de ses effets probables avec l'importance de la publicité des procédures et l'activité d'expression qui sera restreinte, afin de veiller à ce que les effets positifs et négatifs de l'ordonnance soient proportionnels.

Appliquant cette analyse aux faits de l'espèce, le juge La Forest conclut que la preuve du risque de préjudice indu consiste principalement en la prétention de l'avocat du ministère public quant à la « nature délicate » des faits relatifs aux infractions et que cela ne suffit pas pour justifier l'atteinte à la liberté d'expression.

La Cour a récemment réexaminé la question des interdictions de publication prononcées par un tribunal en vertu de sa compétence de common law dans R. c. Mentuck, [2001] 3 R.C.S. 442, 2001 CSC 76, et l'arrêt connexe R. c. O.N.E., [2001] 3 R.C.S. 478, 2001 CSC 77. Dans Mentuck, le ministère public demandait l'interdiction de publication en vue de protéger l'identité de policiers banalisés et leurs méthodes d'enquête. L'accusé s'opposait à la demande en soutenant que l'interdiction porterait atteinte à son droit à un procès public et équitable protégé par l'al. 11d) de la Charte. Deux journaux intervenants s'opposaient aussi à la requête, en faisant valoir qu'elle porterait atteinte à leur droit à la liberté d'expression.

La Cour fait remarquer que Dagenais traite de la pondération de la liberté d'expression, d'une part, et du droit de l'accusé à un procès équitable, d'autre part, tandis que dans l'affaire dont elle est saisie, le accused to a fair and public hearing, and freedom of expression weighed in favour of denying the publication ban. These rights were balanced against interests relating to the proper administration of justice, in particular, protecting the safety of police officers and preserving the efficacy of undercover police operations.

In spite of this distinction, the Court noted that underlying the approach taken in both Dagenais and New Brunswick was the goal of ensuring that the judicial discretion to order publication bans is subject to no lower a standard of compliance with the Charter than legislative enactment. This goal is furthered by incorporating the essence of s. 1 of the Charter and the Oakes test into the publication ban test. Since this same goal applied in the case before it, the Court adopted a similar approach to that taken in Dagenais, but broadened the Dagenais test (which dealt specifically with the right of an accused to a fair trial) such that it could guide the exercise of judicial discretion where a publication ban is requested in order to preserve any important aspect of the proper administration of justice. At para. 32, the Court reformulated the test as follows:

A publication ban should only be ordered when:

(a) such an order is necessary in order to prevent a serious risk to the proper administration of justice because reasonably alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and

(b) the salutary effects of the publication ban outweigh the deleterious effects on the rights and interests of the parties and the public, including the effects on the right to free expression, the right of the accused to a fair and public trial, and the efficacy of the administration of justice.

The Court emphasized that under the first branch of the test, three important elements were subsumed under the “necessity” branch. First, the risk in question must be a serious risk well grounded in the evidence. Second, the phrase “proper administration of justice” must be carefully interpreted so as not to droit de l’accusé à un procès public et équitable tout autant que la liberté d’expression militent en faveur du rejet de la requête en interdiction de publication. Ces droits ont été soupesés avec l’intérêt de la bonne administration de la justice, en particulier la protection de la sécurité des policiers et le maintien de l’efficacité des opérations policières secrètes.

Malgré cette distinction, la Cour note que la méthode retenue dans Dagenais et Nouveau-Brunswick a pour objectif de garantir que le pouvoir discrétionnaire des tribunaux d’ordonner des interdictions de publication n’est pas assujéti à une norme de conformité à la Charte moins exigeante que la norme applicable aux dispositions législatives. Elle vise cet objectif en incorporant l’essence de l’article premier de la Charte et le critère Oakes dans l’analyse applicable aux interdictions de publication. Comme le même objectif s’applique à l’affaire dont elle est saisie, la Cour adopte une méthode semblable à celle de Dagenais, mais en élargissant le critère énoncé dans cet arrêt (qui portait spécifiquement sur le droit de l’accusé à un procès équitable) de manière à fournir un guide à l’exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire des tribunaux dans les requêtes en interdiction de publication, afin de protéger tout aspect important de la bonne administration de la justice. La Cour reformule le critère en ces termes (au par. 32) :

Une ordonnance de non-publication ne doit être rendue que si :

a) elle est nécessaire pour écarter le risque sérieux pour la bonne administration de la justice, vu l’absence d’autres mesures raisonnables pouvant écarter ce risque;

b) ses effets bénéfiques sont plus importants que ses effets préjudiciables sur les droits et les intérêts des parties et du public, notamment ses effets sur le droit à la libre expression, sur le droit de l’accusé à un procès public et équitable, et sur l’efficacité de l’administration de la justice.

La Cour souligne que dans le premier volet de l’analyse, trois éléments importants sont subsumés sous la notion de « nécessité ». En premier lieu, le risque en question doit être sérieux et bien étayé par la preuve. En deuxième lieu, l’expression « bonne administration de la justice » doit être interprétée allow the concealment of an excessive amount of information. Third, the test requires the judge ordering the ban to consider not only whether reasonable alternatives are available, but also to restrict the ban as far as possible without sacrificing the prevention of the risk.

At para. 31, the Court also made the important observation that the proper administration of justice will not necessarily involve Charter rights, and that the ability to invoke the Charter is not a necessary condition for a publication ban to be granted:

The [common law publication ban] rule can accommodate orders that must occasionally be made in the interests of the administration of justice, which encompass more than fair trial rights. As the test is intended to “reflec[t] the substance of the Oakes test”, we cannot require that Charter rights be the only legitimate objective of such orders any more than we require that government action or legislation in violation of the Charter be justified exclusively by the pursuit of another Charter right. [Emphasis added.]

The Court also anticipated that, in appropriate circumstances, the Dagenais framework could be expanded even further in order to address requests for publication bans where interests other than the administration of justice were involved.

Mentuck is illustrative of the flexibility of the Dagenais approach. Since its basic purpose is to ensure that the judicial discretion to deny public access to the courts is exercised in accordance with Charter principles, in my view, the Dagenais model can and should be adapted to the situation in the case at bar where the central issue is whether judicial discretion should be exercised so as to exclude confidential information from a public proceeding. As in Dagenais, New Brunswick and Mentuck, granting the confidentiality order will have a negative effect on the Charter right to freedom of expression, as well as the principle of open and accessible court proceedings, and, as in those cases, courts must ensure that the discretion to grant the order is exercised in accordance with Charter principles.

judicieusement de façon à ne pas empêcher la divulgation d’un nombre excessif de renseignements. En troisième lieu, le critère exige non seulement que le juge qui prononce l’ordonnance détermine s’il existe des mesures de rechange raisonnables, mais aussi qu’il limite l’ordonnance autant que possible sans pour autant sacrifier la prévention du risque.

Au paragraphe 31, la Cour fait aussi l’importante observation que la bonne administration de la justice n’implique pas nécessairement des droits protégés par la Charte, et que la possibilité d’invoquer la Charte n’est pas une condition nécessaire à l’obtention d’une interdiction de publication :

Elle [la règle de common law] peut s’appliquer aux ordonnances qui doivent parfois être rendues dans l’intérêt de l’administration de la justice, qui englobe davantage que le droit à un procès équitable. Comme on veut que le critère « reflète [. . .] l’essence du critère énoncé dans l’arrêt Oakes », nous ne pouvons pas exiger que ces ordonnances aient pour seul objectif légitime les droits garantis par la Charte, pas plus que nous exigeons que les actes gouvernementaux et les dispositions législatives contrevenant à la Charte soient justifiés exclusivement par la recherche d’un autre droit garanti par la Charte. [Je souligne.]

La Cour prévoit aussi que, dans les cas voulus, le critère de Dagenais pourrait être élargi encore davantage pour régir des requêtes en interdiction de publication mettant en jeu des questions autres que l’administration de la justice.

Mentuck illustre bien la souplesse de la méthode Dagenais. Comme elle a pour objet fondamental de garantir que le pouvoir discrétionnaire d’interdire l’accès du public aux tribunaux est exercé conformément aux principes de la Charte, à mon avis, le modèle Dagenais peut et devrait être adapté à la situation de la présente espèce, où la question centrale est l’exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire du tribunal d’exclure des renseignements confidentiels au cours d’une procédure publique. Comme dans Dagenais, Nouveau-Brunswick et Mentuck, une ordonnance de confidentialité aura un effet négatif sur le droit à la liberté d’expression garanti par la Charte, de même que sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires et, comme dans ces affaires, les tribunaux doivent veiller à ce que le

However, in order to adapt the test to the context of this case, it is first necessary to determine the particular rights and interests engaged by this application.

(2) The Rights and Interests of the Parties

49

The immediate purpose for AECL's confidentiality request relates to its commercial interests. The information in question is the property of the Chinese authorities. If the appellant were to disclose the Confidential Documents, it would be in breach of its contractual obligations and suffer a risk of harm to its competitive position. This is clear from the findings of fact of the motions judge that AECL was bound by its commercial interests and its customer's property rights not to disclose the information (para. 27), and that such disclosure could harm the appellant's commercial interests (para. 23).

Aside from this direct commercial interest, if the confidentiality order is denied, then in order to protect its commercial interests, the appellant will have to withhold the documents. This raises the important matter of the litigation context in which the order is sought. As both the motions judge and the Federal Court of Appeal found that the information contained in the Confidential Documents was relevant to defences available under the CEAA, the inability to present this information hinders the appellant's capacity to make full answer and defence, or, expressed more generally, the appellant's right, as a civil litigant, to present its case. In that sense, preventing the appellant from disclosing these documents on a confidential basis infringes its right to a fair trial. Although in the context of a civil proceeding this does not engage a Charter right, the right to a fair trial generally can be viewed as a fundamental principle of justice: M. (A.) v. Ryan, [1997] 1 S.C.R. 157, at para. 84, per L'Heureux-Dubé J. (dissenting, but not on that point). Although this fair trial right is directly relevant to the appellant, there is also a general public interest in protecting the right to a fair trial. Indeed, as a general proposition, all disputes in the courts should be decided under a fair trial standard. The legitimacy of the judicial process alone pouvoir discrétionnaire d'accorder l'ordonnance soit exercé conformément aux principes de la Charte. Toutefois, pour adapter le critère au contexte de la présente espèce, il faut d'abord définir les droits et intérêts particuliers qui entrent en jeu.

(2) Les droits et les intérêts des parties

L'objet immédiat de la demande d'ordonnance de confidentialité d'ÉACL a trait à ses intérêts commerciaux. Les renseignements en question appartiennent aux autorités chinoises. Si l'appelante divulguait les documents confidentiels, elle manquerait à ses obligations contractuelles et s'exposerait à une détérioration de sa position concurrentielle. Il ressort clairement des conclusions de fait du juge des requêtes qu'ÉACL est tenue, par ses intérêts commerciaux et par les droits de propriété de son client, de ne pas divulguer ces renseignements (par. 27), et que leur divulgation risque de nuire aux intérêts commerciaux de l'appelante (par. 23).

Indépendamment de cet intérêt commercial direct, en cas de refus de l'ordonnance de confidentialité, l'appelante devra, pour protéger ses intérêts commerciaux, s'abstenir de produire les documents. Cela soulève l'importante question du contexte de la présentation de la demande. Comme le juge des requêtes et la Cour d'appel fédérale concluent tous deux que l'information contenue dans les documents confidentiels est pertinente pour les moyens de défense prévus par la LCÉE, le fait de ne pouvoir la produire nuit à la capacité de l'appelante de présenter une défense pleine et entière ou, plus généralement, au droit de l'appelante, en sa qualité de justiciable civile, de défendre sa cause. En ce sens, empêcher l'appelante de divulguer ces documents pour des raisons de confidentialité porte atteinte à son droit à un procès équitable. Même si en matière civile cela n'engage pas de droit protégé par la Charte, le droit à un procès équitable peut généralement être considéré comme un principe de justice fondamentale : M. (A.) c. Ryan, [1997] 1 R.C.S. 157, par. 84, le juge L'Heureux-Dubé (dissidente, mais non sur ce point). Le droit à un procès équitable intéresse directement l'appelante, mais le public a aussi un intérêt général à la protection du droit à un procès équitable. À vrai dire, le principe demands as much. Similarly, courts have an interest in having all relevant evidence before them in order to ensure that justice is done.

Thus, the interests which would be promoted by a confidentiality order are the preservation of commercial and contractual relations, as well as the right of civil litigants to a fair trial. Related to the latter are the public and judicial interests in seeking the truth and achieving a just result in civil proceedings.

In opposition to the confidentiality order lies the fundamental principle of open and accessible court proceedings. This principle is inextricably tied to freedom of expression enshrined in s. 2(b) of the Charter: New Brunswick, supra, at para. 23. The importance of public and media access to the courts cannot be understated, as this access is the method by which the judicial process is scrutinized and criticized. Because it is essential to the administration of justice that justice is done and is seen to be done, such public scrutiny is fundamental. The open court principle has been described as “the very soul of justice”, guaranteeing that justice is administered in a non-arbitrary manner: New Brunswick, at para. 22.

(3) Adapting the Dagenais Test to the Rights and Interests of the Parties

Applying the rights and interests engaged in this case to the analytical framework of Dagenais and subsequent cases discussed above, the test for whether a confidentiality order ought to be granted in a case such as this one should be framed as follows:

A confidentiality order under Rule 151 should only be granted when:

- (a) such an order is necessary in order to prevent a serious risk to an important interest, including a commercial interest, in the context of litigation because reasonably alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and général est que tout litige porté devant les tribunaux doit être tranché selon la norme du procès équitable. La légitimité du processus judiciaire n'exige pas moins. De même, les tribunaux ont intérêt à ce que toutes les preuves pertinentes leur soient présentées pour veiller à ce que justice soit faite.

Ainsi, les intérêts que favoriserait l'ordonnance de confidentialité seraient le maintien de relations commerciales et contractuelles, de même que le droit des justiciables civils à un procès équitable. Est lié à ce dernier droit l'intérêt du public et du judiciaire dans la recherche de la vérité et la solution juste des litiges civils.

Milite contre l'ordonnance de confidentialité le principe fondamental de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Ce principe est inextricablement lié à la liberté d'expression constitutionnalisée à l'al. 2b) de la Charte : Nouveau-Brunswick, précité, par. 23. L'importance de l'accès du public et des médias aux tribunaux ne peut être sous-estimée puisque l'accès est le moyen grâce auquel le processus judiciaire est soumis à l'examen et à la critique. Comme il est essentiel à l'administration de la justice que justice soit faite et soit perçue comme l'étant, cet examen public est fondamental. Le principe de la publicité des procédures judiciaires a été décrit comme le « souffle même de la justice », la garantie de l'absence d'arbitraire dans l'administration de la justice : Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 22.

(3) Adaptation de l'analyse de Dagenais aux droits et intérêts des parties

Pour appliquer aux droits et intérêts en jeu en l'espèce l'analyse de Dagenais et des arrêts subséquents précités, il convient d'énoncer de la façon suivante les conditions applicables à une ordonnance de confidentialité dans un cas comme l'espèce :

Une ordonnance de confidentialité en vertu de la règle 151 ne doit être rendue que si :

- a) elle est nécessaire pour écarter un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important, y compris un intérêt commercial, dans le contexte d'un litige, en l'absence d'autres options raisonnables pour écarter ce risque;

(b) the salutary effects of the confidentiality order, including the effects on the right of civil litigants to a fair trial, outweigh its deleterious effects, including the effects on the right to free expression, which in this context includes the public interest in open and accessible court proceedings.

b) ses effets bénéfiques, y compris ses effets sur le droit des justiciables civils à un procès équitable, l'emportent sur ses effets préjudiciables, y compris ses effets sur la liberté d'expression qui, dans ce contexte, comprend l'intérêt du public dans la publicité des débats judiciaires.

54 As in Mentuck, I would add that three important elements are subsumed under the first branch of this test. First, the risk in question must be real and substantial, in that the risk is well grounded in the evidence, and poses a serious threat to the commercial interest in question.

Comme dans Mentuck, j'ajouterais que trois éléments importants sont subsumés sous le premier volet de l'analyse. En premier lieu, le risque en cause doit être réel et important, en ce qu'il est bien étayé par la preuve et menace gravement l'intérêt commercial en question.

55 In addition, the phrase "important commercial interest" is in need of some clarification. In order to qualify as an "important commercial interest", the interest in question cannot merely be specific to the party requesting the order; the interest must be one which can be expressed in terms of a public interest in confidentiality. For example, a private company could not argue simply that the existence of a particular contract should not be made public because to do so would cause the company to lose business, thus harming its commercial interests. However, if, as in this case, exposure of information would cause a breach of a confidentiality agreement, then the commercial interest affected can be characterized more broadly as the general commercial interest of preserving confidential information. Simply put, if there is no general principle at stake, there can be no "important commercial interest" for the purposes of this test. Or, in the words of Binnie J. in F.N. (Re), [2000] 1 S.C.R. 880, 2000 SCC 35, at para. 10, the open court rule only yields "where the public interest in confidentiality outweighs the public interest in openness" (emphasis added).

De plus, l'expression « intérêt commercial important » exige une clarification. Pour être qualifié d'« intérêt commercial important », l'intérêt en question ne doit pas se rapporter uniquement et spécifiquement à la partie qui demande l'ordonnance de confidentialité; il doit s'agir d'un intérêt qui peut se définir en termes d'intérêt public à la confidentialité. Par exemple, une entreprise privée ne pourrait simplement prétendre que l'existence d'un contrat donné ne devrait pas être divulguée parce que cela lui ferait perdre des occasions d'affaires, et que cela nuirait à ses intérêts commerciaux. Si toutefois, comme en l'espèce, la divulgation de renseignements doit entraîner un manquement à une entente de non-divulgence, on peut alors parler plus largement de l'intérêt commercial général dans la protection des renseignements confidentiels. Simplement, si aucun principe général n'entre en jeu, il ne peut y avoir d'« intérêt commercial important » pour les besoins de l'analyse. Ou, pour citer le juge Binnie dans F.N. (Re), [2000] 1 R.C.S. 880, 2000 CSC 35, par. 10, la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires ne cède le pas que « dans les cas où le droit du public à la confidentialité l'emporte sur le droit du public à l'accessibilité » (je souligne).

56 In addition to the above requirement, courts must be cautious in determining what constitutes an "important commercial interest". It must be remembered that a confidentiality order involves an infringement on freedom of expression. Although the balancing of the commercial interest with freedom of expression takes place under the second

Outre l'exigence susmentionnée, les tribunaux doivent déterminer avec prudence ce qui constitue un « intérêt commercial important ». Il faut rappeler qu'une ordonnance de confidentialité implique une atteinte à la liberté d'expression. Même si la pondération de l'intérêt commercial et de la liberté d'expression intervient à la deuxième étape branch of the test, courts must be alive to the fundamental importance of the open court rule. See generally Muldoon J. in Eli Lilly and Co. v. Novopharm Ltd. (1994), 56 C.P.R. (3d) 437 (F.C.T.D.), at p. 439.

Finally, the phrase “reasonably alternative measures” requires the judge to consider not only whether reasonable alternatives to a confidentiality order are available, but also to restrict the order as much as is reasonably possible while preserving the commercial interest in question.

B. Application of the Test to this Appeal

(1) Necessity

At this stage, it must be determined whether disclosure of the Confidential Documents would impose a serious risk on an important commercial interest of the appellant, and whether there are reasonable alternatives, either to the order itself, or to its terms.

The commercial interest at stake here relates to the objective of preserving contractual obligations of confidentiality. The appellant argues that it will suffer irreparable harm to its commercial interests if the Confidential Documents are disclosed. In my view, the preservation of confidential information constitutes a sufficiently important commercial interest to pass the first branch of the test as long as certain criteria relating to the information are met.

Pelletier J. noted that the order sought in this case was similar in nature to an application for a protective order which arises in the context of patent litigation. Such an order requires the applicant to demonstrate that the information in question has been treated at all relevant times as confidential and that on a balance of probabilities its proprietary, commercial and scientific interests could reasonably be harmed by the disclosure of the information: AB Hassle v. Canada (Minister of National Health and Welfare) (1998), 83 C.P.R. (3d) 428 (F.C.T.D.), at p. 434. To this I would add the requirement proposed de l’analyse, les tribunaux doivent avoir pleinement conscience de l’importance fondamentale de la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Voir généralement Eli Lilly and Co. c. Novopharm Ltd. (1994), 56 C.P.R. (3d) 437 (C.F. 1^{re} inst.), p. 439, le juge Muldoon.

Enfin, l’expression « autres options raisonnables » oblige le juge non seulement à se demander s’il existe des mesures raisonnables autres que l’ordonnance de confidentialité, mais aussi à restreindre l’ordonnance autant qu’il est raisonnablement possible de le faire tout en préservant l’intérêt commercial en question.

B. Application de l’analyse en l’espèce

(1) Nécessité

À cette étape, il faut déterminer si la divulgation des documents confidentiels ferait courir un risque sérieux à un intérêt commercial important de l’appelante, et s’il existe d’autres solutions raisonnables que l’ordonnance elle-même, ou ses modalités.

L’intérêt commercial en jeu en l’espèce a trait à la préservation d’obligations contractuelles de confidentialité. L’appelante fait valoir qu’un préjudice irréparable sera causé à ses intérêts commerciaux si les documents confidentiels sont divulgués. À mon avis, la préservation de renseignements confidentiels est un intérêt commercial suffisamment important pour satisfaire au premier volet de l’analyse dès lors que certaines conditions relatives aux renseignements sont réunies.

Le juge Pelletier souligne que l’ordonnance sollicitée en l’espèce s’apparente à une ordonnance conservatoire en matière de brevets. Pour l’obtenir, le requérant doit démontrer que les renseignements en question ont toujours été traités comme des renseignements confidentiels et que, selon la prépondérance des probabilités, il est raisonnable de penser que leur divulgation risquerait de compromettre ses droits exclusifs, commerciaux et scientifiques : AB Hassle c. Canada (Ministre de la Santé nationale et du Bien-être social), [1998] A.C.F. n° 1850 (QL) (C.F. 1^{re} inst.), par. 29-30. J’ajouterais à cela by Robertson J.A. that the information in question must be of a “confidential nature” in that it has been “accumulated with a reasonable expectation of it being kept confidential” as opposed to “facts which a litigant would like to keep confidential by having the courtroom doors closed” (para. 14).

l’exigence proposée par le juge Robertson que les renseignements soient « de nature confidentielle » en ce qu’ils ont été « recueillis dans l’expectative raisonnable qu’ils resteront confidentiels », par opposition à « des faits qu’une partie à un litige voudrait garder confidentiels en obtenant le huis clos » (par. 14).

61 Pelletier J. found as a fact that the AB Hassle test had been satisfied in that the information had clearly been treated as confidential both by the appellant and by the Chinese authorities, and that, on a balance of probabilities, disclosure of the information could harm the appellant’s commercial interests (para. 23). As well, Robertson J.A. found that the information in question was clearly of a confidential nature as it was commercial information, consistently treated and regarded as confidential, that would be of interest to AECL’s competitors (para. 16). Thus, the order is sought to prevent a serious risk to an important commercial interest.

Le juge Pelletier constate que le critère établi dans AB Hassle est respecté puisque tant l’appelante que les autorités chinoises ont toujours considéré les renseignements comme confidentiels et que, selon la prépondérance des probabilités, leur divulgation risque de nuire aux intérêts commerciaux de l’appelante (par. 23). Le juge Robertson conclut lui aussi que les renseignements en question sont clairement confidentiels puisqu’il s’agit de renseignements commerciaux, uniformément reconnus comme étant confidentiels, qui présentent un intérêt pour les concurrents d’ÉACL (par. 16). Par conséquent, l’ordonnance est demandée afin de prévenir un risque sérieux de préjudice à un intérêt commercial important.

62 The first branch of the test also requires the consideration of alternative measures to the confidentiality order, as well as an examination of the scope of the order to ensure that it is not overly broad. Both courts below found that the information contained in the Confidential Documents was relevant to potential defences available to the appellant under the CEAA and this finding was not appealed at this Court. Further, I agree with the Court of Appeal’s assertion (at para. 99) that, given the importance of the documents to the right to make full answer and defence, the appellant is, practically speaking, compelled to produce the documents. Given that the information is necessary to the appellant’s case, it remains only to determine whether there are reasonably alternative means by which the necessary information can be adduced without disclosing the confidential information.

Le premier volet de l’analyse exige aussi l’examen d’options raisonnables autres que l’ordonnance de confidentialité, et de la portée de l’ordonnance pour s’assurer qu’elle n’est pas trop vaste. Les deux jugements antérieurs en l’espèce concluent que les renseignements figurant dans les documents confidentiels sont pertinents pour les moyens de défense offerts à l’appelante en vertu de la LCÉE, et cette conclusion n’est pas portée en appel devant notre Cour. De plus, je suis d’accord avec la Cour d’appel lorsqu’elle affirme (au par. 99) que vu l’importance des documents pour le droit de présenter une défense pleine et entière, l’appelante est pratiquement forcée de les produire. Comme les renseignements sont nécessaires à la cause de l’appelante, il ne reste qu’à déterminer s’il existe d’autres options raisonnables pour communiquer les renseignements nécessaires sans divulguer de renseignements confidentiels.

63 Two alternatives to the confidentiality order were put forward by the courts below. The motions judge suggested that the Confidential Documents could be expunged of their commercially sensitive contents, and edited versions of the documents could be filed. As well, the majority of the Court of Appeal, in addition to accepting the possibility of expungement, was of the opinion that the summaries of the Confidential Documents included in the affidavits could go a long way to compensate for the absence of the originals. If either of these options is a reasonable alternative to submitting the Confidential Documents under a confidentiality order, then the order is not necessary, and the application does not pass the first branch of the test.

There are two possible options with respect to expungement, and in my view, there are problems with both of these. The first option would be for AECL to expunge the confidential information without disclosing the expunged material to the parties and the court. However, in this situation the filed material would still differ from the material used by the affiants. It must not be forgotten that this motion arose as a result of Sierra Club's position that the summaries contained in the affidavits should be accorded little or no weight without the presence of the underlying documents. Even if the relevant information and the confidential information were mutually exclusive, which would allow for the disclosure of all the information relied on in the affidavits, this relevancy determination could not be tested on cross-examination because the expunged material would not be available. Thus, even in the best case scenario, where only irrelevant information needed to be expunged, the parties would be put in essentially the same position as that which initially generated this appeal, in the sense that, at least some of the material relied on to prepare the affidavits in question would not be available to Sierra Club.

Further, I agree with Robertson J.A. that this best case scenario, where the relevant and the confidential information do not overlap, is an untested assumption (para. 28). Although the documents themselves were not put before the courts on this motion, given that they comprise thousands of pages of detailed information, this assumption is at best optimistic. The expungement alternative would be further complicated by the fact that the Chinese La majorité en Cour d'appel estime que, outre cette possibilité d'épuration des documents, l'inclusion dans les affidavits d'un résumé des documents confidentiels pourrait, dans une large mesure, compenser l'absence des originaux. Si l'une ou l'autre de ces deux options peut raisonnablement se substituer au dépôt des documents confidentiels aux termes d'une ordonnance de confidentialité, alors l'ordonnance n'est pas nécessaire et la requête ne franchit pas la première étape de l'analyse.

Il existe deux possibilités pour l'épuration des documents et, selon moi, elles comportent toutes deux des problèmes. La première serait que ÉACL retranche les renseignements confidentiels sans divulguer les éléments retranchés ni aux parties ni au tribunal. Toutefois, dans cette situation, la documentation déposée serait encore différente de celle utilisée pour les affidavits. Il ne faut pas perdre de vue que la requête découle de l'argument de Sierra Club selon lequel le tribunal ne devrait accorder que peu ou pas de poids aux résumés sans la présence des documents de base. Même si on pouvait totalement séparer les renseignements pertinents et les renseignements confidentiels, ce qui permettrait la divulgation de tous les renseignements sur lesquels se fondent les affidavits, l'appréciation de leur pertinence ne pourrait pas être mise à l'épreuve en contre-interrogatoire puisque la documentation retranchée ne serait pas disponible. Par conséquent, même dans le meilleur cas de figure, où l'on n'aurait qu'à retrancher les renseignements non pertinents, les parties se retrouveraient essentiellement dans la même situation que celle qui a donné lieu au pourvoi, en ce sens qu'au moins une partie des documents ayant servi à la préparation des affidavits en question ne serait pas mise à la disposition de Sierra Club.

De plus, je partage l'opinion du juge Robertson que ce meilleur cas de figure, où les renseignements pertinents et les renseignements confidentiels ne se recoupent pas, est une hypothèse non confirmée (par. 28). Même si les documents eux-mêmes n'ont pas été produits devant les tribunaux dans le cadre de la présente requête, parce qu'ils comprennent des milliers de pages de renseignements détaillés, cette hypothèse est au mieux optimiste. L'option de l'épuration serait en outre compliquée par le fait que les autorités chinoises exigent l'approbation préalable de toute demande de divulgation de renseignements de la part d'ÉACL.

66 The second option is that the expunged material be made available to the court and the parties under a more narrowly drawn confidentiality order. Although this option would allow for slightly broader public access than the current confidentiality request, in my view, this minor restriction to the current confidentiality request is not a viable alternative given the difficulties associated with expungement in these circumstances. The test asks whether there are reasonably alternative measures; it does not require the adoption of the absolutely least restrictive option. With respect, in my view, expungement of the Confidential Documents would be a virtually unworkable and ineffective solution that is not reasonable in the circumstances.

La deuxième possibilité serait de mettre les documents supprimés à la disposition du tribunal et des parties en vertu d'une ordonnance de confidentialité plus restreinte. Bien que cela permettrait un accès public un peu plus large que ne le ferait l'ordonnance de confidentialité sollicitée, selon moi, cette restriction mineure à la requête n'est pas une option viable étant donné les difficultés liées à l'épuration dans les circonstances. Il s'agit de savoir s'il y a d'autres options raisonnables et non d'adopter l'option qui soit absolument la moins restrictive. Avec égards, j'estime que l'épuration des documents confidentiels serait une solution virtuellement impraticable et inefficace qui n'est pas raisonnable dans les circonstances.

67 A second alternative to a confidentiality order was Evans J.A.'s suggestion that the summaries of the Confidential Documents included in the affidavits "may well go a long way to compensate for the absence of the originals" (para. 103). However, he appeared to take this fact into account merely as a factor to be considered when balancing the various interests at stake. I would agree that at this threshold stage to rely on the summaries alone, in light of the intention of Sierra Club to argue that they should be accorded little or no weight, does not appear to be a "reasonably alternative measure" to having the underlying documents available to the parties.

Une deuxième option autre que l'ordonnance de confidentialité serait, selon le juge Evans, l'inclusion dans les affidavits d'un résumé des documents confidentiels pour « dans une large mesure, compenser [leur] absence » (par. 103). Il ne semble toutefois envisager ce fait qu'à titre de facteur à considérer dans la pondération des divers intérêts en cause. Je conviens qu'à cette étape liminaire, se fonder uniquement sur les résumés en connaissant l'intention de Sierra Club de plaider leur faiblesse ou l'absence de valeur probante, ne semble pas être une « autre option raisonnable » à la communication aux parties des documents de base.

68 With the above considerations in mind, I find the confidentiality order necessary in that disclosure of the Confidential Documents would impose a serious risk on an important commercial interest of the appellant, and that there are no reasonably alternative measures to granting the order.

Vu les facteurs susmentionnés, je conclus que l'ordonnance de confidentialité est nécessaire en ce que la divulgation des documents confidentiels ferait courir un risque sérieux à un intérêt commercial important de l'appelante, et qu'il n'existe pas d'autres options raisonnables.

(2) The Proportionality Stage

(2) L'étape de la proportionnalité

69 As stated above, at this stage, the salutary effects of the confidentiality order, including the effects on the appellant's right to a fair trial, must be weighed against the deleterious effects of the confidentiality order, including the effects on the right to free

Comme on le mentionne plus haut, à cette étape, les effets bénéfiques de l'ordonnance de confidentialité, y compris ses effets sur le droit de l'appelante à un procès équitable, doivent être pondérés avec ses effets préjudiciables, y compris ses effets sur le droit expression, which in turn is connected to the principle of open and accessible court proceedings. This balancing will ultimately determine whether the confidentiality order ought to be granted.

(a) Salutary Effects of the Confidentiality Order

As discussed above, the primary interest that would be promoted by the confidentiality order is the public interest in the right of a civil litigant to present its case, or, more generally, the fair trial right. Because the fair trial right is being invoked in this case in order to protect commercial, not liberty, interests of the appellant, the right to a fair trial in this context is not a Charter right; however, a fair trial for all litigants has been recognized as a fundamental principle of justice: Ryan, supra, at para. 84. It bears repeating that there are circumstances where, in the absence of an affected Charter right, the proper administration of justice calls for a confidentiality order: Mentuck, supra, at para. 31. In this case, the salutary effects that such an order would have on the administration of justice relate to the ability of the appellant to present its case, as encompassed by the broader fair trial right.

The Confidential Documents have been found to be relevant to defences that will be available to the appellant in the event that the CEAA is found to apply to the impugned transaction and, as discussed above, the appellant cannot disclose the documents without putting its commercial interests at serious risk of harm. As such, there is a very real risk that, without the confidentiality order, the ability of the appellant to mount a successful defence will be seriously curtailed. I conclude, therefore, that the confidentiality order would have significant salutary effects on the appellant's right to a fair trial.

Aside from the salutary effects on the fair trial interest, the confidentiality order would also have a beneficial impact on other important rights and interests. First, as I discuss in more detail below, the confidentiality order would allow all parties and the court access to the Confidential Documents, and à la liberté d'expression, qui à son tour est lié au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Cette pondération déterminera finalement s'il y a lieu d'accorder l'ordonnance de confidentialité.

a) Les effets bénéfiques de l'ordonnance de confidentialité

Comme nous l'avons vu, le principal intérêt qui serait promu par l'ordonnance de confidentialité est l'intérêt du public à la protection du droit du justiciable civil de faire valoir sa cause ou, de façon plus générale, du droit à un procès équitable. Puisque l'appelante l'invoque en l'espèce pour protéger ses intérêts commerciaux et non son droit à la liberté, le droit à un procès équitable dans ce contexte n'est pas un droit visé par la Charte; toutefois, le droit à un procès équitable pour tous les justiciables a été reconnu comme un principe de justice fondamentale : Ryan, précité, par. 84. Il y a lieu de rappeler qu'il y a des circonstances où, en l'absence de violation d'un droit garanti par la Charte, la bonne administration de la justice exige une ordonnance de confidentialité : Mentuck, précité, par. 31. En l'espèce, les effets bénéfiques d'une telle ordonnance sur l'administration de la justice tiennent à la capacité de l'appelante de soutenir sa cause, dans le cadre du droit plus large à un procès équitable.

Les documents confidentiels ont été jugés pertinents en ce qui a trait aux moyens de défense que l'appelante pourrait invoquer s'il est jugé que la LCÉE s'applique à l'opération attaquée et, comme nous l'avons vu, l'appelante ne peut communiquer les documents sans risque sérieux pour ses intérêts commerciaux. De ce fait, il existe un risque bien réel que, sans l'ordonnance de confidentialité, la capacité de l'appelante à mener à bien sa défense soit gravement réduite. Je conclus par conséquent que l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait d'importants effets bénéfiques pour le droit de l'appelante à un procès équitable.

En plus des effets bénéfiques pour le droit à un procès équitable, l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait aussi des incidences favorables sur d'autres droits et intérêts importants. En premier lieu, comme je l'exposerai plus en détail ci-après, l'ordonnance de confidentialité permettrait aux parties ainsi qu'au permit cross-examination based on their contents. By facilitating access to relevant documents in a judicial proceeding, the order sought would assist in the search for truth, a core value underlying freedom of expression.

72

73

Second, I agree with the observation of Robertson J.A. that, as the Confidential Documents contain detailed technical information pertaining to the construction and design of a nuclear installation, it may be in keeping with the public interest to prevent this information from entering the public domain (para. 44). Although the exact contents of the documents remain a mystery, it is apparent that they contain technical details of a nuclear installation, and there may well be a substantial public security interest in maintaining the confidentiality of such information.

(b) Deleterious Effects of the Confidentiality Order

Granting the confidentiality order would have a negative effect on the open court principle, as the public would be denied access to the contents of the Confidential Documents. As stated above, the principle of open courts is inextricably tied to the s. 2(b) Charter right to freedom of expression, and public scrutiny of the courts is a fundamental aspect of the administration of justice: New Brunswick, supra, at paras. 22-23. Although as a general principle, the importance of open courts cannot be overstated, it is necessary to examine, in the context of this case, the particular deleterious effects on freedom of expression that the confidentiality order would have.

Underlying freedom of expression are the core values of (1) seeking the truth and the common good; (2) promoting self-fulfilment of individuals by allowing them to develop thoughts and ideas as they see fit; and (3) ensuring that participation in the political process is open to all persons: Irwin Toy Ltd. v. Quebec (Attorney General), [1989] 1 S.C.R.

tribunal d'avoir accès aux documents confidentiels, et permettrait la tenue d'un contre-interrogatoire fondé sur leur contenu. En facilitant l'accès aux documents pertinents dans une procédure judiciaire, l'ordonnance sollicitée favoriserait la recherche de la vérité, qui est une valeur fondamentale sous-tendant la liberté d'expression.

En deuxième lieu, je suis d'accord avec l'observation du juge Robertson selon laquelle puisque les documents confidentiels contiennent des renseignements techniques détaillés touchant la construction et la conception d'une installation nucléaire, il peut être nécessaire, dans l'intérêt public, d'empêcher que ces renseignements tombent dans le domaine public (par. 44). Même si le contenu exact des documents demeure un mystère, il est évident qu'ils comprennent des détails techniques d'une installation nucléaire et il peut bien y avoir un important intérêt de sécurité publique à préserver la confidentialité de ces renseignements.

b) Les effets préjudiciables de l'ordonnance de confidentialité Une ordonnance de confidentialité aurait un effet préjudiciable sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, puisqu'elle priverait le public de l'accès au contenu des documents confidentiels. Comme on le dit plus haut, le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires est inextricablement lié au droit à la liberté d'expression protégé par l'al. 2b) de la Charte, et la vigilance du public envers les tribunaux est un aspect fondamental de l'administration de la justice : Nouveau-Brunswick, précité, par. 22-23. Même si, à titre de principe général, l'importance de la publicité des débats judiciaires ne peut être sous-estimée, il faut examiner, dans le contexte de l'espèce, les effets préjudiciables particuliers que l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait sur la liberté d'expression.

Les valeurs fondamentales qui sous-tendent la liberté d'expression sont (1) la recherche de la vérité et du bien commun; (2) l'épanouissement personnel par le libre développement des pensées et des idées; et (3) la participation de tous au processus politique : Irwin Toy Ltd. c. Québec (Procureur général), [1989] 1 R.C.S. 927, p. 976; R. c. Keegstra, [1990]

927, at p. 976; R. v. Keegstra, [1990] 3 S.C.R. 697, at pp. 762-64, per Dickson C.J. Charter jurisprudence has established that the closer the speech in question lies to these core values, the harder it will be to justify a s. 2(b) infringement of that speech under s. 1 of the Charter: Keegstra, at pp. 760-61. Since the main goal in this case is to exercise judicial discretion in a way which conforms to Charter principles, a discussion of the deleterious effects of the confidentiality order on freedom of expression should include an assessment of the effects such an order would have on the three core values. The more detrimental the order would be to these values, the more difficult it will be to justify the confidentiality order. Similarly, minor effects of the order on the core values will make the confidentiality order easier to justify.

Seeking the truth is not only at the core of freedom of expression, but it has also been recognized as a fundamental purpose behind the open court rule, as the open examination of witnesses promotes an effective evidentiary process: Edmonton Journal, supra, at pp. 1357-58, per Wilson J. Clearly the confidentiality order, by denying public and media access to documents relied on in the proceedings, would impede the search for truth to some extent. Although the order would not exclude the public from the courtroom, the public and the media would be denied access to documents relevant to the evidentiary process.

However, as mentioned above, to some extent the search for truth may actually be promoted by the confidentiality order. This motion arises as a result of Sierra Club's argument that it must have access to the Confidential Documents in order to test the accuracy of Dr. Pang's evidence. If the order is denied, then the most likely scenario is that the appellant will not submit the documents with the unfortunate result that evidence which may be relevant to the proceedings will not be available to Sierra Club or the court. As a result, Sierra Club will not be able to fully test the accuracy of Dr. Pang's evidence on cross-examination. In addition, the court will not have the benefit of this cross-examination or 3 R.C.S. 697, p. 762-764, le juge en chef Dickson. La jurisprudence de la Charte établit que plus l'expression en cause est au cœur de ces valeurs fondamentales, plus il est difficile de justifier, en vertu de l'article premier de la Charte, une atteinte à l'al. 2b) à son égard : Keegstra, p. 760-761. Comme l'objectif principal en l'espèce est d'exercer un pouvoir discrétionnaire dans le respect des principes de la Charte, l'examen des effets préjudiciables de l'ordonnance de confidentialité sur la liberté d'expression devrait comprendre une appréciation des effets qu'elle aurait sur les trois valeurs fondamentales. Plus l'ordonnance de confidentialité porte préjudice à ces valeurs, plus il est difficile de la justifier. Inversement, des effets mineurs sur les valeurs fondamentales rendent l'ordonnance de confidentialité plus facile à justifier.

La recherche de la vérité est non seulement au cœur de la liberté d'expression, elle est aussi reconnue comme un objectif fondamental de la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires, puisque l'examen public des témoins favorise l'efficacité du processus de présentation de la preuve : Edmonton Journal, précité, p. 1357-1358, le juge Wilson. À l'évidence, en enlevant au public et aux médias l'accès aux documents invoqués dans les procédures, l'ordonnance de confidentialité nuirait jusqu'à un certain point à la recherche de la vérité. L'ordonnance n'exclurait pas le public de la salle d'audience, mais le public et les médias n'auraient pas accès aux documents pertinents quant à la présentation de la preuve.

Toutefois, comme nous l'avons vu plus haut, la recherche de la vérité peut jusqu'à un certain point être favorisée par l'ordonnance de confidentialité. La présente requête résulte de l'argument de Sierra Club selon lequel il doit avoir accès aux documents confidentiels pour vérifier l'exactitude de la déposition de M. Pang. Si l'ordonnance est refusée, le scénario le plus probable est que l'appellante s'abstiendra de déposer les documents, avec la conséquence fâcheuse que des preuves qui peuvent être pertinentes ne seront pas portées à la connaissance de Sierra Club ou du tribunal. Par conséquent, Sierra Club ne sera pas en mesure de vérifier complètement l'exactitude de la preuve de M. Pang en contre-documentary evidence, and will be required to draw conclusions based on an incomplete evidentiary record. This would clearly impede the search for truth in this case.

As well, it is important to remember that the confidentiality order would restrict access to a relatively small number of highly technical documents. The nature of these documents is such that the general public would be unlikely to understand their contents, and thus they would contribute little to the public interest in the search for truth in this case. However, in the hands of the parties and their respective experts, the documents may be of great assistance in probing the truth of the Chinese environmental assessment process, which would in turn assist the court in reaching accurate factual conclusions. Given the nature of the documents, in my view, the important value of the search for truth which underlies both freedom of expression and open justice would be promoted to a greater extent by submitting the Confidential Documents under the order sought than it would by denying the order, and thereby preventing the parties and the court from relying on the documents in the course of the litigation.

In addition, under the terms of the order sought, the only restrictions on these documents relate to their public distribution. The Confidential Documents would be available to the court and the parties, and public access to the proceedings would not be impeded. As such, the order represents a fairly minimal intrusion into the open court rule, and thus would not have significant deleterious effects on this principle.

80

The second core value underlying freedom of speech, namely, the promotion of individual self-fulfilment by allowing open development of thoughts and ideas, focusses on individual expression, and thus does not closely relate to the open court principle which involves institutional expression. Although the confidentiality order would interrogatoire. De plus, le tribunal ne bénéficierait pas du contre-interrogatoire ou de cette preuve documentaire, et il lui faudrait tirer des conclusions fondées sur un dossier de preuve incomplet. Cela nuirait manifestement à la recherche de la vérité en l'espèce.

De plus, il importe de rappeler que l'ordonnance de confidentialité ne restreindrait l'accès qu'à un nombre relativement peu élevé de documents hautement techniques. La nature de ces documents est telle que le public en général est peu susceptible d'en comprendre le contenu, de sorte qu'ils contribueraient peu à l'intérêt du public à la recherche de la vérité en l'espèce. Toutefois, dans les mains des parties et de leurs experts respectifs, les documents peuvent être très utiles pour apprécier la conformité du processus d'évaluation environnementale chinois, ce qui devrait aussi aider le tribunal à tirer des conclusions de fait exactes. À mon avis, compte tenu de leur nature, la production des documents confidentiels en vertu de l'ordonnance de confidentialité sollicitée favoriserait mieux l'importante valeur de la recherche de la vérité, qui sous-tend à la fois la liberté d'expression et la publicité des débats judiciaires, que ne le ferait le rejet de la demande qui aurait pour effet d'empêcher les parties et le tribunal de se fonder sur les documents au cours de l'instance.

De plus, aux termes de l'ordonnance demandée, les seules restrictions imposées à l'égard de ces documents ont trait à leur distribution publique. Les documents confidentiels seraient mis à la disposition du tribunal et des parties, et il n'y aurait pas d'entrave à l'accès du public aux procédures. À ce titre, l'ordonnance représente une atteinte relativement minime à la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires et elle n'aurait donc pas d'effets préjudiciables importants sur ce principe.

La deuxième valeur fondamentale sous-jacente à la liberté d'expression, la promotion de l'épanouissement personnel par le libre développement de la pensée et des idées, est centrée sur l'expression individuelle et n'est donc pas étroitement liée au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires qui concerne l'expression institutionnelle. Même restrict individual access to certain information which may be of interest to that individual, I find that this value would not be significantly affected by the confidentiality order.

The third core value, open participation in the political process, figures prominently in this appeal, as open justice is a fundamental aspect of a democratic society. This connection was pointed out by Cory J. in Edmonton Journal, supra, at p. 1339:

It can be seen that freedom of expression is of fundamental importance to a democratic society. It is also essential to a democracy and crucial to the rule of law that the courts are seen to function openly. The press must be free to comment upon court proceedings to ensure that the courts are, in fact, seen by all to operate openly in the penetrating light of public scrutiny.

Although there is no doubt as to the importance of open judicial proceedings to a democratic society, there was disagreement in the courts below as to whether the weight to be assigned to the open court principle should vary depending on the nature of the proceeding.

On this issue, Robertson J.A. was of the view that the nature of the case and the level of media interest were irrelevant considerations. On the other hand, Evans J.A. held that the motions judge was correct in taking into account that this judicial review application was one of significant public and media interest. In my view, although the public nature of the case may be a factor which strengthens the importance of open justice in a particular case, the level of media interest should not be taken into account as an independent consideration.

Since cases involving public institutions will generally relate more closely to the core value of public participation in the political process, the public nature of a proceeding should be taken into consideration when assessing the merits of a confidentiality order. It is important to note that this core value will always be engaged where the open court si l'ordonnance de confidentialité devait restreindre l'accès individuel à certains renseignements susceptibles d'intéresser quelqu'un, j'estime que cette valeur ne serait pas touchée de manière significative.

La troisième valeur fondamentale, la libre participation au processus politique, joue un rôle primordial dans le pourvoi puisque la publicité des débats judiciaires est un aspect fondamental de la société démocratique. Ce lien est souligné par le juge Cory dans Edmonton Journal, précité, p. 1339 :

On voit que la liberté d'expression est d'une importance fondamentale dans une société démocratique. Il est également essentiel dans une démocratie et fondamental pour la primauté du droit que la transparence du fonctionnement des tribunaux soit perçue comme telle. La presse doit être libre de commenter les procédures judiciaires pour que, dans les faits, chacun puisse constater que les tribunaux fonctionnent publiquement sous les regards pénétrants du public.

Même si on ne peut douter de l'importance de la publicité des débats judiciaires dans une société démocratique, les décisions antérieures divergent sur la question de savoir si le poids à accorder au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires devrait varier en fonction de la nature de la procédure.

Sur ce point, le juge Robertson estime que la nature de l'affaire et le degré d'intérêt des médias sont des considérations dénuées de pertinence. Le juge Evans estime quant à lui que le juge des requêtes a eu raison de tenir compte du fait que la demande de contrôle judiciaire suscite beaucoup d'intérêt de la part du public et des médias. À mon avis, même si la nature publique de l'affaire peut être un facteur susceptible de renforcer l'importance de la publicité des débats judiciaires dans une espèce particulière, le degré d'intérêt des médias ne devrait pas être considéré comme facteur indépendant.

Puisque les affaires concernant des institutions publiques ont généralement un lien plus étroit avec la valeur fondamentale de la participation du public au processus politique, la nature publique d'une instance devrait être prise en considération dans l'évaluation du bien-fondé d'une ordonnance de confidentialité. Il importe de noter que cette valeur principle is engaged owing to the importance of open justice to a democratic society. However, where the political process is also engaged by the substance of the proceedings, the connection between open proceedings and public participation in the political process will increase. As such, I agree with Evans J.A. in the court below where he stated, at para. 87:

While all litigation is important to the parties, and there is a public interest in ensuring the fair and appropriate adjudication of all litigation that comes before the courts, some cases raise issues that transcend the immediate interests of the parties and the general public interest in the due administration of justice, and have a much wider public interest significance.

84 This motion relates to an application for judicial review of a decision by the government to fund a nuclear energy project. Such an application is clearly of a public nature, as it relates to the distribution of public funds in relation to an issue of demonstrated public interest. Moreover, as pointed out by Evans J.A., openness and public participation are of fundamental importance under the CEAA. Indeed, by their very nature, environmental matters carry significant public import, and openness in judicial proceedings involving environmental issues will generally attract a high degree of protection. In this regard, I agree with Evans J.A. that the public interest is engaged here more than it would be if this were an action between private parties relating to purely private interests.

85 However, with respect, to the extent that Evans J.A. relied on media interest as an indicium of public interest, this was an error. In my view, it is important to distinguish public interest, from media interest, and I agree with Robertson J.A. that media exposure cannot be viewed as an impartial measure of public interest. It is the public nature of the proceedings which increases the need for openness, and this public nature is not necessarily reflected by the media desire to probe the facts of the case.

fondamentale sera toujours engagée lorsque sera mis en cause le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, vu l'importance de la transparence judiciaire dans une société démocratique. Toutefois, le lien entre la publicité des débats judiciaires et la participation du public dans le processus politique s'accroît lorsque le processus politique est également engagé par la substance de la procédure. Sous ce rapport, je suis d'accord avec ce que dit le juge Evans (au par. 87) :

Bien que tous les litiges soient importants pour les parties, et qu'il en va de l'intérêt du public que les affaires soumises aux tribunaux soient traitées de façon équitable et appropriée, certaines affaires soulèvent des questions qui transcendent les intérêts immédiats des parties ainsi que l'intérêt du public en général dans la bonne administration de la justice, et qui ont une signification beaucoup plus grande pour le public.

La requête est liée à une demande de contrôle judiciaire d'une décision du gouvernement de financer un projet d'énergie nucléaire. La demande est clairement de nature publique, puisqu'elle a trait à la distribution de fonds publics en rapport avec une question dont l'intérêt public a été démontré. De plus, comme le souligne le juge Evans, la transparence du processus et la participation du public ont une importance fondamentale sous le régime de la LCÉE. En effet, par leur nature même, les questions environnementales ont une portée publique considérable, et la transparence des débats judiciaires sur les questions environnementales mérite généralement un degré élevé de protection. À cet égard, je suis d'accord avec le juge Evans pour conclure que l'intérêt public est en l'espèce plus engagé que s'il s'agissait d'un litige entre personnes privées à l'égard d'intérêts purement privés.

J'estime toutefois avec égards que, dans la mesure où il se fonde sur l'intérêt des médias comme indice de l'intérêt du public, le juge Evans fait erreur. À mon avis, il est important d'établir une distinction entre l'intérêt du public et l'intérêt des médias et, comme le juge Robertson, je note que la couverture médiatique ne peut être considérée comme une mesure impartiale de l'intérêt public. C'est la nature publique de l'instance qui accentue le besoin de transparence, et cette nature publique ne se reflète

I reiterate the caution given by Dickson C.J. in Keegstra, supra, at p. 760, where he stated that, while the speech in question must be examined in light of its relation to the core values, “we must guard carefully against judging expression according to its popularity”.

Although the public interest in open access to the judicial review application as a whole is substantial, in my view, it is also important to bear in mind the nature and scope of the information for which the order is sought in assigning weight to the public interest. With respect, the motions judge erred in failing to consider the narrow scope of the order when he considered the public interest in disclosure, and consequently attached excessive weight to this factor. In this connection, I respectfully disagree with the following conclusion of Evans J.A., at para. 97:

Thus, having considered the nature of this litigation, and having assessed the extent of public interest in the openness of the proceedings in the case before him, the Motions Judge cannot be said in all the circumstances to have given this factor undue weight, even though confidentiality is claimed for only three documents among the small mountain of paper filed in this case, and their content is likely to be beyond the comprehension of all but those equipped with the necessary technical expertise.

Open justice is a fundamentally important principle, particularly when the substance of the proceedings is public in nature. However, this does not detract from the duty to attach weight to this principle in accordance with the specific limitations on openness that the confidentiality order would have. As Wilson J. observed in Edmonton Journal, supra, at pp. 1353-54:

One thing seems clear and that is that one should not balance one value at large and the conflicting value in its context. To do so could well be to pre-judge the issue by placing more weight on the value developed at large than is appropriate in the context of the case.

pas nécessairement dans le désir des médias d'examiner les faits de l'affaire. Je réitère l'avertissement donné par le juge en chef Dickson dans Keegstra, précité, p. 760, où il dit que même si l'expression en cause doit être examinée dans ses rapports avec les valeurs fondamentales, « nous devons veiller à ne pas juger l'expression en fonction de sa popularité ».

Même si l'intérêt du public à la publicité de la demande de contrôle judiciaire dans son ensemble est important, à mon avis, il importe tout autant de prendre en compte la nature et la portée des renseignements visés par l'ordonnance demandée, lorsqu'il s'agit d'apprécier le poids de l'intérêt public. Avec égards, le juge des requêtes a commis une erreur en ne tenant pas compte de la portée limitée de l'ordonnance dans son appréciation de l'intérêt du public à la communication et en accordant donc un poids excessif à ce facteur. Sous ce rapport, je ne partage pas la conclusion suivante du juge Evans (au par. 97) :

Par conséquent, on ne peut dire qu'après que le juge des requêtes eut examiné la nature de ce litige et évalué l'importance de l'intérêt du public à la publicité des procédures, il aurait dans les circonstances accordé trop d'importance à ce facteur, même si la confidentialité n'est demandée que pour trois documents parmi la montagne de documents déposés en l'instance et que leur contenu dépasse probablement les connaissances de ceux qui n'ont pas l'expertise technique nécessaire.

La publicité des débats judiciaires est un principe fondamentalement important, surtout lorsque la substance de la procédure est de nature publique. Cela ne libère toutefois aucunement de l'obligation d'apprécier le poids à accorder à ce principe en fonction des limites particulières qu'imposerait l'ordonnance de confidentialité à la publicité des débats. Comme le dit le juge Wilson dans Edmonton Journal, précité, p. 1353-1354 :

Une chose semble claire et c'est qu'il ne faut pas évaluer une valeur selon la méthode générale et l'autre valeur en conflit avec elle selon la méthode contextuelle. Agir ainsi pourrait fort bien revenir à préjuger de l'issue du litige en donnant à la valeur examinée de manière générale plus d'importance que ne l'exige le contexte de l'affaire.

87 In my view, it is important that, although there is significant public interest in these proceedings, open access to the judicial review application would be only slightly impeded by the order sought. The narrow scope of the order coupled with the highly technical nature of the Confidential Documents significantly temper the deleterious effects the confidentiality order would have on the public interest in open courts.

88 In addressing the effects that the confidentiality order would have on freedom of expression, it should also be borne in mind that the appellant may not have to raise defences under the CEAA, in which case the Confidential Documents would be irrelevant to the proceedings, with the result that freedom of expression would be unaffected by the order. However, since the necessity of the Confidential Documents will not be determined for some time, in the absence of a confidentiality order, the appellant would be left with the choice of either submitting the documents in breach of its obligations, or withholding the documents in the hopes that either it will not have to present a defence under the CEAA, or that it will be able to mount a successful defence in the absence of these relevant documents. If it chooses the former option, and the defences under the CEAA are later found not to apply, then the appellant will have suffered the prejudice of having its confidential and sensitive information released into the public domain, with no corresponding benefit to the public. Although this scenario is far from certain, the possibility of such an occurrence also weighs in favour of granting the order sought.

89 In coming to this conclusion, I note that if the appellant is not required to invoke the relevant defences under the CEAA, it is also true that the appellant's fair trial right will not be impeded, even if the confidentiality order is not granted. However, I do not take this into account as a factor which weighs in favour of denying the order because, if the order is granted and the Confidential Documents are not required, there will be no deleterious effects on either the public interest in freedom of expression or the appellant's commercial interests or fair trial right. This neutral result is in contrast with the À mon avis, il importe de reconnaître que, malgré l'intérêt significatif que porte le public à ces procédures, l'ordonnance demandée n'entraverait que légèrement la publicité de la demande de contrôle judiciaire. La portée étroite de l'ordonnance associée à la nature hautement technique des documents confidentiels tempère considérablement les effets préjudiciables que l'ordonnance de confidentialité pourrait avoir sur l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires.

Pour traiter des effets qu'aurait l'ordonnance de confidentialité sur la liberté d'expression, il faut aussi se rappeler qu'il se peut que l'appelante n'ait pas à soulever de moyens de défense visés par la LCÉE, auquel cas les documents confidentiels perdraient leur pertinence et la liberté d'expression ne serait pas touchée par l'ordonnance. Toutefois, puisque l'utilité des documents confidentiels ne sera pas déterminée avant un certain temps, l'appelante n'aurait plus, en l'absence d'ordonnance de confidentialité, que le choix entre soit produire les documents en violation de ses obligations, soit les retenir dans l'espoir de ne pas avoir à présenter de défense en vertu de la LCÉE ou de pouvoir assurer effectivement sa défense sans les documents pertinents. Si elle opte pour le premier choix et que le tribunal conclut par la suite que les moyens de défense visés par la LCÉE ne sont pas applicables, l'appelante aura subi le préjudice de voir ses renseignements confidentiels et délicats tomber dans le domaine public sans que le public n'en tire d'avantage correspondant. Même si sa réalisation est loin d'être certaine, la possibilité d'un tel scénario milite également en faveur de l'ordonnance sollicitée.

En arrivant à cette conclusion, je note que si l'appelante n'a pas à invoquer les moyens de défense pertinents en vertu de la LCÉE, il est également vrai que son droit à un procès équitable ne sera pas entravé même en cas de refus de l'ordonnance de confidentialité. Je ne retiens toutefois pas cela comme facteur militant contre l'ordonnance parce que, si elle est accordée et que les documents confidentiels ne sont pas nécessaires, il n'y aura alors aucun effet préjudiciable ni sur l'intérêt du public à la liberté d'expression ni sur les droits commerciaux ou le droit de l'appelante à un procès scenario discussed above where the order is denied and the possibility arises that the appellant's commercial interests will be prejudiced with no corresponding public benefit. As a result, the fact that the Confidential Documents may not be required is a factor which weighs in favour of granting the confidentiality order.

In summary, the core freedom of expression values of seeking the truth and promoting an open political process are most closely linked to the principle of open courts, and most affected by an order restricting that openness. However, in the context of this case, the confidentiality order would only marginally impede, and in some respects would even promote, the pursuit of these values. As such, the order would not have significant deleterious effects on freedom of expression.

VII. Conclusion

In balancing the various rights and interests engaged, I note that the confidentiality order would have substantial salutary effects on the appellant's right to a fair trial, and freedom of expression. On the other hand, the deleterious effects of the confidentiality order on the principle of open courts and freedom of expression would be minimal. In addition, if the order is not granted and in the course of the judicial review application the appellant is not required to mount a defence under the CEAA, there is a possibility that the appellant will have suffered the harm of having disclosed confidential information in breach of its obligations with no corresponding benefit to the right of the public to freedom of expression. As a result, I find that the salutary effects of the order outweigh its deleterious effects, and the order should be granted.

Consequently, I would allow the appeal with costs throughout, set aside the judgment of the Federal Court of Appeal, and grant the confidentiality order on the terms requested by the appellant under Rule 151 of the Federal Court Rules, 1998.

équitable. Cette issue neutre contraste avec le scénario susmentionné où il y a refus de l'ordonnance et possibilité d'atteinte aux droits commerciaux de l'appelante sans avantage correspondant pour le public. Par conséquent, le fait que les documents confidentiels puissent ne pas être nécessaires est un facteur en faveur de l'ordonnance de confidentialité.

En résumé, les valeurs centrales de la liberté d'expression que sont la recherche de la vérité et la promotion d'un processus politique ouvert sont très étroitement liées au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, et sont les plus touchées par une ordonnance limitant cette publicité. Toutefois, dans le contexte en l'espèce, l'ordonnance de confidentialité n'entraverait que légèrement la poursuite de ces valeurs, et pourrait même les favoriser à certains égards. À ce titre, l'ordonnance n'aurait pas d'effets préjudiciables importants sur la liberté d'expression.

VII. Conclusion

Dans la pondération des divers droits et intérêts en jeu, je note que l'ordonnance de confidentialité aurait des effets bénéfiques importants sur le droit de l'appelante à un procès équitable et sur la liberté d'expression. D'autre part, les effets préjudiciables de l'ordonnance de confidentialité sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires et la liberté d'expression seraient minimes. En outre, si l'ordonnance est refusée et qu'au cours du contrôle judiciaire l'appelante n'est pas amenée à invoquer les moyens de défense prévus dans la LCÉE, il se peut qu'elle subisse le préjudice d'avoir communiqué des renseignements confidentiels en violation de ses obligations sans avantage correspondant pour le droit du public à la liberté d'expression. Je conclus donc que les effets bénéfiques de l'ordonnance l'emportent sur ses effets préjudiciables, et qu'il y a lieu d'accorder l'ordonnance.

Je suis donc d'avis d'accueillir le pourvoi avec dépens devant toutes les cours, d'annuler l'arrêt de la Cour d'appel fédérale, et d'accorder l'ordonnance de confidentialité selon les modalités demandées par l'appelante en vertu de la règle 151 des Règles de la Cour fédérale (1998).

interest — Privacy — Dignity — Physical safety — Unexplained deaths of prominent couple generating intense public scrutiny and prompting trustees of estates to apply for sealing of probate files — Whether privacy and physical safety concerns advanced by estate trustees amount to important public interests at such serious risk to justify issuance of sealing orders.

A prominent couple was found dead in their home. Their deaths had no apparent explanation and generated intense public interest. To this day, the identity and motive of those responsible remain unknown, and the deaths are being investigated as homicides. The estate trustees sought to stem the intense press scrutiny prompted by the events by seeking sealing orders of the probate files. Initially granted, the sealing orders were challenged by a journalist who had reported on the couple's deaths, and by the newspaper for which he wrote. The application judge sealed the probate files, concluding that the harmful effects of the sealing orders were substantially outweighed by the salutary effects on privacy and physical safety interests. The Court of Appeal unanimously allowed the appeal and lifted the sealing orders. It concluded that the privacy interest advanced lacked a public interest quality, and that there was no evidence of a real risk to anyone's physical safety.

Held: The appeal should be dismissed.

The estate trustees have failed to establish a serious risk to an important public interest under the test for discretionary limits on court openness. As such, the sealing orders should not have been issued. Open courts can be a source of inconvenience and embarrassment, but this discomfort is not, as a general matter, enough to overturn the strong presumption of openness. That said, personal information disseminated in open court can be more than a source of discomfort and may result in an affront to a person's dignity. Insofar as privacy serves to protect individuals from this affront, it is an important public interest and a court can make an exception to the open court principle if it is at discretionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires — Intérêt public important — Vie privée — Dignité — Sécurité physique — Décès inexpliqué d'un couple important suscitant une vive attention chez le public et amenant les fiduciaires des successions à demander la mise sous scellés des dossiers d'homologation — Les préoccupations en matière de vie privée et de sécurité physique soulevées par les fiduciaires des successions constituent-elles des intérêts publics importants qui sont à ce point sérieusement menacés qu'ils justifient le prononcé d'ordonnances de mise sous scellés?

Un couple important a été retrouvé mort dans sa résidence. Les décès apparemment inexpliqués ont suscité un vif intérêt chez le public. À ce jour, l'identité et le mobile des personnes responsables demeurent inconnus, et les décès font l'objet d'une enquête pour homicides. Les fiduciaires des successions ont cherché à réfréner l'attention médiatique intense provoquée par les événements en sollicitant des ordonnances visant à mettre sous scellés les dossiers d'homologation. Les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ont au départ été accordées, puis ont été contestées par un journaliste qui avait rédigé des articles sur le décès du couple, ainsi que par le journal pour lequel il écrivait. Le juge de première instance a fait placer sous scellés les dossiers d'homologation, concluant que les effets bénéfiques des ordonnances de mise sous scellés sur les intérêts en matière de vie privée et de sécurité physique l'emportaient sensiblement sur leurs effets préjudiciables. La Cour d'appel à l'unanimité a accueilli l'appel et levé les ordonnances de mise sous scellés. Elle a conclu que l'intérêt en matière de vie privée qui avait été soulevé ne comportait pas la qualité d'intérêt public, et qu'il n'y avait aucun élément de preuve d'un risque réel pour la sécurité physique de quiconque.

Arrêt : Le pourvoi est rejeté.

Les fiduciaires des successions n'ont pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important en vertu du test applicable en matière de limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Par conséquent, les ordonnances de mise sous scellés n'auraient pas dû être rendues. La publicité des débats judiciaires peut être source d'inconvénients et d'embarras, mais ce désagrément n'est pas, en règle générale, suffisant pour permettre de réfuter la forte présomption de publicité des débats. Cela dit, la diffusion de renseignements personnels dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics peut être plus qu'une source de désagrément et peut aussi entraîner une atteinte serious risk. In this case, the risks to privacy and physical safety cannot be said to be sufficiently serious.

Court proceedings are presumptively open to the public. Court openness is protected by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of expression and is essential to the proper functioning of Canadian democracy. Reporting on court proceedings by a free press is often said to be inseparable from the principle of open justice. The open court principle is engaged by all judicial proceedings, whatever their nature. Matters in a probate file are not quintessentially private or fundamentally administrative. Obtaining a certificate of appointment of estate trustee in Ontario is a court proceeding engaging the fundamental rationale for openness — discouraging mischief and ensuring confidence in the administration of justice through transparency — such that the strong presumption of openness applies.

The test for discretionary limits on court openness is directed at maintaining the presumption while offering sufficient flexibility for courts to protect other public interests where they arise. In order to succeed, the person asking a court to exercise discretion in a way that limits the open court presumption must establish that (1) court openness poses a serious risk to an important public interest; (2) the order sought is necessary to prevent this serious risk to the identified interest because reasonably alternative measures will not prevent this risk; and (3) as a matter of proportionality, the benefits of the order outweigh its negative effects.

The recognized scope of what interests might justify a discretionary exception to open courts has broadened over time and now extends generally to important public interests. The breadth of this category transcends the interests of the parties to the dispute and provides significant flexibility to address harm to fundamental values in our society that unqualified openness could cause. While there is no closed list of important public interests, courts must be cautious and alive to the fundamental importance of the open court rule when they are identifying them.

à la dignité d'une personne. Dans la mesure où elle sert à protéger les personnes contre une telle atteinte, la vie privée constitue un intérêt public important et un tribunal peut faire une exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires si elle est sérieusement menacée. Dans la présente affaire, on ne peut pas dire que le risque pour la vie privée et pour la sécurité physique est suffisamment sérieux.

Les procédures judiciaires sont présumées accessibles au public. La publicité des débats judiciaires, qui est protégée par la garantie constitutionnelle de la liberté d'expression, est essentielle au bon fonctionnement de la démocratie canadienne. On dit souvent de la liberté de la presse de rendre compte des procédures judiciaires qu'elle est indissociable du principe de publicité. Le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires s'applique dans toutes les procédures judiciaires, quelle que soit leur nature. Les questions soulevées dans un dossier d'homologation ne sont pas typiquement de nature privée ou fondamentalement de nature administrative. L'obtention d'un certificat de nomination à titre de fiduciaire d'une succession en Ontario est une procédure judiciaire qui met en cause la raison d'être fondamentale de la publicité des débats — décourager les actes malveillants et garantir la confiance dans l'administration de la justice par la transparence —, de sorte que la forte présomption de publicité s'applique.

Le test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires vise à maintenir la présomption tout en offrant suffisamment de souplesse aux tribunaux pour leur permettre de protéger d'autres intérêts publics lorsqu'ils entrent en jeu. Pour obtenir gain de cause, la personne qui demande au tribunal d'exercer son pouvoir discrétionnaire de façon à limiter la présomption de publicité doit établir ce qui suit : (1) la publicité des débats judiciaires pose un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important; (2) l'ordonnance sollicitée est nécessaire pour écarter ce risque sérieux pour l'intérêt mis en évidence, car d'autres mesures raisonnables ne permettront pas d'écarter ce risque; et (3) du point de vue de la proportionnalité, les avantages de l'ordonnance l'emportent sur ses effets négatifs.

La portée reconnue des intérêts qui pourraient justifier une exception discrétionnaire à la publicité des débats judiciaires s'est élargie au fil du temps et s'étend désormais en général aux intérêts publics importants. L'étendue de cette catégorie transcende les intérêts des parties au litige et offre une grande souplesse pour remédier à l'atteinte aux valeurs fondamentales de notre société qu'une publicité absolue des procédures judiciaires pourrait causer. Bien qu'il n'y ait aucune liste exhaustive des intérêts publics importants, les tribunaux doivent faire preuve de prudence

Determining what is an important public interest can be done in the abstract at the level of general principles that extend beyond the parties to the particular dispute. By contrast, whether that interest is at serious risk is a fact-based finding that is necessarily made in context. The identification of an important interest and the seriousness of the risk to that interest are thus theoretically separate and qualitatively distinct operations.

Privacy has been championed as a fundamental consideration in a free society, and its public importance has been recognized in various settings. Though an individual's privacy will be pre-eminently important to that individual, the protection of privacy is also in the interest of society as a whole. Privacy therefore cannot be rejected as a mere personal concern: some personal concerns relating to privacy overlap with public interests.

However, cast too broadly, the recognition of a public interest in privacy could threaten the strong presumption of openness. The privacy of individuals will be at risk in many court proceedings. Furthermore, privacy is a complex and contextual concept, making it difficult for courts to measure. Recognizing an important interest in privacy generally would accordingly be unworkable.

Instead, the public character of the privacy interest involves protecting individuals from the threat to their dignity. Dignity in this sense involves the right to present core aspects of oneself to others in a considered and controlled manner; it is an expression of an individual's unique personality or personhood. This interest is consistent with the Court's emphasis on the importance of privacy, but is tailored to preserve the strong presumption of openness.

Privacy as predicated on dignity will be at serious risk in limited circumstances. Neither the sensibilities of individuals nor the fact that openness is disadvantageous, embarrassing or distressing to certain individuals will generally on their own warrant interference with court openness. Dignity will be at serious risk only where the information that would be disseminated as a result of court openness is sufficiently sensitive or private such that openness can be shown to meaningfully strike at the individual's biographical core in a manner that threatens their et avoir pleinement conscience de l'importance fondamentale de la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires lorsqu'ils les constatent. Déterminer ce qu'est un intérêt public important peut se faire dans l'abstrait sur le plan des principes généraux qui vont au-delà des parties à un litige donné. En revanche, la conclusion sur la question de savoir si un risque sérieux menace cet intérêt est une conclusion factuelle qui est nécessairement prise eu égard au contexte. Le fait de constater un intérêt important et celui de constater le caractère sérieux du risque auquel cet intérêt est exposé sont donc en théorie des opérations séparées et qualitativement distinctes.

La vie privée a été défendue en tant que considération fondamentale d'une société libre et son importance pour le public a été reconnue dans divers contextes. Bien que la vie privée d'une personne soit d'une importance primordiale pour celle-ci, la protection de la vie privée est également dans l'intérêt de la société dans son ensemble. La vie privée ne saurait donc être rejetée en tant que simple préoccupation personnelle : il y a chevauchement entre certaines préoccupations personnelles relatives à la vie privée et les intérêts du public.

Cependant, si la vie privée est définie trop largement, la reconnaissance d'un intérêt public en matière de vie privée pourrait menacer la forte présomption de publicité. La vie privée des personnes sera menacée dans de nombreuses procédures judiciaires. De plus, la vie privée est une notion complexe et contextuelle, de sorte qu'il est difficile pour les tribunaux de la mesurer. La reconnaissance d'un intérêt important à l'égard de la notion générale de vie privée serait donc irréalisable.

Le caractère public de l'intérêt en matière de vie privée consiste plutôt à protéger les gens contre la menace à leur dignité. La dignité en ce sens comporte le droit de présenter des aspects fondamentaux de soi-même aux autres de manière réfléchie et contrôlée; il s'agit de l'expression de la personnalité ou de l'identité unique d'une personne. Cet intérêt est conforme à l'accent mis par la Cour sur l'importance de la vie privée, tout en permettant de maintenir la forte présomption de publicité des débats.

Se fondant sur la dignité, la vie privée sera sérieusement menacée dans des circonstances limitées. Ni la susceptibilité des gens ni le fait que la publicité soit désavantageuse, embarrassante ou pénible pour certaines personnes ne justifieront généralement, à eux seuls, une atteinte à la publicité des débats judiciaires. La dignité ne sera sérieusement menacée que lorsque les renseignements qui seraient diffusés en raison de la publicité des débats sont suffisamment sensibles ou privés pour que l'on puisse démontrer que la publicité porte atteinte de integrity. The question is whether the information reveals something intimate and personal about the individual, their lifestyle or their experiences.

In cases where the information is sufficiently sensitive to strike at an individual's biographical core, a court must then ask whether a serious risk to the interest is made out in the full factual context of the case. The seriousness of the risk may be affected by the extent to which information is disseminated and already in the public domain, and the probability of the dissemination actually occurring. The burden is on the applicant to show that privacy, understood in reference to dignity, is at serious risk; this erects a fact-specific threshold consistent with the presumption of openness.

There is also an important public interest in protecting individuals from physical harm, but a discretionary order limiting court openness can only be made where there is a serious risk to this important public interest. Direct evidence is not necessarily required to establish a serious risk to an important public interest, as objectively discernable harm may be identified on the basis of logical inferences. But this process of inferential reasoning is not a licence to engage in impermissible speculation. It is not just the probability of the feared harm, but also the gravity of the harm itself that is relevant to the assessment of serious risk. Where the feared harm is particularly serious, the probability that this harm materialize need not be shown to be likely, but must still be more than negligible, fanciful or speculative. Mere assertions of grave physical harm are therefore insufficient.

In addition to a serious risk to an important interest, it must be shown that the particular order sought is necessary to address the risk and that the benefits of the order outweigh its negative effects as a matter of proportionality. This contextual balancing, informed by the importance of the open court principle, presents a final barrier to those seeking a discretionary limit on court openness for the purposes of privacy protection.

façon significative au cœur même des renseignements biographiques de la personne d'une manière qui menace son intégrité. Il faut se demander si les renseignements révèlent quelque chose d'intime et de personnel sur la personne, son mode de vie ou ses expériences.

Dans les cas où les renseignements sont suffisamment sensibles pour toucher au cœur même des renseignements biographiques d'une personne, le tribunal doit alors se demander si le contexte factuel global de l'affaire permet d'établir l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt en cause. La mesure dans laquelle les renseignements sont diffusés et font déjà partie du domaine public, ainsi que la probabilité que la diffusion se produise réellement, peuvent avoir une incidence sur le caractère sérieux du risque. Il incombe au demandeur de démontrer que la vie privée, considérée au regard de la dignité, est sérieusement menacée; cela permet d'établir un seuil, tributaire des faits, compatible avec la présomption de publicité des débats.

Il existe également un intérêt public important dans la protection des personnes contre un préjudice physique, mais une ordonnance discrétionnaire ayant pour effet de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires ne peut être rendue qu'en présence d'un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt public important. Une preuve directe n'est pas nécessairement exigée pour démontrer qu'un intérêt public important est sérieusement menacé, car il est possible d'établir l'existence d'un préjudice objectivement discernable sur la base d'inférences logiques. Or, ce raisonnement inférentiel ne permet pas de se livrer à des conjectures inadmissibles. Ce n'est pas seulement la probabilité du préjudice appréhendé qui est pertinente lorsqu'il s'agit d'évaluer si un risque est sérieux, mais également la gravité du préjudice lui-même. Lorsque le préjudice appréhendé est particulièrement sérieux, il n'est pas nécessaire de démontrer que la probabilité que ce préjudice se matérialise est vraisemblable, mais elle doit tout de même être plus que négligeable, fantaisiste ou conjecturale. Le simple fait d'invoquer un préjudice physique grave n'est donc pas suffisant.

Il faut démontrer, outre un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important, que l'ordonnance particulière demandée est nécessaire pour écarter le risque et que, du point de vue de la proportionnalité, les avantages de l'ordonnance l'emportent sur ses effets négatifs. Cette pondération contextuelle, éclairée par l'importance du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, constitue un dernier obstacle sur la route de ceux qui cherchent à faire limiter de façon discrétionnaire la publicité des débats judiciaires aux fins de la protection de la vie privée.

In the present case, the risk to the important public interest in privacy, defined in reference to dignity, is not serious. The information contained in the probate files does not reveal anything particularly private or highly sensitive. It has not been shown that it would strike at the biographical core of the affected individuals in a way that would undermine their control over the expression of their identities. Furthermore, the record does not show a serious risk of physical harm. The estate trustees asked the application judge to infer not only the fact that harm would befall the affected individuals, but also that a person or persons exist who wish to harm them. To infer all this on the basis of the deaths and the association of the affected individuals with the deceased is not a reasonable inference but is speculation.

Even if the estate trustees had succeeded in showing a serious risk to privacy, a publication ban — less constraining on openness than the sealing orders — would have likely been sufficient as a reasonable alternative to prevent this risk. As a final barrier, the estate trustees would have had to show that the benefits of any order necessary to protect from a serious risk to the important public interest outweighed the harmful effects of the order.

En l'espèce, le risque pour l'intérêt public important en matière de vie privée, défini au regard de la dignité, n'est pas sérieux. Les renseignements contenus dans les dossiers d'homologation ne révèlent rien de particulièrement privé ni de très sensible. Il n'a pas été démontré qu'ils toucheraient au cœur même des renseignements biographiques des personnes touchées d'une manière qui minerait leur contrôle sur l'expression de leur identité. De plus, le dossier ne démontre pas l'existence d'un risque sérieux de préjudice physique. Les fiduciaires des successions ont demandé au juge de première instance d'inférer non seulement le fait qu'un préjudice serait causé aux personnes touchées, mais également qu'il existe une ou des personnes qui souhaitent leur faire du mal. Déduire tout cela en se fondant sur les décès et sur les liens unissant les personnes touchées aux défunts ne constitue pas une inférence raisonnable, mais une conjecture.

Même si les fiduciaires des successions avaient réussi à démontrer l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour la vie privée, une interdiction de publication — moins contraignante à l'égard de la publicité des débats que les ordonnances de mise sous scellés — aurait probablement été suffisante en tant qu'autre option raisonnable pour écarter ce risque. Comme dernier obstacle, les fiduciaires des successions auraient eu à démontrer que les avantages de toute ordonnance nécessaire à la protection contre un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt public important l'emportaient sur ses effets préjudiciables.

LE JUGE KASIRER —

I. Overview

[1] This Court has been resolute in recognizing that the open court principle is protected by the constitutionally-entrenched right of freedom of expression and, as such, it represents a central feature of a liberal democracy. As a general rule, the public can attend hearings and consult court files and the press — the eyes and ears of the public — is left free to inquire and comment on the workings of the courts, all of which helps make the justice system fair and accountable.

[2] Accordingly, there is a strong presumption in favour of open courts. It is understood that this allows for public scrutiny which can be the source of inconvenience and even embarrassment to those who feel that their engagement in the justice system brings intrusion into their private lives. But this discomfort is not, as a general matter, enough to overturn the strong presumption that the public can attend hearings and that court files can be consulted and reported upon by the free press.

[3] Notwithstanding this presumption, exceptional circumstances do arise where competing interests justify a restriction on the open court principle. Where a discretionary court order limiting constitutionally-protected openness is sought — for example, a sealing order, a publication ban, an order excluding the public from a hearing, or a redaction order — the applicant must demonstrate, as a threshold requirement, that openness presents a serious risk to a competing interest of public importance. That this requirement is considered a high bar serves to maintain the strong presumption of open courts. Moreover, the protection of open courts does not stop there. The applicant must still show that the order is necessary to prevent the risk and that, as a matter of

I. Survol

[1] La Cour a toujours fermement reconnu que le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires est protégé par le droit constitutionnel à la liberté d'expression, et qu'il représente à ce titre un élément fondamental d'une démocratie libérale. En règle générale, le public peut assister aux audiences et consulter les dossiers judiciaires, et les médias — les yeux et les oreilles du public — sont libres de poser des questions et de formuler des commentaires sur les activités des tribunaux, ce qui contribue à rendre le système judiciaire équitable et responsable.

[2] Par conséquent, il existe une forte présomption en faveur de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Il est entendu que cela permet un examen public minutieux qui peut être source d'inconvénients, voire d'embarras, pour ceux qui estiment que leur implication dans le système judiciaire entraîne une atteinte à leur vie privée. Cependant, ce désagrément n'est pas, en règle générale, suffisant pour permettre de réfuter la forte présomption voulant que le public puisse assister aux audiences, et que les dossiers judiciaires puissent être consultés et leur contenu rapporté par une presse libre.

[3] Malgré cette présomption, il se présente des circonstances exceptionnelles où des intérêts opposés justifient de restreindre le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Lorsqu'un demandeur sollicite une ordonnance judiciaire discrétionnaire limitant le principe constitutionnalisé de la publicité des procédures judiciaires — par exemple, une ordonnance de mise sous scellés, une interdiction de publication, une ordonnance excluant le public d'une audience ou une ordonnance de caviardage —, il doit démontrer, comme condition préliminaire, que la publicité des débats en cause présente un risque sérieux pour un intérêt opposé qui revêt une importance pour le public. Le fait que cette condition soit considérée comme un seuil élevé vise à assurer proportionality, the benefits of that order restricting openness outweigh its negative effects.

[4] This appeal turns on whether concerns advanced by persons seeking an exception to the ordinarily open court file in probate proceedings — the concerns for privacy of the affected individuals and their physical safety — amount to important public interests that are at such serious risk that the files should be sealed. The parties to this appeal agree that physical safety is an important public interest that could justify a sealing order but disagree as to whether that interest would be at serious risk, in the circumstances of this case, should the files be unsealed. They further disagree whether privacy is in itself an important interest that could justify a sealing order. The appellants say that privacy is a public interest of sufficient import that can justify limits on openness, especially in light of the threats individuals face as technology facilitates widespread dissemination of personally sensitive information. They argue that the Court of Appeal was mistaken to say that personal concerns for privacy, without more, lack the public interest component that is properly the subject-matter of a sealing order.

[5] This Court has, in different settings, consistently championed privacy as a fundamental consideration in a free society. Pointing to cases decided in other contexts, the appellants contend that privacy should be recognized here as a public interest that, on the facts of this case, substantiates their plea for orders sealing the probate files. The respondents resist, le maintien de la forte présomption de publicité des débats judiciaires. En outre, la protection accordée à la publicité des débats ne s'arrête pas là. Le demandeur doit encore démontrer que l'ordonnance est nécessaire pour écarter le risque et que, du point de vue de la proportionnalité, les avantages de cette ordonnance restreignant la publicité l'emportent sur ses effets négatifs.

[4] Le présent pourvoi porte sur la question de savoir si les préoccupations soulevées par les personnes qui demandent qu'une exception soit faite à la publicité habituelle des dossiers judiciaires dans le cadre de procédures d'homologation successorale — à savoir les préoccupations concernant la vie privée et la sécurité physique des personnes touchées — constituent des intérêts publics importants qui sont à ce point sérieusement menacés que les dossiers devraient être mis sous scellés. Les parties au présent pourvoi conviennent que la sécurité physique constitue un intérêt public important qui pourrait justifier une ordonnance de mise sous scellés, mais elles ne s'entendent pas sur la question de savoir si cet intérêt serait sérieusement menacé, dans les circonstances de l'espèce, advenant la levée des scellés. Elles sont également en désaccord sur la question de savoir si la vie privée constitue en elle-même un intérêt important qui pourrait justifier une ordonnance de mise sous scellés. Les appelants affirment que la vie privée est un intérêt public suffisamment important pouvant justifier l'imposition de limites à la publicité des débats judiciaires, plus particulièrement à la lumière des menaces auxquelles les gens sont exposés dans un contexte où la technologie facilite la diffusion à grande échelle de renseignements personnels sensibles. Ils font valoir que la Cour d'appel a eu tort d'affirmer que les préoccupations personnelles en matière de vie privée, à elles seules, ne comportent pas l'élément d'intérêt public qui relève à juste titre d'une ordonnance de mise sous scellés.

[5] Notre Cour a, dans différents contextes, défendu de manière constante la vie privée en tant que considération fondamentale d'une société libre. Invoquant des arrêts rendus dans d'autres contextes, les appelants soutiennent que la vie privée devrait être reconnue en l'espèce comme un intérêt public qui, au vu des faits de la présente affaire, étaye leur recalling that privacy has generally been seen as a poor justification for an exception to openness. After all, they say, virtually every court proceeding entails some disquiet for the lives of those concerned and these intrusions on privacy must be tolerated because open courts are essential to a healthy democracy.

[6] This appeal offers, then, an occasion to decide whether privacy can amount to a public interest in the open court jurisprudence and, if so, whether openness puts privacy at serious risk here so as to justify the kind of orders sought by the appellants.

[7] For the reasons that follow, I propose to recognize an aspect of privacy as an important public interest for the purposes of the relevant test from Sierra Club of Canada v. Canada (Minister of Finance), 2002 SCC 41, [2002] 2 S.C.R. 522. Proceedings in open court can lead to the dissemination of highly sensitive personal information that would result not just in discomfort or embarrassment, but in an affront to the affected person's dignity. Where this narrower dimension of privacy, rooted in what I see as the public interest in protecting human dignity, is shown to be at serious risk, an exception to the open court principle may be justified.

[8] In this case, and with this interest in mind, it cannot be said that the risk to privacy is sufficiently serious to overcome the strong presumption of openness. The same is true of the risk to physical safety here. The Court of Appeal was right in the circumstances to set aside the sealing orders and I would therefore dismiss the appeal.

plaidoyer en faveur du prononcé d'ordonnances de mise sous scellés des dossiers d'homologation. Les intimés s'opposent à ce que de telles ordonnances soient rendues, rappelant que la protection de la vie privée est généralement considérée comme une faible justification à une exception à la publicité des débats. Ils affirment qu'après tout, presque chaque procédure judiciaire entraîne un certain dérangement dans la vie des personnes concernées et que ces atteintes à la vie privée doivent être tolérées parce que la publicité des débats judiciaires est essentielle à une saine démocratie.

[8] Dans la présente affaire, et en gardant cet intérêt à l'esprit, on ne peut pas dire que le risque pour la vie privée est suffisamment sérieux pour permettre de réfuter la forte présomption de publicité des débats judiciaires. Il en est de même du risque pour la sécurité physique en l'espèce. Dans les circonstances, la Cour d'appel a eu raison d'annuler les ordonnances de mise sous scellés et je suis donc d'avis de rejeter le pourvoi.

II. Background

[9] Prominent in business and philanthropic circles, Bernard Sherman and Honey Sherman were found dead in their Toronto home in December of 2017. Their deaths had no apparent explanation and generated intense public interest and press scrutiny. In January of the following year, the Toronto Police Service announced that the deaths were being investigated as homicides. As the present matter came before the courts, the identity and motive of those responsible remained unknown.

[10] The couple's estates and estate trustees (collectively the "Trustees")¹ sought to stem the intense press scrutiny prompted by the events. The Trustees hoped to see to the orderly transfer of the couple's property, at arm's length from what they saw as the public's morbid interest in the unexplained deaths and the curiosity around apparently great sums of money involved.

[11] When the time came to obtain certificates of appointment of estate trustee from the Superior Court of Justice, the Trustees sought a sealing order so that the estate trustees and beneficiaries ("affected individuals") might be spared any further intrusions into their privacy and be protected from what was alleged to be a risk to their safety. The Trustees argued that if the information in the court files was revealed to the public, the safety of the affected individuals would be at risk and their privacy compromised as long as the deaths were unexplained and those responsible for the tragedy remained at large. In support of their request, they argued that there was a real and substantial risk that the affected individuals would suffer serious harm from the public exposure of the materials in the circumstances.

II. Contexte

[9] Bernard Sherman et Honey Sherman, figures importantes du monde des affaires et de la philanthropie, ont été retrouvés morts dans leur résidence de Toronto en décembre 2017. Leur décès apparemment inexpliqué a suscité un vif intérêt chez le public et une attention médiatique intense. En janvier de l'année suivante, le service de police de Toronto a annoncé que les décès faisaient l'objet d'une enquête pour homicides. Au moment où l'affaire a été portée devant les tribunaux, l'identité et le mobile des personnes responsables demeuraient inconnus.

[10] Les successions du couple et les fiduciaires des successions (collectivement les « fiduciaires »)¹ ont cherché à réfréner l'attention médiatique intense provoquée par les événements. Les fiduciaires souhaitaient veiller au transfert harmonieux des biens du couple, à distance de ce qu'ils percevaient comme un intérêt morbide du public pour les décès inexpliqués et la curiosité suscitée par les importantes sommes d'argent apparemment en jeu.

[12] Initially granted, the sealing orders were challenged by Kevin Donovan, a journalist who had written a series of articles on the couple's deaths, and Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd., for which he wrote (collectively the "Toronto Star").² The Toronto Star said the orders violated its constitutional rights of freedom of expression and freedom of the press, as well as the attending principle that the workings of the courts should be open to the public as a means of guaranteeing the fair and transparent administration of justice.

III. Proceedings Below

A. Ontario Superior Court of Justice, 2018 ONSC 4706, 41 E.T.R. (4th) 126 (Dunphy J.)

[13] In addressing whether the circumstances warranted interference with the open court principle, the application judge relied on this Court's judgment in Sierra Club. He noted that a confidentiality order should only be granted when: "(1) such an order is necessary . . . to prevent a serious risk to an important interest because reasonable alternative measures will not prevent the risk; and (2) the salutary effects of the confidentiality order outweigh its deleterious effects, including the effects on the right to free expression and the public interest in open and accessible court proceedings" (para. 13(d)).

[14] The application judge considered whether the Trustees' interests would be served by granting the sealing orders. In his view, the Trustees had correctly identified two legitimate interests in support of making an exception to the open court principle: "protecting the privacy and dignity of victims of crime and their loved ones" and "a reasonable apprehension

² The use of "Toronto Star" as a collective term referring to both respondents should not be taken to suggest that only Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd. is participating in this appeal. Mr. Donovan is the only respondent to have been a party throughout. Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd. was a party in first instance, but was removed as a party on consent at the Court of Appeal. By order of Karakatsanis J. dated March 25, 2020, Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd. was added as a respondent in this Court.

[12] Les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ont au départ été accordées, puis ont été contestées par Kevin Donovan, un journaliste qui avait rédigé une série d'articles sur le décès du couple, ainsi que par Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd., le journal pour lequel il écrivait (collectivement le « Toronto Star »)². Le Toronto Star a affirmé que les ordonnances portaient atteinte à ses droits constitutionnels à la liberté d'expression et à la liberté de la presse, ainsi qu'au principe corollaire selon lequel les activités des tribunaux devraient être accessibles au public comme moyen de garantir l'équité et la transparence de l'administration de la justice.

III. Historique judiciaire

A. Cour supérieure de justice de l'Ontario, 2018 ONSC 4706, 41 E.T.R. (4th) 126 (le juge Dunphy)

[13] Examinant la question de savoir si les circonstances justifiaient une atteinte au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, le juge de première instance s'est appuyé sur l'arrêt Sierra Club de notre Cour. Il a souligné qu'une ordonnance de confidentialité ne devrait être accordée que si [TRADUCTION] : « (1) elle est nécessaire [. . .] pour écarter un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important en l'absence d'autres options raisonnables pour écarter ce risque, et (2) ses effets bénéfiques l'emportent sur ses effets préjudiciables, y compris ses effets sur la liberté d'expression et l'intérêt du public à la publicité des débats judiciaires » (par. 13(d)).

of risk on behalf of those known to have an interest in receiving or administering the assets of the deceased” (paras. 22-25). With respect to the first interest, the application judge found that “[t]he degree of intrusion on that privacy and dignity has already been extreme and . . . excruciating” (para. 23). For the second interest, although he noted that “it would have been preferable to include objective evidence of the gravity of that risk from, for example, the police responsible for the investigation”, he concluded that “the lack of such evidence is not fatal” (para. 24). Rather, the necessary inferences could be drawn from the circumstances notably the “willingness of the perpetrator(s) of the crimes to resort to extreme violence to pursue whatever motive existed” (ibid.). He concluded that the “current uncertainty” was the source of a reasonable apprehension of the risk of harm and, further, that the foreseeable harm was “grave” (ibid.).

[15] The application judge ultimately accepted the Trustees’ submission that these interests “very strongly outweigh” what he called the proportionately narrow public interest in the “essentially administrative files” at issue (paras. 31 and 33). He therefore concluded that the harmful effects of the sealing orders were substantially outweighed by the salutary effects on the rights and interests of the affected individuals.

[16] Finally, the application judge considered what order would protect the affected individuals while infringing upon the open court principle to the minimum extent possible. He decided no meaningful part of either file could be disclosed if one were to make the redactions necessary to protect the interests he had identified. Open-ended sealing orders did not, however, sit well with him. The application judge therefore sealed the files for an initial period of two years, with the possibility of renewal.

protection de la vie privée et de la dignité des victimes d’actes criminels ainsi que de leurs êtres chers », et « une crainte raisonnable d’un risque de préjudice chez les personnes connues comme ayant un intérêt à recevoir ou à administrer les biens des défunts » (par. 22-25). S’agissant du premier intérêt, le juge de première instance a conclu que [TRADUCTION] « le degré d’atteinte à cette vie privée et à cette dignité est déjà extrême et [. . .] insoutenable » (par. 23). En ce qui a trait au deuxième intérêt, bien qu’il ait souligné qu’« il aurait été préférable d’inclure des éléments de preuve objectifs de la gravité de ce risque, obtenus, par exemple, auprès des policiers responsables de l’enquête », il a conclu que « l’absence de tels éléments de preuve n’est pas fatale » (par. 24). Les inférences nécessaires pouvaient plutôt être tirées des circonstances, notamment [TRADUCTION] « la volonté de la personne ou des personnes ayant perpétré les crimes de recourir à une violence extrême pour obéir à un mobile quelconque » (ibid.). Il a conclu que [TRADUCTION] « l’incertitude actuelle » était source d’une crainte raisonnable du risque de préjudice, et qu’en outre, le préjudice prévisible était « grave » (ibid.).

[16] Enfin, le juge de première instance a examiné la question de savoir quelle ordonnance protégerait les personnes touchées tout en portant le moins possible atteinte au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Il a décidé que, si l’on devait apporter aux deux dossiers le caviardage nécessaire à la protection des intérêts qu’il avait constatés, il n’en resterait plus aucun passage digne d’intérêt susceptible d’être divulgué. Des ordonnances de mise sous scellés d’une durée indéterminée ne lui semblaient toutefois pas une bonne solution. Le juge de première instance a donc fait placer sous scellés les dossiers pour une période initiale de deux ans, avec possibilité de renouvellement.

B. Court of Appeal for Ontario, 2019 ONCA 376, 47 E.T.R. (4th) 1 (Doherty, Rouleau and Hourigan J.J.A.)

[17] The Toronto Star’s appeal was allowed, unanimously, and the sealing orders were lifted.

[18] The Court of Appeal considered the two interests advanced before the application judge in support of the orders to seal the probate files. As to the need to protect the privacy and dignity of the victims of violent crime and their loved ones, it recalled that the kind of interest that is properly protected by a sealing order must have a public interest component. Citing Sierra Club, the Court of Appeal wrote that “[p]ersonal concerns cannot, without more, justify an order sealing material that would normally be available to the public under the open court principle” (para. 10). It concluded that the privacy interest for which the Trustees sought protection lacked this quality of public interest.

[19] While it recognized the personal safety of individuals as an important public interest generally, the Court of Appeal wrote that there was no evidence in this case that could warrant a finding that disclosure of the contents of the estate files posed a real risk to anyone’s physical safety. The application judge had erred on this point: “the suggestion that the beneficiaries and trustees are somehow at risk because the Shermans were murdered is not an inference, but is speculation. It provides no basis for a sealing order” (para. 16).

[20] The Court of Appeal concluded that the Trustees had failed the first stage of the test for obtaining orders sealing the probate files. It therefore allowed the appeal and set aside the orders.

B. Cour d’appel de l’Ontario, 2019 ONCA 376, 47 E.T.R. (4th) 1 (les juges Doherty, Rouleau et Hourigan)

[17] L’appel interjeté par le Toronto Star a été accueilli à l’unanimité et les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ont été levées.

[18] La Cour d’appel a examiné les deux intérêts qui avaient été soulevés devant le juge de première instance au soutien des ordonnances visant à mettre sous scellés les dossiers d’homologation. En ce qui concerne la nécessité de protéger la vie privée et la dignité des victimes de crimes violents et de leurs êtres chers, elle a rappelé que le type d’intérêt qui est à juste titre protégé par une ordonnance de mise sous scellés doit comporter un élément d’intérêt public. Citant l’arrêt Sierra Club, la Cour d’appel a écrit que [TRADUCTION] « [d]es préoccupations personnelles ne peuvent à elles seules justifier une ordonnance de mise sous scellés de documents qui seraient normalement accessibles au public en vertu du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires » (par. 10). Elle a conclu que l’intérêt en matière de vie privée à l’égard duquel les fiduciaires sollicitaient une protection ne comportait pas cette qualité d’intérêt public.

[19] Bien qu’elle ait reconnu que la sécurité personnelle des gens constituait, de manière générale, un intérêt public important, la Cour d’appel a écrit qu’il n’y avait aucun élément de preuve en l’espèce permettant de conclure que la divulgation du contenu des dossiers de succession posait un risque réel pour la sécurité physique de quiconque. Le juge de première instance avait commis une erreur sur ce point : [TRADUCTION] « l’idée selon laquelle les bénéficiaires et les fiduciaires sont en quelque sorte en danger parce que les Sherman ont été assassinés n’est pas une inférence, mais une conjecture. Elle ne justifie aucunement l’octroi d’une ordonnance de mise sous scellés » (par. 16).

C. Subsequent Proceedings

[21] The Court of Appeal's order setting aside the sealing orders has been stayed pending the disposition of this appeal. The Toronto Star brought a motion to adduce new evidence on this appeal, comprised of land titles documents, transcripts of the cross-examination of a detective on the murder investigation, and various news articles. This evidence, it says, supports the conclusion that the sealing orders should be lifted. The motion was referred to this panel.

IV. Submissions

[22] The Trustees have appealed to this Court seeking to restore the sealing orders made by the application judge. In addition to contesting the motion for new evidence, they maintain that the orders are necessary to prevent a serious risk to the privacy and physical safety of the affected individuals and that the salutary effects of sealing the court probate files outweigh the harmful effects of limiting court openness. The Trustees argue that two legal errors led the Court of Appeal to conclude otherwise.

[23] First, they submit the Court of Appeal erred in holding that privacy is a personal concern that cannot, without more, constitute an important interest under Sierra Club. The Trustees say the application judge was right to characterize privacy and dignity as an important public interest which, as it was subject to a serious risk, justified the orders. They ask this Court to recognize that privacy in itself is an important public interest for the purposes of the analysis.

[24] Second, the Trustees submit that the Court of Appeal erred in overturning the application judge's conclusion that there was a serious risk of physical

C. Procédures subséquentes

IV. Moyens

[22] Les fiduciaires ont interjeté appel devant notre Cour pour demander le rétablissement des ordonnances de mise sous scellés rendues par le juge de première instance. En plus de contester la requête en production de nouveaux éléments de preuve, ils soutiennent que les ordonnances sont nécessaires pour écarter un risque sérieux pour la vie privée et la sécurité physique des personnes touchées, et que les effets bénéfiques de la mise sous scellés des dossiers d'homologation judiciaire l'emportent sur les effets préjudiciables du fait de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires. Les fiduciaires soutiennent que deux erreurs de droit ont amené la Cour d'appel à conclure autrement.

[23] Premièrement, ils soutiennent que la Cour d'appel a conclu à tort que la vie privée est une préoccupation personnelle qui ne peut, à elle seule, constituer un intérêt important suivant l'arrêt Sierra Club. Les fiduciaires affirment que le juge de première instance a qualifié à bon droit la vie privée et la dignité comme un intérêt public important qui, étant exposé à un risque sérieux, justifiait les ordonnances. Ils demandent à notre Cour de reconnaître que la vie privée constitue en elle-même un intérêt public important pour les besoins de l'analyse.

[24] Deuxièmement, les fiduciaires avancent que la Cour d'appel a commis une erreur en infirmant la conclusion du juge de première instance selon harm. They argue that the Court of Appeal failed to recognize that courts have the ability to draw reasonable inferences by applying reason and logic even in the absence of specific evidence of the alleged risk.

[25] The Trustees say that these errors led the Court of Appeal to mistakenly set aside the sealing orders. In answer to questions at the hearing, the Trustees acknowledged that an order redacting certain documents in the file or a publication ban could assist in addressing some of their concerns, but maintained neither is a reasonable alternative to the sealing orders in the circumstances.

[26] The Trustees submit further that the protection of these interests outweighs the deleterious effects of the orders. They argue that the importance of the open court principle is attenuated by the nature of these probate proceedings. Given that it is non-contentious and not strictly speaking necessary for the transfer of property at death, probate is a court proceeding of an “administrative” character, which diminishes the imperative of applying the open court principle here (paras. 113-14).

[27] The Toronto Star takes the position that the Court of Appeal made no mistake in setting aside the sealing orders and that the appeal should be dismissed. In the Toronto Star’s view, while privacy can be an important interest where it evinces a public component, the Trustees have only identified a subjective desire for the affected individuals in this case to avoid further publicity, which is not inherently harmful. According to the Toronto Star and some of the interveners, the Trustees’ position would allow that measure of inconvenience and embarrassment that arises in every court proceeding to take precedence over the interest in court openness protected by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms in which all of society has a stake. The Toronto Star argues further that the information in the court files laquelle il y avait un risque sérieux de préjudice physique. Ils font valoir que la Cour d’appel n’a pas reconnu que les tribunaux sont habilités à tirer des inférences raisonnables sur le fondement de la raison et de la logique, même en l’absence d’éléments de preuve précis du risque allégué.

[27] Le Toronto Star soutient pour sa part que la Cour d’appel n’a commis aucune erreur en annulant les ordonnances de mise sous scellés et que l’appel devrait être rejeté. Selon le Toronto Star, bien que la vie privée puisse constituer un intérêt important quand elle révèle la présence d’un élément public, les fiduciaires ont seulement fait état d’un désir subjectif de la part des personnes touchées en l’espèce d’éviter toute publicité supplémentaire, laquelle n’est pas préjudiciable en soi. De l’avis du Toronto Star et de certains des intervenants, la position des fiduciaires reviendrait à permettre à cette part d’inconvénients et d’embarras propre à toute instance judiciaire à avoir préséance sur l’intérêt dans la publicité des débats judiciaires, un principe qui est garanti par la Charte canadienne des droits et libertés et dans is not highly sensitive. On the issue of whether the sealing orders were necessary to protect the affected individuals from physical harm, the Toronto Star submits that the Court of Appeal was right to conclude that the Trustees had failed to establish a serious risk to this interest.

[28] In the alternative, even if there were a serious risk to one or another important interest, the Toronto Star says the sealing orders are not necessary because the risk could be addressed by an alternative, less onerous order. Furthermore, it says the orders are not proportionate. In seeking to minimize the importance of openness in probate proceedings, the Trustees invite an inflexible approach to balancing the effects of the order that is incompatible with the principle that openness applies to all court proceedings. In any event, there is a public interest in openness specifically here, given that the certificates sought can affect the rights of third parties and that openness ensures the fairness of the proceedings, whether they are contested or not.

V. Analysis

[29] The outcome of the appeal turns on whether the application judge should have made the sealing orders pursuant to the test for discretionary limits on court openness from this Court's decision in Sierra Club.

[30] Court openness is protected by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of expression and is essential to the proper functioning of our democracy (Canadian Broadcasting Corp. v. New Brunswick (Attorney General), [1996] 3 S.C.R. 480, at para. 23; Vancouver Sun (Re), 2004 SCC 43, [2004] 2 S.C.R. 332, at paras. 23-26). Reporting on court proceedings by a free press is often said to be inseparable from the lequel toute la société a un intérêt. Le Toronto Star soutient également que les renseignements contenus dans les dossiers judiciaires ne sont pas de nature très sensible. En ce qui a trait à la question de savoir si les ordonnances de mise sous scellés étaient nécessaires pour protéger les personnes touchées d'un préjudice physique, le Toronto Star fait valoir que la Cour d'appel a eu raison de conclure que les fiduciaires n'avaient pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt.

[28] Subsidiairement, le Toronto Star affirme que, même s'il existe un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important quelconque, les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ne sont pas nécessaires, car le risque pourrait être écarté par une autre ordonnance moins sévère. De plus, il soutient que les ordonnances ne sont pas proportionnées. En cherchant à minimiser l'importance de la publicité des débats judiciaires dans les procédures d'homologation, les fiduciaires invitent à adopter, à l'égard de la pondération des effets de l'ordonnance, une approche inflexible, incompatible avec le principe de la publicité qui s'applique à toutes les procédures judiciaires. Quoi qu'il en soit, il existe précisément un intérêt public à l'égard de la publicité des débats dans la présente affaire, étant donné que les certificats demandés peuvent avoir une incidence sur les droits de tiers et que la publicité des débats garantit l'équité des procédures, qu'elles soient contestées ou non.

V. Analyse

[29] L'issue du pourvoi dépend de la question de savoir si le juge de première instance aurait dû rendre les ordonnances de mise sous scellés conformément au test applicable en matière de limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires, test établi par notre Cour dans l'arrêt Sierra Club.

[30] La publicité des débats judiciaires, qui est protégée par la garantie constitutionnelle de la liberté d'expression, est essentielle au bon fonctionnement de notre démocratie (Société Radio-Canada c. Nouveau-Brunswick (Procureur général), [1996] 3 R.C.S. 480, par. 23; Vancouver Sun (Re), 2004 CSC 43, [2004] 2 R.C.S. 332, par. 23-26). On dit souvent de la liberté de la presse de rendre compte principle of open justice. “In reporting what has been said and done at a public trial, the media serve as the eyes and ears of a wider public which would be absolutely entitled to attend but for purely practical reasons cannot do so” (Khuja v. Times Newspapers Ltd., [2017] UKSC 49, [2019] A.C. 161, at para. 16, citing Edmonton Journal v. Alberta (Attorney General), [1989] 2 S.C.R. 1326, at pp. 1339-40, per Cory J.). Limits on openness in service of other public interests have been recognized, but sparingly and always with an eye to preserving a strong presumption that justice should proceed in public view (Dagenais v. Canadian Broadcasting Corp., [1994] 3 S.C.R. 835, at p. 878; R. v. Mentuck, 2001 SCC 76, [2001] 3 S.C.R. 442, at paras. 32-39; Sierra Club, at para. 56). The test for discretionary limits on court openness is directed at maintaining this presumption while offering sufficient flexibility for courts to protect these other public interests where they arise (Mentuck, at para. 33). The parties agree that this is the appropriate framework of analysis for resolving this appeal.

[31] The parties and the courts below disagree, however, about how this test applies to the facts of this case and this calls for clarification of certain points of the Sierra Club analysis. Most centrally, there is disagreement about how an important interest in the protection of privacy could be recognized such that it would justify limits on openness, and in particular when privacy can be a matter of public concern. The parties bring two settled principles of this Court’s jurisprudence to bear in support of their respective positions. First, this Court has often observed that privacy is a fundamental value necessary to the preservation of a free and democratic society (Lavigne v. Canada (Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages), 2002 SCC 53, [2002] 2 S.C.R. 773, at para. 25; Dagg v. Canada (Minister of Finance), [1997] 2 S.C.R. 403, at paras. 65-66, per La Forest J. (dissenting but not on this point); New Brunswick, at para. 40). Courts have invoked privacy, in some instances, as the basis for an exception to openness under the Sierra des procédures judiciaires qu’elle est indissociable du principe de publicité. [TRADUCTION] « En rendant compte de ce qui a été dit et fait dans un procès public, les médias sont les yeux et les oreilles d’un public plus large qui aurait parfaitement le droit d’y assister, mais qui, pour des raisons purement pratiques, ne peut le faire » (Khuja c. Times Newspapers Ltd., [2017] UKSC 49, [2019] A.C. 161, par. 16, citant Edmonton Journal c. Alberta (Procureur général), [1989] 2 R.C.S. 1326, p. 1339-1340, le juge Cory). Le pouvoir d’imposer des limites à la publicité des débats judiciaires afin de servir d’autres intérêts publics est reconnu, mais il doit être exercé avec modération et en veillant toujours à maintenir la forte présomption selon laquelle la justice doit être rendue au vu et au su du public (Dagenais c. Société Radio-Canada, [1994] 3 R.C.S. 835, p. 878; R. c. Mentuck, 2001 CSC 76, [2001] 3 R.C.S. 442, par. 32-39; Sierra Club, par. 56). Le test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires vise à maintenir cette présomption tout en offrant suffisamment de souplesse aux tribunaux pour leur permettre de protéger ces autres intérêts publics lorsqu’ils entrent en jeu (Mentuck, par. 33). Les parties conviennent qu’il s’agit du cadre d’analyse approprié à appliquer pour trancher le présent pourvoi.

[31] Les parties et les tribunaux d’instance inférieure ne s’entendent pas, cependant, sur la façon dont ce test s’applique aux faits de la présente affaire et cela nécessite des éclaircissements sur certains points de l’analyse établie dans l’arrêt Sierra Club. Plus fondamentalement, il y a désaccord sur la façon dont un intérêt important à la protection de la vie privée pourrait être reconnu de telle sorte qu’il justifierait des limites à la publicité des débats, et en particulier lorsque la vie privée peut constituer une question d’intérêt public. Les parties font valoir deux principes établis dans la jurisprudence de la Cour à l’appui de leur position respective. Tout d’abord, notre Cour a souvent fait observer que la vie privée est une valeur fondamentale nécessaire au maintien d’une société libre et démocratique (Lavigne c. Canada (Commissariat aux langues officielles), 2002 CSC 53, [2002] 2 R.C.S. 773, par. 25; Dagg c. Canada (Ministre des Finances), [1997] 2 R.C.S. 403, par. 65-66, le juge La Forest (dissident, mais non sur ce point); Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 40).

Club test (see, e.g., R. v. Henry, 2009 BCCA 86, 270 B.C.A.C. 5, at paras. 11 and 17). At the same time, the jurisprudence acknowledges that some degree of privacy loss — resulting in inconvenience, even in upset or embarrassment — is inherent in any court proceeding open to the public (New Brunswick, at para. 40). Accordingly, upholding the presumption of openness has meant recognizing that neither individual sensibilities nor mere personal discomfort associated with participating in judicial proceedings are likely to justify the exclusion of the public from court (Attorney General of Nova Scotia v. MacIntyre, [1982] 1 S.C.R. 175, at p. 185; New Brunswick, at para. 41). Determining the role of privacy in the Sierra Club analysis requires reconciling these two ideas, which is the nub of the disagreement between the parties. The right of privacy is not absolute; the open court principle is not without exceptions.

[32] For the reasons that follow, I disagree with the Trustees that the ostensibly unbounded privacy interest they invoke qualifies as an important public interest within the meaning of Sierra Club. Their broad claim fails to focus on the elements of privacy that are deserving of public protection in the open court context. That is not to say, however, that privacy can never ground an exceptional measure such as the sealing orders sought in this case. While the mere embarrassment caused by the dissemination of personal information through the open court process does not rise to the level justifying a limit on court openness, circumstances do exist where an aspect of a person's private life has a plain public interest dimension.

[33] Personal information disseminated in open court can be more than a source of discomfort and may result in an affront to a person's dignity. Insofar as privacy serves to protect individuals from this

Dans certains cas, les tribunaux ont invoqué la vie privée pour justifier l'application d'une exception à la publicité des débats judiciaires conformément au test établi dans Sierra Club (voir, p. ex., R. c. Henry, 2009 BCCA 86, 270 B.C.A.C. 5, par. 11 et 17). En même temps, la jurisprudence reconnaît qu'un certain degré d'atteinte à la vie privée — qui entraîne des inconvénients, voire de la contrariété ou de l'embarras — est inhérent à toute instance judiciaire accessible au public (Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 40). Par conséquent, le maintien de la présomption de la publicité des débats judiciaires signifie reconnaître que ni la susceptibilité individuelle ni le simple désagrément personnel découlant de la participation à des procédures judiciaires ne sont susceptibles de justifier l'exclusion du public des tribunaux (Procureur général de la Nouvelle-Écosse c. MacIntyre, [1982] 1 R.C.S. 175, p. 185; Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 41). Déterminer le rôle de la vie privée dans le cadre de l'analyse prévue dans l'arrêt Sierra Club exige de concilier ces deux idées, et c'est là le nœud du désaccord entre les parties. Le droit à vie privée n'est pas absolu et le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires n'est pas sans exception.

[33] La diffusion de renseignements personnels dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics peut être plus qu'une source de désagrément et peut aussi entraîner une atteinte à la dignité d'une personne.

affront, it is an important public interest relevant under Sierra Club. Dignity in this sense is a related but narrower concern than privacy generally; it transcends the interests of the individual and, like other important public interests, is a matter that concerns the society at large. A court can make an exception to the open court principle, notwithstanding the strong presumption in its favour, if the interest in protecting core aspects of individuals' personal lives that bear on their dignity is at serious risk by reason of the dissemination of sufficiently sensitive information. The question is not whether the information is "personal" to the individual concerned, but whether, because of its highly sensitive character, its dissemination would occasion an affront to their dignity that society as a whole has a stake in protecting.

[34] This public interest in privacy appropriately focuses the analysis on the impact of the dissemination of sensitive personal information, rather than the mere fact of this dissemination, which is frequently risked in court proceedings and is necessary in a system that privileges court openness. It is a high bar — higher and more precise than the sweeping privacy interest relied upon here by the Trustees. This public interest will only be seriously at risk where the information in question strikes at what is sometimes said to be the core identity of the individual concerned: information so sensitive that its dissemination could be an affront to dignity that the public would not tolerate, even in service of open proceedings.

[35] I hasten to say that applicants for an order making exception to the open court principle cannot content themselves with an unsubstantiated claim that this public interest in dignity is compromised any more than they could by an unsubstantiated claim that their physical integrity is endangered. Under Sierra Club, the applicant must show on the facts of the case that, as an important interest, this

Dans la mesure où elle sert à protéger les personnes contre une telle atteinte, la vie privée constitue un intérêt public important qui est pertinent selon Sierra Club. La dignité en ce sens est une préoccupation connexe à la vie privée en général, mais elle est plus restreinte que celle-ci; elle transcende les intérêts individuels et, comme d'autres intérêts publics importants, c'est une question qui concerne la société en général. Un tribunal peut faire une exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, malgré la forte présomption en faveur de son application, si l'intérêt à protéger les aspects fondamentaux de la vie personnelle des individus qui se rapportent à leur dignité est sérieusement menacé par la diffusion de renseignements suffisamment sensibles. La question est de savoir non pas si les renseignements sont « personnels » pour la personne concernée, mais si, en raison de leur caractère très sensible, leur diffusion entraînerait une atteinte à sa dignité que la société dans son ensemble a intérêt à protéger.

[34] Cet intérêt du public à l'égard de la vie privée axe à juste titre l'analyse sur l'incidence de la diffusion de renseignements personnels sensibles, plutôt que sur le simple fait de cette diffusion, intérêt qui est fréquemment menacé dans les procédures judiciaires et qui est nécessaire dans un système qui privilégie la publicité des débats judiciaires. Il s'agit d'un seuil élevé — plus élevé et plus précis que le vaste intérêt en matière de vie privée invoqué en l'espèce par les fiduciaires. Cet intérêt public ne sera sérieusement menacé que lorsque les renseignements en question portent atteinte à ce que l'on considère parfois comme l'identité fondamentale de la personne concernée : des renseignements si sensibles que leur diffusion pourrait porter atteinte à la dignité de la personne d'une manière que le public ne tolérerait pas, pas même au nom du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires.

[35] Je m'empresse de dire que la personne qui demande une ordonnance visant à faire exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires ne peut se contenter d'affirmer sans fondement que cet intérêt du public à l'égard de la dignité est compromis, pas plus qu'elle ne le pourrait si c'était son intégrité physique qui était menacée. Selon Sierra Club, le demandeur doit démontrer, au vu des faits de l'affaire, dignity dimension of their privacy is at “serious risk”. For the purposes of the test for discretionary limits on court openness, this requires the applicant to show that the information in the court file is sufficiently sensitive such that it can be said to strike at the biographical core of the individual and, in the broader circumstances, that there is a serious risk that, without an exceptional order, the affected individual will suffer an affront to their dignity.

[36] In the present case, the information in the court files was not of this highly sensitive character that it could be said to strike at the core identity of the affected persons; the Trustees have failed to show how the lifting of the sealing orders engages the dignity of the affected individuals. I am therefore not convinced that the intrusion on their privacy raises a serious risk to an important public interest as required by Sierra Club. Moreover, as I shall endeavour to explain, there was no serious risk of physical harm to the affected individuals by lifting the sealing orders. Accordingly, this is not an appropriate case in which to make sealing orders, or any order limiting access to these court files. In the circumstances, the admissibility of the Toronto Star’s new evidence is moot. I propose to dismiss the appeal.

A. The Test for Discretionary Limits on Court Openness

[37] Court proceedings are presumptively open to the public (MacIntyre, at p. 189; A.B. v. Bragg Communications Inc., 2012 SCC 46, [2012] 2 S.C.R. 567, at para. 11).

[38] The test for discretionary limits on presumptive court openness has been expressed as a two-step inquiry involving the necessity and proportionality of the proposed order (Sierra Club, at para. 53). Upon examination, however, this test rests upon three core prerequisites that a person seeking such a limit must show. Recasting the test around these three qu’il y a un « risque sérieux » pour cette dimension de sa vie privée liée à sa dignité. Pour l’application du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaire, le demandeur doit donc démontrer que les renseignements contenus dans le dossier judiciaire sont suffisamment sensibles pour que l’on puisse dire qu’ils touchent au cœur même des renseignements biographiques de la personne et, dans un contexte plus large, qu’il existe un risque sérieux d’atteinte à la dignité de la personne concernée si une ordonnance exceptionnelle n’est pas rendue.

[37] Les procédures judiciaires sont présumées accessibles au public (MacIntyre, p. 189; A.B. c. Bragg Communications Inc., 2012 CSC 46, [2012] 2 R.C.S. 567, par. 11).

[38] Le test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité présumée des débats judiciaires a été décrit comme une analyse en deux étapes, soit l’étape de la nécessité et celle de la proportionnalité de l’ordonnance proposée (Sierra Club, par. 53). Après un examen, cependant, je constate que ce test repose sur trois conditions préalables fondamentales dont une prerequisites, without altering its essence, helps to clarify the burden on an applicant seeking an exception to the open court principle. In order to succeed, the person asking a court to exercise discretion in a way that limits the open court presumption must establish that:

- (1) court openness poses a serious risk to an important public interest;
- (2) the order sought is necessary to prevent this serious risk to the identified interest because reasonably alternative measures will not prevent this risk; and,
- (3) as a matter of proportionality, the benefits of the order outweigh its negative effects.

Only where all three of these prerequisites have been met can a discretionary limit on openness — for example, a sealing order, a publication ban, an order excluding the public from a hearing, or a redaction order — properly be ordered. This test applies to all discretionary limits on court openness, subject only to valid legislative enactments (Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd. v. Ontario, 2005 SCC 41, [2005] 2 S.C.R. 188, at paras. 7 and 22).

[39] The discretion is structured and controlled in this way to protect the open court principle, which is understood to be constitutionalized under the right to freedom of expression at s. 2(b) of the Charter (New Brunswick, at para. 23). Sustained by freedom of expression, the open court principle is one of the foundations of a free press given that access to courts is fundamental to newsgathering. This Court has often highlighted the importance of open judicial proceedings to maintaining the independence and impartiality of the courts, public confidence and understanding of their work and ultimately the legitimacy of the process (see, e.g., Vancouver Sun, personne cherchant à faire établir une telle limite doit démontrer le respect. La reformulation du test autour de ces trois conditions préalables, sans en modifier l'essence, aide à clarifier le fardeau auquel doit satisfaire la personne qui sollicite une exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Pour obtenir gain de cause, la personne qui demande au tribunal d'exercer son pouvoir discrétionnaire de façon à limiter la présomption de publicité doit établir que :

- (1) la publicité des débats judiciaires pose un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important;
- (2) l'ordonnance sollicitée est nécessaire pour écarter ce risque sérieux pour l'intérêt mis en évidence, car d'autres mesures raisonnables ne permettront pas d'écarter ce risque; et
- (3) du point de vue de la proportionnalité, les avantages de l'ordonnance l'emportent sur ses effets négatifs.

Ce n'est que lorsque ces trois conditions préalables sont remplies qu'une ordonnance discrétionnaire ayant pour effet de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires — par exemple une ordonnance de mise sous scellés, une interdiction de publication, une ordonnance excluant le public d'une audience ou une ordonnance de caviardage — pourra dûment être rendue. Ce test s'applique à toutes les limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires, sous réserve uniquement d'une loi valide (Toronto Star Newspapers Ltd. c. Ontario, 2005 CSC 41, [2005] 2 R.C.S. 188, par. 7 et 22).

[39] Le pouvoir discrétionnaire est ainsi structuré et contrôlé de manière à protéger le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, qui est considéré comme étant constitutionnalisé sous le régime du droit à la liberté d'expression garanti par l'al. 2b) de la Charte (Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 23). Reposant sur la liberté d'expression, le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires est l'un des fondements de la liberté de la presse étant donné que l'accès aux tribunaux est un élément essentiel de la collecte d'information. Notre Cour a souvent souligné l'importance de la publicité pour maintenir l'indépendance et l'impartialité des tribunaux, la confiance du at paras. 23-26). In New Brunswick, La Forest J. explained the presumption in favour of court openness had become “one of the hallmarks of a democratic society” (citing Re Southam Inc. and The Queen (No.1) (1983), 41 O.R. (2d) 113 (C.A.), at p. 119), that “acts as a guarantee that justice is administered in a non-arbitrary manner, according to the rule of law . . . thereby fostering public confidence in the integrity of the court system and understanding of the administration of justice” (para. 22). The centrality of this principle to the court system underlies the strong presumption — albeit one that is rebuttable — in favour of court openness (para. 40; Mentuck, at para. 39).

[40] The test ensures that discretionary orders are subject to no lower standard than a legislative enactment limiting court openness would be (Mentuck, at para. 27; Sierra Club, at para. 45). To that end, this Court developed a scheme of analysis by analogy to the Oakes test, which courts use to understand whether a legislative limit on a right guaranteed under the Charter is reasonable and demonstrably justified in a free and democratic society (Sierra Club, at para. 40, citing R. v. Oakes, [1986] 1 S.C.R. 103; see also Dagenais, at p. 878; Vancouver Sun, at para. 30).

[41] The recognized scope of what interests might justify a discretionary exception to open courts has broadened over time. In Dagenais, Lamer C.J. spoke of a requisite risk to the “fairness of the trial” (p. 878). In Mentuck, Iacobucci J. extended this to a risk affecting the “proper administration of justice” (para. 32). Finally, in Sierra Club, Iacobucci J., again writing for a unanimous Court, restated the test to capture any serious risk to an “important interest, including a commercial interest, in the context of litigation” (para. 53). He simultaneously clarified that the important interest must be expressed as a public interest. For example, on the facts of that public à l’égard de leur travail et sa compréhension de celui-ci, et, au bout du compte, la légitimité du processus (voir, p. ex., Vancouver Sun, par. 23-26). Dans l’arrêt Nouveau-Brunswick, le juge La Forest a expliqué que la présomption en faveur de la publicité des débats judiciaires était devenue « [TRADUCTION] “l’une des caractéristiques d’une société démocratique” » (citant Re Southam Inc. and The Queen (No.1) (1983), 41 O.R. (2d) 113 (C.A.), p. 119), qui « fait en sorte que la justice est administrée de manière non arbitraire, conformément à la primauté du droit [. . .], situation qui favorise la confiance du public dans la probité du système judiciaire et la compréhension de l’administration de la justice » (par. 22). Le caractère fondamental de ce principe pour le système judiciaire sous-tend la forte présomption — quoique réfutable — en faveur de la tenue de procédures judiciaires publiques (par. 40; Mentuck, par. 39).

[40] Le test fait en sorte que les ordonnances discrétionnaires ne soient pas assujetties à une norme moins exigeante que la norme à laquelle seraient assujetties des dispositions législatives qui limiteraient la publicité des débats judiciaires (Mentuck, par. 27; Sierra Club, par. 45). À cette fin, la Cour a élaboré un cadre d’analyse par analogie avec le test de l’arrêt Oakes, que les tribunaux utilisent pour déterminer si une limite imposée par un texte de loi à un droit garanti par la Charte est raisonnable et si sa justification peut se démontrer dans le cadre d’une société libre et démocratique (Sierra Club, par. 40, citant R. c. Oakes, [1986] 1 R.C.S. 103; voir également Dagenais, p. 878; Vancouver Sun, par. 30).

[41] La portée reconnue des intérêts qui pourraient justifier une exception discrétionnaire à la publicité des débats judiciaires s’est élargie au fil du temps. Dans l’arrêt Dagenais, le juge en chef Lamer a parlé de la nécessité d’un risque « que le procès soit inéquitable » (p. 878). Dans Mentuck, le juge Iacobucci a étendu cette condition à un risque « pour la bonne administration de la justice » (par. 32). Enfin, dans Sierra Club, le juge Iacobucci, s’exprimant encore une fois au nom de la Cour à l’unanimité, a reformulé le test de manière à englober tout risque sérieux pour un « intérêt important, y compris un intérêt commercial, dans le contexte d’un litige » (par. 53). Il a en case, a harm to a particular business interest would not have been sufficient, but the “general commercial interest of preserving confidential information” was an important interest because of its public character (para. 55). This is consistent with the fact that this test was developed in reference to the Oakes jurisprudence that focuses on the “pressing and substantial” objective of legislation of general application (Oakes, at pp. 138-39; see also Mentuck, at para. 31). The term “important interest” therefore captures a broad array of public objectives.

même temps précisé que l’intérêt important doit être exprimé en tant qu’intérêt public. Par exemple, à la lumière des faits de cette affaire, le préjudice causé à un intérêt commercial particulier n’aurait pas été suffisant, mais « l’intérêt commercial général dans la protection des renseignements confidentiels » constituait un intérêt important en raison de son caractère public (par. 55). Cette conclusion est compatible avec le fait que ce test a été élaboré à l’égard de la jurisprudence relative à l’arrêt Oakes, laquelle met l’accent sur l’objectif « urgen[t] et rée[l] » d’un texte de loi d’application générale (Oakes, p. 138-139; voir également Mentuck, par. 31). L’expression « intérêt important » vise donc un large éventail d’objectifs d’intérêt public.

[42] While there is no closed list of important public interests for the purposes of this test, I share Iacobucci J.’s sense, explained in Sierra Club, that courts must be “cautious” and “alive to the fundamental importance of the open court rule” even at the earliest stage when they are identifying important public interests (para. 56). Determining what is an important public interest can be done in the abstract at the level of general principles that extend beyond the parties to the particular dispute (para. 55). By contrast, whether that interest is at “serious risk” is a fact-based finding that, for the judge considering the appropriateness of an order, is necessarily made in context. In this sense, the identification of, on the one hand, an important interest and, on the other, the seriousness of the risk to that interest are, theoretically at least, separate and qualitatively distinct operations. An order may therefore be refused simply because a valid important public interest is not at serious risk on the facts of a given case or, conversely, that the identified interests, regardless of whether they are at serious risk, do not have the requisite important public character as a matter of general principle.

[42] Bien qu’il n’y ait aucune liste exhaustive des intérêts publics importants pour l’application de ce test, je partage l’opinion du juge Iacobucci, exprimée dans Sierra Club, selon laquelle les tribunaux doivent faire preuve de « prudence » et « avoir pleinement conscience de l’importance fondamentale de la règle de la publicité des débats judiciaires », même à la toute première étape lorsqu’ils constatent les intérêts publics importants (par. 56). Déterminer ce qu’est un intérêt public important peut se faire dans l’abstrait sur le plan des principes généraux qui vont au-delà des parties à un litige donné (par. 55). En revanche, la conclusion sur la question de savoir si un « risque sérieux » menace cet intérêt est une conclusion factuelle qui, pour le juge qui examine le caractère approprié d’une ordonnance, est nécessairement prise eu égard au contexte. En ce sens, le fait de constater, d’une part, un intérêt important et celui de constater, d’autre part, le caractère sérieux du risque auquel cet intérêt est exposé sont, en théorie du moins, des opérations séparées et qualitativement distinctes. Une ordonnance peut donc être refusée du simple fait qu’un intérêt public important valide n’est pas sérieusement menacé au vu des faits de l’affaire ou, à l’inverse, parce que les intérêts constatés, qu’ils soient ou non sérieusement menacés, ne présentent pas le caractère public important requis sur le plan des principes généraux.

[43] The test laid out in Sierra Club continues to be an appropriate guide for judicial discretion in cases like this one. The breadth of the category of “important interest” transcends the interests of the parties to the dispute and provides significant flexibility to address harm to fundamental values in our society that unqualified openness could cause (see, e.g., P. M. Perell and J. W. Morden, The Law of Civil Procedure in Ontario (4th ed. 2020), at para. 3.185; J. Bailey and J. Burkell, “Revisiting the Open Court Principle in an Era of Online Publication: Questioning Presumptive Public Access to Parties’ and Witnesses’ Personal Information” (2016), 48 Ottawa L. Rev. 143, at pp. 154-55). At the same time, however, the requirement that a serious risk to an important interest be demonstrated imposes a meaningful threshold necessary to maintain the presumption of openness. Were it merely a matter of weighing the benefits of the limit on court openness against its negative effects, decision-makers confronted with concrete impacts on the individuals appearing before them may struggle to put adequate weight on the less immediate negative effects on the open court principle. Such balancing could be evasive of effective appellate review. To my mind, the structure provided by Dagenais, Mentuck, and Sierra Club remains appropriate and should be affirmed.

[43] Le test énoncé dans Sierra Club continue d’être un guide approprié en ce qui a trait à l’exercice du pouvoir discrétionnaire des tribunaux dans des

[44] Finally, I recall that the open court principle is engaged by all judicial proceedings, whatever their nature (MacIntyre at pp. 185-86; Vancouver Sun, at para. 31). To the extent the Trustees suggested, in their arguments about the negative effects of the sealing orders, that probate in Ontario does not engage the open court principle or that the openness of these proceedings has no public value, I disagree. The certificates the Trustees sought from the court are issued under the seal of that court, thereby bearing the imprimatur of the court’s authority. The court’s decision, even if rendered in a non-contentious setting, will have an impact on third parties, for example by establishing the testamentary paper that constitutes a valid will (see Otis v. Otis (2004), 7 E.T.R. (3d) 221 (Ont. S.C.), at paras. 23-24). Contrary to what the Trustees argue, the matters in a probate file are not quintessentially private or fundamentally administrative. Obtaining a certificate of appointment of affaires comme en l’espèce. L’étendue de la catégorie d’« intérêt important » transcende les intérêts des parties au litige et offre une grande souplesse pour remédier à l’atteinte aux valeurs fondamentales de notre société qu’une publicité absolue des procédures judiciaires pourrait causer (voir, p. ex., P. M. Perell et J. W. Morden, The Law of Civil Procedure in Ontario (4^e éd. 2020), par. 3.185; J. Bailey et J. Burkell, « Revisiting the Open Court Principle in an Era of Online Publication : Questioning Presumptive Public Access to Parties’ and Witnesses’ Personal Information » (2016), 48 R.D. Ottawa 143, p. 154-155). Parallèlement, cependant, l’obligation de démontrer l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important établit un seuil valable nécessaire au maintien de la présomption de publicité des débats. S’ils devaient tout simplement mettre en balance les avantages et les effets négatifs de l’imposition d’une limite à la publicité des débats judiciaires, les décideurs appelés à examiner les incidences concrètes pour les personnes qui comparaissent devant eux pourraient avoir du mal à accorder un poids suffisant aux effets négatifs moins immédiats sur le principe de la publicité des débats. Une telle pondération pourrait échapper à un contrôle efficace en appel. À mon avis, le cadre d’analyse fourni par les arrêts Dagenais, Mentuck et Sierra Club demeure approprié et devrait être confirmé.

[44] Enfin, je rappelle que le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires s’applique dans toutes les procédures judiciaires, quelle que soit leur nature (MacIntyre, p. 185-186; Vancouver Sun, par. 31). Je suis en désaccord avec les fiduciaires dans la mesure où ils affirment, dans leurs arguments sur les effets négatifs des ordonnances de mise sous scellés, que l’homologation successorale en Ontario ne fait pas intervenir le principe de la publicité des procédures judiciaires ou que la publicité de ces procédures n’a pas de valeur pour le public. Les certificats que les fiduciaires ont demandés au tribunal sont délivrés sous le sceau de ce tribunal, portant ainsi l’imprimatur du pouvoir judiciaire. La décision du tribunal, même si elle est rendue dans un contexte non contentieux, aura une incidence sur des tiers, par exemple en déterminant l’écrit testamentaire qui constitue un testament valide (voir Otis c. Otis (2004), 7 E.T.R. (3d) 221 (C.S. Ont.), par. 23-24). Contrairement estate trustee in Ontario is a court proceeding and the fundamental rationale for openness — discouraging mischief and ensuring confidence in the administration of justice through transparency — applies to probate proceedings and thus to the transfer of property under court authority and other matters affected by that court action.

[45] It is true that other non-probate estate planning mechanisms may allow for the transfer of wealth outside the ordinary avenues of testate or intestate succession — that is the case, for instance, for certain insurance and pension benefits, and for certain property held in co-ownership. But this does not change the necessarily open court character of probate proceedings. That non-probate transfers keep certain information related to the administration of an estate out of public view does not mean that the Trustees here, by seeking certificates from the court, somehow do not engage this principle. The Trustees seek the benefits that flow from the public judicial probate process: transparency ensures that the probate court's authority is administered fairly and efficiently (Vancouver Sun, at para. 25; New Brunswick, at para. 22). The strong presumption in favour of openness plainly applies to probate proceedings and the Trustees must satisfy the test for discretionary limits on court openness.

B. The Public Importance of Privacy

[46] As mentioned, I disagree with the Trustees that an unbounded interest in privacy qualifies as an important public interest under the test for discretionary limits on court openness. Yet in some of its à ce que les fiduciaires soutiennent, les questions soulevées dans un dossier d'homologation ne sont pas typiquement de nature privée ou fondamentalement de nature administrative. L'obtention d'un certificat de nomination à titre de fiduciaire d'une succession en Ontario est une procédure judiciaire, et la raison d'être fondamentale de la publicité des débats — décourager les actes malveillants et garantir la confiance dans l'administration de la justice par la transparence — s'applique aux procédures d'homologation et donc au transfert de biens sous l'autorité d'un tribunal ainsi qu'à d'autres questions touchées par ce recours judiciaire.

[45] Il est vrai que d'autres mécanismes de planification successorale non assujettis à une procédure d'homologation peuvent permettre que le transfert du patrimoine soit effectué en dehors des voies ordinaires de la succession testamentaire ou ab intestat — c'est le cas, par exemple, de certaines assurances et prestations de retraite, et de certains biens détenus en copropriété. Cependant, cela ne change rien au caractère nécessairement public des procédures d'homologation. Le fait que les transferts non assujettis à une procédure d'homologation sous-traient aux regards du public certains renseignements se rapportant à l'administration d'une succession ne signifie pas que les fiduciaires en l'espèce, en demandant au tribunal de leur délivrer des certificats, ne font pas d'une façon ou d'une autre intervenir ce principe. Les fiduciaires sollicitent les avantages qui découlent de la procédure judiciaire publique d'homologation : la transparence garantit que le tribunal successoral exerce son pouvoir de manière équitable et efficace (Vancouver Sun, par. 25; Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 22). La forte présomption en faveur de la publicité des débats judiciaires s'applique manifestement aux procédures d'homologation et les fiduciaires doivent satisfaire au test des limites discrétionnaires à cette publicité.

B. L'importance pour le public de la protection de la vie privée

[46] Comme il a été mentionné précédemment, je ne suis pas d'accord avec les fiduciaires pour dire qu'un intérêt illimité en matière de vie privée constitue un intérêt public important au sens du test des manifestations, privacy does have social importance beyond the person most immediately concerned. On that basis, it cannot be excluded as an interest that could justify, in the right circumstances, a limit to court openness. Indeed, the public importance of privacy has been recognized by this Court in various settings, and this sheds light on why the narrower aspect of privacy related to the protection of dignity is an important public interest.

[47] I respectfully disagree with the manner in which the Court of Appeal disposed of the claim by the Trustees that there is a serious risk to the interest in protecting personal privacy in this case. For the appellate judges, the privacy concerns raised by the Trustees amounted to “[p]ersonal concerns” which cannot, “without more”, satisfy the requirement from Sierra Club that an important interest be framed as a public interest (para. 10). The Court of Appeal in our case relied, at para. 10, on H. (M.E.) v. Williams, 2012 ONCA 35, 108 O.R. (3d) 321, in which it was held that “[p]urely personal interests cannot justify non-publication or sealing orders” (para. 25). Citing as authority judgments of this Court in MacIntyre and Sierra Club, the court continued by observing that “personal concerns of a litigant, including concerns about the very real emotional distress and embarrassment that can be occasioned to litigants when justice is done in public, will not, standing alone, satisfy the necessity branch of the test” (para. 25). Respectfully stated, the emphasis that the Court of Appeal placed on personal concerns as a means of deciding that the sealing orders failed to meet the necessity requirement in this case and in Williams is, I think, mistaken. Personal concerns that relate to aspects of the privacy of an individual who is before the courts can coincide with a public interest in confidentiality.

limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Pourtant, dans certaines de ses manifestations, la vie privée revêt une importance sociale allant au-delà de la personne la plus immédiatement touchée. Sur ce fondement, elle ne peut être exclue en tant qu’intérêt qui pourrait justifier, dans les circonstances appropriées, une limite à la publicité des débats judiciaires. En fait, la Cour a dans divers contextes reconnu l’importance pour le public de la vie privée, ce qui permet de mieux comprendre pourquoi l’aspect plus restreint de la vie privée lié à la protection de la dignité constitue un intérêt public important.

[47] Soit dit en tout respect, je ne puis souscrire à la manière dont la Cour d’appel a statué sur l’allegation des fiduciaires selon laquelle il existe un risque sérieux pour l’intérêt à la protection de la vie privée personnelle dans la présente affaire. Pour les juges d’appel, les préoccupations en matière de vie privée soulevées par les fiduciaires équivalent à des [TRADUCTION] « [p]réoccupations personnelles » qui ne peuvent, « à elles seules », satisfaire à l’exigence énoncée dans Sierra Club voulant qu’un intérêt important soit exprimé en tant qu’intérêt public (par. 10). Au paragraphe 10 de ses motifs dans l’affaire qui nous occupe, la Cour d’appel s’est appuyée sur l’arrêt H. (M.E.) c. Williams, 2012 ONCA 35, 108 O.R. (3d) 321, où il a été conclu que [TRADUCTION] « [d]es intérêts purement personnels ne peuvent justifier des ordonnances de non-publication ou de mise sous scellés » (par. 25). Citant les arrêts MacIntyre et Sierra Club de notre Cour comme des décisions faisant autorité à cet égard, la cour a poursuivi en soulignant que « les préoccupations personnelles d’une partie, y compris les préoccupations relatives à la détresse émotionnelle et à l’embarras bien réels que peuvent subir les parties quand la justice est rendue en public, ne satisferont pas à elle seules au volet nécessité du test » (par. 25). En toute déférence, j’estime que la Cour d’appel a eu tort de mettre l’accent sur les préoccupations personnelles pour décider que les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ne satisfaisaient pas à l’exigence de la nécessité dans la présente affaire et dans Williams. Les préoccupations personnelles qui s’attachent à des aspects de la vie privée de la personne qui comparaît devant les tribunaux peuvent coïncider avec un intérêt public à la confidentialité.

[48] Like the Court of Appeal, I do agree with the view expressed particularly in the pre-Charter case of MacIntyre, that where court openness results in an intrusion on privacy which disturbs the “sensibilities of the individuals involved” (p. 185), that concern is generally insufficient to justify a sealing or like order and does not amount to an important public interest under Sierra Club. But I disagree with the Court of Appeal in this case and in Williams that this is because the intrusion only occasions “personal concerns”. Certain personal concerns — even “without more” — can coincide with important public interests within the meaning of Sierra Club. To invoke the expression of Binnie J. in F.N. (Re), 2000 SCC 35, [2000] 1 S.C.R. 880, at para. 10, there is a “public interest in confidentiality” that is felt, first and foremost, by the person involved and is most certainly a personal concern. Even in Williams, the Court of Appeal was careful to note that where, without privacy protection, an individual would face “a substantial risk of serious debilitating emotional . . . harm”, an exception to openness should be available (paras. 29-30). The means of discerning whether a privacy interest reflects a “public interest in confidentiality” is therefore not whether the interest reflects or is rooted in “personal concerns” for the privacy of the individuals involved. Some personal concerns relating to privacy overlap with public interests in confidentiality. These interests in privacy can be, in my view, important public interests within the meaning of Sierra Club. It is true that an individual’s privacy is pre-eminently important to that individual. But this Court has also long recognized that the protection of privacy is, in a variety of settings, in the interest of society as a whole.

[49] The proposition that privacy is important, not only to the affected individual but to our society, has deep roots in the jurisprudence of this Court outside the context of the test for discretionary limits on [48] À l’instar de la Cour d’appel, je souscris à l’opinion exprimée en particulier dans MacIntyre, une affaire antérieure à la Charte, selon laquelle lorsque la publicité des débats judiciaires entraîne une atteinte à la vie privée qui perturbe « la susceptibilité des personnes en cause » (p. 185), cette préoccupation est généralement insuffisante pour justifier une ordonnance de mise sous scellés ou une ordonnance semblable et ne constitue pas un intérêt public important suivant l’arrêt Sierra Club. Cependant, je ne suis pas d’accord avec la Cour d’appel dans la présente affaire et dans Williams pour dire que c’est parce que l’atteinte n’occasionne que des [TRADUCTION] « préoccupations personnelles ». Certaines préoccupations personnelles — même « à elles seules » — peuvent coïncider avec des intérêts publics importants au sens de Sierra Club. Pour reprendre l’expression du juge Binnie dans F.N. (Re), 2000 CSC 35, [2000] 1 R.C.S. 880, par. 10, il y a un « droit du public à la confidentialité » qui touche, d’abord et avant tout, la personne concernée et qui est très certainement une préoccupation personnelle. Même dans Williams, la Cour d’appel a pris soin de souligner que lorsque, sans protection de la vie privée, une personne serait exposée à [TRADUCTION] « un risque important de préjudice émotionnel [. . .] débilisant », une exception à la publicité des débats devrait être permise (par. 29-30). Pour savoir si un intérêt en matière de vie privée reflète un « droit du public à la confidentialité », il ne s’agit donc pas de se demander si l’intérêt est le reflet ou tire sa source de « préoccupations personnelles » relatives à la vie privée des personnes concernées. Il y a chevauchement entre certaines préoccupations personnelles relatives à la vie privée et les intérêts du public en matière de confidentialité. Ces intérêts relatifs à la vie privée peuvent, à mon avis, être des intérêts publics importants au sens de Sierra Club. Il est vrai que la vie privée d’une personne est d’une importance primordiale pour celle-ci. Cependant, notre Cour reconnaît depuis longtemps que la protection de la vie privée est, dans divers contextes, dans l’intérêt de la société dans son ensemble.

[49] La proposition selon laquelle la vie privée est importante, non seulement pour la personne touchée, mais également pour notre société, est profondément enracinée dans la jurisprudence de la Cour en dehors court openness. This background helps explain why privacy cannot be rejected as a mere personal concern. However, the key differences in these contexts are such that the public importance of privacy cannot be transposed to open courts without adaptation. Only specific aspects of privacy interests can qualify as important public interests under Sierra Club.

[50] In the context of s. 8 of the Charter and public sector privacy legislation, La Forest J. cited American privacy scholar Alan F. Westin for the proposition that privacy is a fundamental value of the modern state, first in R. v. Dyment, [1988] 2 S.C.R. 417, at pp. 427-28 (concurring), and then in Dagg, at para. 65 (dissenting but not on this point). In the latter case, La Forest J. wrote: “The protection of privacy is a fundamental value in modern, democratic states. An expression of an individual’s unique personality or personhood, privacy is grounded on physical and moral autonomy — the freedom to engage in one’s own thoughts, actions and decisions” (para. 65 (citations omitted)). That statement was endorsed unanimously by this Court in Lavigne, at para. 25.

[51] Further, in Alberta (Information and Privacy Commissioner) v. United Food and Commercial Workers, Local 401, 2013 SCC 62, [2013] 3 S.C.R. 733 (“UFCW”), decided in the context of a statute regulating the use of information by organizations, the objective of providing an individual with some control over their information was recognized as “intimately connected to individual autonomy, dignity and privacy, self-evidently significant social values” (para. 24). The importance of privacy, its “quasi-constitutional status” and its role in protecting moral autonomy continues to find expression in our recent jurisprudence (see, e.g., Lavigne, at para. 24; Bragg, at para. 18, per Abella J., citing Toronto Star Newspaper Ltd. v. R., 2012 ONCJ 27, 289 C.C.C. (3d) 549, at paras. 40-41 and 44; Douez v. Facebook, Inc., 2017 SCC 33, [2017] 1 S.C.R. 751, at para. 59).

du contexte du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Cela aide à expliquer pourquoi la vie privée ne saurait être rejetée en tant que simple préoccupation personnelle. Cependant, les différences clés dans ces contextes sont telles que l’importance pour le public de la vie privée ne saurait être transposée sans adaptation dans le contexte de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Seuls certains aspects particuliers des intérêts en matière de vie privée peuvent constituer des intérêts publics importants suivant l’arrêt Sierra Club.

[50] Dans le contexte de l’art. 8 de la Charte et des mesures législatives sur la protection de la vie privée dans le secteur public, le juge La Forest a cité un universitaire américain spécialiste de la vie privée, Alan F. Westin, à l’appui de la thèse selon laquelle la vie privée est une valeur fondamentale de l’État moderne; il l’a fait d’abord dans R. c. Dyment, [1988] 2 R.C.S. 417, p. 427-428 (motifs concordants), puis dans Dagg, par. 65 (dissident, mais non sur ce point). Dans ce dernier arrêt, le juge La Forest a écrit : « La protection de la vie privée est une valeur fondamentale des États démocratiques modernes. Étant l’expression de la personnalité ou de l’identité unique d’une personne, la notion de vie privée repose sur l’autonomie physique et morale — la liberté de chacun de penser, d’agir et de décider pour lui-même » (par. 65 (références omises)). Notre Cour a entériné à l’unanimité cette déclaration dans Lavigne, par. 25.

[51] De plus, dans l’arrêt Alberta (Information and Privacy Commissioner) c. Travailleurs et travailleuses unis de l’alimentation et du commerce, section locale 401, 2013 CSC 62, [2013] 3 R.C.S. 733 (« TTUAC »), qui a été jugé dans le contexte d’une loi régissant l’utilisation de renseignements par des organisations, il a été reconnu que l’objectif de fournir à une personne un certain droit de regard sur les renseignements la concernant était « intimement lié à son autonomie, à sa dignité et à son droit à la vie privée, des valeurs sociales dont l’importance va de soi » (par. 24). L’importance de la vie privée, son « caractère quasi constitutionnel » et son rôle dans la protection de l’autonomie morale continuent de trouver écho dans notre jurisprudence récente (voir, p. ex., Lavigne, par. 24; Bragg, par. 18, la juge Abella, citant Toronto Star Newspaper Ltd. c. R.,

In Douez, Karakatsanis, Wagner (as he then was) and Gascon JJ. underscored this same point, adding that “the growth of the Internet, virtually timeless with pervasive reach, has exacerbated the potential harm that may flow from incursions to a person’s privacy interests” (para. 59).

[52] Privacy as a public interest is underlined by specific aspects of privacy protection present in legislation at the federal and provincial levels (see, e.g., Privacy Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. P-21; Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act, S.C. 2000, c. 5 (“PIPEDA”); Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. F.31; Charter of Human Rights and Freedoms, CQLR, c. C-12, s. 5; Civil Code of Québec, arts. 35 to 41).³ Further, in assessing the constitutionality of a legislative exception to the open court principle, this Court has recognized that the protection of individual privacy can be a pressing and substantial objective (Edmonton Journal, at p. 1345, per Cory J.; see also the concurring reasons of Wilson J., at p. 1354, in which “the public interest in protecting the privacy of litigants generally in matrimonial cases against the public interest in an open court process” was explicitly noted). There is also continued support for the social and public importance of individual privacy in the academic literature (see, e.g., A. J. Cockfield, “Protecting the Social Value of Privacy in the Context of State Investigations Using New Technologies” (2007), 40 U.B.C. L. Rev. 41, at p. 41; K. Hughes, “A Behavioural Understanding of Privacy and its Implications for Privacy Law” (2012), 75 Mod. L. Rev. 806, at p. 823; P. Gewirtz, “Privacy and Speech” (2001), Sup. Ct. Rev. 139, at p. 139). It is therefore inappropriate, in my respectful view, to dismiss the public interest in protecting privacy as merely a personal concern. This does not mean, 2012 ONCJ 27, 289 C.C.C. (3d) 549, par. 40-41 et 44; Douez c. Facebook, Inc., 2017 CSC 33, [2017] 1 R.C.S. 751, par. 59). Dans l’arrêt Douez, les juges Karakatsanis, Wagner (maintenant juge en chef) et Gascon ont insisté sur le même point, ajoutant que « la croissance d’Internet — un réseau quasi atemporel au rayonnement infini — a exacerbé le préjudice susceptible d’être infligé à une personne par une atteinte à son droit à la vie privée » (par. 59).

however, that privacy generally is an important public interest in the context of limits on court openness.

[53] The fact that the case before the application judge concerned individuals who were advancing their own privacy interests, which were undeniably important to them as individuals, does not mean that there is no public interest at stake. In F.N. (Re), this was the personal interest that young offenders had in remaining anonymous in court proceedings as a means of encouraging their personal rehabilitation (para. 11). All of society had a stake, according to Binnie J., in the young person's personal prospect for rehabilitation. This same idea from F.N. (Re) was cited in support of finding the interest in Sierra Club to be a public interest. That interest, rooted first in an agreement of personal concern to the contracting parties involved, was a private matter that evinced, alongside its personal interest to the parties, a "public interest in confidentiality" (Sierra Club, at para. 55). Similarly, while the Trustees have a personal interest in preserving their privacy, this does not mean that the public has no stake in this same interest because — as this Court has made clear — it is related to moral autonomy and dignity which are pressing and substantial concerns.

[54] In this appeal, the Toronto Star suggests that legitimate privacy concerns would be effectively protected by a discretionary order where there is "something more" to elevate them beyond personal concerns and sensibilities (R.F., at para. 73). The Income Security Advocacy Centre, by way of example, submits that privacy serves the public interests of preventing harm and of ensuring individuals are not dissuaded from accessing the courts. I agree that these concepts are related, but in my view care must be taken not to conflate the public importance of privacy with that of other interests; aspects of privacy, such as dignity, may constitute important public interests in and of themselves. A risk to personal privacy may be tied to a risk to psychological harm, as it was in Bragg (para. 14; see also J. Rossiter, Law of Publication Bans, Private Hearings, and Sealing Orders (loose-leaf), s. 2.4.1). But concerns for privacy may not always coincide with a desire to avoid psychological harm, and may focus instead, for example, on protecting one's professional standing (see, e.g., R. v. Paterson (1998), 102 B.C.A.C. 200, at paras. 76, 78 and 87-88). Similarly, there may be circumstances where the prospect of surrendering the personal information necessary to pursue a legal claim may deter an individual from bringing that claim (see S. v. Lamontagne, 2020 QCCA 663, at paras. 34-35 (CanLII)). In the same way, the prospect of surrendering sensitive commercial information would have impaired the conduct of the party's defence in Sierra Club (at para. 71), or could pressure an individual into settling a dispute prematurely (K. Eltis, Courts, Litigants and the Digital Age (2nd ed. 2016), at p. 86). But this does not necessarily mean that a public interest in privacy is wholly subsumed by such concerns. I note, for example, that access to justice concerns do not apply where the privacy interest to be protected is that of a third party to the litigation, such as a witness, whose access to the courts is not at stake and who has no choice available to terminate the litigation and avoid any privacy impacts (see, e.g., Himel v. Greenberg, 2010 ONSC 2325, 93 R.F.L. (6th) 357, at para. 58; see also Rossiter, s. 2.4.2(2)). In any event, the recognition of these related and valid important public interests does not answer the question as to whether aspects of privacy in and of themselves are important public interests and does not diminish the distinctive public character of privacy, considered above.

[54] Dans le présent pourvoi, le Toronto Star avance que les préoccupations légitimes en matière de vie privée seraient efficacement protégées par une ordonnance discrétionnaire dans le cas où il y aurait [TRADUCTION] « quelque chose de plus » pour les élever au-delà des préoccupations et de la susceptibilité personnelles (m.i., par. 73). Le Centre d'action pour la sécurité du revenu, par exemple, soutient que la protection de la vie privée sert les intérêts du public qui consistent à prévenir les préjudices et à faire en sorte que les particuliers ne soient pas

dissuadés de recourir aux tribunaux. Je reconnais que ces notions sont liées, mais il faut, à mon avis, prendre soin de ne pas confondre l'importance pour le public de la vie privée avec l'importance pour le public d'autres intérêts; des aspects de la vie privée, comme la dignité, peuvent constituer des intérêts publics importants en soi. Un risque pour la vie privée personnelle peut être lié à un risque de préjudice psychologique, comme c'était le cas dans l'affaire Bragg (par. 14; voir également J. Rossiter, Law of Publication Bans, Private Hearings and Sealing Orders (feuilles mobiles), section 2.4.1). Cependant, il se peut que les préoccupations relatives à la vie privée ne coïncident pas toujours avec le désir d'éviter un préjudice psychologique et soient plutôt axées, par exemple, sur la protection de la réputation professionnelle d'une personne (voir, p. ex., R. c. Paterson (1998), 102 B.C.A.C. 200, par. 76, 78 et 87-88). De même, il peut y avoir des circonstances où la perspective de devoir communiquer les renseignements personnels nécessaires à la poursuite d'une action en justice peut dissuader une personne d'intenter cette action (voir S. c. Lamontagne, 2020 QCCA 663, par. 34-35 (CanLII)). De la même manière, la perspective de devoir communiquer des renseignements commerciaux sensibles aurait nui à la conduite de la défense d'une partie dans Sierra Club (par. 71), ou pourrait inciter une personne à régler un litige prématurément (K. Eltis, Courts, Litigants, and the Digital Age (2^e éd. 2016), p. 86). Cependant, cela ne signifie pas nécessairement qu'un intérêt public en matière de vie privée est entièrement subsumé dans de telles préoccupations. Je tiens à souligner, par exemple, que les préoccupations relatives à l'accès à la justice ne s'appliquent pas lorsque l'intérêt à protéger en matière de vie privée est celui d'un tiers au litige, comme un témoin, dont l'accès aux tribunaux n'est pas en cause et à qui il n'est pas loisible de mettre fin au litige et d'éviter toute incidence sur sa vie privée (voir, p. ex., Himel c. Greenberg, 2010 ONSC 2325, 93 R.F.L. (6th) 357, par. 58; voir également Rossiter, section 2.4.2(2)). En tout état de cause, la reconnaissance de ces importants intérêts publics connexes et valides ne permet pas de savoir si certains aspects de la vie privée constituent en eux-mêmes des intérêts publics importants et ne diminue en rien le caractère public distinctif de la vie privée, examiné précédemment.

[55] Indeed, the specific harms to privacy occasioned by open courts have not gone unnoticed nor been discounted as merely personal concerns. Courts have exercised their discretion to limit court openness in order to protect personal information from publicity, including to prevent the disclosure of sexual orientation (see, e.g., Paterson, at paras. 76, 78 and 87-88), HIV status (see, e.g., A.B. v. Canada (Citizenship and Immigration), 2017 FC 629, at para. 9 (CanLII)), and a history of substance abuse and criminality (see, e.g., R. v. Pickton, 2010 BCSC 1198, at paras. 11 and 20 (CanLII)). This need to reconcile the public interest in privacy with the open court principle has been highlighted by this Court (see, e.g., Edmonton Journal, at p. 1353, per Wilson J.). Writing extra-judicially, McLachlin C.J. explained that “[i]f we are serious about peoples’ private lives, we must preserve a modicum of privacy. Equally, if we are serious about our justice system, we must have open courts. The question is how to reconcile these dual imperatives in a fair and principled way” (“Courts, Transparency and Public Confidence – To the Better Administration of Justice” (2003), 8 Deakin L. Rev. 1, at p. 4). In seeking that reconciliation, the question becomes whether the relevant dimension of privacy amounts to an important public interest that, when seriously at risk, would justify rebutting the strong presumption favouring open courts.

C. The Important Public Interest in Privacy Bears on the Protection of Individual Dignity

[56] While the public importance of privacy has clearly been recognized by this Court in various settings, caution is required in deploying this concept in the test for discretionary limits on court openness. It is a matter of settled law that open court proceedings by their nature can be a source of discomfort and embarrassment and these intrusions on privacy

[55] En fait, les atteintes particulières à la vie privée ayant été occasionnées par la publicité des débats judiciaires ne sont pas passées inaperçues et n’ont pas non plus été écartées au motif qu’il s’agissait de simples préoccupations personnelles. Les tribunaux ont exercé leur pouvoir discrétionnaire de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires afin de protéger les renseignements personnels de la publicité, y compris pour empêcher que soient divulgués l’orientation sexuelle d’une personne (voir, p. ex., Paterson, par. 76, 78 et 87-88), sa séropositivité (voir, p. ex., A.B. c. Canada (Citoyenneté et Immigration), 2017 CF 629, par. 9 (CanLII)), et ses antécédents de toxicomanie et de criminalité (voir, p. ex., R. c. Pickton, 2010 BCSC 1198, par. 11 et 20 (CanLII)). Notre Cour a souligné cette nécessité de concilier l’intérêt du public à l’égard de la vie privée et le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires (voir, p. ex., Edmonton Journal, p. 1353, la juge Wilson). Dans un article de doctrine, la juge en chef McLachlin a expliqué que [TRADUCTION] « [s]i nous nous préoccupons sérieusement de la vie intime des gens, nous devons protéger un minimum de vie privée. De même, si nous nous préoccupons sérieusement de notre système judiciaire, les débats judiciaires doivent être publics. La question est de savoir comment concilier ces deux impératifs d’une manière qui soit équitable et raisonnée » (« Courts, Transparency and Public Confidence – To the Better Administration of Justice » (2003), 8 Deakin L. Rev. 1, p. 4). En cherchant à concilier ces deux impératifs, il faut alors se demander si la dimension de la vie privée en cause constitue un intérêt public important qui, lorsqu’il est sérieusement menacé, justifierait de réfuter la forte présomption en faveur de la publicité des débats judiciaires.

C. L’intérêt public important en matière de vie privée se rapporte à la protection de la dignité de la personne are generally seen as of insufficient importance to overcome the presumption of openness. The Toronto Star has raised the concern that recognizing privacy as an important public interest will lower the burden for applicants because the privacy of litigants will, in some respects, always be at risk in court proceedings. I agree that the requirement to show a serious risk to an important interest is a key threshold component of the analysis that must be preserved in order to protect the open court principle. The recognition of a public interest in privacy could threaten the strong presumption of openness if privacy is cast too broadly without a view to its public character.

[57] Privacy poses challenges in the test for discretionary limits on court openness because of the necessary dissemination of information that openness implies. It bears recalling that when Dickson J., as he then was, wrote in MacIntyre that “covertness is the exception and openness the rule”, he was explicitly treating a privacy argument, returning to and dismissing the view, urged many times before, “that the ‘privacy’ of litigants requires that the public be excluded from court proceedings” (p. 185 (emphasis added)). Dickson J. rejected the view that personal privacy concerns require closed courtroom doors, explaining that “[a]s a general rule the sensibilities of the individuals involved are no basis for exclusion of the public from judicial proceedings” (ibid.).

[58] Though writing before Dagenais, and therefore not commenting on the specific steps of the analysis as we now understand them, to my mind, Dickson J. was right to recognize that the open court principle brings necessary limits to the right to privacy. While individuals may have an expectation that information about them will not be revealed in judicial proceedings, the open court principle stands presumptively in opposition to that expectation. For nature, peuvent être une source de désagrément et d’embarras, et l’on considère généralement que ces atteintes à la vie privée ne sont pas suffisamment importantes pour réfuter la présomption de publicité des débats. Le Toronto Star a exprimé la crainte que la reconnaissance de la vie privée en tant qu’intérêt public important n’allège le fardeau de preuve incombant aux demandeurs, car la vie privée des parties à un litige sera, à certains égards, toujours menacée dans les procédures judiciaires. Je conviens que l’exigence de démontrer l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important est un élément préliminaire clé de l’analyse qui doit être maintenu afin de protéger le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires. La reconnaissance d’un intérêt public en matière de vie privée pourrait menacer la forte présomption de publicité si la vie privée est définie trop largement sans tenir compte de son caractère public.

[58] Bien qu’il ait rendu sa décision avant le prononcé de l’arrêt Dagenais et qu’il ne commente donc pas les étapes précises de l’analyse telles que nous les comprenons aujourd’hui, j’estime que le juge Dickson a, à juste titre, reconnu que le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires apporte des limites nécessaires au droit à la vie privée. Quoique les particuliers puissent s’attendre à ce que les renseignements qui les concernent ne soient pas révélés example, in Lac d'Amiante du Québec Ltée v. 2858-0702 Québec Inc., 2001 SCC 51, [2001] 2 S.C.R. 743, LeBel J. held that “a party who institutes a legal proceeding waives his or her right to privacy, at least in part” (para. 42). MacIntyre and cases like it recognize — in stating that openness is the rule and covertness the exception — that the right to privacy, however defined, in some measure gives way to the open court ideal. I share the view that the open court principle presumes that this limit on the right to privacy is justified.

[59] The Toronto Star is therefore right to say that the privacy of individuals will very often be at some risk in court proceedings. Disputes between and concerning individuals that play out in open court necessarily reveal information that may have otherwise remained out of public view. Indeed, much like the Court of Appeal in this case, courts have explicitly adverted to this concern when concluding that mere inconvenience is insufficient to cross the initial threshold of the test (see, e.g., 3834310 Canada inc. v. Chamberland, 2004 CanLII 4122 (Que. C.A.), at para. 30). Saying that any impact on individual privacy is sufficient to establish a serious risk to an important public interest for the purposes of the test for discretionary limits on court openness could render this initial requirement moot. Many cases would turn on the balancing at the proportionality stage. Such a development would amount to a departure from Sierra Club, which is the appropriate framework and one which must be preserved.

[60] Further, recognizing an important interest in privacy generally could prove to be too open-ended and difficult to apply. Privacy is a complex and contextual concept (Dagg, at para. 67; see also B. McIsaac, K. Klein and S. Brown, The Law of Privacy in Canada (loose-leaf), vol. 1, at pp. 1-4; D. J. Solove, “Conceptualizing Privacy” (2002), 90 dans le cadre de procédures judiciaires, le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires s’oppose par présomption à cette attente. Par exemple, dans l’arrêt Lac d'Amiante du Québec Ltée c. 2858-0702 Québec Inc., 2001 CSC 51, [2001] 2 R.C.S. 743, le juge LeBel a conclu que la « partie qui engage un débat judiciaire renonce, à tout le moins en partie, à la protection de sa vie privée » (par. 42). L’arrêt MacIntyre et les jugements similaires reconnaissent — en affirmant que la publicité est la règle et le secret, l’exception — que le droit à la vie privée, quelle qu’en soit la définition, cède le pas, dans une certaine mesure, à l’idéal de la publicité des débats judiciaires. Je partage le point de vue selon lequel le principe de la publicité des débats suppose que cette limite au droit à la vie privée est justifiée.

[59] Le Toronto Star a donc raison d’affirmer que la vie privée des personnes sera très souvent en quelque sorte menacée dans les procédures judiciaires. Les litiges entre et concernant des particuliers qui se déroulent dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics révèlent nécessairement des renseignements qui pourraient autrement être restés à l’abri des regards du public. En fait, tout comme la Cour d’appel en l’espèce, les tribunaux ont explicitement fait mention de cette préoccupation lorsqu’ils ont conclu que de simples inconvénients ne suffisaient pas à franchir le seuil initial du test (voir, p. ex., 3834310 Canada inc. c. Chamberland, 2004 CanLII 4122 (C.A. Qc), par. 30). Affirmer que toute incidence sur la vie privée d’une personne suffit à établir un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important pour l’application du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires pourrait rendre cette exigence préliminaire théorique. Le sort de nombreuses causes dépendrait de la pondération à l’étape de la proportionnalité. Une telle évolution reviendrait à déroger à l’arrêt Sierra Club, qui constitue le cadre approprié à appliquer, lequel doit être maintenu.

[60] De plus, la reconnaissance d’un intérêt important à l’égard de la notion générale de vie privée pourrait s’avérer trop indéterminée et difficile à appliquer. La vie privée est une notion complexe et contextuelle (Dagg, par. 67; voir également B. McIsaac, K. Klein et S. Brown, The Law of Privacy in Canada (feuilles mobiles), vol. 1, p. 1-4; D. J.

Cal. L. Rev. 1087, at p. 1090). Indeed, this Court has described the nature of limits of privacy as being in a state of “theoretical disarray” (R. v. Spencer, 2014 SCC 43, [2014] 2 S.C.R. 212, at para. 35). Much turns on the context in which privacy is invoked. I agree with the Toronto Star that a bald recognition of privacy as an important interest in the context of the test for discretionary limits on court openness, as the Trustees advance here, would invite considerable confusion. It would be difficult for courts to measure a serious risk to such an interest because of its multifaceted nature.

[61] While I acknowledge these concerns have merit, I disagree that they require that privacy never be considered in determining whether there is a serious risk to an important public interest. I reach this conclusion for two reasons. First, the problem of privacy’s complexity can be attenuated by focusing on the purpose underlying the public protection of privacy as it is relevant to the judicial process, in order to fix precisely on that aspect which transcends the interests of the parties in this context. That narrower dimension of privacy is the protection of dignity, an important public interest that can be threatened by open courts. Indeed, rather than attempting to apply a single unwieldy concept of privacy in all contexts, this Court has generally fixed on more specific privacy interests tailored to the particular situation (Spencer, at para. 35; Edmonton Journal, at p. 1362, per Wilson J.). That is what must be done here, with a view to identifying the public aspect of privacy that openness might inappropriately undermine.

[62] Second, I recall that in order to pass the first stage of the analysis one must not simply invoke an important interest, but must also overcome the presumption of openness by showing a serious risk to this interest. The burden of showing a risk to such Solove, « Conceptualizing Privacy » (2002), 90 Cal. L. Rev. 1087, p. 1090). En fait, notre Cour a décrit la nature des limites à la vie privée comme étant dans un état de « confusion [...] sur le plan théorique » (R. c. Spencer, 2014 CSC 43, [2014] 2 R.C.S. 212, par. 35). Cela dépend en grande partie du contexte dans lequel la vie privée est invoquée. Je suis d’accord avec le Toronto Star pour dire que la reconnaissance de la vie privée, sans nuances, comme un intérêt important dans le contexte du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires, ainsi que le revendiquent les fiduciaires en l’espèce, susciterait énormément de confusion. Il serait difficile pour les tribunaux de mesurer un risque sérieux pour un tel intérêt, en raison de ses multiples facettes.

[61] Bien que je reconnaisse la validité de ces préoccupations, je ne suis pas d’accord pour dire qu’elles exigent que la vie privée ne soit jamais prise en considération lorsqu’il s’agit de décider s’il existe un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important. J’arrive à cette conclusion pour deux raisons. Premièrement, il est possible d’atténuer le problème de la complexité de la vie privée en se concentrant sur l’objectif qui sous-tend la protection publique de la vie privée, lequel est pertinent dans le cadre du processus judiciaire, de manière à s’en tenir précisément à l’aspect qui transcende les intérêts des parties dans ce contexte. Cette dimension plus restreinte de la vie privée est la protection de la dignité, un intérêt public important qui peut être menacé par la publicité des débats judiciaires. D’ailleurs, plutôt que d’essayer d’appliquer une notion unique et complexe de la vie privée à tous les contextes, notre Cour s’est généralement arrêtée sur des intérêts plus précis en matière de vie privée adaptés à la situation particulière en cause (Spencer, par. 35; Edmonton Journal, p. 1362, la juge Wilson). C’est ce qu’il faut faire en l’espèce, en vue de cerner l’aspect public de la vie privée que la publicité des débats risque de miner indûment.

[62] Deuxièmement, je rappelle que, pour franchir la première étape de l’analyse, il ne suffit pas d’invoquer un intérêt important, mais il faut aussi réfuter la présomption de publicité des débats en démontrant l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt. Le an interest on the facts of a given case constitutes the true initial threshold on the person seeking to restrict openness. It is never sufficient to plead a recognized important public interest on its own. The demonstration of a serious risk to this interest is still required. What is important is that the interest be accurately defined to capture only those aspects of privacy that engage legitimate public objectives such that showing a serious risk to that interest remains a high bar. In this way, courts can effectively maintain the guarantee of presumptive openness.

[63] Specifically, in order to preserve the integrity of the open court principle, an important public interest concerned with the protection of dignity should be understood to be seriously at risk only in limited cases. Nothing here displaces the principle that covertness in court proceedings must be exceptional. Neither the sensibilities of individuals nor the fact that openness is disadvantageous, embarrassing or distressing to certain individuals will generally on their own warrant interference with court openness (MacIntyre, at p. 185; New Brunswick, at para. 40; Williams, at para. 30; Coltsfoot Publishing Ltd. v. Foster-Jacques, 2012 NSCA 83, 320 N.S.R. (2d) 166, at para. 97). These principles do not preclude recognizing the public character of a privacy interest as important when it is related to the protection of dignity. They merely require that a serious risk be shown to exist in respect of this interest in order to justify, exceptionally, a limit on openness, as is the case with any important public interest under Sierra Club. As Professors Sylvette Guillemard and Séverine Menétrey explain, [TRANSLATION] “[t]he confidentiality of the proceedings may be justified, in particular, in order to protect the parties’ privacy However, the jurisprudence indicates that embarrassment or shame is not a sufficient reason to order that proceedings be held in camera or to impose a publication ban” (Comprendre la procédure civile québécoise (2nd ed. 2017), at p. 57).

fardeau d’établir l’existence d’un risque pour un tel intérêt au vu des faits d’une affaire donnée constitue le véritable seuil initial à franchir pour la personne cherchant à restreindre la publicité. Il n’est jamais suffisant d’alléguer la seule existence d’un intérêt public important reconnu. Démontrer l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt demeure toujours nécessaire. Ce qui importe, c’est que l’intérêt soit précisément défini de manière à ce qu’il n’englobe que les aspects de la vie privée qui font entrer en jeu des objectifs publics légitimes, de sorte que le seuil à franchir pour établir l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt demeure élevé. De cette manière, les tribunaux peuvent efficacement maintenir la garantie de la présomption de publicité des débats.

[63] Plus particulièrement, pour maintenir l’intégrité du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, un intérêt public important à l’égard de la protection de la dignité devrait être considéré sérieusement menacé seulement dans des cas limités. Rien en l’espèce n’écarte le principe selon lequel le secret en matière de procédures judiciaires doit être exceptionnel. Ni la susceptibilité des gens ni le fait que la publicité soit désavantageuse, embarrassante ou pénible pour certaines personnes ne justifieront généralement, à eux seuls, une atteinte au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires (MacIntyre, p. 185; Nouveau-Brunswick, par. 40; Williams, par. 30; Coltsfoot Publishing Ltd. c. Foster-Jacques, 2012 NSCA 83, 320 N.S.R. (2d) 166, par. 97). Ces principes n’empêchent pas de reconnaître l’importance du caractère public d’un intérêt en matière de vie privée quand celui-ci est lié à la protection de la dignité. Ils obligent simplement à faire la preuve de l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt de manière à justifier, à titre exceptionnel, une restriction à la publicité des débats, comme c’est le cas pour tout intérêt public important au regard de l’arrêt Sierra Club. Comme l’expliquent les professeurs Sylvette Guillemard et Séverine Menétrey, « [l]a confidentialité des débats peut se justifier notamment pour protéger la vie privée des parties [. . .] La jurisprudence affirme cependant que l’embarras ou la honte ne sont pas des motifs suffisants pour ordonner le huis clos ou la non-publication » (Comprendre la procédure civile québécoise (2^e éd. 2017), p. 57).

[64] How should the privacy interest at issue be understood as raising an important public interest relevant to the test for discretionary limits on court openness in this context? It is helpful to recall that the orders below were sought to limit access to documents and information in the court files. The Trustees' argument on this point focused squarely on the risk of immediate and widespread dissemination of the personally identifying and other sensitive information contained in the sealed materials by the Toronto Star. The Trustees submit that this dissemination would constitute an unwarranted intrusion into the privacy of the affected individuals beyond the upset they have already suffered as a result of the publicity associated with the death of the Shermans.

[65] In my view, there is value in leaving individuals free to restrict when, how and to what extent highly sensitive information about them is communicated to others in the public sphere, because choosing how we present ourselves in public preserves our moral autonomy and dignity as individuals. This Court has had occasion to underscore the connection between the privacy interest engaged by open courts and the protection of dignity specifically. For example, in Edmonton Journal, Wilson J. noted that the impugned provision which would limit publication about matrimonial proceedings addressed "a somewhat different aspect of privacy, one more closely related to the protection of one's dignity . . . namely the personal anguish and loss of dignity that may result from having embarrassing details of one's private life printed in the newspapers" (pp. 1363-64). In Bragg, as a further example, the protection of a young person's ability to control sensitive information was said to foster respect for "dignity, personal integrity and autonomy" (para. 18, citing Toronto Star Newspaper Ltd., at para. 44).

[65] À mon avis, il est bon de laisser les personnes libres de fixer des limites quant à savoir à quel moment les renseignements très sensibles les concernant seront communiqués à d'autres personnes dans la sphère publique, et de quelle manière et dans quelle mesure ils le seront. En effet, en choisissant la manière dont on se présente en public, on protège son autonomie morale et sa dignité en tant que personne. La Cour a eu l'occasion de faire ressortir le lien entre l'intérêt en matière de vie privée mis en jeu par la tenue de procédures judiciaires publiques et la protection de la dignité plus particulièrement. Par exemple, dans l'arrêt Edmonton Journal, la juge Wilson a souligné que la disposition contestée, qui devait avoir pour effet de limiter la publication de détails sur des procédures matrimoniales, portait sur « un aspect un peu différent de la vie privée, un aspect qui se rapproche davantage de la protection de la dignité personnelle [. . .], c'est-à-dire l'angoisse et la perte de dignité personnelle qui peuvent résulter de la publication dans les journaux de détails gênants de la vie privée d'une personne » (p. 1363-1364). Citons comme autre exemple l'affaire Bragg, dans laquelle la protection de la capacité des jeunes à contrôler des renseignements sensibles avait été considérée comme favorisant le respect [TRADUCTION] « de leur dignité, de leur intégrité personnelle et de leur autonomie » (par. 18, citant Toronto Star Newspaper Ltd., par. 44).

[66] Consistent with this jurisprudence, I note by way of example that the Quebec legislature expressly highlighted the preservation of dignity when the Sierra Club test was codified in the Code of Civil Procedure, CQLR, c. C-25.01 (“C.C.P.”), art. 12 (see also Ministère de la Justice, Commentaires de la ministre de la Justice: Code de procédure civile, chapitre C-25.01 (2015), art. 12). Under art. 12 C.C.P., a discretionary exception to the open court principle can be made by the court if “public order, in particular the preservation of the dignity of the persons involved or the protection of substantial and legitimate interests”, requires it.

[67] The concept of public order evidences flexibility analogous to the concept of an important public interest under Sierra Club yet it recalls that the interest invoked transcends, in importance and consequence, the purely subjective sensibilities of the persons affected. Like the “important public interest” that must be at serious risk to justify the sealing orders in the present appeal, public order encompasses a wide array of general principles and imperative norms identified by a legislature and the courts as fundamental to a given society (see Goulet v. Transamerica Life Insurance Co. of Canada, 2002 SCC 21, [2002] 1 S.C.R. 719, at paras. 42-44, citing Godbout v. Longueuil (Ville de), [1995] R.J.Q. 2561 (C.A.), at p. 2570, aff’d [1997] 3 S.C.R. 844). As one Quebec judge wrote, referring to Sierra Club prior to the enactment of art. 12 C.C.P., the interest must be understood as defined [TRANSLATION] “in terms of a public interest in confidentiality” (see 3834310 Canada inc., at para. 24, per Gendreau J.A. for the Court of appeal). From among the various considerations that make up the concept of public order and other legitimate interests to which art. 12 C.C.P. alludes, it is significant that dignity, and not an untailored reference to either privacy, harm or access to justice, was given pride of place. Indeed, it is that narrow aspect of privacy considered to be a fundamental right that courts had fixed upon before the enactment of art. 12 C.C.P. — [TRANSLATION] “what is part of one’s personal life, in short, what constitutes a minimum personal sphere” (Godbout, at p. 2569, per Baudouin J.A.; see also A. v. B., 1990

[66] Conformément à cette jurisprudence, je relève, par exemple, que le législateur québécois a expressément fait ressortir la protection de la dignité lorsque le test énoncé dans l’arrêt Sierra Club a été codifié dans le Code de procédure civile, RLRQ, c. C-25.01 (« C.p.c. »), art. 12 (voir Ministère de la Justice, Commentaires de la ministre de la Justice : Code de procédure civile, chapitre C-25.01 (2015), art. 12). Selon l’art. 12 C.p.c., un tribunal peut faire exception de façon discrétionnaire au principe de la publicité si « l’ordre public, notamment la protection de la dignité des personnes concernées par une demande, ou la protection d’intérêts légitimes importants » l’exige.

[67] La notion d’ordre public témoigne d’une souplesse analogue à la notion d’intérêt public important suivant l’arrêt Sierra Club; elle rappelle pourtant que l’intérêt invoqué transcende, en ce qui a trait à son importance et à ses conséquences, la susceptibilité purement subjective des personnes touchées. Tout comme l’« intérêt public important » qui doit être sérieusement menacé pour justifier des ordonnances de mise sous scellés dans le présent pourvoi, l’ordre public englobe un large éventail de principes généraux et de normes impératives qu’un législateur et les tribunaux considèrent comme fondamentaux pour une société donnée (voir Goulet c. Cie d’Assurance-Vie Transamerica du Canada, 2002 CSC 21, [2002] 1 R.C.S. 719, par. 42-44, citant Godbout c. Longueuil (Ville de), [1995] R.J.Q. 2561 (C.A.), p. 2570, conf. par [1997] 3 R.C.S. 844). Comme l’a écrit un juge québécois en renvoyant à l’arrêt Sierra Club avant l’adoption de l’art. 12 C.p.c., l’intérêt doit être considéré comme étant défini « en termes d’intérêt public à la confidentialité » (voir 3834310 Canada inc., par. 24, le juge Gendreau s’exprimant au nom de la Cour d’appel). Parmi les diverses considérations qui composent la notion d’ordre public et d’autres intérêts légitimes évoqués par l’art. 12 C.p.c., il est significatif que la dignité, et non une référence générale à la vie privée, au préjudice ou à l’accès à la justice, se soit vu accorder une place de choix. En effet, c’est cet aspect restreint de la vie privée considéré comme un droit fondamental que les tribunaux ont retenu avant l’adoption de l’art. 12 C.p.c. — « ce qui fait partie de la vie intime de la personne, bref ce qui constitue un CanLII 3132 (Que. C.A.), at para. 20, per Rothman J.A.).

[68] The “preservation of the dignity of the persons involved” is now consecrated as the archetypal public order interest in art. 12 C.C.P. It is the exemplar of the Sierra Club important public interest in confidentiality that stands as justification for an exception to openness (S. Rochette and J.-F. Côté, “Article 12”, in L. Chamberland, ed., Le grand collectif: Code de procédure civile — Commentaires et annotations (5th ed. 2020), vol. 1, at p. 102; D. Ferland and B. Emery, Précis de procédure civile du Québec (6th ed. 2020), vol. 1, at para. 1-111). Dignity gives concrete expression to this public order interest because all of society has a stake in its preservation, notwithstanding its personal connections to the individuals concerned. This codification of Sierra Club’s notion of important public interest highlights the superordinate importance of human dignity and the appropriateness of limiting court openness on this basis as against an overbroad understanding of privacy that might be otherwise unsuitable to the open court context.

[69] Consistent with this idea, understanding privacy as predicated on dignity has been advanced as useful in connection with challenges brought by digital communications (K. Eltis, “The Judicial System in the Digital Age: Revisiting the Relationship between Privacy and Accessibility in the Cyber Context” (2011), 56 McGill L.J. 289, at p. 314).

[70] It is also significant, in my view, that the application judge in this case explicitly recognized, in response to the relevant arguments from the Trustees, an interest in “protecting the privacy and dignity of victims of crime and their loved ones” (para. 23 (emphasis added)). This elucidates that the central concern for the affected individuals on this point is not merely protecting their privacy for its own sake but privacy where it coincides with the public character of the dignity interests of these individuals.

cercle personnel irréductible » (Godbout, p. 2569, le juge Baudouin; voir également A. c. B., 1990 CanLII 3132 (C.A. Qc), par. 20, le juge Rothman).

[68] La « protection de la dignité des personnes concernées » est désormais consacrée comme l’archétype de l’intérêt d’ordre public à l’art. 12 C.p.c. C’est le modèle de l’intérêt public important à la confidentialité de Sierra Club qui sert à justifier une exception à la publicité des débats (S. Rochette et J.-F. Côté, « Article 12 », dans L. Chamberland, dir., Le grand collectif: Code de procédure civile — Commentaires et annotations (5^e éd. 2020), vol. 1, p. 102; D. Ferland et B. Emery, Précis de procédure civile du Québec (6^e éd. 2020), vol. 1, par. 1-111). La dignité donne une expression concrète à cet intérêt d’ordre public parce que toute la société a intérêt à ce qu’elle soit protégée, malgré ses liens personnels avec les personnes touchées. Cette codification de la notion d’intérêt public important de Sierra Club souligne l’importance primordiale de la dignité humaine et la pertinence de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires sur ce fondement au lieu de donner une interprétation trop large à la vie privée qui pourrait par ailleurs ne pas convenir au contexte de la publicité des débats.

[69] Dans le même ordre d’idée, on a fait valoir qu’il est utile de considérer que la vie privée se fonde sur la dignité dans le contexte des défis que posent les communications numériques (K. Eltis, « The Judicial System in the Digital Age : Revisiting the Relationship between Privacy and Accessibility in the Cyber Context » (2011), 56 R.D. McGill 289, p. 314).

[70] Il est également significatif, à mon avis, que le juge de première instance en l’espèce ait explicitement reconnu, en réponse aux arguments pertinents des fiduciaires, un intérêt à [TRADUCTION] « la protection de la vie privée et de la dignité des victimes d’actes criminels ainsi que de leurs êtres chers » (par. 23 (je souligne)). Cela montre clairement que la préoccupation centrale des personnes touchées à cet égard n’est pas simplement de protéger leur vie privée en tant que telle, mais bien de protéger leur vie privée là où elle coïncide avec le caractère public de leurs intérêts en matière de dignité.

[71] Violations of privacy that cause a loss of control over fundamental personal information about oneself are damaging to dignity because they erode one's ability to present aspects of oneself to others in a selective manner (D. Matheson, "Dignity and Selective Self-Presentation", in I. Kerr, V. Steeves and C. Lucock, eds., Lessons from the Identity Trail: Anonymity, Privacy and Identity in a Networked Society (2009), 319, at pp. 327-28; L. M. Austin, "Re-reading Westin" (2019), 20 Theor. Inq. L. 53, at pp. 66-68; Eltis (2016), at p. 13). Dignity, used in this context, is a social concept that involves presenting core aspects of oneself to others in a considered and controlled manner (see generally Matheson, at pp. 327-28; Austin, at pp. 66-68). Dignity is eroded where individuals lose control over this core identity-giving information about themselves, because a highly sensitive aspect of who they are that they did not consciously decide to share is now available to others and may shape how they are seen in public. This was even alluded to by La Forest J., dissenting but not on this point, in Dagg, where he referred to privacy as "[a]n expression of an individual's unique personality or personhood" (para. 65).

[72] Where dignity is impaired, the impact on the individual is not theoretical but could engender real human consequences, including psychological distress (see generally Bragg, at para. 23). La Forest J., concurring, observed in Dyment that privacy is essential to the well-being of individuals (p. 427). Viewed in this way, a privacy interest, where it shields the core information associated with dignity necessary to individual well-being, begins to look much like the physical safety interest also raised in this case, the important and public nature of which is neither debated, nor, in my view, seriously debatable. The administration of justice suffers when the operation of courts threatens physical well-being because a responsible court system is attuned to the physical harm it inflicts on individuals and works to avoid such effects. Similarly, in my view, a responsible [71] Les atteintes à la vie privée qui entraînent une perte de contrôle à l'égard de renseignements personnels fondamentaux peuvent porter préjudice à la dignité d'une personne, car elles minent sa capacité à présenter de manière sélective certains aspects de sa personne aux autres (D. Matheson, « Dignity and Selective Self-Presentation », dans I. Kerr, V. Steeves et C. Lucock, dir., Lessons from the Identity Trail : Anonymity, Privacy and Identity in a Networked Society (2009), 319, p. 327-328; L. M. Austin, « Re-reading Westin » (2019), 20 Theor. Inq. L. 53, p. 66-68; Eltis (2016), p. 13). La dignité, employée dans ce contexte, est un concept social qui consiste à présenter des aspects fondamentaux de soi-même aux autres de manière réfléchie et contrôlée (voir de manière générale Matheson, p. 327-328; Austin, p. 66-68). La dignité est minée lorsque les personnes perdent le contrôle sur la possibilité de fournir des renseignements sur elles-mêmes qui touchent leur identité fondamentale, car un aspect très sensible de qui elles sont qu'elles n'ont pas décidé consciemment de communiquer est désormais accessible à autrui et risque de façonner la manière dont elles sont perçues en public. Cela a même été évoqué par le juge La Forest, dissident mais non sur ce point, dans l'arrêt Dagg, lorsqu'il a parlé de la notion de vie privée comme « [é]tant l'expression de la personnalité ou de l'identité unique d'une personne » (par. 65).

[72] En cas d'atteinte à la dignité, l'incidence sur la personne n'est pas théorique, mais pourrait entraîner des conséquences humaines réelles, y compris une détresse psychologique (voir de manière générale Bragg, par. 23). Dans l'arrêt Dyment, le juge La Forest a fait remarquer dans ses motifs concordants que la notion de vie privée est essentielle au bien-être d'une personne (p. 427). Vu sous cet angle, un intérêt en matière de vie privée, lorsqu'il protège les renseignements fondamentaux associés à la dignité qui est nécessaire au bien-être d'une personne, commence à ressembler beaucoup à l'intérêt relatif à la sécurité physique également soulevé en l'espèce, dont la nature importante et publique n'est pas débattue, et n'est pas non plus, selon moi, sérieusement discutable. Lorsque le fonctionnement des tribunaux menace le bien-être physique d'une court must be attuned and responsive to the harm it causes to other core elements of individual well-being, including individual dignity. This parallel helps to understand dignity as a more limited dimension of privacy relevant as an important public interest in the open court context.

[73] I am accordingly of the view that protecting individuals from the threat to their dignity that arises when information revealing core aspects of their private lives is disseminated through open court proceedings is an important public interest for the purposes of the test.

[74] Focusing on the underlying value of privacy in protecting individual dignity from the exposure of private information in open court overcomes the criticisms that privacy will always be at risk in open court proceedings and is theoretically complex. Openness brings intrusions on personal privacy in virtually all cases, but dignity as a public interest in protecting an individual's core sensibility is more rarely in play. Specifically, and consistent with the cautious approach to the recognition of important public interests, this privacy interest, while determined in reference to the broader factual setting, will be at serious risk only where the sensitivity of the information strikes at the subject's more intimate self.

[75] If the interest is ultimately about safeguarding a person's dignity, that interest will be undermined when the information reveals something sensitive about them as an individual, as opposed to generic information that reveals little if anything about who they are as a person. Therefore the information that will be revealed by court openness must consist of personne, l'administration de la justice en souffre, car un système judiciaire responsable est sensible aux dommages physiques qu'il inflige aux individus et s'efforce d'éviter de tels effets. De même, j'estime qu'un tribunal responsable doit être sensible et attentif aux dommages qu'il cause à d'autres éléments fondamentaux du bien-être individuel, notamment la dignité individuelle. Ce parallèle aide à comprendre que la dignité est une dimension plus limitée de la vie privée, pertinente en tant qu'intérêt public important dans le contexte de la publicité des débats judiciaires.

[74] Insister sur la valeur sous-jacente de la vie privée lorsqu'il s'agit de protéger la dignité d'une personne de la diffusion de renseignements privés dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics permet de surmonter les critiques selon lesquelles la vie privée sera toujours menacée dans un tel cadre et constitue une notion théoriquement complexe. La publicité des débats donne lieu à des atteintes à la vie privée personnelle dans presque tous les cas, mais la dignité en tant qu'intérêt public dans la protection de la sensibilité fondamentale d'une personne entre plus rarement en jeu. Plus précisément, et conformément à l'approche prudente servant à reconnaître des intérêts publics importants, cet intérêt en matière de vie privée, bien qu'il soit déterminé par rapport au contexte factuel plus large, ne sera sérieusement menacé que lorsque le caractère sensible des renseignements touche à l'aspect le plus intime de la personne.

[75] S'il porte essentiellement sur la protection de la dignité d'une personne, cet intérêt sera miné dans le cas de renseignements qui révèlent quelque chose de sensible sur elle en tant qu'individu, par opposition à des renseignements d'ordre général révélant peu ou rien sur ce qu'elle est en tant que personne. Par conséquent, les renseignements qui intimate or personal details about an individual — what this Court has described in its jurisprudence on s. 8 of the Charter as the “biographical core” — if a serious risk to an important public interest is to be recognized in this context (R. v. Plant, [1993] 3 S.C.R. 281, at p. 293; R. v. Tessling, 2004 SCC 67, [2004] 3 S.C.R. 432, at para. 60; R. v. Cole, 2012 SCC 53, [2012] 3 S.C.R. 34, at para. 46). Dignity transcends personal inconvenience by reason of the highly sensitive nature of the information that might be revealed. This Court in Cole drew a similar line between the sensitivity of personal information and the public interest in protecting that information in reference to the biographical core. It held that “reasonable and informed Canadians” would be more willing to recognize the existence of a privacy interest where the relevant information cuts to the “biographical core” or, “[p]ut another way, the more personal and confidential the information” (para. 46). The presumption of openness means that mere discomfort associated with lesser intrusions of privacy will generally be tolerated. But there is a public interest in ensuring that openness does not unduly entail the dissemination of this core information that threatens dignity — even if it is “personal” to the affected person.

[76] The test for discretionary limits on court openness imposes on the applicant the burden to show that the important public interest is at serious risk. Recognizing that privacy, understood in reference to dignity, is only at serious risk where the information in the court file is sufficiently sensitive erects a threshold consistent with the presumption of openness. This threshold is fact specific. It addresses the concern, noted above, that personal information can frequently be found in court files and yet finding this sufficient to pass the serious risk threshold in every case would undermine the structure of the test. By requiring the applicant to demonstrate the sensitivity seront révélés en raison de la publicité des débats judiciaires doivent être constitués de détails intimes ou personnels concernant une personne — ce que notre Cour a décrit, dans sa jurisprudence relative à l’art. 8 de la Charte, comme le cœur même des « renseignements biographiques » — pour qu’un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important soit reconnu dans ce contexte (R. c. Plant, [1993] 3 R.C.S. 281, p. 293; R. c. Tessling, 2004 CSC 67, [2004] 3 R.C.S. 432, par. 60; R. c. Cole, 2012 CSC 53, [2012] 3 R.C.S. 34, par. 46). La dignité transcende les inconvénients personnels en raison de la nature très sensible des renseignements qui pourraient être révélés. Notre Cour a tracé dans l’arrêt Cole une ligne de démarcation similaire entre le caractère sensible des renseignements personnels et l’intérêt du public à protéger ces renseignements en ce qui a trait au cœur même des renseignements biographiques. Elle a conclu que « les Canadiens raisonnables et bien informés » seraient plus disposés à reconnaître l’existence d’un intérêt en matière de vie privée lorsque les renseignements pertinents concernent le cœur même des « renseignements biographiques » ou, « [a]utrement dit, plus les renseignements sont personnels et confidentiels » (par. 46). La présomption de publicité des débats signifie que le simple désagrément associé à des atteintes moindres à la vie privée sera généralement toléré. Cependant, il est dans l’intérêt public de veiller à ce que cette publicité n’entraîne pas indûment la diffusion de ces renseignements fondamentaux qui menacent la dignité — même s’ils sont « personnels » pour la personne touchée.

[76] Selon le test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires, il incombe au demandeur de démontrer que l’intérêt public important est sérieusement menacé. Reconnaître que la vie privée, considérée au regard de la dignité, n’est sérieusement menacée que lorsque les renseignements contenus dans le dossier judiciaire sont suffisamment sensibles permet d’établir un seuil compatible avec la présomption de publicité des débats. Ce seuil est tributaire des faits. Il répond à la préoccupation, mentionnée précédemment, portant que les dossiers judiciaires comportent fréquemment des renseignements personnels, mais conclure que cela suffit à franchir le of the information as a necessary condition to the finding of a serious risk to this interest, the scope of the interest is limited to only those cases where the rationale for not revealing core aspects of a person's private life, namely protecting individual dignity, is most actively engaged.

[77] There is no need here to provide an exhaustive catalogue of the range of sensitive personal information that, if exposed, could give rise to a serious risk. It is enough to say that courts have demonstrated a willingness to recognize the sensitivity of information related to stigmatized medical conditions (see, e.g., A.B., at para. 9), stigmatized work (see, e.g., Work Safe Twerk Safe v. Her Majesty the Queen in Right of Ontario, 2021 ONSC 1100, at para. 28 (CanLII)), sexual orientation (see, e.g., Paterson, at paras. 76, 78 and 87-88), and subjection to sexual assault or harassment (see, e.g., Fedeli v. Brown, 2020 ONSC 994, at para. 9 (CanLII)). I would also note the submission of the intervener the Income Security Advocacy Centre, that detailed information about family structure and work history could in some circumstances constitute sensitive information. The question in every case is whether the information reveals something intimate and personal about the individual, their lifestyle or their experiences.

[78] I pause here to note that I refer to cases on s. 8 of the Charter above for the limited purpose of providing insight into types of information that are more or less personal and therefore deserving of public protection. If the impact on dignity as a result of disclosure is to be accurately measured, it is critical that the analysis differentiate between information in this way. Helpfully, one factor in determining whether an applicant's subjective expectation of privacy is objectively reasonable in the s. 8 jurisprudence focuses seuil du risque sérieux dans tous les cas mettrait en péril la structure du test. Exiger du demandeur qu'il démontre le caractère sensible des renseignements comme condition nécessaire à la conclusion d'un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt a pour effet de limiter le champ d'application de l'intérêt aux seuls cas où la justification de la non-divulgaration des aspects fondamentaux de la vie privée d'une personne, à savoir la protection de la dignité individuelle, est fortement en jeu.

[77] Il n'est aucunement nécessaire en l'espèce de fournir une liste exhaustive de l'étendue des renseignements personnels sensibles qui, s'ils étaient diffusés, pourraient entraîner un risque sérieux. Qu'il suffise de dire que les tribunaux ont démontré la volonté de reconnaître le caractère sensible des renseignements liés à des problèmes de santé stigmatisés (voir, p. ex., A.B., par. 9), à un travail stigmatisé (voir, p. ex., Work Safe Twerk Safe c. Her Majesty the Queen in Right of Ontario, 2021 ONSC 1100, par. 28 (CanLII)), à l'orientation sexuelle (voir, p. ex., Paterson, par. 76, 78 et 87-88), et au fait d'avoir été victime d'agression sexuelle ou de harcèlement (voir, p. ex., Fedeli c. Brown, 2020 ONSC 994, par. 9 (CanLII)). Je prends acte également de l'observation du Centre d'action pour la sécurité du revenu, intervenant, selon laquelle des renseignements détaillés quant à la structure familiale et aux antécédents professionnels pourraient, dans certaines circonstances, constituer des renseignements sensibles. Dans chaque cas, il faut se demander si les renseignements révèlent quelque chose d'intime et de personnel sur la personne, son mode de vie ou ses expériences.

[78] Je marque ici un temps d'arrêt pour souligner que je renvoie ci-dessus aux décisions relatives à l'art. 8 de la Charte à seule fin de donner une idée des types de renseignements qui sont plus ou moins personnels et qui méritent donc une protection publique. Pour mesurer avec précision l'incidence de la divulgation sur la dignité, il est essentiel que l'analyse différencie ainsi les renseignements. Ce qui est utile, c'est que l'un des facteurs permettant de déterminer si l'attente subjective d'un demandeur en on the degree to which information is private (see, e.g., R. v. Marakah, 2017 SCC 59, [2017] 2 S.C.R. 608, at para. 31; Cole, at paras. 44-46). But while these decisions may assist for this limited purpose, this is not to say that the remainder of the s. 8 analysis has any relevance to the application of the test for discretionary limits on court openness. For example, asking what the Trustees' reasonable expectation of privacy was here could invite a circular analysis of whether they reasonably expected their court files to be open to the public or whether they reasonably expected to be successful in having them sealed. Therefore, it is only for the limited purpose described above that the s. 8 jurisprudence is useful.

[79] In cases where the information is sufficiently sensitive to strike at an individual's biographical core, a court must then ask whether a serious risk to the interest is made out in the full factual context of the case. While this is obviously a fact-specific determination, some general observations may be made here to guide this assessment.

[80] I note that the seriousness of the risk may be affected by the extent to which information would be disseminated without an exception to the open court principle. If the applicant raises a risk that the personal information will come to be known by a large segment of the public in the absence of an order, this is a plainly more serious risk than if the result will be that a handful of people become aware of the same information, all else being equal. In the past, the requirement that one be physically present to acquire information in open court or from a court record meant that information was, to some extent, protected because it was "practically obscure" (D. S. Ardia, "Privacy and Court Records: Online Access and the Loss of Practical Obscurity" (2017), 4 U. Ill. L. Rev. 1385, at p. 1396). However, today, matière de vie privée est objectivement raisonnable dans la jurisprudence relative à l'art. 8 met l'accent sur la mesure dans laquelle les renseignements sont privés (voir, p. ex., R. c. Marakah, 2017 CSC 59, [2017] 2 R.C.S. 608, par. 31; Cole, par. 44-46). Cependant, bien que la consultation de ces décisions puisse être avantageuse à cette fin précise, cela ne veut pas dire que le reste de l'analyse relative à l'art. 8 est pertinent pour l'application du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats. Par exemple, demander aux fiduciaires quelle était leur attente raisonnable en matière de vie privée en l'espèce pourrait entraîner une analyse circulaire visant à déterminer s'ils s'attendaient raisonnablement à ce que leurs dossiers judiciaires soient accessibles au public ou s'ils s'attendaient raisonnablement à réussir à obtenir leur mise sous scellés. En conséquence, la jurisprudence relative à l'art. 8 n'est utile qu'à la fin décrite ci-dessus.

[80] Je souligne que la mesure dans laquelle les renseignements seraient diffusés en l'absence d'une exception au principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires peut avoir une incidence sur le caractère sérieux du risque. Si le demandeur invoque le risque que les renseignements personnels en viennent à être connus par un large segment de la population en l'absence d'une ordonnance, il s'agit manifestement d'un risque plus sérieux que si le résultat était qu'une poignée de personnes prendrait connaissance des mêmes renseignements, toutes autres choses étant égales par ailleurs. Par le passé, l'obligation d'être physiquement présent pour obtenir des renseignements dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics ou à partir d'un dossier judiciaire signifiait que les renseignements étaient, dans une certaine courts should be sensitive to the information technology context, which has increased the ease with which information can be communicated and cross-referenced (see Bailey and Burkell, at pp. 169-70; Ardia, at pp. 1450-51). In this context, it may well be difficult for courts to be sure that information will not be broadly disseminated in the absence of an order.

[81] It will be appropriate, of course, to consider the extent to which information is already in the public domain. If court openness will simply make available what is already broadly and easily accessible, it will be difficult to show that revealing the information in open court will actually result in a meaningful loss of that aspect of privacy relating to the dignity interest to which I refer here. However, just because information is already accessible to some segment of the public does not mean that making it available through the court process will not exacerbate the risk to privacy. Privacy is not a binary concept, that is, information is not simply either private or public, especially because, by reason of technology in particular, absolute confidentiality is best thought of as elusive (see generally R. v. Quesnelle, 2014 SCC 46, [2014] 2 S.C.R. 390, at para. 37; UFCW, at para. 27). The fact that certain information is already available somewhere in the public sphere does not preclude further harm to the privacy interest by additional dissemination, particularly if the feared dissemination of highly sensitive information is broader or more easily accessible (see generally Solove, at p. 1152; Ardia, at p. 1393-94; E. Paton-Simpson, “Privacy and the Reasonable Paranoid: The Protection of Privacy in Public Places” (2000), 50 U.T.L.J. 305, at p. 346).

mesure, protégés parce qu’ils n’étaient [TRADUCTION] « pratiquement pas connus » (D. S. Ardia, « Privacy and Court Records : Online Access and the Loss of Practical Obscurity » (2017), 4 U. Ill. L. Rev. 1385, p. 1396). Cependant, aujourd’hui, les tribunaux devraient prendre en considération le contexte des technologies de l’information, qui a facilité la communication de renseignements et le renvoi à ceux-ci (voir Bailey et Burkell, p. 169-170; Ardia, p. 1450-1451). Dans ce contexte, il peut fort bien être difficile pour les tribunaux d’avoir la certitude que les renseignements ne seront pas largement diffusés en l’absence d’une ordonnance.

[81] Il y aura lieu, bien sûr, d’examiner la mesure dans laquelle les renseignements font déjà partie du domaine public. Si la tenue de procédures judiciaires publiques ne fait que rendre accessibles ce qui est déjà largement et facilement accessible, il sera difficile de démontrer que la divulgation des renseignements dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics entraînera effectivement une atteinte significative à cet aspect de la vie privée se rapportant à l’intérêt en matière de dignité auquel je fais référence en l’espèce. Cependant, le seul fait que des renseignements soient déjà accessibles à un segment de la population ne signifie pas que les rendre accessibles dans le cadre d’une procédure judiciaire n’exacerbera pas le risque pour la vie privée. La vie privée n’est pas une notion binaire, c’est-à-dire que les renseignements ne sont pas simplement soit privés, soit publics, d’autant plus que, en raison de la technologie en particulier, il vaut mieux considérer la confidentialité absolue comme difficile à atteindre (voir, de manière générale, R. c. Quesnelle, 2014 CSC 46, [2014] 2 R.C.S. 390, par. 37; TTUAC, par. 27). Le fait que certains renseignements soient déjà accessibles quelque part dans la sphère publique n’empêche pas qu’une diffusion additionnelle de ceux-ci puisse nuire davantage à l’intérêt en matière de vie privée, en particulier si la diffusion appréhendée de renseignements très sensibles est plus large ou d’accès plus facile (voir de manière générale Solove, p. 1152; Ardia, p. 1393-1394; E. Paton-Simpson, « Privacy and the Reasonable Paranoid : The Protection of Privacy in Public Places » (2000), 50 U.T.L.J. 305, p. 346).

[82] Further, the seriousness of the risk is also affected by the probability that the dissemination the applicant suggests will occur actually occurs. I hasten to say that implicit in the notion of risk is that the applicant need not establish that the feared dissemination will certainly occur. However, the risk to the privacy interest related to the protection of dignity will be more serious the more likely it is that the information will be disseminated. While decided in a different context, this Court has held that the magnitude of risk is a product of both the gravity of the feared harm and its probability (R. v. Mabior, 2012 SCC 47, [2012] 2 S.C.R. 584, at para. 86).

[83] That said, the likelihood that an individual's highly sensitive personal information will be disseminated in the absence of privacy protection will be difficult to quantify precisely. It is best to note as well that probability in this context need not be identified in mathematical or numerical terms. Rather, courts may merely discern probability in light of the totality of the circumstances and balance this one factor alongside other relevant factors.

[84] Finally, and as discussed above, individual sensitivities alone, even if they can be notionally associated with "privacy", are generally insufficient to justify a restriction on court openness where they do not rise above those inconveniences and discomforts that are inherent to court openness (MacIntyre, at p. 185). An applicant will only be able to establish that the risk is sufficient to justify a limit on openness in exceptional cases, where the threatened loss of control over information about oneself is so fundamental that it strikes meaningfully at individual dignity. These circumstances engage "social values of superordinate importance" beyond the more ordinary intrusions inherent to participating in the judicial process that Dickson J. acknowledged could justify curtailing public openness (pp. 186-87).

[82] De plus, la probabilité que la diffusion évoquée par le demandeur se produise réellement a également une incidence sur le caractère sérieux du risque. Je m'empresse de dire qu'il est implicite dans la notion de risque que le demandeur n'a pas besoin d'établir que la diffusion appréhendée se produira assurément. Cependant, plus la probabilité de diffusion des renseignements est grande, plus le risque pour l'intérêt en matière de vie privée lié à la protection de la dignité sera sérieux. Bien qu'elle l'ait fait dans un contexte différent, la Cour a déjà conclu que l'ampleur du risque est le fruit de la gravité du préjudice appréhendé et de sa probabilité (R. c. Mabior, 2012 CSC 47, [2012] 2 R.C.S. 584, par. 86).

[84] Enfin, rappelons que la susceptibilité individuelle à elle seule, même si elle peut théoriquement être associée à la notion de « vie privée », est généralement insuffisante pour justifier de restreindre la publicité des débats judiciaires lorsqu'elle ne surpasse pas les inconvénients et les désagréments inhérents à la publicité des débats (MacIntyre, p. 185). Un demandeur ne pourra établir que le risque est suffisant pour justifier une limite à la publicité des débats que dans des cas exceptionnels, lorsque la perte de contrôle appréhendée des renseignements le concernant est fondamentale au point de porter atteinte de manière significative à sa dignité individuelle. Ces circonstances mettent en jeu « des valeurs sociales qui ont préséance », qui vont au-delà des atteintes plus ordinaires propres à la participation à une procédure judiciaire et qui, comme l'a reconnu le juge Dickson, pourraient justifier de restreindre la publicité des débats (p. 186-187).

[85] To summarize, the important public interest in privacy, as understood in the context of the limits on court openness, is aimed at allowing individuals to preserve control over their core identity in the public sphere to the extent necessary to preserve their dignity. The public has a stake in openness, to be sure, but it also has an interest in the preservation of dignity: the administration of justice requires that where dignity is threatened in this way, measures be taken to accommodate this privacy concern. Although measured by reference to the facts of each case, the risk to this interest will be serious only where the information that would be disseminated as a result of court openness is sufficiently sensitive such that openness can be shown to meaningfully strike at the individual's biographical core in a manner that threatens their integrity. Recognizing this interest is consistent with this Court's emphasis on the importance of privacy and the underlying value of individual dignity, but is also tailored to preserve the strong presumption of openness.

D. The Trustees Have Failed to Establish a Serious Risk to an Important Public Interest

[86] As Sierra Club made plain, a discretionary order limiting court openness can only be made where there is a serious risk to an important public interest. The arguments on this appeal concerned whether privacy is an important public interest and whether the facts here disclose the existence of serious risks to privacy and safety. While the broad privacy interest invoked by the Trustees cannot be relied on to justify a limit on openness, the narrower concept of privacy understood in relation to dignity is an important public interest for the purposes of the test. I also recognize that a risk to physical safety is an important public interest, a point on which there is no dispute here. Accordingly, the relevant question at the first step is whether there is a serious risk to one or both of these interests. For reasons that follow, the Trustees have failed to establish a serious risk to [85] En résumé, l'intérêt public important en matière de vie privée, tel qu'il est considéré dans le contexte des limites à la publicité des débats, vise à permettre aux personnes de garder un contrôle sur leur identité fondamentale dans la sphère publique dans la mesure nécessaire pour protéger leur dignité. Le public a certainement un intérêt dans la publicité des débats, mais il a aussi un intérêt dans la protection de la dignité : l'administration de la justice exige que, lorsque la dignité est menacée de cette façon, des mesures puissent être prises pour tenir compte de cette préoccupation en matière de vie privée. Bien qu'il soit évalué en fonction des faits de chaque cas, le risque pour cet intérêt ne sera sérieux que lorsque les renseignements qui seraient diffusés en raison de la publicité des débats judiciaires sont suffisamment sensibles pour que l'on puisse démontrer que la publicité porte atteinte de façon significative au cœur même des renseignements biographiques de la personne d'une manière qui menace son intégrité. La reconnaissance de cet intérêt est conforme à l'accent mis par la Cour sur l'importance de la vie privée et de la valeur sous-jacente de la dignité individuelle, tout en permettant aussi de maintenir la forte présomption de publicité des débats.

D. Les fiduciaires n'ont pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important

[86] Comme il a été clairement indiqué dans Sierra Club, une ordonnance discrétionnaire ayant pour effet de limiter la publicité des débats judiciaires ne peut être rendue qu'en présence d'un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important. Les arguments soulevés dans le présent pourvoi portaient sur la question de savoir si la vie privée constitue un intérêt public important et si les faits en l'espèce révèlent l'existence de risques sérieux pour la vie privée et la sécurité. Bien que le large intérêt en matière de vie privée que font valoir les fiduciaires ne puisse être invoqué pour justifier une limite à la publicité des débats, la notion plus restreinte de vie privée considérée au regard de la dignité constitue un intérêt public important pour l'application du test. Je reconnais aussi qu'un risque pour la sécurité physique représente un intérêt public important, un point qui n'est pas either. This alone is sufficient to conclude that the sealing orders should not have been issued.

(1) The Risk to Privacy Alleged in this Case Is Not Serious

[87] As I have said, the important public interest in privacy must be understood as one tailored to the protection of individual dignity and not the broadly defined interest the Trustees have asked this Court to recognize. In order to establish a serious risk to this interest, the information in the court files about which the Trustees are concerned must be sufficiently sensitive in that it strikes at the biographical core of the affected individuals. If it is not, there is no serious risk that would justify an exception to openness. If it is, the question becomes whether a serious risk is made out in light of the facts of this case.

[88] The application judge never explicitly identified a serious risk to the privacy interest he identified but, to the extent he implicitly reached this conclusion, I respectfully do not share his view. His finding was limited to the observation that “[t]he degree of intrusion on that privacy and dignity [i.e., that of the victims and their loved ones] has already been extreme and, I am sure, excruciating” (para. 23). But the intense scrutiny faced by the Shermans up to the time of the application is only part of the equation. As the sealing orders can only protect against the disclosure of the information in these court files relating to probate, the application judge was required to consider the sensitivity of the specific information they contained. He made no such measure. His conclusion about the seriousness of the risk then focused entirely on the risk of physical harm, with contesté en l’espèce. Par conséquent, la question pertinente à la première étape est celle de savoir s’il existe un risque sérieux pour l’un de ces intérêts ou pour ces deux intérêts. Pour les motifs qui suivent, les fiduciaires n’ont pas établi l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour l’un ou l’autre de ces intérêts. Cela suffit en soi pour conclure que les ordonnances de mise sous scellés n’auraient pas dû être rendues.

(1) Le risque pour la vie privée allégué en l’espèce n’est pas sérieux

[87] Comme je l’ai déjà dit, l’intérêt public important en matière de vie privée doit être considéré comme un intérêt propre à la protection de la dignité individuelle et non comme l’intérêt largement défini que les fiduciaires ont demandé à la Cour de reconnaître. Pour établir l’existence d’un risque sérieux à l’égard de cet intérêt, les renseignements contenus dans les dossiers judiciaires qui préoccupent les fiduciaires doivent être suffisamment sensibles du fait qu’ils touchent au cœur même des renseignements biographiques des personnes touchées. Si ce n’est pas le cas, il n’y a pas de risque sérieux qui justifierait une exception à la publicité des débats. Si, par contre, c’est le cas, il faut alors se demander si les faits de l’espèce permettent d’établir l’existence d’un risque sérieux.

[88] Le juge de première instance n’a jamais explicitement constaté de risque sérieux pour l’intérêt en matière de vie privée qu’il a relevé, mais, dans la mesure où il est implicitement arrivé à cette conclusion, je ne puis, en toute déférence, partager son point de vue. Sa conclusion se limitait à l’observation selon laquelle [TRADUCTION] « [l]e degré d’atteinte à cette vie privée et à cette dignité [c.-à-d. celle des victimes et de leurs êtres chers] est déjà extrême et, j’en suis sûr, insoutenable » (par. 23). Cependant, l’attention intense dont les Shermans ont fait l’objet jusqu’à la présentation de leur demande n’est qu’une partie de l’équation. Comme les ordonnances de mise sous scellés ne peuvent qu’offrir une protection contre la divulgation des renseignements contenus dans les dossiers judiciaires se rapportant à l’homologation, le juge de première instance était tenu d’examiner le no indication that he found that the Trustees met their burden as to the serious risk to the privacy interest. Said very respectfully and with the knowledge that the application judge did not have the benefit of the above framework, the failure to assess the sensitivity of the information constituted a failure to consider a required element of the legal test. This warranted intervention on appeal.

[89] Applying the appropriate framework to the facts of this case, I conclude that the risk to the important public interest in the affected individuals' privacy, as I have defined it above in reference to dignity, is not serious. The information the Trustees seek to protect is not highly sensitive and this alone is sufficient to conclude that there is no serious risk to the important public interest in privacy so defined.

[90] There is little controversy in this case about the likelihood and extent of dissemination of the information contained in the estate files. There is near certainty that the Toronto Star will publish at least some aspects of the estate files if it is provided access. Given the breadth of the audience of its media organization, and the high-profile nature of the events surrounding the death of the Shermans, I have no difficulty in concluding that the affected individuals would lose control over this information to a significant extent should the files be open.

[91] With regard to the sensitivity of the information, however, the information contained in these files does not reveal anything particularly private about the affected individuals. What would be revealed might well cause inconvenience and perhaps embarrassment, but it has not been shown that it would strike at their biographical core in a way that caractère sensible des renseignements précis qu'ils contenaient. Or, il n'a pas procédé à une telle appréciation. Sa conclusion sur le caractère sérieux du risque s'est alors entièrement concentrée sur le risque de préjudice physique, alors que rien n'indiquait qu'il avait conclu que les fiduciaires s'étaient acquittés de leur fardeau quant à la démonstration d'un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt en matière de vie privée. En toute déférence, et en sachant qu'il ne disposait pas du cadre d'analyse précédemment exposé, j'estime qu'en n'examinant pas le caractère sensible des renseignements, le juge de première instance a omis de se pencher sur un élément nécessaire du test juridique. Cela justifiait une intervention en appel.

[90] Il y a peu de controverse en l'espèce sur la probabilité de diffusion des renseignements contenus dans les dossiers de succession et sur l'étendue de cette diffusion. Il est presque certain que le Toronto Star publiera au moins certains aspects des dossiers de succession si on lui en donne l'accès. Compte tenu de l'important auditoire de l'entreprise médiatique en cause et de la nature très médiatisée des événements entourant la mort des Sherman, je n'ai aucune difficulté à conclure que les personnes touchées perdraient, dans une large mesure, le contrôle des renseignements en question si les dossiers étaient rendus accessibles.

would undermine their control over the expression of their identities. Their privacy would be troubled, to be sure, but the relevant privacy interest bearing on the dignity of the affected persons has not been shown to be at serious risk. At its highest, the information in these files will reveal something about the relationship between the deceased and the affected individuals, in that it may reveal to whom the deceased entrusted the administration of their estates and those who they wished or were deemed to wish to be beneficiaries of their property at death. It may also reveal some basic personal information, such as addresses. Some of the beneficiaries might well, it may fairly be presumed, bear family names other than Sherman. I am mindful that the deaths are being investigated as homicides by the Toronto Police Service. However, even in this context, none of this information provides significant insight into who they are as individuals, nor would it provoke a fundamental change in their ability to control how they are perceived by others. The fact of being linked through estate documents to victims of an unsolved murder is not in itself highly sensitive. It may be the source of discomfort but has not been shown to constitute an affront to dignity in that it does not probe deeply into the biographical core of these individuals. As a result, the Trustees have failed to establish a serious risk to an important public interest as required by Sierra Club.

[92] The fact that some of the affected individuals may be minors is also insufficient to cross the seriousness threshold. While the law recognizes that minors are especially vulnerable to intrusions of privacy (see Bragg, at para. 17), the mere fact that information concerns minors does not displace the generally applicable analysis (see, e.g., Bragg, at para. 11). Even taking into account the increased vulnerability of minors who may be affected individuals in the probate files, there is no evidence that biographiques de ces personnes d'une manière qui minerait leur contrôle sur l'expression de leur identité. Leur vie privée serait certes perturbée, mais il n'a pas été démontré que l'intérêt pertinent en matière de vie privée se rapportant à la dignité des personnes touchées serait sérieusement menacé. Tout au plus, les renseignements contenus dans ces dossiers pourraient-ils révéler quelque chose sur la relation entre les défunts et les personnes touchées, en ce qu'ils pourraient dévoiler à qui les défunts ont confié l'administration de leur succession respective, et qui ils voulaient voir ou étaient présumés vouloir voir devenir héritiers de leurs biens à leur décès. Ils pourraient également révéler certaines données personnelles de base, par exemple des adresses. On peut à juste titre présumer qu'il se peut fort bien que certains des bénéficiaires portent un nom de famille autre que Sherman. Je suis conscient que les décès font l'objet d'une enquête pour homicides par le service de police de Toronto. Cependant, même dans ce contexte, aucun de ces renseignements ne donne des indications importantes sur qui ils sont en tant que personnes, et aucun d'eux n'entraînerait non plus un changement fondamental dans leur capacité à contrôler la façon dont ils sont perçus par les autres. Le fait pour des personnes d'être liées par des documents de succession aux victimes d'un meurtre non résolu n'est pas en soi un renseignement très sensible. Il peut être la source de désagréments, mais il n'a pas été démontré qu'il constitue une atteinte à la dignité, en ce qu'il ne touche pas au cœur même des renseignements biographiques de ces personnes. En conséquence, les fiduciaires n'ont pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important comme l'exige l'arrêt Sierra Club.

[92] Le fait que certaines des personnes touchées puissent être mineures ne suffit pas non plus à franchir le seuil du caractère sérieux. Bien que le droit reconnaisse que les mineurs sont particulièrement vulnérables aux atteintes à la vie privée (voir Bragg, par. 17), le simple fait que des renseignements concernent des mineurs n'écarter pas l'analyse généralement applicable (voir, p. ex., Bragg, par. 11). Même en tenant compte de la vulnérabilité accrue des mineurs pouvant être des personnes touchées they would lose control of information about themselves that reveals something close to the core of their identities. Merely associating the beneficiaries or trustees with the Shermans' unexplained deaths is not enough to constitute a serious risk to the identified important public interest in privacy, defined in reference to dignity.

[93] Further, while the intense media scrutiny on the family following the deaths suggests that the information would likely be widely disseminated, it is not in itself indicative of the sensitivity of the information contained in the probate files.

[94] Showing that the information that would be revealed by court openness is sufficiently sensitive and private such that it goes to the biographical core of the affected individual is a necessary prerequisite to showing a serious risk to the relevant public interest aspect of privacy. The Trustees did not advance any specific reason why the contents of these files are more sensitive than they may seem at first glance. When asserting a privacy risk, it is essential to show not only that information about individuals will escape the control of the person concerned — which will be true in every case — but that this particular information concerns who the individuals are as people in a manner that undermines their dignity. This the Trustees have not done.

[95] Therefore, while some of the material in the court files may well be broadly disseminated, the nature of the information has not been shown to give rise to a serious risk to the important public interest in privacy, as appropriately defined in this context in reference to dignity. For that reason alone, I conclude that the Trustees have failed to show a serious risk to this interest.

[94] Démontrer que les renseignements qui seraient révélés en raison de la publicité des débats judiciaires sont suffisamment sensibles et privés pour toucher au cœur même des renseignements biographiques des personnes touchées est une condition préalable nécessaire pour établir l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour l'aspect pertinent de la vie privée relatif à l'intérêt public. Les fiduciaires n'ont pas fait valoir de raison précise pour laquelle le contenu de ces dossiers serait plus sensible qu'il n'y paraît à première vue. Lorsque l'on affirme qu'il existe un risque pour la vie privée, il est essentiel de démontrer non seulement que les renseignements qui concernent des personnes échapperont au contrôle de celles-ci — ce qui sera vrai dans tous les cas —, mais aussi que ces renseignements concernent ce qu'elles sont en tant que personnes, d'une manière qui mine leur dignité. Or, les fiduciaires n'ont pas fait cette preuve.

[95] Par conséquent, même si certains des éléments contenus dans les dossiers judiciaires peuvent fort bien être largement diffusés, il n'a pas été démontré que la nature des renseignements en cause entraîne un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt public important en matière de vie privée, qui a été défini adéquatement dans le présent contexte au regard de la dignité. Pour cette seule raison, je conclus que les fiduciaires n'ont pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour cet intérêt.

(2) The Risk to Physical Safety Alleged in this Case is Not Serious

[96] Unlike the privacy interest raised in this case, there was no controversy that there is an important public interest in protecting individuals from physical harm. It is worth underscoring that the application judge correctly treated the protection from physical harm as a distinct important interest from that of the protection of privacy and found that this risk of harm was “foreseeable” and “grave” (paras. 22-24). The issue is whether the Trustees have established a serious risk to this interest for the purpose of the test for discretionary limits on court openness. The application judge observed that it would have been preferable to include objective evidence of the seriousness of the risk from the police service conducting the homicide investigation. He nevertheless concluded there was sufficient proof of risk to the physical safety of the affected individuals to meet the test. The Court of Appeal says that was a misreading of the evidence, and the Toronto Star agrees that the application judge’s conclusion as to the existence of a serious risk to safety was mere speculation.

[97] At the outset, I note that direct evidence is not necessarily required to establish a serious risk to an important interest. This Court has held that it is possible to identify objectively discernable harm on the basis of logical inferences (Bragg, at paras. 15-16). But this process of inferential reasoning is not a licence to engage in impermissible speculation. An inference must still be grounded in objective circumstantial facts that reasonably allow the finding to be made inferentially. Where the inference cannot reasonably be drawn from the circumstances, it amounts to speculation (R. v. Chanmany, 2016 ONCA 576, 352 O.A.C. 121, at para. 45).

[98] As the Trustees correctly argue, it is not just the probability of the feared harm, but also the gravity

(2) Le risque pour la sécurité physique allégué en l’espèce n’est pas sérieux

[96] Contrairement à ce qu’il en est pour l’intérêt en matière de vie privée soulevé en l’espèce, nul n’a contesté l’existence d’un intérêt public important dans la protection des personnes contre un préjudice physique. Il convient de souligner que le juge de première instance a correctement traité la protection contre un préjudice physique comme un intérêt important distinct de l’intérêt à l’égard de la protection de la vie privée, et a conclu que ce risque était [TRA-DUCTION] « prévisible » et « grave » (par. 22-24). La question consiste à savoir si les fiduciaires ont établi que cet intérêt est sérieusement menacé pour l’application du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Le juge de première instance a fait remarquer qu’il aurait été préférable d’inclure des éléments de preuve objectifs du caractère sérieux du risque fournis par le service de police menant l’enquête pour homicides. Il a néanmoins conclu que la preuve de risque pour la sécurité physique des personnes touchées était suffisante pour que le test soit respecté. Selon la Cour d’appel, il s’agit d’une mauvaise interprétation de la preuve, et, de son côté, le Toronto Star convient que la conclusion du juge de première instance quant à l’existence d’un risque sérieux pour la sécurité constitue une simple conjecture.

[97] D’entrée de jeu, je souligne qu’une preuve directe n’est pas nécessairement exigée pour démontrer qu’un intérêt important est sérieusement menacé. Notre Cour a statué qu’il est possible d’établir l’existence d’un préjudice objectivement discernable sur la base d’inférences logiques (Bragg, par. 15-16). Or, ce raisonnement inférentiel ne permet pas de se livrer à des conjectures inadmissibles. Une inférence doit tout de même être fondée sur des faits circonstanciels objectifs qui permettent raisonnablement de tirer la conclusion par inférence. Lorsque celle-ci ne peut raisonnablement être tirée à partir des circonstances, elle équivaut à une conjecture (R. c. Chanmany, 2016 ONCA 576, 352 O.A.C. 121, par. 45).

[98] Comme le soutiennent à juste titre les fiduciaires, ce n’est pas seulement la probabilité du

of the harm itself that is relevant to the assessment of serious risk. Where the feared harm is particularly serious, the probability that this harm materialize need not be shown to be likely, but must still be more than negligible, fanciful or speculative. The question is ultimately whether this record allowed the application judge to objectively discern a serious risk of physical harm.

[99] This conclusion was not open to the application judge on this record. There is no dispute that the feared physical harm is grave. I agree with the Toronto Star, however, that the probability of this harm occurring was speculative. The application judge's conclusion as to the seriousness of the risk of physical harm was grounded on what he called "the degree of mystery that persists regarding both the perpetrator and the motives" associated with the deaths of the Shermans and his supposition that this motive might be "transported" to the trustees and beneficiaries (para. 5; see also paras. 19 and 23). The further step in reasoning that the unsealed estate files would lead to the perpetrator's next crime, to be visited upon someone mentioned in the files, is based on speculation, not the available affidavit evidence, and cannot be said to be a proper inference or some kind of objectively discerned harm or risk thereof. If that were the case, the estate files of every victim of an unsolved murder would pass the initial threshold of the test for a sealing order.

[100] Further, I recall that what is at issue here is not whether the affected individuals face a safety risk in general, but rather whether they face such a risk as a result of the openness of these court files. In light of the contents of these files, the Trustees had to point to some further reason why the risk posed préjudice appréhendé qui est pertinente lorsqu'il s'agit d'évaluer si un risque est sérieux, mais également la gravité du préjudice lui-même. Lorsque le préjudice appréhendé est particulièrement sérieux, il n'est pas nécessaire de démontrer que la probabilité que ce préjudice se matérialise est vraisemblable, mais elle doit tout de même être plus que négligeable, fantaisiste ou conjecturale. La question consiste finalement à savoir si le présent dossier permettait au juge de première instance de discerner de manière objective l'existence d'un risque sérieux de préjudice physique.

[99] Il n'était pas loisible au juge de première instance de tirer cette conclusion au vu du dossier. Nul ne conteste que le préjudice physique appréhendé est grave. Je conviens cependant avec le Toronto Star que la probabilité que ce préjudice se produise était conjecturale. La conclusion du juge de première instance quant au caractère sérieux du risque de préjudice physique était fondée sur ce qu'il a appelé [TRADUCTION] « le degré de mystère qui persiste en ce qui concerne à la fois le coupable et le mobile » en lien avec la mort des Sherman et sur sa supposition que ce mobile pourrait être « transposé » aux fiduciaires et aux bénéficiaires (par. 5; voir aussi par. 19 et 23). L'étape suivante du raisonnement, selon laquelle le fait de lever les scellés sur les dossiers de succession amènerait les coupables à commettre leur prochain crime contre une personne mentionnée dans les dossiers, repose sur des conjectures, et non sur les éléments de preuve par affidavit présentés, et ne peut être considérée comme une inférence appropriée ou un quelconque préjudice ou risque de préjudice objectivement discerné. Si tel était le cas, le dossier de succession de chaque victime d'un meurtre non résolu franchirait le seuil initial du test applicable pour déterminer si une ordonnance de mise sous scellés peut être rendue.

[100] En outre, je rappelle que la question à trancher en l'espèce n'est pas de savoir si les personnes touchées sont exposées à un risque pour leur sécurité en général, mais plutôt si la publicité des présents dossiers judiciaires les expose à un tel risque. À la lumière du contenu des dossiers en l'espèce, les by this information becoming publicly available was more than negligible.

[101] The speculative character of the chain of reasoning leading to the conclusion that a serious risk of physical harm exists in this case is underlined by differences between these facts and those cases relied on by the Trustees. In X. v. Y., 2011 BCSC 943, 21 B.C.L.R. (5th) 410, the risk of physical harm was inferred on the basis that the plaintiff was a police officer who had investigated “cases involving gang violence and dangerous firearms” and wrote sentencing reports for such offenders which identified him by full name (para. 6). In R. v. Esseghaier, 2017 ONCA 970, 356 C.C.C. (3d) 455, Watt J.A. considered it “self-evident” that the disclosure of identifiers of an undercover operative working in counter-terrorism would compromise the safety of the operative (para. 41). In both cases, the danger flowed from facts establishing that the applicants were in antagonistic relationships with alleged criminal or terrorist organizations. But in this case, the Trustees asked the application judge to infer not only the fact that harm would befall the affected individuals, but also that a person or persons exist who wish to harm them. To infer all this on the basis of the Shermans’ deaths and the association of the affected individuals with the deceased is not reasonably possible on this record. It is not a reasonable inference but, as the Court of Appeal noted, a conclusion resting on speculation.

[102] Were the mere assertion of grave physical harm sufficient to show a serious risk to an important interest, there would be no meaningful threshold in the analysis. Instead, the test requires the serious risk asserted to be well grounded in the record or the circumstances of the particular case (Sierra Club, fiduciaires devaient avancer une autre raison pour laquelle le risque que posait le fait que ces renseignements deviennent accessibles au public était plus que négligeable.

[101] Le caractère conjectural du raisonnement menant à la conclusion selon laquelle il existe un risque sérieux de préjudice physique en l’espèce ressort des différences entre les faits en cause et ceux des affaires invoquées par les fiduciaires. Dans X. c. Y., 2011 BCSC 943, 21 B.C.L.R. (5th) 410, le tribunal a inféré le risque de préjudice physique au motif que le demandeur était un policier qui avait enquêté sur des [TRADUCTION] « affaires portant sur la violence des gangs et des armes à feu dangereuses » et qui avait rédigé des rapports de détermination de la peine pour ces contrevenants, rapports dans lesquels il était identifié par son nom au complet (par. 6). Dans R. c. Esseghaier, 2017 ONCA 970, 356 C.C.C. (3d) 455, le juge Watt a considéré qu’il était [TRADUCTION] « évident » que la divulgation d’éléments permettant d’identifier un agent d’infiltration travaillant dans le domaine du contre-terrorisme compromettrait la sécurité de l’agent (par. 41). Dans les deux cas, le danger découlait de faits établissant que les demandeurs entretenaient des relations antagonistes avec de prétendues organisations criminelles ou terroristes. Cependant, dans l’affaire qui nous occupe, les fiduciaires ont demandé au juge de première instance d’inférer non seulement le fait qu’un préjudice serait causé aux personnes touchées, mais également qu’il existe une ou des personnes qui souhaitent leur faire du mal. Il n’est pas raisonnablement possible au vu du dossier en l’espèce d’inférer tout cela en se fondant sur le décès des Sherman et sur les liens unissant les personnes touchées aux défunts. Il ne s’agit pas d’une inférence raisonnable, mais, comme l’a souligné la Cour d’appel, d’une conclusion reposant sur des conjectures.

[102] Si le simple fait d’invoquer un préjudice physique grave suffisait à démontrer un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important, il n’y aurait pas de seuil valable dans l’analyse. Le test exige plutôt que le risque sérieux invoqué soit bien appuyé par le dossier ou les circonstances de l’espèce (Sierra at para. 54; Bragg, at para. 15). This contributes to maintaining the strong presumption of openness.

[103] Again, in other cases, circumstantial facts may allow a court to infer the existence of a serious risk of physical harm. Applicants do not necessarily need to retain experts who will attest to the physical or psychological risk related to the disclosure. But on this record, the bare assertion that such a risk exists fails to meet the threshold necessary to establish a serious risk of physical harm. The application judge's conclusion to the contrary was an error warranting the intervention of the Court of Appeal.

E. There Would Be Additional Barriers to a Sealing Order on the Basis of the Alleged Risk to Privacy

[104] While not necessary to dispose of the appeal, it bears mention that the Trustees would have faced additional barriers in seeking the sealing orders on the basis of the privacy interest they advanced. I recall that to meet the test for discretionary limits on court openness, a person must show, in addition to a serious risk to an important interest, that the particular order sought is necessary to address the risk and that the benefits of the order outweigh its negative effects as a matter of proportionality (Sierra Club, at para. 53).

[105] Even if the Trustees had succeeded in showing a serious risk to the privacy interest they assert, a publication ban — less constraining on openness than the sealing orders — would have likely been sufficient as a reasonable alternative to prevent this risk. The condition that the order be necessary requires the court to consider whether there are alternatives to the order sought and to restrict the order as much as reasonably possible to prevent the serious risk (Sierra Club, at para. 57). An order imposing a publication ban could restrict the dissemination Club, par. 54; Bragg, par. 15), ce qui contribue au maintien de la forte présomption de publicité des débats judiciaires.

E. Il y aurait des obstacles additionnels à l'octroi d'une ordonnance de mise sous scellés fondée sur le risque d'atteinte à la vie privée allégué

[104] Bien que cela ne soit pas nécessaire pour trancher le pourvoi, il convient de mentionner que les fiduciaires auraient eu à faire face à des obstacles additionnels en cherchant à obtenir les ordonnances de mise sous scellés sur la base de l'intérêt en matière de vie privée qu'ils ont fait valoir. Je rappelle que, pour satisfaire au test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires, une personne doit démontrer, outre un risque sérieux pour un intérêt important, que l'ordonnance particulière demandée est nécessaire pour écarter le risque et que, du point de vue de la proportionnalité, les avantages de l'ordonnance l'emportent sur ses effets négatifs (Sierra Club, par. 53).

[105] Même si les fiduciaires avaient réussi à démontrer l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt en matière de vie privée qu'ils invoquent, une interdiction de publication — moins contraignante à l'égard de la publicité des débats que les ordonnances de mise sous scellés — aurait probablement été suffisante en tant qu'autre option raisonnable pour écarter ce risque. La condition selon laquelle l'ordonnance doit être nécessaire oblige le tribunal à examiner s'il existe des mesures autres que l'ordonnance demandée et à restreindre l'ordonnance autant

of personal information to only those persons consulting the court record for themselves and prohibit those individuals from spreading the information any further. As I have noted, the likelihood and extent of dissemination may be relevant factors in determining the seriousness of a risk to privacy in this context. While the Toronto Star would be able to consult the files subject to a publication ban, for example, which may assist it in its investigations, it would not be able to publish and thereby broadly disseminate the contents of the files. A publication ban would seem to protect against this latter harm, which has been the focus of the Trustees' argument, while allowing some access to the file, which is not possible under the sealing orders. Therefore, even if a serious risk to the privacy interest had been made out, it would likely not have justified a sealing order, because a less onerous order would have likely been sufficient to mitigate this risk effectively. I hasten to add, however, that a publication ban is not available here since, as noted, the seriousness of the risk to the privacy interest at play has not been made out.

[106] Further, the Trustees would have had to show that the benefits of any order necessary to protect from a serious risk to the important public interest outweighed the harmful effects of the order, including the negative impact on the open court principle (Sierra Club, at para. 53). In balancing the privacy interests against the open court principle, it is important to consider whether the information the order seeks to protect is peripheral or central to the judicial process (paras. 78 and 86; Bragg, at paras. 28-29). There will doubtless be cases where the information that poses a serious risk to privacy, bearing as it does on individual dignity, will be central to the case. But the interest in important and legally relevant information being aired in open court may well overcome any concern for the privacy interests in that same qu'il est raisonnablement possible de le faire pour écarter le risque sérieux (Sierra Club, par. 57). Une ordonnance imposant une interdiction de publication pourrait restreindre la diffusion de renseignements personnels aux seules personnes qui consultent le dossier judiciaire pour elles-mêmes et interdire à celles-ci de diffuser davantage les renseignements. Comme je l'ai mentionné, la probabilité et l'étendue de la diffusion peuvent être des facteurs pertinents lorsqu'il s'agit de déterminer le caractère sérieux d'un risque pour la vie privée dans ce contexte. Alors que le Toronto Star serait en mesure de consulter les dossiers faisant l'objet d'une interdiction de publication, par exemple, ce qui pourrait l'aider dans ses enquêtes, il ne pourrait publier, et ainsi diffuser largement, le contenu des dossiers. Une interdiction de publication semble offrir une protection contre ce dernier préjudice, qui a été au centre de l'argumentation des fiduciaires, tout en permettant un certain accès au dossier, ce qui n'est pas possible aux termes des ordonnances de mise sous scellés. En conséquence, même si un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt en matière de vie privée avait été établi, ce risque n'aurait probablement pas justifié une ordonnance de mise sous scellés, car une ordonnance moins sévère aurait probablement suffi à atténuer ce risque de manière efficace. Je m'empresse cependant d'ajouter qu'une interdiction de publication ne peut être prononcée en l'espèce, puisque, comme il a été souligné, le caractère sérieux du risque pour l'intérêt en matière de vie privée en jeu n'a pas été établi.

[106] De plus, les fiduciaires auraient eu à démontrer que les avantages de toute ordonnance nécessaire à la protection contre un risque sérieux pour l'intérêt public important l'emportaient sur ses effets préjudiciables, y compris l'incidence négative sur le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires (Sierra Club, par. 53). Pour mettre en balance les intérêts en matière de vie privée et le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, il importe de se demander si les renseignements que l'ordonnance vise à protéger sont accessoires ou essentiels au processus judiciaire (par. 78 et 86; Bragg, par. 28-29). Il y aura sans doute des affaires où les renseignements présentant un risque sérieux pour la vie privée, du fait qu'ils toucheront à la dignité individuelle, seront essentiels au litige. Cependant, l'intérêt à ce information. This contextual balancing, informed by the importance of the open court principle, presents a final barrier to those seeking a discretionary limit on court openness for the purposes of privacy protection.

VI. Conclusion

[107] The conclusion that the Trustees have failed to establish a serious risk to an important public interest ends the analysis. In such circumstances, the Trustees are not entitled to any discretionary order limiting the open court principle, including the sealing orders they initially obtained. The Court of Appeal rightly concluded that there was no basis for asking for redactions because the Trustees had failed at this stage of the test for discretionary limits on court openness. This is dispositive of the appeal. The decision to set aside the sealing orders rendered by the application judge should be affirmed. Given that I propose to dismiss the appeal on the existing record, I would dismiss the Toronto Star's motion for new evidence as being moot.

[108] For the foregoing reasons, I would dismiss the appeal. The Toronto Star requests no costs given the important public issues in dispute. As such, there will be no order as to costs.

Appeal dismissed.

que des renseignements importants et juridiquement pertinents soient diffusés dans le cadre de débats judiciaires publics pourrait bien prévaloir sur toute préoccupation à l'égard des intérêts en matière de vie privée relativement à ces mêmes renseignements. Cette pondération contextuelle, éclairée par l'importance du principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, constitue un dernier obstacle sur la route de ceux qui cherchent à faire limiter de façon discrétionnaire la publicité des débats judiciaires aux fins de la protection de la vie privée.

VI. Conclusion

[107] La conclusion selon laquelle les fiduciaires n'ont pas établi l'existence d'un risque sérieux pour un intérêt public important met fin à l'analyse. En de telles circonstances, les fiduciaires n'ont droit à aucune ordonnance discrétionnaire limitant le principe de la publicité des débats judiciaires, y compris les ordonnances de mise sous scellés qu'ils ont initialement obtenues. La Cour d'appel a conclu à juste titre qu'il n'y avait aucune raison de demander un caviardage parce que les fiduciaires n'avaient pas franchi cette étape du test des limites discrétionnaires à la publicité des débats judiciaires. Cette conclusion est déterminante quant à l'issue du pourvoi. La décision d'annuler les ordonnances de mise sous scellés rendues par le juge de première instance devrait être confirmée. Étant donné que je suis d'avis de rejeter le pourvoi eu égard au dossier existant, je rejetterais la requête en production de nouveaux éléments de preuve présentée par le Toronto Star au motif que celle-ci est théorique.

[108] Pour les motifs qui précèdent, je rejetterais le pourvoi. Le Toronto Star ne sollicite aucuns dépens, compte tenu des importantes questions d'intérêt public en litige. Dans les circonstances, aucuns dépens ne seront adjugés.

Pourvoi rejeté.

Introduction and Background

[1] On December 7, 2015, I granted an initial order in favour of the petitioners, pursuant to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended ("CCAA").

[2] The "Walter Group" is a major exporter of metallurgical coal for the steel industry, with mines and operations in the U.S., Canada and the U.K. The petitioners comprise part of the Canadian arm of the Walter Group and are known as the "Walter Canada Group". The Canadian entities were acquired by the Walter Group only recently in 2011.

[3] The Canadian operations principally include the Brule and Willow Creek coal mines, located near Chetwynd, B.C., and the Wolverine coal mine, near Tumbler Ridge, B.C. The mine operations are conducted through various limited partnerships. The petitioners include the Canadian parent holding company and the general partners of the partnerships. Given the complex corporate structure of the Walter Canada Group, the initial order also included stay provisions relating to the partnerships: Lehndorff General Partner Ltd. (Re) (1993), 9 B.L.R. (2d) 275 (Ont. Gen. Div.); Asset Engineering LP v. Forest & Marine Financial Limited Partnership, 2009 BCCA 319 at para. 21.

[4] The timing of the Canadian acquisition could not have been worse. Since 2011, the market for metallurgical coal has fallen dramatically. This in turn led to financial difficulties in all three jurisdictions in which the Walter Group operated. The three Canadian mines were placed in care and maintenance between April 2013 and June 2014. The mines remain in this state today, at an estimated annual cost in excess of $16 million. Similarly, the U.K. mines were idled in 2015. In July 2015, the U.S. companies in the Walter Group filed and sought creditor protection by filing a proceeding under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. It is my understanding that the U.S. entities have coal mining operations in Alabama and West Virginia.

[5] From the time of the granting of the initial order, it was apparent that the outcome of the U.S. proceedings would have a substantial impact on the Walter

Canada Group. A sales process completed in the U.S. proceeding is anticipated to result in a transfer of the U.S. assets to a stalking horse bidder sometime early this year. This is significant because the U.S. companies have historically supported the Canadian operations with funding and provided essential management services. This is a relevant factor in terms of the proposed relief, as I will discuss below.

[6] The Walter Canada Group faces various significant contingent liabilities. The various entities are liable under a 2011 credit agreement of approximately $22.6 million in undrawn letters of credit for post-mining reclamation obligations. Estimated reclamation costs for all three mines exceed this amount. Further obligations potentially arise with respect to the now laid-off employees of the Wolverine mine, who are represented by the United Steelworkers, Local 1-424 (the “Union”). If these employees are not recalled before April 2016, the Wolverine partnership faces an estimated claim of $11.3 million. As I will discuss below, an even more significant contingent liability has also recently been advanced.

[7] This anticipated “parting of the ways” as between the U.S. and Canadian entities in turn prompted the filing of this proceeding, which is intended to provide the petitioners with time to develop a restructuring plan. The principal goal of that plan, as I will describe below, is to complete a going concern sale of the Canadian operations as soon as possible. Fortunately, as of early December 2015, the Walter Canada Group has slightly in excess of US$40.5 million in cash resources to fund the restructuring efforts. However, ongoing operating costs remain high and are now compounded by the restructuring costs.

[8] As was appropriate, the petitioners did not seek extensive orders on December 7, 2015, given the lack of service on certain major stakeholders. A stay was granted on that date, together with other ancillary relief. KPMG Inc. was appointed as the monitor (the “Monitor”).

[9] The petitioners now seek relief that will set them on a path to a potential restructuring; essentially, an equity and/or debt restructuring or alternatively, a sale and liquidation of their assets. That relief includes approving a sale and solicitation process and the appointment of further professionals to manage that process and complete other necessary management functions. They also seek a key employee retention plan. Finally, the petitioners seek an extension of the stay to early April 2016.

[10] For obvious reasons, the financial and environmental issues associated with the coal mines loom large in this matter. For that reason, the Walter Canada Group has engaged in discussions with the provincial regulators, being the B.C. Ministry of Energy and Mines and the B.C. Ministry of the Environment, concerning the environmental issues and the proposed restructuring plan. No issues arise from the regulators' perspective at this time in terms of the relief on this application. Other stakeholders have responded to the application and contributed to the final terms of the relief sought.

[11] The stakeholders appearing on this application are largely supportive of the relief sought, save for two.

[12] Firstly, the United Mine Workers of America 1974 Pension Plan and Trust (the "1974 Pension Plan") opposes certain aspects of the relief sought as to who should be appointed to conduct the sales process.

[13] The status of the 1974 Pension Plan arises from somewhat unusual circumstances. One of the U.S. entities, Jim Walter Resources, Inc. ("JWR") is a party to a collective bargaining agreement with the 1974 Pension Plan (the "CBA"). In late December 2015, the U.S. bankruptcy court issued a decision that allowed JWR to reject the CBA. The court also ordered that the sale of the U.S. assets would be free and clear of any liabilities under the CBA. As a result, the 1974 Pension Plan has filed a proof of claim in the U.S. proceedings advancing a contingent claim against JWR with respect to a potential "withdrawal liability" under U.S. law of approximately US$900 million. The U.S. law in question is the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 USC § 101, as amended, which is commonly referred to as "ERISA".

[14] The 1974 Pension Plan alleges that it is only a matter of time before JWR formally rejects the CBA. In that event, the 1974 Pension Plan contends that ERISA provides that all companies under common control with JWR are jointly and severally liable for this withdrawal liability, and that some of the entities in the Walter Canada Group come within this provision.

[15] It is apparent at this time that neither the Walter Canada Group nor the Monitor has had an opportunity to assess the 1974 Pension Plan's contingent claim. No claims process has even been contemplated at this time. Nevertheless, the standing of the 1974 Pension Plan to make submissions on this application is not seriously contested.

[16] Secondly, the Union only opposes an extension of the stay of certain proceedings underway in this court and the Labour Relations Board in relation to some of its employee claims, which it wishes to continue to litigate.

[17] At the conclusion of the hearing, I granted the orders sought by the petitioners, with reasons to follow. Hence, these reasons.

The Sale and Investment Solicitation Process ("SISP")

[18] The proposed SISP has been developed by the Walter Canada Group in consultation with the Monitor. By this process, bidders may submit a letter of intent or bid for a restructuring, recapitalization or other form of reorganization of the business and affairs of the Walter Canada Group as a going concern, or a purchase of any or all equity interests held by Walter Energy Canada. Alternatively, any bid may relate to a purchase of all or substantially all, or any portion of the Walter Canada Group assets (including the Brule, Willow Creek and Wolverine mines).

[19] It is intended that the SISP will be led by a chief restructuring officer (the "CRO"), implemented by a financial advisor (both as discussed below) and supervised by the Monitor.

[20] Approvals of SISPs are a common feature in CCAA restructuring proceedings. The Walter Canada Group refers to CCM Master Qualified Fund v. blutip Power Technologies, 2012 ONSC 1750. At para. 6, Brown J. (as he then was) stated that in reviewing a proposed sale process, the court should consider:

- (i) the fairness, transparency and integrity of the proposed process;
- (ii) the commercial efficacy of the proposed process in light of the specific circumstances facing the receiver; and,
- (iii) whether the sales process will optimize the chances, in the particular circumstances, of securing the best possible price for the assets up for sale.

[21] Although the court in CCM Master Qualified Fund was considering a sales process proposed by a receiver, I agree that these factors are also applicable when assessing the reasonableness of a proposed sales process in a CCAA proceeding: see PCAS Patient Care Automation Services Inc. (Re), 2012 ONSC 2840 at paras. 17-19.

[22] In this case, the proposed timelines would see a deadline of March 18 for letters of intent, due diligence thereafter with a bid deadline of May 27 and a target closing date of June 30, 2016. In my view, the timeline is reasonable, particularly with regard to the need to move as quickly as possible to preserve cash resources pending a sale or investment; or, in the worst case scenario, to allow the Walter Canada Group to close the mines permanently. There is sufficient flexibility built into the SISP to allow the person conducting it to amend these deadlines if the circumstances justify it.

[23] The SISP proposed here is consistent with similar sales processes approved in other Canadian insolvency proceedings. In addition, I agree with the Monitor's assessment that the SISP represents the best opportunity for the Walter Canada Group to successfully restructure as a going concern, if such an opportunity should arise.

[24] No stakeholder, including the 1974 Pension Plan, opposed this relief. All concerned recognize the need to monetize, if possible, the assets held by the Walter Canada Group. I conclude that the proposed SISP is reasonable and it is approved.

Appointment of Financial Advisor and CRO

[25] The more contentious issues are who should conduct the SISP and manage the operations of the Walter Canada Group pending a transaction and what their compensation should be.

[26] The Walter Canada Group seeks the appointment of a financial advisor and CRO to assist with the implementation of the SISP.

[27] In restructuring proceedings it is not unusual that professionals are engaged to advance the restructuring where the existing management is either unable or unwilling to bring the required expertise to bear. In such circumstances, courts have granted enhanced powers to the monitor; otherwise, the appointment of a CRO and/or financial advisor can be considered.

[28] A consideration of this issue requires some context in terms of the current governance status of the Walter Canada Group. At present, there is only one remaining director, who is based in West Virginia. The petitioners' counsel does not anticipate his long-term involvement in these proceedings and expects he will resign once the U.S. sale completes. Similarly, the petitioners have been largely instructed to date by William Harvey. Mr. Harvey is the executive vice-president and chief financial officer of Walter Energy Canada Holdings, Inc., one of the petitioners. He lives in Birmingham, Alabama. As with the director, the petitioners' counsel expects him to resign in the near future.

[29] The only other high level employee does reside in British Columbia, but his expertise is more toward operational matters, particularly regarding environmental and regulatory issues.

[30] Accordingly, there is a legitimate risk that the Walter Canada Group ship may become rudderless in the midst of these proceedings and most significantly, in the midst of the very important sales and solicitation process. This risk is exacerbated by the fact that the management support traditionally provided by the U.S. entities will not be provided after the sale of the U.S. assets. Significant work must be done to effect a transition of those shared services in order to allow the Canadian operations to continue running smoothly. It is anticipated that the CRO will play a key role in assisting in this transition of the shared services.

[31] In these circumstances, I am satisfied that professional advisors are not just desirable, but indeed necessary, in order to have a chance for a successful restructuring. Both appointments ensure that the SISP will be implemented by professionals who will enhance the likelihood that it generates maximum value for the Walter Canada Group's stakeholders. In addition, the appointment of a CRO will allow the Canadian operations to continue in an orderly fashion, pending a transaction.

[32] The proposal is to retain PJT Partners LP ("PJT") as a financial advisor and investment banker to implement the SISP. PJT is a natural choice given that it had already been retained in the context of the U.S. proceedings to market the Walter Group's assets, which of course indirectly included the Walter Canada Group's assets. As such, PJT is familiar with the assets in this jurisdiction, knowledge that will no doubt be of great assistance in respect of the SISP.

[33] In addition, the proposal is to retain BlueTree Advisors Inc. as the CRO, by which it would provide the services of William E. Aziz. Mr. Aziz is a well-known figure in the Canadian insolvency community; in particular, he is well known for having provided chief restructuring services in other proceedings (see for example Mobility Group (Re), 2013 ONSC 6167 at para. 17). No question arises as to his extensive qualifications to fulfil this role.

[34] The materials as to how Mr. Aziz was selected were somewhat thin, which raised some concerns from the 1974 Pension Plan as to the appropriateness of his involvement. However, after submissions by the petitioners' counsel, I am satisfied that there was a thorough consideration of potential candidates and their particular qualifications to undertake what will no doubt be a time-consuming and complex assignment. In that regard, I accept the recommendations of the petitioners that Mr. Aziz is the most qualified candidate.

[35] The Monitor was involved in the process by which PJT and BlueTree/Mr. Aziz were selected. It has reviewed both proposals and supports that both PJT and BlueTree are necessary appointments that will result in the Walter Canada Group obtaining the necessary expertise to proceed with its restructuring efforts. In that sense, such appointments fulfill the requirements of being "appropriate", in the sense that that expertise will assist the debtor in achieving the objectives of the CCAA: see s. 11; ICR Commercial Real Estate (Regina) Ltd. v. Bricore Land Group Ltd., 2007 SKQB 121 at para. 19.

[36] The 1974 Pension Plan does not mount any serious argument against the need for such appointments, other than to note that the costs of these retainers will result in a very expensive process going forward. The matter of PJT and the CRO's compensation was the subject of some negative comment by the 1974 Pension Plan. However, the 1974 Pension Plan did not suggest any alternate way of proceeding with the SISF and the operations generally. When pressed by the Court on the subject, the 1974 Pension Plan acknowledged that time was of the essence in implementing the SISF and it did not contend that a further delay was warranted to canvas other options.

[37] PJT is to receive a monthly work fee of US$100,000, although some savings are achieved since this amount will not be charged until the completion of the U.S. sale. In addition, PJT will receive a capital raising fee based on the different types of financing that might be arranged. Lastly, PJT is entitled to a transaction or success fee, based on the consideration received from any transaction.

[38] At the outset of the application, the proposed compensation for the CRO was similar to that of PJT. The CRO was to obtain a monthly work fee of US$75,000. In addition, the CRO was to receive a transaction or success fee based on the consideration received from any transaction. After further consideration by the petitioners and BlueTree, this proposed compensation was subsequently renegotiated so as to limit the success fee to $1 million upon the happening of a “triggering event” (essentially, a recapitalization, refinancing, acquisition or sale of assets or liabilities).

[39] To secure the success fees of PJT and the CRO, the Walter Canada Group seeks a charge of up to a maximum of $10 million, with each being secured to a limit of half that amount. Any other fees payable by the Walter Canada Group to PJT and the CRO would be secured by the Administration Charge granted in the initial order.

[40] The jurisdiction to grant charges for such professional fees is found in s. 11.52 of the CCAA:

11.52(1) On notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, the court may make an order declaring that all or part of the property of a debtor company is subject to a security or charge — in an amount that the court considers appropriate — in respect of the fees and expenses of

(a) the monitor, including the fees and expenses of any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the monitor in the performance of the monitor’s duties;

(b) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the company for the purpose of proceedings under this Act; and

(c) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by any other interested person if the court is satisfied that the security or charge is necessary for their effective participation in proceedings under this Act.

[41] In U.S. Steel Canada Inc. (Re), 2014 ONSC 6145 at para. 22, Justice Wilton-Siegel commented on the necessity of such a charge in a restructuring, as it is usually required to ensure the involvement of these professionals and achieve the best possible outcome for the stakeholders. I concur in that sentiment here, as the involvement of PJT and BlueTree is premised on this charge being granted.

[42] In Canwest Publishing Inc., 2010 ONSC 222 at para. 54, Justice Pepall (as she then was) set out a non-exhaustive list of factors to consider when determining whether the proposed compensation is appropriate and whether charges should be granted for that compensation:

- (a) the size and complexity of the businesses being restructured;
- (b) the proposed role of the beneficiaries of the charge;
- (c) whether there is an unwarranted duplication of roles;
- (d) whether the quantum of the proposed charge appears to be fair and reasonable;
- (e) the position of the secured creditors likely to be affected by the charge; and
- (f) the position of the Monitor.

[43] I am satisfied that the Walter Canada Group's assets and operations are significantly complex so as to justify both these appointments and the proposed compensation. I have already referred to the significant regulatory and environmental issues that arise. In addition, relevant employment issues are already present. Any transaction relating to these assets and operations will be anything but straightforward.

[44] The factors relating to the proposed role of the professionals and whether there is unwarranted duplication can be addressed at the same time. As conceded by the petitioners' and Monitor's counsel, there will undoubtedly be some duplication with the involvement of the Monitor, PJT and the CRO. However, the issue is whether there is unwarranted duplication of effort. I am satisfied that the process has been crafted in a fashion that recognizes the respective roles of these professionals but also allows for a coordinated effort that will assist each of them in achieving their specific goals. Each has a distinct focus and I would expect that their joint enterprise will produce a better result overall.

[45] Any consideration of compensation will inevitably be driven by the particular facts that arise in the proceedings in issue. Even so, I have not been referred to any material that indicates that the proposed compensation and charge in favour of PJT and the CRO are inconsistent with compensation structures and protections approved in other similarly complex insolvency proceedings. In that regard, I accept the petitioners' submissions that the task ahead justifies both the amount of the fees to be charged and the protections afforded by the charge. In short, I find that the proposed compensation is fair and reasonable in these circumstances.

[46] The secured creditors likely to be affected by the charges for PJT and the CRO's fees have been given notice and do not oppose the relief being sought.

[47] Finally, the Monitor is of the view that the agreed compensation of PJT and the CRO and the charge in their favour are appropriate.

[48] In summary, all circumstances support the relief sought. Accordingly, I conclude that it is appropriate to appoint the CRO and approve the engagement of PJT on the terms sought. In addition, I grant a charge in favour of PJT and the CRO to a maximum of $10 million to secure their compensation beyond the monthly work fees, subject to the Administration Charge, the Director's Charge and the KERP Charge (as discussed below).

Key Employee Retention Plan ("KERP")

[49] The Walter Canada Group also seeks approval of a KERP, for what it describes as a "key" employee needed to maintain the Canadian operations while the SISP is being conducted. In addition, Mr. Harvey states that this employee has specific information which the CRO, PJT and the Monitor will need to draw on during the implementation of the SISP.

[50] The detailed terms of the KERP are contained in a letter attached to Mr. Harvey's affidavit #3 sworn December 31, 2015. In the course of submissions, the Walter Canada Group sought an order to seal this affidavit, on the basis that the affidavit and attached exhibit contained sensitive information, being the identity of the employee and the compensation proposed to be paid to him.

[51] I was satisfied that a sealing order should be granted with respect to this affidavit, based on the potential disclosure of this personal information to the public: see Sierra Club of Canada v. Canada (Minister of Finance), 2002 SCC 41 at para. 53; Sahlin v. The Nature Trust of British Columbia, 2010 BCCA 516 at para. 6. A sealing order was granted on January 5, 2016.

[52] The proposed KERP must be considered in the context of earlier events. This individual was to receive a retention bonus from the U.S. entities; however, this amount is now not likely to be paid. In addition, just prior to the commencement of these proceedings, this person was given a salary increase to reflect his additional responsibilities, including those arising from the loss of support and the shared services from the U.S. entities. This new salary level has not been disclosed to the court or the stakeholders.

[53] The Walter Canada Group has proposed that this employee be paid a retention bonus on the occurrence of a “triggering event”, provided he remains an active employee providing management and other services. The defined triggering events are such that the retention bonus is likely to be paid whatever the outcome might be. In addition, to secure the payment of the KERP to this employee, Walter Energy Canada seeks a charge up to the maximum amount of the retention bonus.

[54] The amount of the retention bonus is large. It has been disclosed in the sealed affidavit but has not been disclosed to certain stakeholders, including the 1974 Pension Plan. The Monitor states in its report:

The combination of the salary increase and proposed retention bonus ... were designed to replace the retention bonus previously promised to the KERP Participant by Walter Energy U.S.

[55] I did not understand the submissions of the 1974 Pension Plan to be that the granting of a KERP for this employee was inappropriate. Rather, the concern related to the amount of the retention bonus, which is to be considered in the context of the earlier salary raise. At the end of the day, the 1974 Pension Plan was content to leave a consideration of the level of compensation to the Court, given the sealing of the affidavit.

[56] The authority to approve a KERP is found in the courts' general statutory jurisdiction under s. 11 of the CCAA to grant relief if "appropriate": see U.S. Steel Canada at para. 27.

[57] As noted by the court in Timminco Ltd. (Re), 2012 ONSC 506 at para. 72, KERPs have been approved in numerous insolvency proceedings, particularly where the retention of certain employees was deemed critical to a successful restructuring.

[58] Factors to be considered by the court in approving a KERP will vary from case to case, but some factors will generally be present. See for example, Grant Forest Products Inc. (Re) (2009), 57 C.B.R. (5th) 128 (Ont. S.C.J.); and U.S. Steel Canada at paras. 28-33.

[59] I will discuss those factors and the relevant evidence on this application, as follows:

- a) Is this employee important to the restructuring process?: In its report, the Monitor states that this employee is the most senior remaining executive in the Walter Canada Group, with extensive knowledge of its assets and operations. He was involved in the development of the Wolverine mine and has extensive knowledge of all three mines. He also has strong relationships in the communities in which the mines are located, with the Group's suppliers and with the regulatory authorities. In that sense, this person's expertise will enhance the efforts of the other professionals to be involved, including PJT, the CRO and the Monitor: U.S. Steel at para. 28;
- b) Does the employee have specialized knowledge that cannot be easily replaced?: I accept that the background and expertise of this employee is such that it would be virtually impossible to replace him if he left the employ of the Walter Canada Group: U.S. Steel at para. 29;
- c) Will the employee consider other employment options if the KERP is not approved?: There is no evidence here on this point, but I presume that the KERP is more a prophylactic measure, rather than a reactionary one. In any event, this is but one factor and I would adopt the comments of Justice Newbould in Grant Forest Products at paras. 13-15, that a “potential” loss of this person’s employment is a factor to be considered;

- d) Was the KERP developed through a consultative process involving the Monitor and other professionals?: The Monitor has reviewed the proposed KERP, but does not appear to have been involved in the process. Mr. Harvey confirms the business decision of the Walter Canada Group to raise this employee’s salary and propose the KERP. The business judgment of the board and management is entitled to some deference in these circumstances: Grant Forest Products at para. 18; U.S. Steel Canada at para. 31; and
- e) Does the Monitor support the KERP and a charge?: The answer to this question is a resounding “yes”. As to the amount, the Monitor notes that the amount of the retention bonus is at the “high end” of other KERP amounts of which it is aware. However, the Monitor supports the KERP amount even in light of the earlier salary increase and after considering the value and type of assets under this person’s supervision and the critical nature of his involvement in the restructuring. As this Court’s officer, the views of the Monitor are also entitled to considerable deference by this Court: U.S. Steel at para. 32.

[60] In summary, the petitioners’ counsel described the involvement of this individual in the CCAA restructuring process as “essential” or “critical”. These sentiments are echoed by the Monitor, who supports the proposed KERP and charge to secure it. The Monitor’s report states that this individual’s ongoing employment will be “highly beneficial” to the Walter Canada Group’s restructuring efforts, and that this employee is “critical” to the care and maintenance operations at the mines, the transitioning of the shared services from the U.S. and finally, assisting with efforts under the SISP.

[61] What I take from these submissions is that a loss of this person's expertise either now or during the course of the CCAA process would be extremely detrimental to the chances of a successful restructuring. In my view, it is more than evident that there is serious risk to the stakeholders if this person does not remain engaged in the process. Such a result would be directly opposed to the objectives of the CCAA. I find that such relief is appropriate and therefore, the KERP and charge to secure the KERP are approved.

Cash Collateralization / Intercompany Charge

[62] Pursuant to the initial order, the Walter Canada Group was authorized and directed to cash collateralize all letters of credit secured by the 2011 credit agreement within 15 days of any demand to do so from the administrative agent, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding Inc. ("Morgan Stanley"). This order was made on the basis of representations by the Monitor's counsel that it had obtained a legal opinion that the security held by Morgan Stanley was valid and enforceable against the Walter Canada Group.

[63] On December 9, 2015, Morgan Stanley demanded the cash collateralization of approximately $22.6 million of undrawn letters of credit. On December 21, 2015, Morgan Stanley requested that the Walter Canada Group enter into a cash collateral agreement (the "Cash Collateral Agreement") to formalize these arrangements.

[64] The Walter Canada Group seeks the approval of the Cash Collateral Agreement, which provides for the establishment of a bank account containing the cash collateral and confirms Morgan Stanley's pre-filing first-ranking security interest in the cash in the bank account. The cash collateralization is intended to relate to letters of credit issued on behalf of Brule Coal Partnership, Walter Canadian Coal Partnership, Wolverine Coal Partnership and Willow Creek Coal Partnership. However, only the Brule Coal Partnership has sufficient cash to collateralize all these letters of credit.

[65] Accordingly, the Walter Canada Group seeks an intercompany charge in favour of Brule Coal Partnership, and any member of the Walter Canada Group, to the extent that a member of the Walter Canada Group makes any payment or incurs or discharges any obligation on behalf of any other member of the Walter Canada Group in respect of obligations under the letters of credit. The intercompany charge is proposed to rank behind all of the other court-ordered charges granted in these proceedings, including the charges for PJT and the CRO and the KERP.

[66] No objection is raised in respect of this relief. The Monitor is of the view that the intercompany charge is appropriate.

[67] In my view, this relief is simply a formalization of the earlier authorization regarding the trusting up of these contingent obligations. On that basis, I approve the Cash Collateral Agreement. I also approve the intercompany charge in favour of the Brule Coal Partnership, on the basis that it is necessary to preserve the status quo as between the various members of the Walter Canada Group who will potentially benefit from the use of this Partnership's funds. Such a charge will, as stated by the Monitor, protect the interests of creditors as against the individual entities within the Walter Canada Group.

Stay Extension

[68] In order to implement the SISP, and further its restructuring efforts in general, the Walter Canada Group is seeking an extension of the stay and other relief granted in the initial order until April 5, 2016.

[69] Section 11.02(2) and (3) of the CCAA authorizes the court to make an order extending a stay of proceedings granted in the initial application. In this case, the evidence, together with the conclusions of the Monitor, support that an extension is appropriate and that the petitioners are acting in good faith and with due diligence. No stakeholder has suggested otherwise.

[70] As noted above, it is anticipated that the Walter Canada Group will have sufficient liquidity to continue operating throughout the requested stay period.

[71] Further, as the Phase 1 deadline in the SISP is March 18 2016, an extension of the stay until April 5, 2016 will provide sufficient time for PJT to solicit, and the CRO (in consultation with the Monitor and PJT) to consider, any letters of intent. At that time, the process may continue to Phase 2 of the SISP, if the CRO, in consultation with the Monitor and PJT, deems it advisable. In any event, at the time of the next court date, there will be a formal update to the court and the stakeholders on the progress under the SISP.

[72] The only issue relating to the extension of the stay arises from the submissions of the Union, who represents the employees at the Wolverine mine owned and operated by the Wolverine Coal Partnership (“Wolverine LP”). The Union wishes to continue with certain outstanding legal proceedings outstanding against Wolverine LP, as follows:

- a) In June 2015, the B.C. Labour Relations Board (the “Board”) found that Wolverine LP was in breach of s. 54 of the Labour Relations Code, R.S.B.C. 1996, c. 224 (the “Code”). The Board ordered Wolverine LP to pay $771,378.70 into trust by way of remedy. This was estimated to be the amount of damages owed by Wolverine LP, but the Union took the position that further amounts are owed. In any event, this amount was paid and is currently held in trust;
- b) In November 2015, Wolverine LP filed a proceeding in this court seeking a judicial review of the Board’s decision on the s. 54 issue. As a result, the final determination of the damages arising from the Code breach has not yet occurred and may never occur if Wolverine LP succeeds in its judicial review; and
- c) Following layoffs in April 2014, the Union claimed that a “northern allowance” was payable by Wolverine LP to the employees, including those on layoff. This claim was rejected at arbitration, and upheld on review at the Board. In February 2015, the Union filed a proceeding in this court seeking a judicial review of the Board’s decision.

[73] The Union's counsel has referred me to my earlier decision in Yukon Zinc Corporation (Re), 2015 BCSC 1961. There, I summarized the principles that govern applications by a creditor to lift the stay of proceedings to litigate claims:

[26] There is also no controversy concerning the principles which govern applications by creditors under the CCAA to lift the stay of proceedings to litigate claims in other courts or forums, other than by the procedures in place in the restructuring proceedings:

- a) the lifting of the stay is discretionary: Canwest Global Communications Corp., 2011 ONSC 2215, at paras. 19, 27;
- b) there are no statutory guidelines and the applicant faces a "very heavy onus" in making such an application: Canwest Global Communications Corp. (Re) (2009), 61 C.B.R. (5th) 200, at para. 32, 183 A.C.W.S. (3d) (Ont. S.C.J.) ("Canwest (2009)"), as applied in Azure Dynamics Corporation (Re), 2012 BCSC 781, at para. 5 and 505396 B.C. Ltd. (Re), 2013 BCSC 1580, at para. 19;
- c) there are no set circumstances where a stay will or will not be lifted, although examples of situations where the courts have lifted stay orders are set out in Canwest (2009) at para. 33;
- d) relevant factors will include the status of the CCAA proceedings and what impact the lifting of the stay will have on the proceedings. The court may consider whether there are sound reasons for doing so consistent with the objectives of the CCAA, including a consideration of the relative prejudice to parties and, where relevant, the merits of the proposed action: Canwest (2009) at para. 32;
- e) particularly where the issue is one which is engaged by a claims process in place, it must be remembered that one of the objectives of the CCAA is to promote a streamlined process to determine claims that reduces expense and delay; and
- f) as an overarching consideration, the court must consider whether it is in the interests of justice to lift the stay: Canwest (2009); Azure Dynamics at para. 28.

[74] I concluded that the Union had not met the "heavy onus" on it to justify the lifting of the stay to allow these various proceedings to continue. My specific reasons are:

- a) The Union argues that the materials are essentially already assembled and that these judicial reviews can be scheduled for short chambers matters. As such, the Union argues that there is "minimal prejudice" to Wolverine LP. While this may be so, proceeding with these matters will inevitably detract both managerial and legal focus from the primary task at hand, namely to implement the SISP, and as such, potentially interfere with the restructuring efforts;

- b) The Union argues that any purchaser of Wolverine LP's mine will inherit outstanding employee obligations pursuant to the Code. Accordingly, the Union argues that it will be more attractive to a buyer for the mine to have all outstanding employee claims resolved. Again, while this may come to pass, such an argument presupposes an outcome that is anything less than clear at this time. Such a rationale is clearly premature;
- c) The Union argues that it is unable to distribute the $771,378.70 to its members until Wolverine LP's judicial review is addressed. Frankly, I see this delay as the only real prejudice to the Union members. However, on the other hand, one might argue that the Union members are in a favourable position with these monies being held in trust as opposed to being unsecured creditors of Wolverine. In any event, the Union's claim to these monies has not yet been determined and arises from a dispute that dates back to April 2014. Therefore, there is no settled liability that would allow such payment to be made; and
- d) The Union claims that these matters must be determined "in any event" and that they should be determined "sooner rather than later". However, the outcome of the SISP may significantly affect what recovery any creditor may hope to achieve in this restructuring. In the happy circumstance where there will be monies to distribute, I expect that a claims process will be implemented to determine valid claims, not only in respect of the Union's claims, but all creditors.

[75] In summary, there is nothing to elevate the Union's claims such that it is imperative that they be determined now. There is nothing to justify the distraction and expense of proceeding with these actions to the detriment of the restructuring efforts. If it should come to pass that monies will be distributed to creditors, such as the Union, then I expect that the usual claims process will be implemented to decide the validity of those claims.

[76] In the meantime, if it becomes necessary to determine the validity of these claims quickly (such as to clarify potential successor claims for a purchaser), the Union will be at liberty to renew its application to lift the stay for that purpose.

[77] Accordingly, I grant an extension of the stay of proceedings and other ancillary relief until April 5, 2016.

ENDORSEMENT

[1] Cinram International Inc. (“CII”), Cinram International Income Fund (“Cinram Fund”), CII Trust and the Companies listed in Schedule “A” (collectively, the “Applicants”) brought this application seeking an initial order (the “Initial Order”) pursuant to the Companies’ Creditors Arrangement Act (“CCAA”). The Applicants also request that the court exercise its jurisdiction to extend a stay of proceedings and other benefits under the Initial Order to Cinram International Limited Partnership (“Cinram LP”, collectively with the Applicants, the “CCAA Parties”).

[2] Cinram Fund, together with its direct and indirect subsidiaries (collectively, “Cinram” or the “Cinram Group”) is a replicator and distributor of CDs and DVDs. Cinram has a diversified operational footprint across North America and Europe that enables it to meet the replication and logistics demands of its customers.

[3] The evidentiary record establishes that Cinram has experienced significant declines in revenue and EBITDA, which, according to Cinram, are a result of the economic downturn in Cinram’s primary markets of North America and Europe, which impacted consumers’ discretionary spending and adversely affected the entire industry.

[4] Cinram advises that over the past several years it has continued to evaluate its strategic alternatives and rationalize its operating footprint in order to attempt to balance its ongoing operations and financial challenges with its existing debt levels. However, despite cost reductions and recapitalized initiatives and the implementation of a variety of restructuring alternatives, the Cinram Group has experienced a number of challenges that has led to it seeking protection under the CCAA.

[5] Counsel to Cinram outlined the principal objectives of these CCAA proceedings as:

- (i) to ensure the ongoing operations of the Cinram Group;
- (ii) to ensure the CCAA Parties have the necessary availability of working capital funds to maximize the ongoing business of the Cinram Group for the benefit of its stakeholders; and
- (iii) to complete the sale and transfer of substantially all of the Cinram Group’s business as a going concern (the “Proposed Transaction”).

[6] Cinram contemplates that these CCAA proceedings will be the primary court supervised restructuring of the CCAA Parties. Cinram has operations in the United States and certain of the Applicants are incorporated under the laws of the United States. Cinram, however, takes the position that Canada is the nerve centre of the Cinram Group.

[7] The Applicants also seek authorization for Cinram International ULC (“Cinram ULC”) to act as “foreign representative” in the within proceedings to seek a recognition order under Chapter 15 of the United States Bankruptcy Code (“Chapter 15”). Cinram advises that the proceedings under Chapter 15 are intended to ensure that the CCAA Parties are protected from creditor actions in the United States and to assist with the global implementation of the Proposed Transaction to be undertaken pursuant to these CCAA proceedings.

[8] Counsel to the Applicants submits that the CCAA Parties are part of a consolidated business in Canada, the United States and Europe that is headquartered in Canada and operationally and functionally integrated in many significant respects. Cinram is one of the world’s largest providers of pre-recorded multi-media products and related logistics services. It has facilities in North America and Europe, and it:

- (i) manufactures DVDs, blue ray disks and CDs, and provides distribution services for motion picture studios, music labels, video game publishers, computer software companies, telecommunication companies and retailers around the world;
- (ii) provides various digital media services through One K Studios, LLC; and
- (iii) provides retail inventory control and forecasting services through Cinram Retail Services LLC (collectively, the “Cinram Business”).

[9] Cinram contemplates that the Proposed Transaction could allow it to restore itself as a market leader in the industry. Cinram takes the position that it requires CCAA protection to provide stability to its operations and to complete the Proposed Transaction.

[10] The Proposed Transaction has the support of the lenders forming the steering committee with respect to Cinram’s First Lien Credit Facilities (the “Steering Committee”), the members of which have been subject to confidentiality agreements and represent 40% of the loans under Cinram’s First Lien Credit Facilities (the “Initial Consenting Lenders”). Cinram also anticipates further support of the Proposed Transaction from additional lenders under its credit facilities following the public announcement of the Proposed Transaction.

[11] Cinram Fund is the direct or indirect parent and sole shareholder of all of the subsidiaries in Cinram’s corporate structure. A simplified corporate structure of the Cinram Group showing all of the CCAA Parties, including the designation of the CCAA Parties’ business segments and certain non-filing entities, is set out in the Pre-Filing Report of FTI Consulting Inc. (the “Monitor”) at paragraph 13. A copy is attached as Schedule “B”.

[12] Cinram Fund, CII, Cinram International General Partner Inc. (“Cinram GP”), CII Trust, Cinram ULC and 1362806 Ontario Limited are the Canadian entities in the Cinram Group that are Applicants in these proceedings (collectively, the “Canadian Applicants”). Cinram Fund and CII Trust are both open-ended limited purpose trusts, established under the laws of Ontario, and each of the remaining Canadian Applicants is incorporated pursuant to Federal or Provincial legislation.

[13] Cinram (US) Holdings Inc. (“CUSH”), Cinram Inc., IHC Corporation (“IHC”), Cinram Manufacturing, LLC (“Cinram Manufacturing”), Cinram Distribution, LLC (“Cinram Distribution”), Cinram Wireless, LLC (“Cinram Wireless”), Cinram Retail Services, LLC (“Cinram Retail”) and One K Studios, LLC (“One K”) are the U.S. entities in the Cinram Group that are Applicants in these proceedings (collectively, the “U.S. Applicants”). Each of the U.S. Applicants is incorporated under the laws of Delaware, with the exception of One K, which is incorporated under the laws of California. On May 25, 2012, each of the U.S. Applicants opened a new Canadian-based bank account with J.P. Morgan.

[14] Cinram LP is not an Applicant in these proceedings. However, the Applicants seek to have a stay of proceedings and other relief under the CCAA extended to Cinram LP as it forms part of Cinram's income trust structure with Cinram Fund, the ultimate parent of the Cinram Group.

[15] Cinram's European entities are not part of these proceedings and it is not intended that any insolvency proceedings will be commenced with respect to Cinram's European entities, except for Cinram Optical Discs SAC, which has commenced insolvency proceedings in France.

[16] The Cinram Group's principal source of long-term debt is the senior secured credit facilities provided under credit agreements known as the "First-Lien Credit Agreement" and the "Second-Lien Credit Agreement" (together with the First-Lien Credit Agreement, the "Credit Agreements").

[17] All of the CCAA Parties, with the exception of Cinram Fund, Cinram GP, CII Trust and Cinram LP (collectively, the "Fund Entities"), are borrowers and/or guarantors under the Credit Agreements. The obligations under the Credit Agreements are secured by substantially all of the assets of the Applicants and certain of their European subsidiaries.

[18] As at March 31, 2012, there was approximately $233 million outstanding under the First-Lien Term Loan Facility; $19 million outstanding under the First-Lien Revolving Credit Facilities; approximately $12 million of letter of credit exposure under the First-Lien Credit Agreement; and approximately $12 million outstanding under the Second-Lien Credit Agreement.

[19] Cinram advises that in light of the financial circumstances of the Cinram Group, it is not possible to obtain additional financing that could be used to repay the amounts owing under the Credit Agreements.

[20] Mr. John Bell, Chief Financial Officer of CII, stated in his affidavit that in connection with certain defaults under the Credit Agreements, a series of waivers was extended from December 2011 to June 30, 2012 and that upon expiry of the waivers, the lenders have the ability to demand immediate repayment of the outstanding amounts under the Credit Agreements and the borrowers and the other Applicants that are guarantors under the Credit Agreements would be unable to meet their debt obligations. Mr. Bell further stated that there is no reasonable expectation that Cinram would be able to service its debt load in the short to medium term given forecasted net revenues and EBITDA for the remainder of fiscal 2012, fiscal 2013, and fiscal 2014. The cash flow forecast attached to his affidavit indicates that, without additional funding, the Applicants will exhaust their available cash resources and will thus be unable to meet their obligations as they become due.

[21] The Applicants request a stay of proceedings. They take the position that in light of their financial circumstances, there could be a vast and significant erosion of value to the detriment of all stakeholders. In particular, the Applicants are concerned about the following risks, which, because of the integration of the Cinram business, also apply to the Applicants' subsidiaries, including Cinram LP:

- (a) the lenders demanding payment in full for money owing under the Credit Agreements;
- (b) potential termination of contracts by key suppliers; and
- (c) potential termination of contracts by customers.

[22] As indicated in the cash flow forecast, the Applicants do not have sufficient funds available to meet their immediate cash requirements as a result of their current liquidity challenges. Mr. Bell states in his affidavit that the Applicants require access to Debtor-In-Possession (“DIP”) Financing in the amount of $15 millions to continue operations while they implement their restructuring, including the Proposed Transaction. Cinram has negotiated a DIP Credit Agreement with the lenders forming the Steering Committee (the “DIP Lenders”) through J.P. Morgan Chase Bank, NA as Administrative Agent (the “DIP Agent”) whereby the DIP Lenders agree to provide the DIP Financing in the form of a term loan in the amount of $15 million.

[23] The Applicants also indicate that during the course of the CCAA proceedings, the CCAA Parties intend to generally make payments to ensure their ongoing business operations for the benefit of their stakeholders, including obligations incurred prior to, on, or after the commencement of these proceedings relating to:

- (a) the active employment of employees in the ordinary course;
- (b) suppliers and service providers the CCAA Parties and the Monitor have determined to be critical to the continued operation of the Cinram business;
- (c) certain customer programs in place pursuant to existing contracts or arrangements with customers; and
- (d) inter-company payments among the CCAA Parties in respect of, among other things, shared services.

[24] Mr. Bell states that the ability to make these payments relating to critical suppliers and customer programs is subject to a consultation and approval process agreed to among the Monitor, the DIP Agent and the CCAA Parties.

[25] The Applicants also request an Administration Charge for the benefit of the Monitor and Moelis and Company, LLC (“Moelis”), an investment bank engaged to assist Cinram in a comprehensive and thorough review of its strategic alternatives.

[26] In addition, the directors (and in the case of Cinram Fund and CII Trust, the Trustees, referred to collectively with the directors as the “Directors/Trustees”) requested a Director’s Charge to provide certainty with respect to potential personal liability if they continue in their current capacities. Mr. Bell states that in order to complete a successful restructuring, including the Proposed Transaction, the Applicants require the active and committed involvement of their Directors/Trustees and officers. Further, Cinram's insurers have advised that if Cinram was to file for CCAA protection, and the insurers agreed to renew the existing D&O policies, there would be a significant increase in the premium for that insurance.

[27] Cinram has also developed a key employee retention program (the "KERP") with the principal purpose of providing an incentive for eligible employees, including eligible officers, to remain with the Cinram Group despite its financial difficulties. The KERP has been reviewed and approved by the Board of Trustees of the Cinram Fund. The KERP includes retention payments (the "KERP Retention Payments") to certain existing employees, including certain officers employed at Canadian and U.S. Entities, who are critical to the preservation of Cinram's enterprise value.

[28] Cinram also advises that on June 22, 2012, Cinram Fund, the borrowers under the Credit Agreements, and the Initial Consenting Lenders entered into a support agreement pursuant to which the Initial Consenting Lenders agreed to support the Proposed Transaction to be pursued through these CCAA proceedings (the "Support Agreement").

[29] Pursuant to the Support Agreement, lenders under the First-Lien Credit Agreement who execute the Support Agreement or Consent Agreement prior to July 10, 2012 (the "Consent Date") are entitled to receive consent consideration (the "Early Consent Consideration") equal to 4% of the principal amount of loans under the First-Lien Credit Agreement held by such consenting lenders as of the Consent Date, payable in cash from the net sale proceeds of the Proposed Transaction upon distribution of such proceeds in the CCAA proceedings.

[30] Mr. Bell states that it is contemplated that the CCAA proceedings will be the primary court-supervised restructuring of the CCAA Parties. He states that the CCAA Parties are part of a consolidated business in Canada, the United States and Europe that is headquartered in Canada and operationally and functionally integrated in many significant respects. Mr. Bell further states that although Cinram has operations in the United States, and certain of the Applicants are incorporated under the laws of the United States, it is Ontario that is Cinram's home jurisdiction and the nerve centre of the CCAA Parties' management, business and operations.

[31] The CCAA Parties have advised that they will be seeking a recognition order under Chapter 15 to ensure that they are protected from creditor actions in the United States and to assist with the global implementation of the Proposed Transaction. Thus, the Applicants seek authorization in the Proposed Initial Order for:

Cinram ULC to seek recognition of these proceedings as "foreign main proceedings" and to seek such additional relief required in connection with the prosecution of any sale transaction, including the Proposed Transaction, as well as authorization for the Monitor, as a court-appointed officer, to assist the CCAA Parties with any matters relating to any of the CCAA Parties' subsidiaries and any foreign proceedings commenced in relation thereto.

[32] Mr. Bell further states that the Monitor will be actively involved in assisting Cinram ULC as the foreign representative of the Applicants in the Chapter 15 proceedings and will assist in keeping this court informed of developments in the Chapter 15 proceedings.

[33] The facts relating to the CCAA Parties, the Cinram business, and the requested relief are fully set out in Mr. Bell's affidavit.

[34] Counsel to the Applicants filed a comprehensive factum in support of the requested relief in the Initial Order. Part III of the factum sets out the issues and the law.

[35] The relief requested in the form of the Initial Order is extensive. It goes beyond what this court usually considers on an initial hearing. However, in the circumstances of this case, I have been persuaded that the requested relief is appropriate.

[36] In making this determination, I have taken into account that the Applicants have spent a considerable period of time reviewing their alternatives and have done so in a consultative manner with their senior secured lenders. The senior secured lenders support this application, notwithstanding that it is clear that they will suffer a significant shortfall on their positions. It is also noted that the Early Consent Consideration will be available to lenders under the First-Lien Credit Agreement who execute the Support Agreement prior to July 10, 2012. Thus, all of these lenders will have the opportunity to participate in this arrangement.

[37] As previously indicated, the Applicants' factum is comprehensive. The submissions on the law are extensive and cover all of the outstanding issues. It provides a fulsome review of the jurisprudence in the area, which for purposes of this application, I accept. For this reason, paragraphs 41-96 of the factum are attached as Schedule "C" for reference purposes.

[38] The Applicants have also requested that the confidential supplement – which contains the KERP summary listing the individual KERP Payments and certain DIP Schedules – be sealed. I am satisfied that the KERP summary contains individually identifiable information and compensation information, including sensitive salary information, about the individuals who are covered by the KERP and that the DIP schedules contain sensitive competitive information of the CCAA Parties which should also be treated as being confidential. Having considered the principals of Sierra Club of Canada v. Canada (Minister of Finance), (2002) 2 S.C.R. 522, I accept the Applicants' submission on this issue and grant the requested sealing order in respect of the confidential supplement.

[39] Finally, the Applicants have advised that they intend to proceed with a Chapter 15 application on June 26, 2012 before the United States Bankruptcy Court in the District of Delaware. I am given to understand that Cinram ULC, as proposed foreign representative, will be seeking recognition of the CCAA proceedings as "foreign main proceedings" on the basis that Ontario, Canada is the Centre of Main Interest or "COMI" of the CCAA Applicants.

[40] In his affidavit at paragraph 195, Mr. Bell states that the CCAA Parties are part of a consolidated business that is headquartered in Canada and operationally and functionally integrated in many significant respects and that, as a result of the following factors, the Applicants submit the COMI of the CCAA Parties is Ontario, Canada:

- (a) the Cinram Group is managed on a consolidated basis out of the corporate headquarters in Toronto, Ontario, where corporate-level decision-making and corporate administrative functions are centralized;
- (b) key contracts, including, among others, major customer service agreements, are negotiated at the corporate level and created in Canada;
- (c) the Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer of CII, who are also directors, trustees and/or officers of other entities in the Cinram Group, are based in Canada;
- (d) meetings of the board of trustees and board of directors typically take place in Canada;
- (e) pricing decisions for entities in the Cinram Group are ultimately made by the Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer in Toronto, Ontario;
- (f) cash management functions for Cinram's North American entities, including the administration of Cinram's accounts receivable and accounts payable, are managed from Cinram's head office in Toronto, Ontario;
- (g) although certain bookkeeping, invoicing and accounting functions are performed locally, corporate accounting, treasury, financial reporting, financial planning, tax planning and compliance, insurance procurement services and internal audits are managed at a consolidated level in Toronto, Ontario;
- (h) information technology, marketing, and real estate services are provided by CII at the head office in Toronto, Ontario;
- (i) with the exception of routine maintenance expenditures, all capital expenditure decisions affecting the Cinram Group are managed in Toronto, Ontario;
- (j) new business development initiatives are centralized and managed from Toronto, Ontario; and
- (k) research and development functions for the Cinram Group are corporate-level activities centralized at Toronto, Ontario, including the Cinram Group's corporate-level research and development budget and strategy.

[41] Counsel submits that the CCAA Parties are highly dependent upon the critical business functions performed on their behalf from Cinram's head office in Toronto and would not be able to function independently without significant disruptions to their operations.

[42] The above comments with respect to the COMI are provided for informational purposes only. This court clearly recognizes that it is the function of the receiving court – in this case, the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware – to make the determination on the location of the COMI and to determine whether this CCAA proceeding is a “foreign main proceeding” for the purposes of Chapter 15.

[43] In the result, I am satisfied that the Applicants meet all of the qualifications established for relief under the CCAA and I have signed the Initial Order in the form submitted, which includes approvals of the Charges referenced in the Initial Order.

SCHEDULE “B”

SCHEDULE “C”

A. THE APPLICANTS ARE “DEBTOR COMPANIES” TO WHICH THE CCAA APPLIES

41. The CCAA applies in respect of a “debtor company” (including a foreign company having assets or doing business in Canada) or “affiliated debtor companies” where the total of claims against such company or companies exceeds $5 million.

CCAA, Section 3(1).

42. The Applicants are eligible for protection under the CCAA because each is a “debtor company” and the total of the claims against the Applicants exceeds $5 million.

(1) The Applicants are Debtor Companies

43. The terms “company” and “debtor company” are defined in Section 2 of the CCAA as follows:

“company” means any company, corporation or legal person incorporated by or under an Act of Parliament or of the legislature of a province and any incorporated company having assets or doing business in Canada, wherever incorporated, and any income trust, but does not include banks, authorized foreign banks within the meaning of section 2 of the Bank Act, railway or telegraph companies, insurance companies and companies to which the Trust and Loan Companies Act applies.

“debtor company” means any company that:

- (a) is bankrupt or insolvent;
- (b) has committed an act of bankruptcy within the meaning of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act or is deemed insolvent within the meaning of the Winding-Up and Restructuring Act, whether or not proceedings in respect of the company have been taken under either of those Acts;
- (c) has made an authorized assignment or against which a receiving order has been made under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act; or

(d) is in the course of being wound up under the Winding-Up and Restructuring Act because the company is insolvent.

CCAA, Section 2 (“company” and “debtor company”).

44. The Applicants are debtor companies within the meaning of these definitions.

(2) The Applicants are “companies”

45. The Applicants are “companies” because:

- a. with respect to the Canadian Applicants, each is incorporated pursuant to federal or provincial legislation or, in the case of Cinram Fund and CII Trust, is an income trust; and
- b. with respect to the U.S. Applicants, each is an incorporated company with certain funds in bank accounts in Canada opened in May 2012 and therefore each is a company having assets or doing business in Canada.

Bell Affidavit at paras. 4, 80, 84, 86, 91, 94, 98, 102, 105, 108, 111, 114, 117, 120, 123, 212; Application Record, Tab 2.

46. The test for “having assets or doing business in Canada” is disjunctive, such that either “having assets” in Canada or “doing business in Canada” is sufficient to qualify an incorporated company as a “company” within the meaning of the CCAA.

47. Having only nominal assets in Canada, such as funds on deposit in a Canadian bank account, brings a foreign corporation within the definition of “company”. In order to meet the threshold statutory requirements of the CCAA, an applicant need only be in technical compliance with the plain words of the CCAA.

Re Global Light Telecommunications Ltd. (2004), 2 C.B.R. (5th) 210 (B.C.S.C.) at para. 17 [Global Light]; Book of Authorities, Tab 2.

48. The Courts do not engage in a quantitative or qualitative analysis of the assets or the circumstances in which the assets were created. Accordingly, the use of “instant” transactions immediately preceding a CCAA application, such as the creation of “instant debts” or “instant assets” for the purposes of bringing an entity within the scope of the CCAA, has received judicial approval as a legitimate device to bring a debtor within technical requirements of the CCAA.

(3) The Applicants are insolvent

49. The Applicants are “debtor companies” as defined in the CCAA because they are companies (as set out above) and they are insolvent.

50. The insolvency of the debtor is assessed as of the time of filing the CCAA application. The CCAA does not define insolvency. Accordingly, in interpreting the meaning of “insolvent”, courts have taken guidance from the definition of “insolvent person” in Section 2(1) of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (the “BIA”), which defines an “insolvent person” as a person (i) who is not bankrupt; and (ii) who resides, carries on business or has property in Canada; (iii) whose liabilities to creditors provable as claims under the BIA amount to one thousand dollars; and (iv) who is “insolvent” under one of the following tests:

- a. is for any reason unable to meet his obligations as they generally become due;
- b. has ceased paying his current obligations in the ordinary course of business as they generally become due; or
- c. the aggregate of his property is not, at a fair valuation, sufficient, or if disposed of at a fairly conducted sale under legal process, would not be sufficient to enable payment of all his obligations, due and accruing due.

BIA, Section 2 (“insolvent person”).

51. These tests for insolvency are disjunctive. A company satisfying any one of these tests is considered insolvent for the purposes of the CCAA.

Stelco, supra at paras. 26 and 28; Book of Authorities, Tab 5.

52. A company is also insolvent for the purposes of the CCAA if, at the time of filing, there is a reasonably foreseeable expectation that there is a looming liquidity condition or crisis that would result in the company being unable to pay its debts as they generally become due if a stay of proceedings and ancillary protection are not granted by the court.

Stelco, supra at para. 40; Book of Authorities, Tab 5.

53. The Applicants meet both the traditional test for insolvency under the BIA and the expanded test for insolvency based on a looming liquidity condition as a result of the following:

- a. The Applicants are unable to comply with certain financial covenants under the Credit Agreements and have entered into a series of waivers with their lenders from December 2011 to June 30, 2012.
- b. Were the Lenders to accelerate the amounts owing under the Credit Agreements, the Borrowers and the other Applicants that are Guarantors under the Credit Agreements would be unable to meet their debt obligations. Cinram Fund would be the ultimate parent of an insolvent business.
- d. The Applicants have been unable to repay or refinance the amounts owing under the Credit Agreements or find an out-of-court transaction for the sale of the Cinram Business with proceeds that equal or exceed the amounts owing under the Credit Agreements.

- e. Reduced revenues and EBITDA and increased borrowing costs have significantly impaired Cinram's ability to service its debt obligations. There is no reasonable expectation that Cinram will be able to service its debt load in the short to medium term given forecasted net revenues and EBITDA for the remainder of fiscal 2012 and for fiscal 2013 and 2014.
- f. The decline in revenues and EBITDA generated by the Cinram Business has caused the value of the Cinram Business to decline. As a result, the aggregate value of the Property, taken at fair value, is not sufficient to allow for payment of all of the Applicants' obligations due and accruing due.
- g. The Cash Flow Forecast indicates that without additional funding the Applicants will exhaust their available cash resources and will thus be unable to meet their obligations as they become due.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 23, 179-181, 183, 197-199; Application Record, Tab 2.

(4) The Applicants are affiliated companies with claims outstanding in excess of $5 million

54. The Applicants are affiliated debtor companies with total claims exceeding 5 million dollars. Therefore, the CCAA applies to the Applicants in accordance with Section 3(1).

55. Affiliated companies are defined in Section 3(2) of the CCAA as follows:

- a. companies are affiliated companies if one of them is the subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of the same company or each is controlled by the same person; and
- b. two companies are affiliated with the same company at the same time are deemed to be affiliated with each other.

CCAA, Section 3(2).

56. CII, CII Trust and all of the entities listed in Schedule “A” hereto are indirect, wholly owned subsidiaries of Cinram Fund; thus, the Applicants are “affiliated companies” for the purpose of the CCAA.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 3, 71; Application Record, Tab 2.

57. All of the CCAA Parties (except for the Fund Entities) are each a Borrower and/or Guarantor under the Credit Agreements. As at March 31, 2012 there was approximately $252 million of aggregate principal amount outstanding under the First Lien Credit Agreement (plus approximately $12 million in letter of credit exposure) and approximately $12 million of aggregate principal amount outstanding under the Second Lien Credit Agreement. The total claims against the Applicants far exceed $5 million.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 75; Application Record, Tab 2.

B. THE RELIEF IS AVAILABLE UNDER THE CCAA AND CONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSE AND POLICY OF THE CCAA

(1) The CCAA is Flexible, Remedial Legislation

58. The CCAA is remedial legislation, intended to facilitate compromises and arrangements between companies and their creditors as an alternative to bankruptcy. In particular during periods of financial hardship, debtors turn to the Court so that the Court may apply the CCAA in a flexible manner in order to accomplish the statute’s goals. The Court should give the CCAA a broad and liberal interpretation so as to encourage and facilitate successful restructurings whenever possible.

Elan Corp. v. Comiskey, supra at paras. 22 and 56-60; Book of Authorities, Tab 4.
Re Lehndorff General Partners Ltd. (1993), 17 C.B.R. (3d) 24 at para.5 (Ont. Gen. Div. [Commercial List]); Book of Authorities, Tab 6.

59. On numerous occasions, courts have held that Section 11 of the CCAA provides the courts with a broad and liberal power, which is at their disposal in order to achieve the overall objective of the CCAA. Accordingly, an interpretation of the CCAA that facilitates restructurings accords with its purpose.

Re Sulphur Corporation of Canada Ltd. (2002), 35 C.B.R. (4th) 304 (Alta Q.B.) (“Sulphur”) at para. 26; Book of Authorities, Tab 8.

60. Given the nature and purpose of the CCAA, this Honourable Court has the authority and jurisdiction to depart from the Model Order as is reasonable and necessary in order to achieve a successful restructuring.

(2) The Stay of Proceedings Against Non-Applicants is Appropriate

61. The relief sought in this application includes a stay of proceedings in favour of Cinram LP and the Applicants’ direct and indirect subsidiaries that are also party to an agreement with an Applicant (whether as surety, guarantor or otherwise) (each, a “Subsidiary Counterparty”), including any contract or credit agreement. It is just and reasonable to grant the requested stay of proceedings because:

- a. the Cinram Business is integrated among the Applicants, Cinram LP and the Subsidiary Counterparties;
- b. if any proceedings were commenced against Cinram LP, or if any of the third parties to such agreements were to commence proceedings or exercise rights and remedies against the Subsidiary Counterparties, this would have a detrimental effect on the Applicants’ ability to restructure and implement the Proposed Transaction and would lead to an erosion of value of the Cinram Business; and
- c. a stay of proceedings that extends to Cinram LP and the Subsidiary Counterparties is necessary in order to maintain stability with respect to the Cinram Business and maintain value for the benefit of the Applicants’ stakeholders.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 185-186; Application Record, Tab 2.

62. The purpose of the CCAA is to preserve the status quo to enable a plan of compromise to be prepared, filed and considered by the creditors:

In the interim, a judge has great discretion under the CCAA to make order so as to effectively maintain the status quo in respect of an insolvent company while it attempts to gain the approval of its creditors for the proposed compromise or arrangement which will be to the benefit of both the company and its creditors.

Lehndorff General Partner Ltd., Re, supra at para. 5; Book of Authorities, Tab 6. Canwest Global, supra at para. 27; Book of Authorities, Tab 1. CCAA, Section 11.

63. The Court has broad inherent jurisdiction to impose stays of proceedings that supplement the statutory provisions of Section 11 of the CCAA, providing the Court with the power to grant a stay of proceedings where it is just and reasonable to do so, including with respect to non-applicant parties.

Lehndorff, supra at paras. 5 and 16; Book of Authorities, Tab 6. T. Eaton Co., Re (1997), 46 C.B.R. (3d) 293 (Ont. Gen. Div.) at para. 6; Book of Authorities, Tab 9.

64. The Courts have found it just and reasonable to grant a stay of proceedings against third party non-applicants in a number of circumstances, including:

- a. where it is important to the reorganization process;
- b. where the business operations of the Applicants and the third party non-applicants are intertwined and the third parties are not subject to the jurisdiction of the CCAA, such as partnerships that do not qualify as “companies” within the meaning of the CCAA;
- c. against non-applicant subsidiaries of a debtor company where such subsidiaries were guarantors under the note indentures issued by the debtor company; and

- d. against non-applicant subsidiaries relating to any guarantee, contribution or indemnity obligation, liability or claim in respect of obligations and claims against the debtor companies.

65. The Applicants submit the balance of convenience favours extending the relief in the proposed Initial Order to Cinram LP and the Subsidiary Counterparties. The business operations of the Applicants, Cinram LP and the Subsidiary Counterparties are intertwined and the stay of proceedings is necessary to maintain stability and value for the benefit of the Applicants' stakeholders, as well as allow an orderly, going-concern sale of the Cinram Business as an important component of its reorganization process.

(3) Entitlement to Make Pre-Filing Payments

66. To ensure the continued operation of the CCAA Parties' business and maximization of value in the interests of Cinram's stakeholders, the Applicants seek authorization (but not a requirement) for the CCAA Parties to make certain pre-filing payments, including: (a) payments to employees in respect of wages, benefits, and related amounts; (b) payments to suppliers and service providers critical to the ongoing operation of the business; (c) payments and the application of credits in connection with certain existing customer programs; and (d) intercompany payments among the Applicants related to intercompany loans and shared services. Payments will be made with the consent of the Monitor and, in certain circumstances, with the consent of the Agent.

67. There is ample authority supporting the Court's general jurisdiction to permit payment of pre-filing obligations to persons whose services are critical to the ongoing operations of the debtor companies. This jurisdiction of the Court is not ousted by Section 11.4 of the CCAA, which became effective as part of the 2009 amendments to the CCAA and codified the Court's practice of declaring a person to be a critical supplier and granting a charge on the debtor's property in favour of such critical supplier. As noted by Pepall J. in Re Canwest Global, the recent amendments, including Section 11.4, do not detract from the inherently flexible nature of the CCAA or the Court's broad and inherent jurisdiction to make such orders that will facilitate the debtor's restructuring of its business as a going concern.

Canwest Global supra, at paras. 41 and 43; Book of Authorities, Tab 1.

68. There are many cases since the 2009 amendments where the Courts have authorized the applicants to pay certain pre-filing amounts where the applicants were not seeking a charge in respect of critical suppliers. In granting this authority, the Courts considered a number of factors, including:

- a. whether the goods and services were integral to the business of the applicants;
- b. the applicants' dependency on the uninterrupted supply of the goods or services;
- c. the fact that no payments would be made without the consent of the Monitor;
- d. the Monitor's support and willingness to work with the applicants to ensure that payments to suppliers in respect of pre-filing liabilities are minimized;
- e. whether the applicants had sufficient inventory of the goods on hand to meet their needs; and
- f. the effect on the debtors' ongoing operations and ability to restructure if they were unable to make pre-filing payments to their critical suppliers.

Re Prizm Income Fund (2012), 75 C.B.R. (5th) 213 (Ont. Sup. Ct. J.) at paras. 29-34; Book of Authorities, Tab 14.

69. The CCAA Parties rely on the efficient and expedited supply of products and services from their suppliers and service providers in order to ensure that their operations continue in an efficient manner so that they can satisfy customer requirements. The CCAA Parties operate in a highly competitive environment where the timely provision of their products and services is essential in order for the company to remain a successful player in the industry and to ensure the continuance of the Cinram Business. The CCAA Parties require flexibility to ensure adequate and timely supply of required products and to attempt to obtain and negotiate credit terms with its suppliers and service providers. In order to accomplish this, the CCAA Parties require the ability to pay certain pre-filing amounts and post-filing payables to those suppliers they consider essential to the Cinram Business, as approved by the Monitor. The Monitor, in determining whether to approve pre-filing payments as critical to the ongoing business operations, will consider various factors, including the above factors derived from the caselaw.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 226, 228, 230; Application Record, Tab 2.

70. In addition, the CCAA Parties' continued compliance with their existing customer programs, as described in the Bell Affidavit, including the payment of certain pre-filing amounts owing under certain customer programs and the application of certain credits granted to customers pre-filing to post-filing receivables, is essential in order for the CCAA Parties to maintain their customer relationships as part of the CCAA Parties' going concern business.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 234; Application Record, Tab 2.

71. Further, due to the operational integration of the businesses of the CCAA Parties, as described above, there is a significant volume of financial transactions between and among the Applicants, including, among others, charges by an Applicant providing shared services to another Applicant of intercompany accounts due from the recipients of those services, and charges by a Applicant that manufactures and furnishes products to another Applicant of inter-company accounts due from the receiving entity.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 225; Application Record, Tab 2.

72. Accordingly, the Applicants submit that it is appropriate in the present circumstances for this Honourable Court to exercise its jurisdiction and grant the CCAA Parties the authority to make the pre-filing payments described in the proposed Initial Order subject to the terms therein.

(4) The Charges Are Appropriate

73. The Applicants seek approval of certain Court-ordered charges over their assets relating to their DIP Financing (defined below), administrative costs, indemnification of their trustees, directors and officers, KERP and Support Agreement. The Lenders and the Administrative Agent under the Credit Agreements, the senior secured facilities that will be primed by the charges, have been provided with notice of the within Application. The proposed Initial Order does not purport to give the Court-ordered charges priority over any other validly perfected security interests.

(A) DIP Lenders' Charge

74. In the proposed Initial Order, the Applicants seek approval of the DIP Credit Agreement providing a debtor-in-possession term facility in the principal amount of $15 million (the "DIP Financing"), to be secured by a charge over all of the assets and property of the Applicants that are Borrowers and/or Guarantors under the Credit Agreements (the "Charged Property") ranking ahead of all other charges except the Administration Charge.

75. Section 11.2 of the CCAA expressly provides the Court the statutory jurisdiction to grant a debtor-in-possession ("DIP") financing charge:

11.2(1) Interim financing - On application by a debtor company and on notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, a court may make an order declaring that all or part of the company's property is subject to a security or charge — in an amount that the court considers appropriate — in favour of a person specified in the order who agrees to lend to the company an amount approved by the court as being required by the company, having regard to its cash-flow statement. The security or charge may not secure an obligation that exists before the order is made.

11.2(2) Priority – secured creditors – The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

Re Timminco Ltd. (2012), 211 A.C.W.S. (3d) 881(Ont. Sup. Ct. J. [Commercial List]) at para. 31; Book of Authorities, Tab 15. CCAA, Section 11.2(1) and (2).

76. Section 11.2 of the CCAA sets out the following factors to be considered by the Court in deciding whether to grant a DIP financing charge:

11.2(4) Factors to be considered – In deciding whether to make an order, the court is to consider, among other things,

- (a) the period during which the company is expected to be subject to proceedings under this Act;
- (b) how the company's business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings;
- (c) whether the company's management has the confidence of its major creditors;
- (d) whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the company;
- (e) the nature and value of the company's property;
- (f) whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge; and
- (g) the monitor's report referred to in paragraph 23(1)(b), if any.

CCAA, Section 11.2(4).

77. The above list of factors is not exhaustive, and it may be appropriate for the Court to consider additional factors in determining whether to grant a DIP financing charge. For example, in circumstances where funds to be borrowed pursuant to a DIP facility were not expected to be immediately necessary, but applicants' cash flow statements projected the need for additional liquidity, the Court in granting the requested DIP charge considered the fact that the applicants' ability to borrow funds that would be secured by a charge would help retain the confidence of their trade creditors, employees and suppliers.

78. Courts in recent cross-border cases have exercised their broad power to grant charges to DIP lenders over the assets of foreign applicants. In many of these cases, the debtors have commenced recognition proceedings under Chapter 15.

Re Fraser Papers Inc., Initial Order granted on June 18, 2009, Court File No. CV-09-8241-00CL; Book of Authorities, Tab 19.

79. As noted above, pursuant to Section 11.2(1) of the CCAA, a DIP financing charge may not secure an obligation that existed before the order was made. The requested DIP Lenders' Charge will not secure any pre-filing obligations.

80. The following factors support the granting of the DIP Lenders' Charge, many of which incorporate the considerations enumerated in Section 11.2(4) listed above:

- a. the Cash Flow Forecast indicates the Applicants will need additional liquidity afforded by the DIP Financing in order to continue operations through the duration of these proposed CCAA Proceedings;

- b. the Cinram Business is intended to continue to operate on a going concern basis during these CCAA Proceedings under the direction of the current management with the assistance of the Applicants' advisors and the Monitor;
- c. the DIP Financing is expected to provide the Applicants with sufficient liquidity to implement the Proposed Transaction through these CCAA Proceedings and implement certain operational restructuring initiatives, which will materially enhance the likelihood of a going concern outcome for the Cinram Business;
- d. the nature and the value of the Applicants' assets as set out in their consolidated financial statements can support the requested DIP Lenders' Charge;
- e. members of the Steering Committee under the First Lien Credit Agreement, who are senior secured creditors of the Applicants, have agreed to provide the DIP Financing;
- f. the proposed DIP Lenders have indicated that they will not provide the DIP Financing if the DIP Lenders' Charge is not approved;
- g. the DIP Lenders' Charge will not secure any pre-filing obligations;
- h. the senior secured lenders under the Credit Agreements affected by the charge have been provided with notice of these CCAA Proceedings; and
- i. the proposed Monitor is supportive of the DIP Facility, including the DIP Lenders' Charge.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 199-202, 205-208; Application Record, Tab 2.

(B) Administration Charge

81. The Applicants seek a charge over the Charged Property in the amount of CAD$3.5 million to secure the fees of the Monitor and its counsel, the Applicants' Canadian and U.S. counsel, the Applicants' Investment Banker, the Canadian and U.S. Counsel to the DIP Agent, the DIP Lenders, the Administrative Agent and the Lenders under the Credit Agreements, and the financial advisor to the DIP Lenders and the Lenders under the Credit Agreements (the “Administration Charge”). This charge is to rank in priority to all of the other charges set out in the proposed Initial Order.

82. Prior to the 2009 amendments, administration charges were granted pursuant to the inherent jurisdiction of the Court. Section 11.52 of the CCAA now expressly provides the court with the jurisdiction to grant an administration charge:

11.52(1) Court may order security or charge to cover certain costs

On notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge, the court may make an order declaring that all or part of the property of a debtor company is subject to a security or charge -- in an amount that the court considers appropriate -- in respect of the fees and expenses of (a) the monitor, including the fees and expenses of any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the monitor in the performance of the monitor’s duties;

(b) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by the company for the purpose of proceedings under this Act; and

(c) any financial, legal or other experts engaged by any other interested person if the court is satisfied that the security or charge is necessary for their effective participation in proceedings under this Act.

11.52(2) Priority

The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditor of the company.

CCAA, Section 11.52(1) and (2).

82. Administration charges were granted pursuant to Section 11.52 in, among other cases, Timminco, Canwest Global and Canwest Publishing.

Canwest Global, supra; Book of Authorities, Tab 1.

Canwest Publishing, supra; Book of Authorities, Tab 16.

Re Timminco Ltd., 2012 ONSC 106 (Commercial List) [Timminco]; Book of Authorities, Tab 20.

84. In Canwest Publishing, the Court noted Section 11.52 does not contain any specific criteria for a court to consider in granting an administration charge and provided a list of non-exhaustive factors to consider in making such an assessment. These factors were also considered by the Court in Timminco. The list of factors to consider in approving an administration charge include:

- a. the size and complexity of the business being restructured;
- b. the proposed role of the beneficiaries of the charge;
- c. whether there is unwarranted duplication of roles;
- d. whether the quantum of the proposed charge appears to be fair and reasonable;
- e. the position of the secured creditors likely to be affected by the charge; and
- f. the position of the Monitor.

Canwest Publishing supra, at para. 54; Book of Authorities, Tab 16.

Timminco, supra, at paras. 26-29; Book of Authorities, Tab 20.

85. The Applicants submit that the Administration Charge is warranted and necessary, and that it is appropriate in the present circumstances for this Honourable Court to exercise its jurisdiction and grant the Administration Charge, given:

- a. the proposed restructuring of the Cinram Business is large and complex, spanning several jurisdictions across North America and Europe, and will require the extensive involvement of professional advisors;
- b. the professionals that are to be beneficiaries of the Administration Charge have each played a critical role in the CCAA Parties' restructuring efforts to date and will continue to be pivotal to the CCAA Parties' ability to pursue a successful restructuring going forward, including the Investment Banker's involvement in the completion of the Proposed Transaction;

- c. there is no unwarranted duplication of roles;
- d. the senior secured creditors affected by the charge have been provided with notice of these CCAA Proceedings; and
- e. the Monitor is in support of the proposed Administration Charge.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 188, 190; Application Record, Tab 2.

(C) Directors' Charge

86. The Applicants seek a Directors' Charge in an amount of CAD$13 over the Charged Property to secure their respective indemnification obligations for liabilities imposed on the Applicants' trustees, directors and officers (the "Directors and Officers"). The Directors' Charge is to be subordinate to the Administration Charge and the DIP Lenders' Charge but in priority to the KERP Charge and the Consent Consideration Charge.

87. Section 11.51 of the CCAA affords the Court the jurisdiction to grant a charge relating to directors' and officers' indemnification on a priority basis:

11.51(1) Security or charge relating to director's indemnification

On application by a debtor company and on notice to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by the security or charge -- in an amount that the court considers appropriate -- in favour of any director or officer of the company to indemnify the director or officer against obligations and liabilities that they may incur as a director or officer of the company after the commencement of proceedings under this Act.

11.51(2) Priority

The court may order that the security or charge rank in priority over the claim of any secured creditors of the company

11.51(3) Restriction -- indemnification insurance

The court may not make the order if in its opinion the company could obtain adequate indemnification insurance for the director or officer at a reasonable cost.

11.51(4) Negligence, misconduct or fault

The court shall make an order declaring that the security or charge does not apply in respect of a specific obligation or liability incurred by a director or officer if in its opinion the obligation or liability was incurred as a result of the director's or officer's gross negligence or wilful misconduct or, in Quebec, the director's or officer's gross or intentional fault.

CCAA, Section 11.51.

88. The Court has granted director and officer charges pursuant to Section 11.51 in a number of cases. In Canwest Global, the Court outlined the test for granting such a charge:

I have already addressed the issue of notice to affected secured creditors. I must also be satisfied with the amount and that the charge is for obligations and liabilities the directors and officers may incur after the commencement of proceedings. It is not to extend to coverage of wilful misconduct or gross negligence and no order should be granted if adequate insurance at a reasonable cost could be obtained.

Canwest Global, supra at paras 46-48; Book of Authorities, Tab 1.

Canwest Publishing, supra at paras. 56-57; Book of Authorities, Tab 16.

Timminco, supra at paras. 30-36; Book of Authorities, Tab 20.

89. The Applicants submit that the D&O Charge is warranted and necessary, and that it is appropriate in the present circumstances for this Honourable Court to exercise its jurisdiction and grant the D&O Charge in the amount of CAD$13 million, given:

- a. the Directors and Officers of the Applicants may be subject to potential liabilities in connection with these CCAA proceedings with respect to which the Directors and Officers have expressed their desire for certainty with respect to potential personal liability if they continue in their current capacities;
- b. renewal of coverage to protect the Directors and Officers is at a significantly increased cost due to the imminent commencement of these CCAA proceedings;
- c. the Directors' Charge would cover obligations and liabilities that the Directors and Officers, as applicable, may incur after the commencement of these CCAA Proceedings and is not intended to cover wilful misconduct or gross negligence;

- d. the Applicants require the continued support and involvement of their Directors and Officers who have been instrumental in the restructuring efforts of the CCAA Parties to date;
- e. the senior secured creditors affected by the charge have been provided with notice of these CCAA proceedings; and
- f. the Monitor is in support of the proposed Directors' Charge.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 249, 250, 254-257 ; Application Record, Tab 2.

(D) KERP Charge

90. The Applicants seek a KERP Charge in an amount of CAD$3 million over the Charged Property to secure the KERP Retention Payments, KERP Transaction Payments and Aurora KERP Payments payable to certain key employees of the CCAA Parties crucial for the CCAA Parties' successful restructuring.

91. The CCAA is silent with respect to the granting of KERP charges. Approval of a KERP and a KERP charge are matters within the discretion of the Court. The Court in Re Grant Forest Products Inc. considered a number of factors in determining whether to grant a KERP and a KERP charge, including:

- a. whether the Monitor supports the KERP agreement and charge (to which great weight was attributed);
- b. whether the employees to which the KERP applies would consider other employment options if the KERP agreement were not secured by the KERP charge;
- c. whether the continued employment of the employees to which the KERP applies is important for the stability of the business and to enhance the effectiveness of the marketing process;

- d. the employees' history with and knowledge of the debtor;
- e. the difficulty in finding a replacement to fulfill the responsibilities of the employees to which the KERP applies;
- f. whether the KERP agreement and charge were approved by the board of directors, including the independent directors, as the business judgment of the board should not be ignored;
- g. whether the KERP agreement and charge are supported or consented to by secured creditors of the debtor; and
- h. whether the payments under the KERP are payable upon the completion of the restructuring process.

Re Timminco Ltd. (2012), 95 C.C.P.B. 48 (Ont. Sup. Ct. J [Commercial List]) at paras. 72-75; Book of Authorities, Tab 22.

92. The purpose of a KERP arrangement is to retain key personnel for the duration of the debtor's restructuring process and it is logical for compensation under a KERP arrangement to be deferred until after the restructuring process has been completed, with "staged bonuses" being acceptable. KERP arrangements that do not defer retention payments to completion of the restructuring may also be just and fair in the circumstances.

Grant Forest, supra at para. 22-23; Book of Authorities, Tab 21.

93. The Applicants submit that the KERP Charge is warranted and necessary, and that it is appropriate in the present circumstances for this Honourable Court to exercise its jurisdiction and grant the KERP Charge in the amount of CAD$3 million, given:

- a. the KERP was developed by Cinram with the principal purpose of providing an incentive to the Eligible Employees, the Eligible Officers, and the Aurora

Employees to remain with the Cinram Group while the company pursued its restructuring efforts;

- b. the Eligible Employees and the Eligible Officers are essential for a restructuring of the Cinram Group and the preservation of Cinram's value during the restructuring process;
- c. the Aurora Employees are essential for an orderly transition of Cinram Distribution's business operations from the Aurora facility to its Nashville facility;
- d. it would be detrimental to the restructuring process if Cinram were required to find replacements for the Eligible Employees, the Eligible Officers and/or the Aurora Employees during this critical period;
- e. the KERP, including the KERP Retention Payments, the KERP Transaction Payments and the Aurora KERP Payments payable thereunder, not only provides appropriate incentives for the Eligible Employees, the Eligible Officers and the Aurora Employees to remain in their current positions, but also ensures that they are properly compensated for their assistance in Cinram's restructuring process;
- f. the senior secured creditors affected by the charge have been provided with notice of these CCAA proceedings; and
- g. the KERP has been reviewed and approved by the board of trustees of Cinram Fund and is supported by the Monitor.

Bell Affidavit, paras. 236-239, 245-247; Application Record, Tab 2.

(E) Consent Consideration Charge

94. The Applicants request the Consent Consideration Charge over the Charged Property to secure the Early Consent Consideration. The Consent Consideration Charge is to be subordinate in priority to the Administration Charge, the DIP Lenders' Charge, the Directors' Charge and the KERP Charge.

95. The Courts have permitted the opportunity to receive consideration for early consent to a restructuring transaction in the context of CCAA proceedings payable upon implementation of such restructuring transaction. In Sino-Forest, the Court ordered that any noteholder wishing to become a consenting noteholder under the support agreement and entitled to early consent consideration was required to execute a joinder agreement to the support agreement prior to the applicable consent deadline. Similarly, in these proceedings, lenders under the First Lien Credit Agreement who execute the Support Agreement (or a joinder thereto) and thereby agree to support the Proposed Transaction on or before July 10, 2012, are entitled to Early Consent Consideration earned on consummation of the Proposed Transaction to be paid from the net sale proceeds.

Sino-Forest, supra, Initial Order granted on March 30, 2012, Court File No. CV-12-9667-00CL at para. 15; Book of Authorities, Tab 23. Bell Affidavit, para. 176; Application Record, Tab 2.

96. The Applicants submit it is appropriate in the present circumstances for this Honourable Court to exercise its jurisdiction and grant the Consent Consideration Charge, given:

- a. the Proposed Transaction will enable the Cinram Business to continue as a going concern and return to a market leader in the industry;
- b. Consenting Lenders are only entitled to the Early Consent Consideration if the Proposed Transaction is consummated; and
- c. the Early Consent Consideration is to be paid from the net sale proceeds upon distribution of same in these proceedings.

REASONS FOR JUDGMENT

OSBORNE J.

1. It is hard not to have a sense of melancholy when considering the Application before me. Hudson's Bay is the oldest company in North America and a very prominent Canadian department store. It was founded in 1670. Now, approximately 355 years later, it is insolvent and seeks protection from its creditors.

2. At the conclusion of the initial hearing of this Application on Friday, I granted the requested relief with reasons to follow. These are those reasons.

The Application

3. The Applicants, Hudson's Bay Company ULC Compagnie De La Baie D'Hudson SRI ("Hudson's Bay" or the "Company"), HBC Canada Parent Holdings Inc. ("Hudson's Bay Parent 1"), HBC Canada Parent Holdings 2 Inc. ("Hudson's Bay Parent 2"), The Bay Holdings ULC ("The Bay Holdings"), HBC Bay Holdings I Inc. ("Hudson's Bay Holdings 1") and HBC Bay Holdings II ULC ("Hudson's Bay Holdings 2"), HBC Centerpoint GP Inc. ("Centerpoint GP"), HBC YSS 1 LP Inc. ("YSS 1 LP"), HBC YSS 2 LP Inc. ("YSS 2 LP"), HBC Holdings GP Inc. ("Hudson's Bay Holdings GP"), Snospmis Limited ("Snospmis"), 2472596 Ontario Inc. ("596 Ontario"), 2472598 Ontario Inc. ("598 Ontario", and collectively, the "Applicants" or the "Companies") bring this Application pursuant to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended (the "CCAA").

4. Today, the Applicants seek an Initial Order providing for:

- a. an urgent stay of proceedings (the "Stay of Proceedings") for the permitted initial ten-day period (the "Initial Stay Period") under s. 11.02(2) of the CCAA;
- b. an extension of the Stay of Proceedings to certain Non-Applicant Stay Parties (as defined below);
- c. the appointment of Alvarez & Marsal Canada Inc. as monitor (the "Proposed Monitor");
- d. the approval of a DIP Agreement and authority to access the DIP Facility;
- e. authority to maintain the existing Cash Management System;
- f. authority to pay certain pre-filing amounts to Critical Suppliers; and
- g. approval of an Administration Charge, a Directors' Charge and a DIP Lenders' Charge, together with certain other relief necessary to preserve the Applicants' business and stakeholder value during the Initial Stay Period.

5. The Applicants rely on the Affidavit of Jennifer Bewley sworn March 7, 2025. Ms. Bewley is the Chief Financial Officer of Hudson's Bay and holds a number of other offices within the Applicants' corporate structure. The Applicants also rely on the Pre-Filing Report of the Proposed Monitor.

6. Defined terms in this Endorsement have the meaning given to them in the Application materials and/or the Pre-Filing Report, unless otherwise stated. All references to currency are expressed in Canadian dollars.

Background to the Application

7. Hudson's Bay currently operates, across seven provinces, 88 full-line Hudson's Bay-branded stores, three stores operating under a licence agreement as "Saks Fifth Avenue", and 13 stores operating under a licence agreement as "Saks OFF 5TH". It leases four distribution centres, one of which is in British Columbia with the remaining three in Ontario. It has approximately 9,364 employees, of whom 647 are employed subject to collective bargaining agreements. It has pension plans with both defined benefit and defined contribution elements.

8. When Hudson's Bay was founded in 1670, it was granted a right of sole trade and commerce over an expansive area of land known as Rupert's Land, which included what is today all of Manitoba, most of Saskatchewan, the southern parts of Alberta and Nunavut, and the northern parts of Ontario and Québec.

9. By the middle of the nineteenth century, Hudson's Bay evolved into a mercantile business selling a wide variety of products from furs to fine homeware in shops across Canada. Hudson's Bay officially became a Canadian company in 1970, when it rechartered under Canadian law.

10. Today, Hudson's Bay and its subsidiaries collectively operate as a premier North American department store retailer with significant real estate assets in Canada. In 2012, the Company completed an initial public offering of its common shares, which traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange. One year later, it acquired Saks Incorporated which then operated luxury department stores in the United States under the banners "Saks Fifth Avenue" and "Saks OFF 5TH".

11. The retail landscape in Canada and across North America has evolved dramatically and rapidly over the decades since those events. So-called "brick-and-mortar" stores have struggled to compete with e-commerce players, resulting in a decline in traffic at those stores. This trend has had a material negative impact on Hudson's Bay and its financial and operating results as well as its real estate assets.

12. As a result of these challenges, Hudson's Bay was taken private on March 3, 2020 by a group of then-existing shareholders. Saks Inc., together with its US subsidiaries, became a sister company and affiliate of Hudson's Bay. Between 2020 and 2024, Hudson's Bay and Saks Global shared the same ownership group and refinanced as a single credit group for credit facility purposes, while trade creditors and other service providers (with certain exceptions) transacted with each business separately.

13. The challenges noted above were exacerbated significantly by the Covid 19 pandemic and associated lockdown which resulted in a further significant decline in foot traffic at Hudson's Bay stores across Canada. The lasting impacts of the pandemic, including the widespread and continuing trend towards remote work, has decreased further still foot traffic at retail stores, and increased associate economic pressures.

14. The Company's flagship downtown stores have been disproportionately impacted since they have historically relied on office workers and commuters for a significant proportion of their revenue. At the same time, these locations represent some of Hudson's Bay's highest cost operations due to rent and other expenses.

15. Notwithstanding repeated and continuing efforts by the Company to address its financial and operational challenges since its privatization, including the pursuit of an aggressive e-commerce expansion strategy to counteract the impact of the decline in foot traffic at retail stores, and cost-cutting, the challenges have continued.

16. In December, 2024, Saks Global acquired Neiman Marcus. That transaction significantly reduced the funded debt obligations on Hudson's Bay's Canadian business, which then became separately financed with standalone credit facilities.

17. Recent and continuing uncertainty in financial markets, together with trade tensions with the United States and the threat of tariffs, have created even more challenging conditions for refinancing and business operations.

18. Earlier this year, Hudson's Bay had advanced discussions with potential lenders, pursuant to which, it was hoped, the Company could refinance some or all of its Credit Facilities and improve its liquidity position. Regrettably, those were not successful, and the potential lenders were ultimately unwilling to provide further financing, resulting in the liquidity crisis facing the Company today.

19. Put simply, Hudson's Bay is out of money and cannot meet its financial obligations as they come due. It therefore brings this Application today seeking the relief set out above.

Jurisdiction

20. Subsection 9(1) of the CCAA provides that an application for a stay of proceedings under the CCAA may be made to the court that has jurisdiction in the province in which the head office or chief place of business of the company in Canada is situated.

21. In Nordstrom Canada Retail, Inc., 2023 ONSC 1422 ("Nordstrom") at paras. 15 and 27, this Court found that the company's "chief place of business" was Ontario, notwithstanding the fact that the debtor was incorporated and had significant business operations in British Columbia. In determining whether the court had jurisdiction over the proceedings, this Court considered multiple factors, including the location of the company's assets, employees and sales. The Court found that there was sufficient evidence establishing Ontario as the proper jurisdiction based on the following:

[...] 8 of the 13 Nordstrom Canada retail stores are located in Ontario, while approximately 1,450 out of Nordstrom Canada's 2,500 full and part- time employees work in Ontario. Further, during fiscal year 2022, store sales in Ontario totalled $220 million, compared to $148 million in British Columbia and $77 million in Alberta.

22. Here, 41 of the Applicants' 90+ stores are located in Ontario - more than in any other province - and its head office is in Toronto. Approximately 51.6% of the Applicants' employees are also located in Ontario, and its pension plan is registered with the Financial Services Regulatory Authority of Ontario.

23. I am satisfied that this Court has jurisdiction to grant the relief sought.

24. Further, and while this Court has broad discretion pursuant to section 11 of the CCAA to make any order it considers appropriate in the circumstances, section 11.001 requires that the relief sought on an initial application be limited to what is "reasonably necessary for the continued operations of the debtor company in the ordinary course of business" during the initial 10 day period.

25. This provision is intended to "limit the decisions that can be taken at the outset of a CCAA proceeding to measures necessary to avoid the immediate liquidation of an insolvent company, thereby improving participation of all players". See: Lydian International Limited (Re), 2019 ONSC 7473 ("Lydian") at para 25. Whether any particular relief is necessary to stabilize a debtor company's operations during the initial stay period is inherently a factual determination, based on all of the circumstances of a particular debtor: Boreal Capital Partners Ltd et al. (Re), 2021 ONSC 7802 at para 16.

The Applicants are Insolvent

26. The CCAA applies to a "debtor company" or affiliated debtor companies where the total amount of claims against the debtor or its affiliates exceeds $5 million. The Applicants are each a "company" for the purposes of s. 2 of the CCAA as they do business in or have assets in Canada: Lydian at para. 35-36.

27. The CCAA defines "company" in s. 2(1) as, among other things, "[a]ny company, corporation or legal person incorporated by or under an Act of Parliament or of the legislature of a province and any incorporated company having assets or doing business in Canada, wherever incorporated [...]." The Applicants, as corporations existing under the laws of the Province of Ontario and British Columbia, meet the definition of "company".

28. A "debtor company" means, inter alia, a company that is insolvent: CCAA, ss. 2 and 3(1). The CCAA defines a "debtor company" as, among other things, any company that is insolvent or has committed an act of bankruptcy within the meaning of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act ("BIA").

29. The term “insolvent” is not defined in the CCAA and therefore a determination of whether a company is insolvent requires consideration of the definition of “insolvent person” in the BIA, as:

a person who is not bankrupt and who resides, carries on business or has property in Canada, whose liabilities to creditors provable as claims under this Act amount to one thousand dollars, and

- a) who is for any reason unable to meet his obligations as they generally become due,
- b) who has ceased paying his current obligations in the ordinary course of business as they generally become due, or
- c) the aggregate of whose property is not, at a fair valuation, sufficient, or, if disposed of at a fairly conducted sale under legal process, would not be sufficient to enable payment of all his obligations, due and accruing due.

30. Each of the above factors is disjunctive.

31. Courts have also considered the expanded concept of insolvency adopted in Stelco Inc., Re, 2004 CarswellOnt 1211 at para. 26 (“Stelco”), in which this court held that a debtor is insolvent where there is a looming liquidity crisis such that it is reasonably foreseeable that the debtor will run out of cash unless its business is restructured. This approach to the insolvency criteria has been applied in other cases, including Target Canada Co. (Re), 2015 ONSC 303 (“Target”) at para. 26; Just Energy Corp. (Re), 2021 ONSC 1793 (“Just Energy”) at paras. 48 to 51; and Nordstrom at para. 26.

32. I am satisfied that the Applicants here are insolvent in that they are unable to meet their obligations as they generally become due. As of January 1, 2025, the Applicants had approximately $3 million in cash on hand. They owed approximately $315 million in trade payables and $422 million in pre-filing secured debt in addition to $724.4 million in mortgage obligations, for approximate total Secured Debt Obligations of $1.1294 billion.

33. Hudson’s Bay today is facing an imminent liquidity crisis. It has not paid rent at several of its leased stores and a number of its trade creditors have not been paid. The failure to pay rent will imminently trigger an escalating chain of events leading to defaults under other leases, where Hudson’s Bay has failed to pay rent and cross defaults on its secured obligations. As reflected in the Cash Flow Forecast prepared by Hudson’s Bay and reviewed by the Proposed Monitor, the Companies have a critical need for immediate financing to continue operating in the ordinary course.

34. Accordingly, I am satisfied that the Applicants are corporations that collectively owe over $5 million in outstanding liabilities. They have delivered the documents and financial statements required under s. 10(2) of the CCAA.

Stay of Proceedings

35. Section 11.02(1) of the CCAA provides that the Court may order a stay of proceedings on an initial CCAA application for a period of not more than 10 days. Section 11.001 of the CCAA provides that relief granted on an initial CCAA application shall be limited to relief that is reasonably necessary for the continued operations of the debtor company in the ordinary course of business during that initial 10-day period.

36. In Lydian, the Chief Justice observed that the Initial Stay Period preserves the status quo and allows for operations to be stabilized and negotiations to occur, followed by requests for expanded relief on proper notice to affected parties at the full comeback hearing.

37. The relief requested in this first-day Application meets these criteria. Each aspect of the relief sought by the Applicants in the Initial Stay Period is interdependent, and collectively the relief is critical to allow the Applicants to properly respond to their current circumstances.

38. A stay of proceedings is clearly necessary here if any form of restructuring process is to be successful. The Applicants are in a liquidity crisis and absent a stay of proceedings, there is a significant risk that individual creditors will seek to enforce their rights on a haphazard basis without regard for the survival of the Companies or maximization of their value. Indeed, landlords and creditors in Ontario and Nova Scotia are already seeking to do just that.

39. A stay of proceedings is necessary to provide the Applicants with the breathing space necessary to develop an orderly restructuring process while maintaining business operations in the ordinary course.

The Stay should be Extended to Non-Applicant Stay Parties

40. I am also satisfied that the stay and the protections and authorizations proposed in the draft Initial Order should be extended to the defined Non-Applicant Stay Parties, including the RioCan-Hudson's Bay JV.

41. The authority of the Court to extend a stay to non-filing affiliates is derived from the broad jurisdiction given to the Court under ss. 11 and 11.01(2) of the CCAA. The Supreme Court of Canada has described this judicial discretion - which plays a prominent role in CCAA restructurings - as the "true 'engine'" driving the statutory scheme of the CCAA: Montreal (City) v. Deloitte Restructuring Inc., ("Montreal v. Deloitte"), 2021 SCC 53 at para. 48.

42. In JTI-Macdonald Corp., this Court outlined the factors determining when it is appropriate to extend a CCAA stay over non-filing affiliates, including where the business of the non-filing affiliate is significantly intertwined with that of the debtors and extending the stay would help maintain stability during the CCAA process: JTI-Macdonald Corp. (Re), 2019 ONSC 1625 at para. 15 (“JTI-Macdonald”).

43. In considering whether to extend a stay of proceedings to non-applicant parties, this Court has previously considered factors including: whether (a) the non-applicant parties had guaranteed the debtor’s secured loans; (b) the non-applicant parties were deeply integrated into the business operations of the debtor; and (c) the claims against the non-applicant parties were derivative of the primary liability of the debtor: BZAM Ltd. Plan of Arrangement, 2024 ONSC 1645 (“BZAM”) at para 42.

44. Certain of the Non-Applicant Stay Parties here are partnerships. Where the operations of partnerships are integral and closely related to the operations of the applicants, it is well-established that the CCAA court has the jurisdiction to extend the protection of the stay of proceedings to those partnerships to ensure that the purposes of the CCAA can be achieved. To decide otherwise would “defeat the entire purpose” of a CCAA restructuring: Just Energy at para 117.

45. One of the Non-Applicant Stay Parties, RioCan-Hudson’s Bay JV, is a joint venture between Hudson’s Bay and a third-party non-applicant, RioCan Real Estate Investment Trust. Hudson’s Bay, through its wholly owned subsidiary Hudson’s Bay Holdings LP, holds a 78.0136% interest as a limited partner in RioCan-Hudson’s Bay JV. The general partner of RioCan-Hudson’s Bay JV is RioCan-Hudson’s Bay GP. Hudson’s Bay Holdings GP, a wholly owned subsidiary of Hudson’s Bay, has a 50% share ownership interest in RioCan-Hudson’s Bay GP and RioCan Financial Services Limited has the remaining 50% share ownership interest in RioCan-Hudson’s Bay GP. Certain of RioCan-Hudson’s Bay JV’s subsidiaries are proposed Non-Applicant Stay Parties.

46. This Court has previously granted stays of proceedings over entities in which the applicants lacked majority control. In Re Imperial Tobacco Canada Limited, 2019 ONSC 1684 at para. 11 – 12, the Court granted a stay over an entity in which the debtors held a 50% voting interest and 70% equity interest, noting that the non-applicant stay entity was “highly integrated with the [a]pplicants and indispensable to the [a]pplicants’ business and restructuring.” The Court concluded by noting that extending the stay to the non-applicant entity would not prejudice any claimants.

47. In the present case, the Non-Applicant Stay Parties are highly integrated with and indispensable to the business of the Applicants. RioCan-Hudson’s Bay JV and the other Non-Applicant Stay Parties are the Applicants’ real estate subsidiaries (whether wholly or partially owned by Hudson’s Bay) and represent all of Hudson’s Bay Canada’s owned real property interests and certain head leasehold interests.

48. The business and operations of the Non-Applicant Stay Parties is fully intertwined with those of the Applicants. Any proceedings commenced against the Non-Applicant Stay Parties would necessarily involve the Applicants' key personnel and consume the Applicants' limited resources. Extending the stay to the Non-Applicant Stay Parties prevents uncoordinated realization and enforcement attempts in different jurisdictions, all of which would be counterproductive to the maximization and protection of value for Applicants' stakeholders. Accordingly, the Applicants submit that it is appropriate to extend the stay of proceedings to the Non-Applicant Stay Parties. I agree with that submission.

The Stay Should Prohibit Pre/Post Set-Off

49. The proposed stay of proceedings would prohibit any person from setting off pre-filing obligations against post-filing obligations.

50. While section 21 of the CCAA contemplates set-off within a CCAA proceeding, it does not specifically address the issue of pre-/post set-off. However, the Supreme Court of Canada has confirmed that this Court can stay pre-/post set-off pursuant to its broad jurisdiction that flows from ss. 11 and 11.02 of the CCAA: Montreal v. Deloitte at para 62. This Court has in fact done so in other cases. See, for example, Re Tacora Resources Inc. (October 2023), Toronto CV-23-00707394-00CL (Initial Order) at para. 13.

51. I am satisfied that such an element of the proposed stay is appropriate here.

The Stay Should Suspend Certain Rent Payments

52. In addition, I am satisfied that, pursuant to section 11 of the CCAA, the stay should, as proposed, suspend the payment of rent by Hudson's Bay to Rio-Can-Hudson's Bay JV, YSS1 or YSS 2 (the "JV Sublandlords") pending further order of the Court, other than with respect to that amount of rent payable by the JV Sublandlords, as applicable, to third party Landlords under the JV Head Lease until such JV Head Lease is disclaimed or terminated.

53. The circumstances here are somewhat unique and, in my view, warrant the exercise of discretion to stay the payment of post-filing rent in this curated fashion, since the JV Sublandlords are Non-Applicant Stay Parties in which Hudson's Bay indirectly owns a 78.0136% equity interest and which form an integrated and integral part of the business of the Applicants.

54. Five of the leases between the Applicants and the JV Sublandlords are subleases. Those JV Sublandlords in turn have head leases with third-party Landlords. The majority of the sublease structures are subject to third party property-specific mortgages. The rent payable to the Landlords is lower than current market rents. The rent payable to the JV Sublandlords by Hudson's Bay reflects market rents as they existed in 2015 when the structure was put in place.

55. In the normal course, the rent paid by Hudson's Bay to the JV Sublandlords would be used to pay the rent payable to the Landlords under the head lease, administrative costs, and the servicing of mortgage debt, with the remainder being distributed to Hudson's Bay and RioCan by way of equity distribution.

56. The extension of the stay to the Non-Applicant Stay Parties will stay pre-filing debt obligations of the JV Sublandlords owed to the third party mortgage lenders. While RioCan and Hudson's Bay would normally receive equity distributions from RioCan-Hudson's Bay JV, such distributions will be stayed by the CCAA proceedings.

57. The proposed stay of the payment of rent by Hudson's Bay to the JV Sublandlords (other than any amount necessary to satisfy the amount of rent payable under any head leases), will mitigate any prejudice to the Landlords, and is consistent with s. 11.01 of the CCAA.

58. The Applicants are facing a severe liquidity crisis and require immediate access to DIP financing to continue operating, all as is discussed further below. The Applicants' ability to avoid a complete liquidation and restructure around a lower number of locations – thereby preserving the jobs of thousands of employees – is dependant upon preserving as much liquidity as possible. If Hudson's Bay is required to pay rent in full to the JV Sublandlords, that cash (net of payments to Landlords and for other expenses) would pool in the JV Sublandlord entities resulting in a potential windfall recovery for the JV Sublandlords' secured creditors, to the detriment of Hudson's Bay and its stakeholders generally.

59. The terms of the proposed DIP Facility do not permit Hudson's Bay to make post-filing payments to RioCan Hudson's Bay JV. A similar approach was endorsed by this Court in Nordstrom, where this Court stayed and suspended the payment of certain post-filing amounts arising from subleases between the debtor (as sublessee) and a non-applicant stay party (as sublessor). Basic rent was not stayed, but amounts incurred in constructing, fixturing, and furnishing the premises that would otherwise be due under the subleases were stayed: Nordstrom at paras. 9 and 44.

60. I recognize that other courts have taken different approaches, but in my view, each case reflects the fact that, as contemplated by the CCAA, the exercise of discretion should be considered on a case-by-case basis according to the specific facts in each. The British Columbia and Québec courts have, on occasion, declined to relieve debtors of paying post-filing rent. See, for example: Re Quest University Canada, 2020 BCSC 921; and Groupe Dynamite inc. C. Deloitte Restructuring Inc., 2021 QCCS 3. Both of these cases, however, are in my view distinguishable from the present situation as they did not involve a related-party landlord, and the debtors in those cases proposed deferring or not paying all of the rent owing under their leases.

61. In the particular and unique circumstances of this case, I am satisfied that the stay of proceedings should suspend post-filing rent payments to the JV Sublandlords, other than with respect to any amounts necessary to pay the rent due on the head lease.

Co-Tenancy Stay

62. The proposed stay would also apply to co-tenants. Many retail leases provide that tenants have certain rights against their landlords which rights are triggered upon the insolvency of an anchor tenant or an anchor tenant ceasing operations at the location of the co-tenancy.

63. The Applicants are requesting that the stay here apply to any rights that tenants or occupants may have against the owners, operators, managers and landlords of the commercial properties where Hudson's Bay stores are located that arise as a result of the insolvency by Hudson's Bay Canada, the granting of the proposed Initial Order, or any actions taken by the Applicants pursuant thereto. This is supported by the Proposed Monitor.

64. I recognize that such relief has been granted by other Courts in retail insolvencies pursuant to the broad discretion given to the court under sections 11 and 11.02(1) of the CCAA to make an initial order on "any terms that it may impose". See, for example, Re T. Eaton Co., 1997 CarswellOnt 1914 (Gen. Div.), Target at paras. 44 - 48, and Nordstrom at paras 33 - 35.

65. The rationale is that extending the stay of proceedings in such a manner prevents a so-called "run on the bank" in the sense that many other co-tenants might seek, as a result of this proceeding, to terminate their own leases with landlord locations where Hudson's Bay currently operates. As observed by the Court in Target at para. 44, if tenants were permitted to exercise these co-tenancy rights during the stay, the claims of the landlord against the debtor company could greatly increase, with the potentially detrimental impact on the restructuring efforts of the debtor company.

66. In the particular and unique circumstances of this case, and given the prominent nature of the business of Hudson's Bay, both generally in the retail landscape across Canada and specifically at various shopping mall locations, I am prepared to grant that relief today for the initial stay period to ensure stability of operations.

67. However, and consistent with the approach adopted by the Court in Target, to the extent that the affected parties wish to challenge the broad nature of this stay, such can be addressed at the comeback hearing: Target, at para. 48.

68. I would add that, in my view, such co-tenancy stays are representative of relief that lies towards the limit of the judicial discretion permitted by ss. 11 and 11.02 of the CCAA and should generally be granted only in relatively unique circumstances and where justified on the evidence before the Court.

69. Such stays suspend the enforcement of contractual rights of parties that are quite remote to the present proceeding and the insolvency of the debtor on which it is based. Such co-tenancy stays operate, in practical terms, to protect and stabilize the operations not of the debtor, but of landlords who are contractual counterparties to the debtor (i.e., through retail leases). Those landlords are not insolvent. While I appreciate that the object of such stays is to minimize the risk of that very event occurring, such stays represent a significant compromise of rights of third parties.

70. There are many examples of stays that compromise or suspend the rights of third parties. Usually, however, those third parties are counterparties in contracts or have some other relationship with the debtor. Here, such co-tenancy stays suspend the rights of parties one step even further removed from the insolvency of the debtor - other retail tenants who have their own leases with the landlords. The only factor joining those parties to the debtor is that they have a common landlord at a common retail location.

71. The exercise of termination rights by those other retail tenants sought to be suspended must depend on those termination rights existing in the first place according to the terms of the leases in place between those other tenants and the landlord. If a co-tenant bargained for the right to terminate its own lease in the event that an anchor tenant at the same location ceased operations or became insolvent, and its landlord agreed to give that co-tenant such a right (presumably for economic consideration), the landlord made the business decision to take risks in respect of other retail tenancies based on its own assessment of the risk of insolvency of the anchor tenant.

72. Finally in this regard, it does not automatically follow that even if a co-tenant terminated its lease, the landlord would have a valid claim against the debtor in the insolvency proceeding.

73. Accordingly, in my view, an analysis of whether the rights of co-tenants should be suspended pursuant to a stay of proceedings will be fact-specific in each case, and if granted at the initial order hearing of an application, will be subject to review at the comeback hearing as noted by the Chief Justice in Target.

74. I would add that it will also be subject to review at any time throughout the proceeding by a co-tenant pursuant to the seven day comeback clause in the Commercial List Model Order pursuant to which any affected party may request that the Court review, amend or vacate an initial order at any time.

Cash Management System Should be Maintained

75. Finally, I am satisfied that the terms of the stay should be such that the existing Cash Management System is preserved for the time being, and that Hudson's Bay and The Bay LP should have continued and uninterrupted access to the Bank accounts, with the associated banks not having the ability to restrict the rights of those parties in any way associated with the Cash Management System.

76. The Cash Management System centralizes the payment of funds and expenses associated with the operations of Hudson Bay through 46 bank accounts with 28 accounts at RBC, 16 accounts at TD, and two at Bank of America. Store receipts are deposited into depository accounts at RBC, and debit and credit card receipts (excluding American Express) are deposited daily into the TD depository accounts.

77. The Company maintains 22 bank accounts that process outgoing wires, Automatic Clearing House and cheque payments for disbursements to landlords, vendors, tax authorities, and employees. Those accounts are funded by the main cash accounts in each respective entity. In addition, Hudson's Bay Canada holds nominal cash to ensure sufficient cash flow to the stores. Excess cash is deposited into the main cash account of Hudson's Bay as needed, typically twice per week.

78. I am satisfied that the existing Cash Management System should be maintained in order that the Company can continue to efficiently collect, manage and disperse cash. The Proposed Monitor has familiarized itself with the Cash Management System, is supportive of its maintenance, and opines that the appropriate processes, controls, and reporting are in place to enable the Applicants, with the oversight of the Proposed Monitor, to continue to use the Cash Management System during this CCAA Proceeding.

Appointment of Alvarez & Marsal Canada Inc. as Monitor

79. Pursuant to section 11.7 of the CCAA, the Court shall appoint a person to monitor the business and financial affairs of the company when an order is made on the initial application. The person appointed must be a trustee within the meaning of subsection 2 (1) of the BIA.

80. The Applicants propose to have Alvarez & Marsal Canada Inc. ("A&M") appointed as the Monitor.

81. A&M is a "trustee" within the meaning of subsection 2(1) of the BIA, is established and qualified, and has consented to act as Monitor. The involvement of A&M as the court-appointed Monitor will lend stability and assurance to the Applicants' stakeholders. A&M is not subject to any of the restrictions set out in s. 11.7(2) of the CCAA.

82. I am satisfied that A&M should be appointed as Monitor in these CCAA Proceedings.

The DIP and DIP Facility

83. The Applicants seek approval of the DIP Facility and approval of an interim financing charge (the DIP Charge) to secure the proposed DIP Facility pursuant to section 11.2 of the CCAA.

84. Section 11.2(4) of the CCAA sets out a non-exhaustive list of criteria that the Court must consider in deciding whether to grant a DIP lender's charge. Those criteria apply to the period during which the Applicants are expected to be subject to CCAA proceedings, how the Applicants' business and financial affairs are to be managed during the proceedings, whether the Applicants' management has the confidence of its major creditors, whether the loan would enhance the prospects of a viable compromise or arrangement being made in respect of the Applicants, the nature and value of the Applicants' property, whether any creditor would be materially prejudiced as a result of the security or charge, and whether the monitor supports the charge.

85. When an application for interim financing is made at the same time as an initial application, the applicant must additionally satisfy the Court that the terms of the loan are "limited to what is reasonably necessary for the continued operations of the debtor company in the ordinary course of business during that period: s. 11.2(5).

86. It is important that an applicant meet the criteria in section 11.2(1) as well as those in section 11.2(4). See CanWest Publishing Inc., Re, 2010 ONSC 222 (“CanWest IP”) at paras. 42-44.

87. When considering the s. 11.2(4) factors, the Court “must determine which proposal is most appropriate and most importantly, which will best serve the interests of the stakeholders of the [Applicants] as a whole by enhancing the prospects of a successful restructuring.” The Court is to make an “independent determination” when selecting a DIP proposal, having regard to the factors in subsection 11.2(4): Crystallex (Re), 2012 ONCA 404 at para 85.

88. The terms of the DIP Facility, in the principal amount of $16 million, are reflected in the Junior DIP Term Sheet dated as of March 7, 2025. The Company is the Borrower, and various affiliates are Guarantors. The Agent is Restore Capital, LLC on behalf of a syndicate of lenders as set out in the materials. The Applicants are seeking on this initial Application a corresponding DIP Charge, which would rank according to the waterfall priority set out in the proposed Initial Order.

89. I am satisfied that the DIP Facility and DIP Charge are appropriate here. The Applicants are facing an urgent and immediate liquidity crisis. They are unable to pay rent, current commitments to suppliers, and they will be unable to fund payroll within a matter of days. A loss of employees or material contracts could have significant negative impacts on the business of the Applicants.

90. The proposed DIP facility does not contain any commitment fee, and the proposed exit fee is comparable to DIP Facilities of a similar size. In the view of the Proposed Monitor, while the proposed interest rate is on the higher end of the range for comparable DIP facilities of similar size (CORRA+11.5%, or approximately 14.5%), it is reasonable relative to the existing FILO Credit Facility rate (CORRA+9.75%, or approximately 12.75%), and in my view is reflective of both the challenges and risks associated with a bricks and mortar retail operation in Canada today and the challenges facing these Applicants in particular.

91. The cash flow projections demonstrate that debtor-in-possession financing is urgently required to fund the needed liquidity to preserve the value in going-concern operations of the business. The DIP Lenders require the DIP Charge as a condition of the DIP Facility.

92. The Applicants believe, and the Proposed Monitor supports the view, that the DIP Facility represents the best interim financing that is available in the circumstances, and further that the economic terms of the DIP Facility are reasonable in the circumstances. It was selected following discussions with multiple potential lenders.

93. I accept the submission. The DIP Lender is an existing pre-filing secured creditor. Notice has been given to secured creditors that are proposed to be primed by the DIP Charge as required by subsection 11.2(1) of the CCAA. The terms of the proposed Initial Order are clear that the proposed DIP Charge does not secure any pre-filing obligations of the Applicants.

94. As required by section 11.2(5), the proposed DIP Facility is limited on this initial application to what is “reasonably necessary” to meet the needs of the debtor during the initial interim period.

95. The Cash Flow Forecast provided by the Proposed Monitor shows that the funds to be made available by the DIP Facility of $16 million are required to stabilize and maintain operations and fund these proceedings through the initial stay period. Without that, the total projected disbursements for this period of approximately $30.7 million would be unfunded.

96. I observe that the Cash Flow Forecast reflects receipts forecasted from sales of retail stores and e-commerce channels consistent with recent sales trends for the Company, inventory purchases represent estimated disbursements to purchase inventory for continuing stores, and occupancy costs include post-filing rent for the period March 7-17, 2025 for all store, corporate and distribution centre locations.

97. For all of these reasons, the DIP Facility and the DIP Charge are approved.

Administration Charge

98. The Applicants are seeking an Administration Charge to secure the professional fees and disbursements of the Proposed Monitor, its counsel, and counsel to the Applicants up to a maximum of $2.8 million for the duration of the Initial Stay Period.

99. The Administration Charge was developed in consultation with the Proposed Monitor and is proposed to be secured by the Property with first priority over all other charges and security interests.

100. The Court has jurisdiction to grant an administration charge under s. 11.52 of the CCAA. It is to consider: the size and complexity of the business being restructured, the proposed role of the beneficiaries of the charge, whether there is an unwarranted duplication of roles, whether the quantum of the proposed charge appears to be fair and reasonable, the position of the secured creditors likely to be affected by the charge, and the position of the Monitor. See CanWest Publishing Inc., 2010 ONSC 222 at para. 54.

101. The proposed Administration Charge sought for the initial 10-day period meets this test and is appropriate. It is supported by the Proposed Monitor.

The Directors’ Charge

102. The Court has jurisdiction to grant a directors’ charge under section 11.51 of the CCAA, provided notice is given to the secured creditors who are likely to be affected by it.

103. The purpose of such a charge is to keep the directors and officers in place during the restructuring by providing them with protections against liabilities that could be incurred.

104. Such a charge may not be made if “the company could obtain adequate indemnification insurance for the director or officer at a reasonable cost” and the court shall declare that the charge does not apply in respect of a specific obligation or liability incurred by a director or officer “if, in its opinion, the obligation or liability was incurred as a result of the director’s or officer’s gross negligence or wilful misconduct”: CCAA, s 11.51; see also Laurentian University of Sudbury, 2021 ONSC 1098, supra at para 81; and Jaguar Mining Inc, Re, 2014 ONSC 494 at para 45.

105. The Applicants here seek a Directors’ Charge in the amount of $26,300,000 to secure the indemnity of their directors and officers for liabilities they may incur during the CCAA proceedings.

106. I am satisfied that the proposed Directors’ Charge is appropriate here. The directors and officers have advised that they are prepared to continue to serve, conditional upon the granting of the Directors’ Charge. It will apply only to the extent that the directors’ and officers’ respective insurance is insufficient or ineffective, and only in respect of obligations and liabilities incurred after the commencement of the CCAA Proceedings excluding wilful misconduct or gross negligence.

107. The Proposed Monitor supports the Applicants’ request for the Directors’ Charge. I am satisfied it is appropriate here.

108. I recognize that the quantum of the proposed charge is significant. I am satisfied, however, that it is appropriate here, due in large part to the fact that the business of the Applicants is largely retail consumer sales. The payroll of the Applicants (which will cycle during the initial stay period) is very significant given the large number of employees (approximately 9,364 as of February 28, 2025), and that triggers regular remittance obligations. So too do all retail sales in respect of HST remittance obligations.

109. I am satisfied that the proposed amount is reasonable in the circumstances, and limited to the potential exposure during the initial 10 day period. For all of these reasons, the Directors’ Charge is approved.

Pre-Filing Payments to Critical Third Parties

110. The Applicants seek the authorization but not the requirement to make payments with the consent of the Monitor, of pre-filing amounts to certain critical third parties.

111. Authority to grant an order for the payment of critical suppliers flows from section 11.4 of the CCAA which gives the Court specific authority to declare a person to be a critical supplier and to grant a corresponding charge on the property of the debtor to secure amounts owing for services provided after the filing.

112. The proposed order here would grant authority to the Applicants to pay pre-filing critical suppliers. I accept the submission that section 11.4 does not oust the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to authorize the payment of pre-filing amounts to suppliers whose services are viewed as critical to the post-filing operations of the debtor. See, for example: BZAM at para. 73; and Cline Mining Corporation (Re), 2014 ONSC 6998 at paras 39-40.

113. The Court has exercised its jurisdiction on multiple occasions to grant similar relief in other cases: See, for example, Target, at para. 62 to 65; Nordstrom, at paras. 50-53; Just Energy, at para. 99; Original Traders Energy Ltd. and 2496750 Ontario Inc. (Re), 2023 ONSC 753 at paras. 72-74; and Boreal Capital at paras. 20-22.

114. The factors that courts have considered in determining whether to grant such authorization include: (a) whether the goods and services are integral to the business of the applicants; (b) the applicants' dependency on the uninterrupted supply of the goods or services; (c) the fact that no payments will be made without the consent of the Monitor (which is a requirement under the proposed Initial Order); and (d) the effect on the debtors' operations and ability to restructure if it could not make such payments: Index Energy Mills Road Corporation (Re), 2017 ONSC 4944 at para. 31; Clover Leaf Holdings Company, Re., 2019 ONSC 6966 at para 25; Re Just Energy at para 99; and BZAM at paras 73-74.

115. These factors are fulfilled in this case, as these categories of suppliers are fundamental to the continuing operations of the Applicant.

Initial Order and Comeback Hearing

116. For all of these reasons, the Initial Order was granted with immediate effect according to its terms and without the necessity of issuing and entering.

117. The comeback hearing shall take place on Monday, March 17, 2025 commencing at 9:00am ET at the Courthouse.
